HOUSE REGALED BY ATTACKS ON NYE COMMITTEE

Expense Account Is Under Fire.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—With the remorseless glee of small boys given a chance to snowball a silk hat, the members of the house of representatives today shot a fusillade of recrimination and a volley of jeers at the senate for its business of conducting inquiries and investigations.

The chief target was Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, radical Republican, and the committee investigating senatorial campaigns of which he is chairman and whose expenses to date, according to the itemized account slipped into the congressional record two days ago, total $96,500.

The attack was led by Representative Charles L. Underhill [Rep., Mass.], chairman of the house committee on accounts. For half an hour he slung dart after dart at Senator Nye, with member after member interrupting to add his jeer of derision, his bark of indignation to the barrage.

Illinois Expenses Assailed.

The hit of the piece was when Representative Charles O'Connor [Rep., Okla.] caught up Representative Underhill's reference to the expenditures of the Nye committee in Illinois, saying that he preferred the methods of Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick [Rep., Ill.] in spending her own money campaigning for election to the senate, to the methods of the Nye committee spending the taxpayers' money in fruitless investigation.

"I knew this lady was a fast stepper," said Mr. Underhill, "but I did not realize that the committee would have to spend almost half of a hundred thousand dollars to keep up with her out in Illinois trying to find out what she did with her own money during the primary.

"This congress has absolutely nothing to do with the primaries in Illinois, and this committee had no right to make such an investigation at the expense of the taxpayers, not only of my state, but of Illinois as well.

Favors Using Own Money.

"I would have more respect for a man or woman who spent his or her own money—no matter if it amounted to ten million dollars—for the purpose of being elected, than I would have for a member of congress who would try—and who succeeded apparently—to get his publicity through the treasury of the United States.

"That is all this whole thing amounted to—publicity, publicity, publicity. And it is publicity that does not reflect credit upon the congress of the United States."

It was then that Representative O'Connor levered himself out of his slouch and stood looking blandly about the chamber.

"Is it not, in fact," he inquired, "a rather laudable example for any lady a bit past middle life to spend some of her funds trying to get into the old ladies' home to end her days?"

She Joins in Laughter.

At this description of the august body at the other end of the capitol the house broke into laughter. None laughed harder than Mrs. McCormick, who was sitting in a nearby seat.

The subject on which Representative Underhill, technically, was speaking was the supply bill for legislative activities in which the contingency funds, used in part for investigations, are embodied. As chairman of the house committee on accounts, Representative Underhill has control over the house contingency fund.

Carefully, so that he might stay just within the line demanded by the rules of courtesy between the two houses, Representative Underhill made his charges. He listed the sums for inquiries and investigations which had been appropriated within the past few years.

Appropriations Are Cited.

"For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929," he said, "the sum of $250,000 was appropriated and a like sum for the following year. For the year ending June 30, 1931, the sum was increased to $350,000.

"In all, a million and a half dollars have been spent in getting nowhere and producing nothing. The taxpayers have failed to get value for their money."

He touched on the $2,500 contemplated to be spent in carrying out the senate resolution proposed by Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.], to institute quo warranto proceedings against the three members of the federal power commission.

"The ridiculousness of such an ex-

BUTLER'S TRIAL EXPECTED TO BE OPEN TO PUBLIC

Vanderbilt Ready to Testify.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The trial of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler is to be open to the public, according to the most authoritative information available here tonight.

The court martial is expected to be held in Philadelphia, where Butler's criticisms of Premier Mussolini were made in a speech delivered Jan. 19. Virtually all the witnesses who would be called to testify as to the exact language used by Gen. Butler, who portrayed Mussolini as a "hit and run" driver who had sped on after a child had been killed by his motor car, are residents of Philadelphia.

Capt. William C. Watts, judge advocate of the court martial board, already has been questioning prospective witnesses. Maj. Henry Leonard, counsel for Maj. Gen. Butler, plans to go to New York Monday for a conference with John W. Davis, 1924 Democratic presidential candidate, in the hope of persuading the New Yorker to join the attorneys for the defense.

Charges Are Delayed.

Although naval officials have promised a prompt trial for Maj. Gen. Butler, the charges to be filed against him were not drawn up today. It is expected the accusations will fall under the heading of "conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline."

At the beginning of the court martial proceedings virtually all officials who discussed the case, predicted the hearings would be held behind closed doors but study of the navy regulations showed that they prescribe that the sessions of courts martial shall be public. The regulations state that should the court martial deem it expedient hearings be held in executive session they may so recommend.

Vanderbilt Breaks Silence.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The silence Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., has maintained over a remark attributed to him in which Premier Mussolini of Italy was pictured as a hit-and-run driver, was broken briefly today in a denial of a statement from the Italian foreign office that he never had met Mussolini.

Vanderbilt mentioned two cables from Rome in 1926, referring to the meeting.

"Any one has only to look up newspaper files of 1926," he said. "My interview with Mussolini was true. The story from Rome of my reception by Mussolini was true."

He again reiterated his intention to say nothing about a story related by several persons in which he was said to have told a group of men that, while driving with Mussolini, the premier ran over a child and did not stop to give aid.

Ready to Testify.

Vanderbilt referred all questioners to his attorney, Frank O. Smith, who said Vanderbilt had advised the state department about the situation. Smith said Vanderbilt had nothing to say which would help Butler and that it was "wholly immaterial where Butler got the information or whether he heard anyone say it."

He interpreted the situation as one of whether Butler made the statement, "regardless of whether it was true or false, or whether he made it on the authority of anyone."

Vanderbilt's duty, as a citizen, Smith said, was to refrain from any comment in view of the complications that have arisen. Smith agreed Vanderbilt's silence might infer the story was told by his client but added: "Although I am not prepared to say whether he did or did not say it, if the statement were made by him you can bet it was true."

He indicated Vanderbilt would appear if summoned for the court martial of Butler and in that event might be willing to make a public statement.

DUCE'S CABLE REVEALED.

[Copyright: 1931: by the New York Times.]

ROME, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The Italian government today made public the cable sent by Mussolini to Ambassador de Martino on being informed of Butler's speech. Mussolini said:

"I've never run over children or women or men. If such misfortune had happened to me it is superfluous to state that I would have done what one must do in such cases: Namely, I'd have stopped and rendered assistance. It is really unworthy of the American general to tell such ignoble falsehoods."

Mussolini's office insists that the premier never received Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., or if he did so, has no recollection of it.

SIX DOCTORS TO HOLD AUTOPSY IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Six well known pathologists will conduct a post mortem examination at 10 o'clock this morning on the body of Mrs. Mary Johnson, 30 years old, of 4306 North Crawford avenue, who died yesterday in the Belmont hospital supposedly from the effects of an illegal operation.

Before dying, Mrs. Johnson named Dr. Frank L. Nathanson, who has offices at 3846 West Madison street, as her physician. After obtaining Mrs. Johnson's statement, Albany Park police visited Dr. Nathanson's office, but failed to find him.

Coroner Bundesen later ordered a full investigation at the county morgue for today. He invited the following physicians to make the post mortem examination: Dr. Thomas Dwyer of the coroner's staff; Dr. E. R. Le Count of Rush Medical college; Dr. W. F. Peterson of the University of Illinois; Dr. Richard E. Jaffe of the county hospital; Dr. J. P. Simonds of Northwestern university, and Dr. E. R. McJunkin of Loyola university.

Dies of Burns from Acid Thrown on Him by Sister

Columbus Herrell, 47 years old, 410 North Peoria street, died yesterday at the county hospital of burns suffered on Wednesday when his sister, Mrs. Alice Johnson, 30 years old, threw acid on his face while he lay asleep. Hulit Herrell, 73, their father, was also seared by the acid. Earlier in the evening the Herrells had quarreled with Mrs. Johnson because she was "running around." Mrs. Johnson is being held by North Racine avenue police for the inquest which will be held tomorrow at the county morgue.

As a Cow Pony Charley Knows His Milk Route

Henry Burns, proprietor of the livery stable at 4191 Emerald avenue, last night informed the New City police that Red Charley, the 17 year old sorrel horse he had reported missing last Wednesday, was back in his stall, with saddle and bridle intact, munching a manger full of hay, and a side order of oats and corn. Burns asked them to please call off the search.

Likewise Joseph Tintoren, 14 year old son of George Tintoren, the cooper, of 1403 West 47th street, was home again, partaking of his first square meal in four days. He was eating it off the mantel piece.

Henry and Joseph became acquainted last Tuesday when Joseph, attired in chaps, spurs and a sombrero, strode into the office of the livery stable and asked to rent a mount for an afternoon canter. Henry does not cater to the bridle path trade, his stable consisting of light and heavy draft animals for trucking, etc. But business hasn't been so good, so he immediately thought of Red Charley, and an old United States army saddle in the loft.

Joseph tendered Henry a $1, the price agreed on, Henry hoisted him into the saddle—Red Charley being 15 and a half hands high—and Joseph rode away. Joseph didn't tell Henry he intended to head for Montana to ride the range as a cowboy. For that matter, Henry didn't mention that Red Charley once pulled a milk wagon around the 15th and 18th wards; later a mail wagon out of the postal substation at 3053 West 63rd street, and finally a hearse.

"I put the spurs on him as soon as we got out of sight of the livery stable," said Joseph last night, "but he would only trot. He trotted down the second alley we came to, and stopped at the back gate of the first house. Then he wouldn't trot any more. He would just walk and stop at every house.

"Night came. I figured he would be fooled in the dark. I put the spurs to him again, and speeded him up to a half gallop. It was rough going. I can roller skate and ride a bicycle, but boy! Well, we galloped all night. I thought daylight would find us near the Mississippi river. Sure, enough, Red Charley stopped about sunrise on the banks of a stream. I inquired where we were and learned it was the drainage canal. He had stopped in front of a mailbox."

Charley Stops at Cemetery.

Joseph spent Wednesday and Thursday relaxing from the saddle, and renting Red Charley to neighborhood boys at 10 cents a ride—between mail boxes. On Friday, Joseph was in fair condition to proceed again, and climbed back in the saddle. Red Charley evinced a willingness to head south, so Joseph decided to go to Texas instead of Montana. Everything went well until they reached the Evergreen cemetery, at 87th street and Kedzie avenue, when Red Charley turned in at the gate and refused to budge.

A policeman found Joseph asleep, and Red Charley cropping the grass, and notified Mr. and Mrs. Tintoren. Red Charley walked back to the stable.

"He used to haul a hearse out there," observed Henry. "He never forgets. Good old Charley."

"You can have him," said Joseph.

BIBLE STUDENT ILL; VACCINATE 400 AT EVANSTON SCHOOL

Four hundred persons, virtually all of them students and faculty members of the Garrett Biblical institute in Evanston, were vaccinated Thursday and Friday against smallpox as the result of a graduate student being stricken with the disease, it became known last night.

The student, A. Leon Bailey, 26 years old, of Columbus, O., became ill Monday, and his ailment was diagnosed as influenza. It was not until Thursday, when Dr. John W. H. Pollard, Evanston health commissioner, was called into consultation, that Bailey's sickness was found to be smallpox. He was immediately taken to the Isolation hospital in Chicago.

Dr. Pollard later advised innoculation of all students, faculty members, and other attachés of the Garrett institute. On Thursday, 320 persons were vaccinated, and the next day, 80. Of these 240 were students.

Public and parochial school children in Evanston who have not been innoculated against smallpox will be vaccinated tomorrow.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Carrying nineteen men and 180,000 pieces of mail, the Dornier DO-X, largest airplane in the world, today successfully completed the first leg of its long delayed flight from Lisbon to New York by way of South America.

Capt. Friedrich Christiansen said tonight he would take off for Cape Verde, 845 miles away, the next stopping point, at 6 a. m. tomorrow if the weather was favorable, but would not hesitate to postpone the time of departure if conditions were no better than tonight.

The DO-X left Tagus harbor at Lisbon at 8:08 a. m., the roar of its American motors drowning out the cheers of the crowds which lined the waterfront—the same sort of crowd which late last year saw the big plane burn at her anchorage and later watched it in the course of reconstruction.

Abandons Trip to Madeira.

She arrived here, 715 miles from her starting point, at 3:10 p. m. after an uneventful voyage during which fog made it necessary to abandon a plan to drop a mail bag at Funchal, in the Madeira islands.

As she circled over the city like a great eagle hundreds of persons stood in the streets and flocked to the waterfront cheering wildly. As the air liner alighted gently as a gull upon the water and taxied to her anchorage small boats put out for a closer inspection.

Carries Canary as Mascot.

The DO-X, largest heavier than air craft ever to fly, carried as her mascot one of the smallest of birds. It is a canary, obtained at the last moment at the insistence of Commander Christiansen to replace an earlier mascot which died while the seaplane waited at Lisbon.

Tonight the engines of the big ship were being thoroughly checked. Mechanics began filtering into the huge tanks of the flying boat the 4,150 gallons of gasoline which it is estimated will be required on the hop to the Cape Verden islands. Commander Christiansen tonight that 3,120 gallons were consumed between Lisbon and Las Palmas.

Runs Into Squalls.

"The weather during the journey was fair," he said, "and we had favorable winds all the way. Although there were many squalls, the plane showed its airworthiness. It took us seven hours and three minutes to complete the trip. The motors could not have worked better."

Only authorities and accredited correspondents were permitted on the dock where the DO-X was tied up for the night, and the public generally was forced to be content with viewing the world's largest seaplane from the streets and nearby hills.

The six passengers on today's flight were Admiral Carlos G. Coutinho of Portugal; Fritz Hammer, director of the Brazilian Condor Air syndicate; Max Sauer and Hans Stadhagen, German technical directors of the syndicate; Maj. Giacomo Brenta, Italian, and Stanislaus Krakau, Jugo-Slav.

Admiral Compares Flights.

Admiral Coutinho had an opportunity to compare this flight with one he made in 1922 and said the two flights were as dissimilar as a bicycle trip and an automobile journey.

In April, 1922, Admiral Coutinho—he was a captain then—and Capt. Sacadura required more than two months' time and three seaplanes in one of the pioneer ocean flights. They followed the same route as the DO-X has started, stopping at the Canary and Verde islands and then headed for St. Paul's rocks, a barren bit of stone 800 miles off the Brazilian coast.

Here they smashed their machine in an attempt to land and awaited another from Portugal. This was sent to the Island of Fernando Noronha, about 125 miles off the Brazilian coast, but they also wrecked this one and

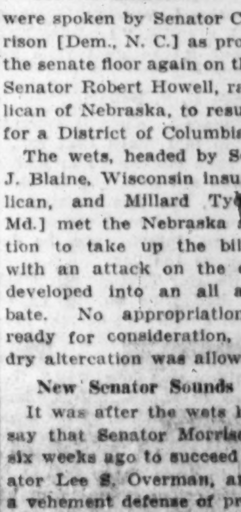
DRY DEMOCRAT PREDICTS BOLT IF PARTY'S WET

New Senator Warns of South's Views.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—A call for a dry to lead the Democratic party, and a warning that southern Democracy will not submit to the rule of the wet urban wing of the party was heard today in the senate.



SEN. MORRISON.

Call and warning were spoken by Senator Cameron Morrison [Dem., N. C.] as prohibition took the senate floor again on the attempt of Senator Robert Howell, radical Republican of Nebraska, to resurrect his bill for a District of Columbia dry law.

The wets, headed by Senators John J. Blaine, Wisconsin insurgent Republican, and Millard Tydings [Dem., Md.] met the Nebraska senator's motion to take up the bill once more with an attack on the dry law that developed into an all afternoon debate. No appropriation bill being ready for consideration, the wet and dry altercation was allowed full sway.

New Senator Sounds Warning.

It was after the wets had had their say that Senator Morrison, appointed six weeks ago to succeed the late Senator Lee S. Overman, arose to make a vehement defense of prohibition and it was at the close of his speech that he declared:

"I am a party Democrat. And I am also a dry. I believe that millions of Democrats in this country feel as I do. If the great city organizations in array against the eighteenth amendment seek to capture the Democratic party and put a wet plank in its platform they will find us resisting. We will not be driven out of the party, neither will we submit to such domination. They will never override our consciences on that matter or force us to bow to party decree."

Calls for Dry Leader.

As he did in a recent statement, he called for the appearance of a dry party leader and decried the effort to make the "foolish liquor question" an issue in 1932.

"The great city of New York, the headquarters of the righteous souls who are so disturbed over the corruption of prohibition enforcement—why, if there is anything around there that is not corrupt, their own press fails to show it."

He paid his respects to the wet wing of his party.

"For some weeks the country has been regaled with the most audacious and unbridled corruption that ever shook the conscience of this country in the trafficking of members of the judiciary of that city."

Breaks Senate Tradition.

Mr. Morrison is a brand new member of the upper house. In fact, he is so new that he upset the conscript fathers just a few weeks ago when he rose from his seat and made his maiden speech, for it is customary for all newly elected senators to sit mute for months. It has become such a custom it is almost mandatory.

But the elder statesmen may have been mollified by his decorous behavior today for he begged that he be not interrupted.

"I'm scared to death anyway," he said. "I hope you'll at least let me get started."

Brookhart Takes a Hand.

Another dry debater was Senator Smith W. Brookhart, radical Republican of Iowa. Stirred by the wet attack, Senator Brookhart was led to declare:

"There have only been 1,41 people killed during the course of prohibition arrests among 120,000,000 people."

"Only fourteen hundred people," Senator Tydings shot back at him. "That shows that the senator is pretty callous about death. Only fourteen hundred American lives wiped out. What is a mere matter of fourteen hundred human lives? By the same analogy the senator would say that the war with Spain amounted to nothing because only 700 American soldiers were killed or died of wounds. And in the world war we lost only 66 times that number in battle. What are 100,000 men to the senator?"

Senator Tydings began his speech by asserting that what Senator Howell was after was not to give the people [illegible] who could not vote [illegible] wishes, something they wanted, but to impose on them a law he insisted they ought to have.

"Let me read a few passages from the Declaration of Independence, once a great document, but today of no consequence in legislative bodies," Senator Tydings went on.

Draws an Analogy.

"'He [meaning the king of England] has erected a multitude of new offices and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eke out their subsistence,'" Senator Tydings read.

"That's exactly what we have done under prohibition. We have sent swarms of new officers all over this land who have harassed our people and who are eating up the taxpayers' money that could be used for better purposes."

Again he read:

"'He . . . has kept among us in times of peace standing armies without the consent of the legislature. He has affected to render the military independent of and superior to the civil authority.'

"While there is not a perfece analogy," the senator added, "we all know that 1,400 people have been shot down by prohibition agents in the 11 years of prohibition."

He read again:

"'For quartering them — meaning armed troops—for protecting them by mock trial against punishment for many murders which they have committed on the inhabitants of these states.'"

That was analogous, he declared, to the modern methods by which a dry agent who kills a citizen has his case transferred to a federal court and is defended by the federal attorneys.

"Does the senator consider the prohibition agent was not doing his duty in such cases?" asked Senator Brookhart.

Tydings Grows Sarcastic.

"O, no, it is never a crime for a prohibition agent shoot a man," Senator Tydings retorted. "The senator is advocating death without arrest and without trial for people who do no more in most cases than commit a misdemeanor."

The two senators were shooting their remarks vehemently back and forth across the chamber.

"The senator believes, then, that the government is criminal when it hangs a man for a crime," said Senator Brookhart.

"If the government," came the answer, "would hang some men I could name I wouldn't be so vociferous in my denunciation of this law."

"Are any of them present?" the Iowa senator demanded.

"If the senator wants an answer to that question," Senator Tydings broke in with a smile, "I advise him to think about it the next time he combs his hair."

Assails U. S. Policy.

Senator William H. King, Democrat, Utah, broke in to remark that many killings had been committed in which the victim was not breaking the law in any manner, but was engaged in the lawful pursuit of business or recreation. Federal interference, he declared, had gone too far.

The drys, Senator Tydings reminded his hearers, had gone so far as to eliminate trial by jury in certain prohibition cases. He declared that despite referenda in many states in which prohibition was voted down, the representation of those states had failed to obey the mandate of the electorate. He cited the increase in the number of federal prisoners from 4,500 in 1900 to some 26,000 today.

The Chicago crime commission, he said, had found that a large majority of murders committed had their roots in prohibition and that the proceeds of bootlegging financed all crime.

[illegible] Takes a Hand.

[illegible] Senator Blaine of Wisconsin had [illegible] what happened when the enforcement of the dry law was delegated to any department of the government.

"When the border patrol of the customs service was charged with enforcing prohibition, corruption immediately entered in," he declared, "and the same thing happened to the coast guard. The enforcement of prohibition has left a slimy trail of corruption and written one of the most gruesome pictures in our history.

"The honor of every department of the government called on to enforce prohibition has been struck down. Law enforcement, which must be undertaken by spies, is proof that the law is bad law, an immoral law."

Demands Action on Repeal.

The prohibition issue also had its inning in the house today when Representative Frederick R. Lehlbach [Rep., N. J.] demanded immediate action on his resolution of Jan. 21 calling for resubmission of the 18th amendment to state conventions called for the purpose of considering its repeal and providing for a system of state liquor control.

"The Wickersham report has been submitted, analyzed and digested," said Mr. Lehlbach in his speech on the floor of the house. "Many ideas have been formed concerning the facts found and recommendations made. But two facts are certain. The commission is practically unanimous that the 18th amendment is not observed and not enforced. A majority of the commission unequivocably state their belief that the 18th amendment can never be adequately enforced.

"Inasmuch as there is no reasonable doubt that a great majority of the people share the conclusions reached by the Wickersham commission it is the plain duty of congress to act at once."

The naturalization certificate of James Belcastro, public enemy No. 5 and alleged bomb chief, was abrogated in a decree entered by Federal Judge Carpenter yesterday when Belcastro failed to appear in court.

JAMES BELCASTRO.

Belcastro was shot five times by assassins on the night of Jan. 11 and his wounds probably accounted for his failure to appear for the hearing on the petition of Assistant United States Attorney Eugene A. Tappy to cancel his citizenship.

According to the petition Belcastro, known as a Chicago gangster for more than 10 years, was admitted to citizenship in a state court in 1922, when he swore he was lawfully married and pledged his loyalty to the constitution. He also swore he had been arrested only once, and that for fighting.

Three Arrests Reported.

An investigation by Fred D. Schlotfeldt, federal director of naturalization in Chicago, disclosed that Belcastro had been arrested three times before his naturalization, once for assault with a deadly weapon, once for violating the city liquor laws, and once for permitting minors to enter his poolroom.

He served a term of ninety days on the assault charge, the inquiry revealed. Moreover, he was living in a state of adultery at the time of his admission to citizenship and his child was born out of wedlock, according to the petition.

Cannot Be Deported.

His false statements were made the basis of yesterday's action and he is now an alien in this country. He cannot be deported, however, it was explained, unless he is convicted of a felony and sentenced to a year's imprisonment. Should he leave the country and then return he could not stay, for reëntry after committing a crime of moral turpitude is a deportable offense.

Belcastro was shot in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Fanelli, 1011 Polk street, parents of Rocco Fanelli, another public enemy, who was a witness when the naturalization was effected.

U. S. Should Recognize Soviet, Cutting Says

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Recognition of soviet Russia was advocated before the National Republican club today by Senator Bronson M. Cutting of New Mexico.

He said the American government should recognize the soviet régime, not only because such a policy would be in line with the precedent set by Thomas Jefferson, who in 1793 recognized the republican government of France, but because this country would obtain the same benefits from normal intercourse with Russia as it does from normal intercourse with other nations.

CITY DIPS INTO TRANSIT FUND TO PAY EMPLOYES

May Tap Other Reserves in Finance Crisis.

Evidence that the city is experiencing severe financial trouble was submitted by City Treasurer Singer yesterday when he authorized the use of money from the traction fund to meet the salary claims of city employés. The money from this fund has been set aside for years to be used only in constructing a system of subways.

Under the city's system of grouping all its money in what is called an aggregate of funds, other special funds, which have been regarded as sacred, will also be tapped. These include the sinking fund for payment of interest and princnpal on bonds, which members of the council say should not be touched for any other purpose, and the special assessment fund, from which, attorneys contend, it is illegal to borrow for salary use.

No Value as Security.

The only guarantee that these funds will have that the loans will be repaid will be canceled checks, according to Singer's plan. Canceled checks, according to city fiscal employés, are not worth anything as security for a loan and will only show what amounts the salary fund owes to the special funds.

Borrowing from these special funds to meet corporate expenses has been condemned, but was resorted to last year when the city also was in financial trouble. Shortly after last year's loans were made, however, the then city controller, George K. Schmidt, and Charles S. Peterson, who was city treasurer, announced that they would not permit the practice again because of its extra legal character.

Reverses Previous Stand.

A reversal of opinion by Peterson, who now is controller, was shown when information concerning the plan to borrow from the special funds was released with the following announcement from Treasurer Singer and Controller Peterson:

"The city controller and the city treasurer jointly authorize the statement that city and board of education pay rolls will be met promptly when due."

When asked how the $500,000 in the corporate fund would be stretched to cover the $1,000,000 pay roll of the police and fire department, due tomorrow, and how the $125,000 in the building fund of the board of education would be used to meet a pay roll of $2,200,000, Treasurer Singer at first elected to stand on the bare announcement.

Singer Reveals Plan.

Later he revealed the plan to dip into the special funds and hold the canceled checks of the employés as security. To meet the school board pay rolls money will be transferred from the building fund to the educational fund, he said.

"All of the city's funds are grouped into an aggregate of funds," said Singer, "and money from this aggregate of funds will be used to take care of overdrafts on the corporate fund. The money will be paid back on Feb. 10, by which time $3,341,000 will be released from the working cash fund, and we will have been authorized to sell tax warrants."

The announcement of the two public officials was made at noon. As the vaults of the treasury were closed then, information could not be obtained as to the standing of the city's funds, which would reveal the ratio of each special fund to the aggregate of funds, and which would determine the amount to be taken from each. The statement was made that the city has $49,620,000 in cash in its special funds.

Pay Rolls $4,000,000 Monthly.

It was pointed out that if the city is unable to sell its tax warrants in February the cash in the special funds will be tapped heavily to meet pay rolls, as the announcement stated that "pay rolls will be met promptly when due." The city's corporate fund pay rolls total approximately $4,000,000 a month.

County officials yesterday were undecided as to when the first tax bills for 1929 will be in the mails. The delay in collecting the 1929 taxes has been given as one of the reasons why the city and other local governments will have difficulty in finding purchasers for tax anticipation warrants.

Get First Tax Books.

The first of the 1929 personal property and real estate assessment books have just been delivered by the board of review to County Clerk Sweitzer. Personal property books for 13 country townships and four city townships and the real estate assessment volumes for Barrington and Bremen were turned over by the reviewers.

The final board of review figure on assessed valuation of real estate in Barrington against which 1929 taxes will be levied is $3,313,807, the same figure fixed by the board of assessors. The 1928 figure of the reviewers was $3,268,423.

DENIES HINDENBURG COMPELLED KAISER TO GIVE UP THRONE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WEIMAR, Germany, Jan. 31.—A corner of the veil still surrounding the mystery of the abdication of Kaiser Wilhelm in 1918 was lifted today by President von Hindenberg, the kaiser's former [illegible] marshal, through Kurt Anker, friend and former aid to the German crown prince.

The Hohenzollern family and many of their friends have asserted that Von Hindenberg compelled the kaiser to abdicate and that the marshal prevented him from placing himself at the head of the troops marching home because of the risk of starting a civil war. The former crown prince himself made a definite statement to this effect in his memoirs. Anker today revealed that when the crown prince's book appeared, Von Hindenberg invited him to Hanover and flatly denied the assertion that he had compelled the kaiser to abdicate.

Von Hindenberg stated that nothing had been decided about the abdication of the kaiser at the German headquarters on Nov. 9, 1918. On the morning of Nov. 10, when Von Hindenberg wanted to report to the kaiser, he learned to his surprise that the monarch had gone to Holland.

GEN. HINES TELLS HOUSE BODY HE'S AGAINST BONUS

Favors Help for veterans Who Are Disabled.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Opposition to all of the various proposals for payment of cash to world war veterans holding bonus certificates was expressed today by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, before the house ways and means committee.

BRIG. GEN. FRANK T. HINES.

Gen. Hines suggested that congress instead of passing any of these measures turn its attention to a further extension of benefits to disabled veterans and to widows and orphans of deceased ex-service men and to the building of additional hospitals and soldiers' homes to care for the sick.

Four Plans Proposed.

There are four types of proposed legislation, Gen. Hines said. One provides for payment of the face value of all adjusted compensation certificates, a second provides for payment of the present value of all certificates, a third provides for the payment of adjusted service credits plus 25 per cent, plus 4 per cent interest to the present time, and a fourth provides for an increase in the loan value of the certificates.

"The fourth is the least costly of the four plans and therefore best from a financial standpoint," said Gen. Hines. "This plan also has merit in that it would not require a surrender of certificates in order to secure additional funds.

Presents Legion Resolution.

"However, it would not be actually sound to increase to any great extent the present loan values on these certificates and, in my opinion, a slight increase would be of little benefit."

John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion, presented to the committee the resolution adopted by its executive committee recently approving the principle of legislation giving veterans the option of obtaining cash on bonus certificates.

NINE SLAIN AS MOB REFUSES TO PAY RENTS IN INDIA

MADRAS, India, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—Nine members of a mob which refused to pay rent on their land were killed by police at Vizagapatam. The police opened fire after the mob had [illegible] a police officer.

May End An[illegible] Drive.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—The movement for self-government [illegible] India, combining methods of compromise, civil disobedience and sporadic violence, will reach a critical turning point in the next week. The working committee of the all-India national congress was understood to day to have considered favorably proposals to withdraw the campaign for nonpayment of taxes. This campaign cost the British government vast sums of federal revenues.

If the nonpayment of taxes order is withdrawn, however, the boycotts of foreign cloth and of other foreign regulations and institutions will be continued and, in addition, the congress may demand further control in the proposed new constitutional government in such departments as defense and finance, which the British government has proposed to keep in British hands.

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Airplane passenger traffic under the American flag increased 133 per cent in 1930, the aeronautical chamber of commerce of America reported today.

"[illegible] air transport lines, operating regularly over more than 50,000 miles of airways in the United States, southern Canada and a score of Latin-American coutries, carried 385,910 passengers during 1930," the report says. "These lines flew 28,833,967 miles during the year, a 42 per cent increase over 1929."

Policeman Seizes Two Bandits in Cafe.

Two robbers held up the manager, a girl cashier and a salesman of the Hartman Furniture and Carpet company branch store at 3801 West 26th street last night and escaped with $1,031. Two customers were in the store, but were unaware of the robbery. It was the fourth store holdup of significance in a week.

ARTHUR ULLRICH.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Earlier in the day Policeman Arthur Ullrich captured two gunmen when they attempted to rob a south side restaurant, and a third bandit was seized after he had been stabbed by his intended victim.

Robbers Pose as Customers.

The two gunmen strolled into the Hartman branch store and sat down at 7:30 p. m. Two patrons stood near by. Miss Margie McMahon, 17 years old, 503 West 60th place, the cashier, walked up to the men and inquired if she could serve them. One of the pseudo customers rose and inquired about Coxwell chairs. He followed Miss McMahon to the rear, near the money cage, and then drew a revolver.

The robber compelled Miss McMahon to open the cage door, after which he took $831 from the cash drawer and $200 from a small desk compartment. He had barely completed the robbery when Edward Syslo, 2610 North Homan avenue, the manager, walked by. Syslo was forced to enter the cage. Meanwhile Joseph Bemis, 2659 South Avers avenue, a salesman, approached the second bandit, who had remained seated in a chair. Bemis was covered with a gun until the first robber returned. The two gunmen walked out of the store and fled in an automobile.

Four Store Holdups in Week.

The series of store robberies began a week ago last night at Hillman's Pure Food store, 24 West Washington street, where a money guard was killed and another wounded in defense of $18,000. In the second robbery, that of the Wieboldt store at 3231 Lincoln avenue, a policeman and a bystander were wounded, a bandit was slain, and $19,200 was stolen. In the third, at the Baskin clothing store, 336 North Michigan avenue, two Negro bandits were captured after shooting a policeman and three bystanders.

George Smith, found dead of a bullet wound in an automobile in front of 2631 West 18th street last Thursday, was identified yesterday at the inquest as the Wieboldt store bandit who had been shot as he fled with his four companions. The identification was made by Miss Marie Kopnick, clerk at the silk counter in the store.

Smith was one of the men who loitered about the store for several days and an hour before the holdup was standing in front of the elevators, Miss Kopnick said. A ballistics expert also testified that the bullet taken from Smiths' body had been fired from the revolver of Policeman William Binder, who shot at the bandits after they had wounded him.

POLICEMAN TAKES BANDITS

The two bandits captured by Policeman Ullrich were seized when they attempted to hold up a restaurant at 2115 South Halsted street. They were being held at the Maxwell street police station last night for identification by victims of recent robberies on the west and south sides.

Policeman Ullrich, off duty and returning to his home at 2031 Canalport avenue, was sitting at the counter of the restaurant eating a sandwich and drinking a cup of coffee when the attempt at robbery was made. He had removed his hat and coat.

Apparently the bandits did not notice him. They walked in, flourished their revolvers, and ordered "Hands up." One of them was standing beside Ullrich menacing Harry Barnhurst, the manager, when Ullrich, drawing his gun, jumped up, thrust it into the bandit's back and warned him he would be killed if he made a move.

Then Ullrich disarmed the robber, and, using him for a screen, ordered the other bandit to surrender. He obeyed, and Ullrich had Barnhurst call the Maxwell station patrol car.

Ray Walker, 1560 Lake street, another would-be robber, who picked the wrong victim, was being held at the Bridewell hospital. With a companion, who escaped, he attempted to hold up Harold Hope, 46 years old, an ex-marine, now a plumber, living at 1031 Montana street.

The two leaped on Hope in front of Walker's home, after Walker, posing as an intoxicated man, had prevailed on Hope to escort him to that address. Hope broke loose from them, drew a jackknife, and began slashing at them. They started to run and he threw the knife 200 feet, to land in Walker's back. A few hours later Walker appeared at Corbett's hospital, 1340 Lake street, to have his wounds dressed. The Warren avenue police were notified and he was arrested.

Woman Robbed of $300.

Mrs. Julia Gall, 1450 Belle Plaine avenue, lost a purse containing money and jewelry to the sum of $300 last night when a youth snatched it out of her hand while she was standing at Sherwood terrace and Belle Plaine avenue. Mrs. Gall is the wife of John F. Gall, president of the Gall Monument company.

Three gunmen held up Olaf Christey, 5401 Ellis avenue, owner of the Blue Ribbon Coal yards, in his offices at 4000 South Ashland avenue last evening, and took $450 from his safe and a desk drawer. The trio drove up in a sedan with a fourth man and entered the offices with drawn revolvers, Christey said.

John Thometz, 3711 West North avenue, a driver for the Burny Bros. Bakery company, 2747 Van Buren street, reported to the police that two armed men held him up in an alley near California and Gladys avenue, and robbed him of $434 in collections.

Miss Mabel Peterson, cashier of a Fannie May candy shop at 107 North Clark street, was robbed of $12 by a bandit, who entered the place while Saturday shopping crowds were walking past.

Two youthful bandits yesterday robbed David Rotberg, manager of a drug store at 3959 Lawrence avenue, of $200. They escaped after locking him in a rear room.

GEORGE E. Q. JOHNSON NOMINATION SENT TO SENATE BY HOOVER

President Hoover yesterday sent to the senate the nomination of United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson of the northern Illinois district for a second four-year term, according to Washington dispatches.

G. E. Q. JOHNSON.

The President acted upon recommendation of Senators Charles S. Deneen, Mr. Johnson's original sponsor, and Otis F. Glenn of Illinois. Attorney General Mitchell indorsed the reappointment. The nomination was referred to the senate judiciary committee, which is certain to approve the reappointment, and confirmation by the senate is expected within a week.

Senator Glenn is awaiting the return of Senator Deneen from Chicago to take up other Illinois patronage matters. The term of Anthony Czarnecki, collector of customs, expired last August; Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder is a holdover; the position of internal revenue collector was left vacant by the resignation of Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, and there is a vacancy on the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, expected to be filled by the elevation of Judge James H. Wilkerson.

12 DISCHARGED POLICEMEN PUT BACK ON FORCE

City Waives Legal Point in Court Pleas.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock yesterday confirmed reports that reinstatement to the police force has been granted in the last two days to twelve former policemen. Each of these men, according to city hall records, had been discharged by the civil service commission after a hearing on charges which ranged from drunkenness and graft to assisting in a felonious assault.

The former policemen gained reinstatement on writs of certiorari quashing the records of their discharges in court proceedings in which Corporation Counsel Ettelson waived one of the strongest legal weapons that the city could have used. The petition in each of these cases could have been defeated, in the opinion of attorneys familiar with the civil service laws, had Ettelson merely pleaded laches.

Laches Is Defined.

Laches is defined as "such delay as warrants a court in refusing relief" and as "inexcusable delay in asserting a right." It was applicable in these cases, the attorneys said, as the men were discharged from two to ten years ago, whereas the Supreme court has defined six months as a reasonable time in which to allow the filing of a petition for a writ of certiorari before laches becomes operative.

"The law is," said one attorney, "that if a discharge is to be contested the suit for a writ must be instituted within six months after the discharge is effective unless good grounds can be shown for the delay. However, it is difficult to show good grounds.

"As much more than six months elapsed in these cases before the suits were instituted the pleading of laches alone would have won for the city."

Names of Those Restored.

The names of the policemen, year of discharge, and the charges on which they were fired are as follows:

Thomas J. Finley, 1927, feloniously assisted in commission of an assault in which one George McPhillips shot a man with Finley's gun. Finley did not arrest McPhillips.

Thomas Burns, 1927, intoxication.

Thomas W. Buckley, 1924, receiving $10 from a motorist whom he had stopped for speeding.

John O'Connor, 1925, disorderly conduct in entering a home on the pretense of shooting a mad dog and kissing the housewife.

Walter Oakes, 1924, beating prisoner with blackjack.

Thomas Hanley, 1927, intoxication.

Daniel J. Quinn, 1925, offered to give a gasoline station attendant $200 if he would not prosecute a holdup man.

Thomas D. Tuite, 1921, intoxication.

In the cases of Frank O'Sullivan and Patrick J. Waters, who also were reinstated, the records could not be located yesterday. In five of the ten cases where the records were available the discharge was because of intoxication.

"Although I am not acquainted with the facts in these cases," said Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commisison, "it appears to me that booze in the stomach of a policeman and a gun in his hand is a dangerous and illogical combination."

Over a Thousand Ask to See Six Negro Slayers Die

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—More than a thousand persons have applied for permits to witness the electrocution of six Negroes here Feb. 27 for two Lexington county murders.

ALCOCK SHIFTS SEVEN CAPTAINS; HUGHES RETURNS

Former Chief Gets Command.

Seven police captains were shifted in an order issued last night by Acting Commissioner Alcock. The order transferred a total of 32 policemen and announced the reinstatement of Michael, Hughes, former commissioner of police, as a captain. Hughes was assigned to the Deering station on the southwest side.

A position was created for Hughes in the 1931 budget by the city council. As the 52 captaincies in the 1930 budget were all filled the council finance committee created two more and announced that one was intended for Hughes and the other for Capt. John Ryan, who, when he was removed as deputy chief of detectives, found no captaincy vacant for him to assume.

The captains who were shifted and their old and new assignments are as follows:

Richard P. Gill, Chicago avenue to the miscellaneous division.

Thomas Condon, Hudson avenue to Brighton Park.

John A. Egan, Deering to Chicago avenue.

Gregory Moran, first deputy's roll to Austin.

Condon's transfer has been rumored around the city hall for months. Two months ago when the reports were insistent, George K. Schmidt, who was city controller then, and Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d] led a delegation of business men to Alcock's office with a demand that Condon be kept in the Hudson avenue district.

Gill Back to Miscellaneous.

Richard Gill was one of the six captains whom Alcock sent to "Siberia," an old police building in North Halsted street, when the miscellaneous division was created. When the "Siberia detail" was broken up Gill was sent to the Chicago avenue station and under the new order returns to the miscellaneous division, where he was technically detailed when he was in "Siberia."

The lieutenants shifted are:

Joseph Pieroth, East Side to Cottage Grove.

George De Mar, Robey street to Chicago avenue.

Edward Goggin, Stanton avenue to Grand Crossing.

Patrick Connor, miscellaneous division to Hudson avenue.

John P. Lahey, Cragin to Robey street.

When Alcock first became acting commissioner last June he cleaned out the detective bureau, reducing the personnel there by over 500 men.

In last night's order five patrolmen were sent into the bureau and in previous orders a large number of the men have been returned to the detective division.

The transfer of the captains was a surprise to many in the city hall, as Alcock has repeatedly stated that he doesn't believe in moving them around.

Alcock has stated that if a captain can't take care of the district he is assigned to he isn't capable of commanding in some other district.

JURY SUBPŒNAS BRUNKER ON HIS POLICE CHARGES

Await Reformer's Return from the East.

Armed with a forthwith grand jury subpœna, a detective from the state's attorney's office started out yesterday afternoon to find Albert R. Brunker, chairman of the civic safety committee, to summon him before the special grand jury for questioning regarding the charges he is reported to have made against Chicago officials in a recent speech before the Boston City club.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller and Charles Lounsbury yesterday joined with Chief Justice John P. McGoorty in demanding that Brunker tell whether he has any actual evidence pertaining to the charges that he made before his Boston audience.

Demands an Explanation.

"The special grand jury," said Prosecutor Mueller, "is conducting an investigation of the police department, and Brunker has made some charges that he should be called on to substantiate or else he should admit that he is only talking, as many others apparently have done, on the basis of general gossip."

"Brunker is reported to have said that Al Capone had 6,000 officials on his pay roll and some of them must have been policemen," said Prosecutor Mueller. "He also made some other charges about police conditions, we are informed, and it is up to him to prove them."

The indications yesterday were that Brunker would have a busy time with grand juries when he returns to Chicago next week. He was reported to have left Boston yesterday. Chief Justice McGoorty had already announced that he wanted Brunker to submit to the regular grand jury his evidence, if he had any, on the charges that "80 per cent of the Chicago judges are criminals."

To Be Put Before Jury.

Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Spiro will be directed to make this investigation one of the first orders of business for the new regular grand jury to be sworn in tomorrow morning.

Prosecutor Mueller made his announcement of the subpœnaing of Brunker at the same time that he issued a statement to the effect that although the special police grand jury has been in session for exactly one month, no individual or organization has come forward with concrete evidence.

"Prior to the start of this investigation many organizations, and individuals who headed so-called reform organizations, made statements reflecting on the integrity of the police department," said the prosecutor. "Some of them even went so far as to promise to present evidence to a grand jury if one was designated to conduct an investigation.

"Both before and after the jury was impaneled a general invitation was sent out to every one to bring in any evidence of police corruption, either direct to the jurors or to the state's attoney's office. Exactly one month has passed without any one coming forward.

"We are calling for Brunker because he has made some definite statements, and it is now up to him to prove them or to be catalogued along with others."

Brunker lives in Lake Forest, but the subpœna issued yesterday is good any place in Chicago. It was reported that he is to reach Chicago today and that before leaving the east, when he was informed of the plan to take him before the grand jury, he replied that he would be "tickled to death" to back up his charges that 6,000 officials are on Capone's pay roll.

The Boston Speech.

In his Boston speech Brunker said that he was forced to sleep with a revolver under his pillow and a sawed off shotgun across his chest. He also said that after he started his crime investigations the members of his committee deserted him one by one until he was left to "yell alone."

Prosecutor Mueller yesterday also announced that if the $50,000 fund for investigation expenses is not forthcoming from the county board it is obvious that the grand jury inquiry into charges against the police must collapse for want of investigators.

What wages home-making

Every woman knows that by doing her own housework she saves real money for her family. But she saves more on some tasks than she does on others. Making a silk dress, for instance, saves more than baking bread.

But even a woman hasn't time to do all the baking and making a household demands. Some things must be bought ready made—some jobs done by others.

Incomes go furthest when wives spend their time on the tasks which save the most money.

The work of shopping is the most valuable service a housewife performs. More money is saved in wise buying than in any other home-making occupation. The woman who goes to market and personally selects the food she buys, saves more than in any other home job.

RUMOR HORLICK KIN MAY DROP 'SHADOW' SUIT

British Lawyer May Pay Big Sum, Report Says.

Two days before W. Perkins Bull, K. C., British lawyer of London and Toronto, was to be brought before a master in chancery to tell his version of why private detectives were ordered to trail Dr. John Street Sidley, son-in-law of William H. Horlick, founder of the Horlick Malted Milk company, rumors were heard yesterday that settlement of the litigation growing out of Dr. Sidley's marital rift was discussed by counsel for Dr. Sidley and the defendant.

Dr. Sidley is asking $250,000 damages from Bull and J. J. Harrison, head of the Harrison secret service, whose operatives, according to the complainant, shadowed the physician for three years, trailing him back and forth across the continent, following him into hotels and restaurants and reporting his movements to Bull.

Hearing Set for Tomorrow.

Bull, Harrison and Dr. Sidley were scheduled to appear before Master in Chancery James Harrold tomorrow. According to J. Frederick Reeves, counsel for Dr. Sidley, the hearing was to be held to discover why the shadowing was instituted and the possible existence of other parties responsible for hiring the detectives. Dr. Sidley, according to his attorney, does not know the motive for the shadowing.

Attorney Reeves yesterday declined to discuss the rumors of settlement. From a source close to the Sidley family, however, it was learned that lawyers for both sides are discussing the withdrawal of the suit upon the payment to Dr. Sidley of a sum greatly in excess of the amount of damages asked in the action.

Seek to Subpœna Wife.

It was learned that settlement will not halt the efforts of attorneys to serve a subpœna upon Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley with a view to bringing to a conclusion the divorce action she instituted against Dr. Sidley three years ago, charging cruelty. While detectives who have surrounded the Sidley home in Racine for a week hoping to serve the subpœna have been withdrawn, it became known that Mrs. Sidley has been occupying a suite in the Lake Shore Drive hotel and that efforts will be made to serve the papers upon her there.

The Lake Shore Drive hotel is located next door to the Drake hotel, where Mr. and Mrs. Bull have maintained a suite for some time.

Settlement of the suit would keep from court records Dr. Sidley's story of the three years' watch maintained over his movements and the rift between Dr. Sidley and Bull and the Horlick family, one of the wealthiest families in Wisconsin.

Dr. Sidley's Charges.

From the declaration in the suit filed by Dr. Sidley and from his friends the following story of the shadowing activities has became known:

The detectives first took up the pursuit three years ago, and, according to the suit, Dr. Sidley has been "daily annoyed, intimidated, harassed, shadowed, and followed closely" thereafter until the suit was filed. The investigators have followed him so faithfully at all hours of the day and night that he has been unable to practice his profession and his health has been seriously impaired, he says.

Both men and women were employed in the pursuit, it is alleged. They peered at him from behind telephone poles, rode with him in elevators and trains, and followed him in automobiles, the suit charges. According to the complaint, efforts were made to compromise him with women and on one occasion a long range camera was used to photograph him.

No effort was made by the detectives to hide their activities and they frankly admitted that they had been instructed to let him know of their surveillance, Dr. Sidley declares.

Wearying of the constant game of "hide and seek" Dr. Sidley became acquainted with his pursuers, believing, he has stated, that it would be more comforting to travel with them than to have them always five feet behind. Dr. Sidley said he then took them into his hotel, dined them, bought clothes for them and on one occasion procured medical aid for a detective.

In 1929, Dr. Sidley states, he motored to Miami, Fla., with William Buenz, chief of the pursuers. While there, according to Dr. Sidley, he aided the detectives in the preparation of their report to Bull on his activities. Buenz and Sidley stopped in Miami at the Wooford hotel, according to the physician, and it was there, he said, that he introduced Buenz to a Mrs. Wooford. The couple have since married, according to the complainant.

He says that while he was visiting at the home of his brother, William P. Sidley, president of the Chicago Bar association, in Winnetka, the cars of the detectives, parked in front of the home, caused neighbors to complain that they feared a plot to kidnap their children. The detectives, he said, were arrested.

Bull is a senior partner in the law firm of Bull, Holliss & Wilson of Toronto. He was founder of the Perkins Bull hospital for Canadian officers at Putney Heath during the war and is known as a travel lecturer. He is a brother of D. O. Bull, a cattle man, of Toronto.

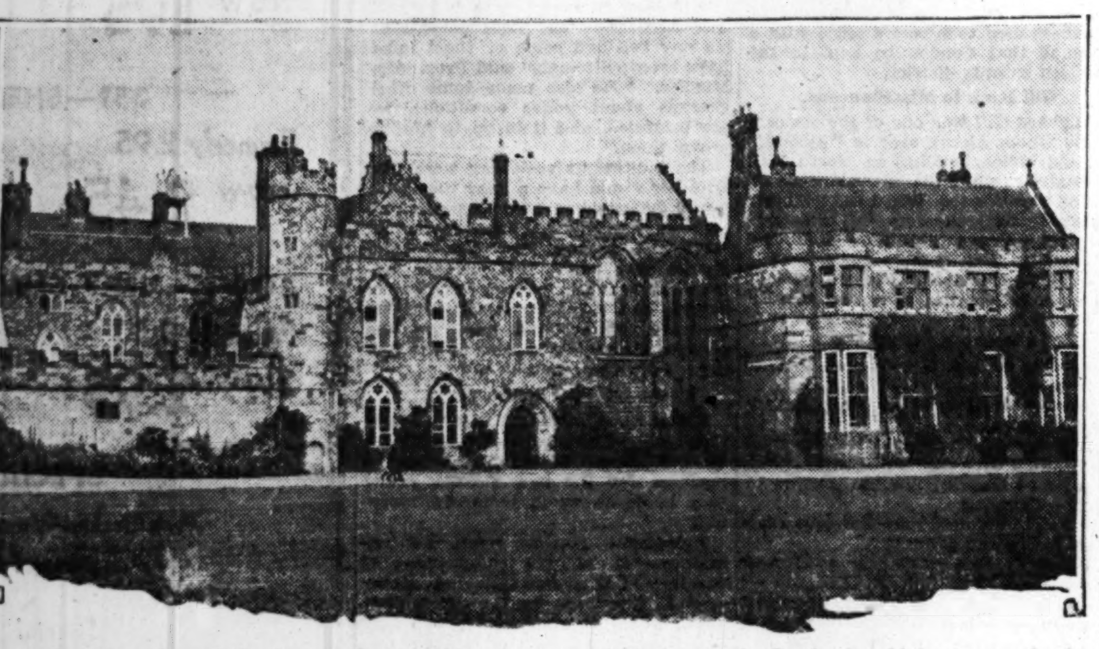
Interior of the Battle Abbey showing teacher and pupils at lunch. In recent years the historic structure has been used as a school. In the fire yesterday 120 girls were marched to safety.



Exterior view of the famous Battle Abbey in town of that name in England, which was partly destroyed by fire yesterday with loss of priceless relics. The fire was regarded by the villagers as the result of the curse pronounced by a monk against Sir Henry Brown, to whom the abbey was given by Henry VIII. when he seized church property.

FIRE DESTROYS PART OF FAMED BATTLE ABBEY

Recalls Curse Uttered in Days of Henry VIII.

HASTINGS, England, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—A curse of the days when Henry VIII. was engaged in quarrels with the church was recalled today when fire burned part of the historic Battle Abbey, destroying priceless relics of the Norman invasion.

Natives of the village of Battle Abbey, seeing one of the oldest examples of Norman architecture in England damaged and partly destroyed by flames, blamed the curse dramatically pronounced by a monk against Sir Henry Brown, to whom Henry VIII. gave the abbey when he seized church property throughout England as a blow at the Roman Catholic pope.

Tradition said that Sir Henry celebrated the occasion with a feast and that at the height of the revelry there came a thunderous knock on the door. A shrouded monk appeared and advanced to the now silent celebrants.

The Monk's Curse.

"By fire and water your house shall miserably perish," he declaimed, pointing a long finger at Sir Henry. Fulfillment of the curse was seen by natives in repeated events at the abbey. In 1793 fire destroyed the famous Battle Abbey roll, on which had been written the names of the bold warriors who accompanied William the Conqueror on his campaign to seize the English throne.

In the next century Lord Montague, who then owned the abbey, and his two nephews were drowned and the wife of Sir Augustus Webster, then owner, was drowned in 1917. Miss Lucy Webster, daughter of Sir Augustus, is the present owner.

The fire in the main building started at 5 a. m. today and 120 girls at the school in the main building were aroused from sleep and marched to safety in their night clothes. The fire brigades of Battle Abbey and Bexhill battled the flames for three hours before they were brought under control. The tenth century Abbots Hall was destroyed.

Norman Banner Lost.

Considerable damage had been done, however, and a valued banner of William the Conqueror was lost. Other valuable relics, including armor and Norman tapestries and paintings, were destroyed or damaged, as was the high altar over the spot where the last Saxon king, Harold, was slain.

Before the war the abbey was rented to the American millionaire, M. P. Grace.

WYOMING, ILL., BANK CLOSED.

Wyoming, Ill., Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—The Scott, Walters and Rakeshaw bank was closed by State Auditor Oscar Nelson today. The action was taken because of depleted cash reserve, it was announced. The bank's deposits at the time of its last statement were given as $485,000.

PERCY L. DEUTSCH INSISTS WIFE ASKS TOO MUCH ALIMONY

MRS. EDEANORE DEUTSCH.

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Percy L. Deutsch, former vice president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, denied in the Supreme court today that he has an income of $40,000 to $50,000 a year. He was opposing an application by his wife, Mrs. Eleanore C. Deutsch, now living in Chicago, for alimony based on that income pending a suit for separation on the ground of desertion.

Mr. Deutsch also asserted through the law firm of United States Senator Robert L. Wagner that his wife is a resident of Chicago, for which reason the New York courts have no jurisdiction of the case. He asked that a referee be appointed to determine the question of legal residence.

Mr. Deutsch said that practically his entire resources are now invested in the World Broadcasting corporation and the Francis Sinagan company and that he has received nothing in two years from the former and $6,000 last year from the latter. He stated that his wife came here with him in 1927 when he became president of the Acoustic Products company, but after living with him at the Hotel Plaza for a few weeks she returned to Chicago and has lived there at the Belden-Stratford hotel ever since. He agreed to give her $1,500 a month alimony in 1927, he said, but she refused it as inadequate and now he is unable to pay that sum. They have two children, aged 13 and 7 years. Mrs. Deutsch is asking $7,500 counsel fees.

GAS FUMES KILL AGED WOMAN.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—Mrs. Alice Harris, 75, was found dead in bed at the home of her son, B. F. Harris. She had been asphyxiated. One jet of a gas stove was open.

5 DRY AGENTS AND 4 VIOLATORS KILLED SINCE JUNE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Nine fatalities resulting from the federal enforcement of prohibition since July 1, 1930, were announced today by Prohibition Director Woodcock.

Five of those killed were federal dry agents. Four alleged law breakers were killed by agents.

The latest of the deaths summarized by Woodcock was that of Asa L. Hawkins, a federal agent, on Dec. 20 at Kingston, N. C.

Mary Nolan, Film Actress, Loses Suit Over $640 Debt

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—A default judgment against Mary Nolan (Mogene Wilson), film actress, for $640, was entered in Municipal court today.

The amount was sought by Simon Lewald as assignee for Adolf Rothschild of Munich, Germany, who accused Miss Nolan of purchasing gowns she failed to pay for.

HANGS SELF IN SHED.

Albine Kilimowicz, 48 years old, 4313 South Marshfield avenue, hanged himself yesterday in a shed in the rear of his home.

TWO POLICEMEN AND A GANGSTER ARE SHOT DOWN

New York, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—Two policemen were wounded today in a gun battle with gangsters who put a rival on the spot and left him for dead on a sidewalk in the bathing beach section of Brooklyn.

John Oddo, 25, the wounded gangster left by his assailants for dead, watched the police shoot it out with his rivals. After the shooting, he got up from the sidewalk with a bullet wound in the left leg and went to a hospital with the policemen, neither of whom was seriously wounded.

While walking along the sidewalk, Oddo was fired upon by two men who leaped from an automobile. He fell and feigned death. Policemen John Oefelein and James Moran, both off duty, heard the shots from around the corner and surprised Oddo's assailants with a volley of shots as they were getting back in their car.

The gangsters returned the fire, and Oefelein was shot in the right arm and Moran in the foot. The gunmen abandoned their car and escaped. Oddo was questioned recently in two shootings in which one man was killed.

LITSINGER'S DREAM DIMMED BY FARO GAME

Idea of Ousting Deneen Is Smashed.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Chicago's mayoralty fight this year already has crashed a lofty political dream castle into ruins.

The Republican primary is still three weeks off, but more than a weak ago the vision of new power that one of the chief actors in the quadrennial drama glimpsed in the first smoke of the battle collapsed as the result of his own action. Many elections have seen such crashes following the counting of the votes, but this year it came long before the closing of the polls.

The structure of hope was that of Edward R. Litsinger, millionaire member of the board of review, and it consisted of an expectation that he would assume full command of the organization commanded for years and years by United States Senator Deneen. It went to smash on the faro game episode at Springfield.

Albert a Poor Third.

Going into its final stages the mayoralty scrap among the Republicans now is analyzed by experts as a fight between Mayor Thompson and Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, whose fight against organized crime while he sat in the Felony court resulted in his being labeled the foe of gangsters and racketeers, the Nemesis of the public enemies.

Ald. Arthur F. Albert is considered at both Thompson and Lyle headquarters and elsewhere as a poor third. That opinion also is based on the faro game incident. George K. Schmidt, a fourth entry, is said to be gaining ground among the voters of German derivation by his attacks on the treaty of Versailles, which has reminded observers of Thompson's determination to bust King George on the snoot.

May Be 3 Cornered Fight.

On the Democratic side it is a walkaway, it is conceded, for President Cermak of the county board, the regular organization's unanimous choice. But after the primaries it is possible that another Democrat, Coroner Bundesen, will be brought into the race for the election on April 7, making it a three cornered contest.

Right now, however, public attention is concentrated on the G. O. P. primary and most of the talk around every one of the headquarters, in the hotel lobbies and on the street concerns Litsinger, Albert, and the faro game.

This talk goes back to Litsinger's two races for the mayoralty in former years, two defeats that are said to have left him with a big determination still to wind up his political career in the mayor's chair.

Political Gossip.

When Litsinger ran the second time, in 1927, he did so against the wishes of Deneen. Since that time their former cordial relations never have been the same. As a lieutenant Litsinger has been pronounced insubordinate and unruly.

This is political gossip and the discussion of developments from this point on in the story are largely of a gossipy nature, statements of the character that politicians hand around among their friends but are quick to deny when cited as authority for them.

With the ill feeling pronounced between Litsinger and Deneen last year, the former insisted upon Ald. Albert as the Deneen group's candidate for president of the county board. There was no outstanding aspirant against him and Litsinger had his way.

Far Down on List.

But it was only a short time later, the gossip, partly verified from Democratic sources, that one of the big chiefs of the Deneen tribe telephoned to County Clerk Sweitzer and suggested that no serious damage would be done if Albert's name were placed so far down on the ballot list that he couldn't be found in the crowd. The old joke that there is an element of luck in this arrangement of names based on the order in which petitions were filed is considered passe now; and Albert landed far down on the list.

He was defeated, it is the opinion of the well informed now, because the Deneen group saw in his candidacy merely a stepping stone for Litsinger on the way to the mayor's chair and domination of the Deneen organization. If Albert had been elected president of the county board, they say, Litsinger and not Albert would be the man running for the mayoralty right now.

A $22,000 Deficit.

With Albert defeated for the county presidency, it is said, Litsinger once more forced him on the Deneen organization as its candidate for mayor, his goal, according to the gossip, being still that of obtaining control of the organization and retiring Deneen to a back seat.

This time, the story runs, Litsinger operated in a different manner. It is said that he—or possibly he and an associate—offered an initial payment into the Albert campaign fund of $25,000. This was to pass into the Deneen treasury, where there was a deficit of $22,000 from last year's campaign. It is common report now that the deficit has been covered.

Short campaigns are the rule in these post-war times, and Albert had started out by labeling himself as the only simon pure anti-Thompson candidate when the time arrived for actual campaigning. A sort of bandwagon movement seemed to be under way for Judge Lyle, but the Albert people were still confident.

Now, the Faro Game.

And it was at this point that the faro game bombshell burst. The explosion was at the state capital, Springfield. There are still contradictions that haven't been answered concerning just what occurred. But the opinion among politicians is that what Litsinger fell for was a bunco game and not a faro game.

According to the newspaper statements of the participants, Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, a Deneen appointee as collector of internal revenue, went to her old friend, Litsinger, with a story that she had to have $50,000 for twenty-four hours in order to collect a large sum of money that was due to her.

Litsinger's first story was that she had told him only that she needed the money in connection with the settlement of an estate. Mrs. Blacklidge said that the money was needed in connection with Mrs. Blacklidge's winnings in a faro game.

The trio went to Springfield. They moved from hotel to hotel. In the mixup the $50,000 disappeared. Litsinger issued a long statement in which he accused Mrs. Blacklidge of participating in a confidence game against him. Mrs. Blacklidge resigned her federal post and, according to headquarters, Litsinger retired as the chief spellbinder of the Albert campaign.

Deneen in Full Control.

Immediately after the Albert candidacy was launched on Dec. 29, Senator Deneen went to Washington, placing his political interests here in the hands of Roy O. West. He was still in Washington when the faro game story became public. For another week he remained there, and then, last Friday, he returned to Chicago and once more picked up the reins of his organization at a meeting in the Hotel Morrison. Litsinger was among those present.

Senator Deneen returned to Washington yesterday, but before leaving he said that he hoped to return each week-end before the primaries on Feb. 24. His associates say he is in full command and that there is no longer any challenge of his right to leadership.

During his brief stay the senator refused to discuss the faro game.

U. S. Gunboat in China Fights Off Bandit Attack

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—A message from the Asiatic fleet today said the gunboat Panay had been fired upon by Chinese bandits near Temple Hill, on the Yangtze river, while accompanying the steamer Ichang. The bandit fire was silenced with eleven rounds of the three inch gun. No casualties were reported.

PROSECUTORPUTS SWINDLE ACTION UP TO LITSINGER

Accepts Jurisdiction for Springfield Courts.

If Edward R. Litsinger's charges that Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge conspired with three faro card sharps to cozen him out of $50,000 ever result in criminal prosecution, it will be at Springfield.

The question of venue was determined at a conference yesterday between State's Attorneys Swanson of Cook county and Fullenwider of Sangamon county. The prosecutors discussed the case for more than an hour in Mr. Swanson's county building office and then refused to divulge anything except their decisions.

Mr. Fullenwider said he would call Litsinger to Springfield this week for a conference to ascertain whether he still desires to prosecute Mrs. Blacklidge, his former friend and political protégée in the Deneen Republican faction.

Must Have Signed Complaint.

"I must have a source of action before presenting the case to the grand jury," said Mr. Fullenwider. "No complaint has been signed so far. If Mr. Litsinger still wishes to prosecute and will sign a complaint, then a thorough investigation shall be ordered and if the facts warrant such action the case shall be taken to the grand jury."

Mr. Fullenwider was asked whether he had been apprised of reports that neither Litsinger nor Mrs. Blacklidge wished to take the faro swindle case into the courts.

"I have heard rumors to that effect, but I do not act on rumors," he said. "I had a letter from Mr. Litsinger on Friday, and it indicated he still wished to prosecute. On the other hand, if he will not sign a complaint, I shall consider the matter closed."

Mrs. Blacklidge Ponders Suit.

Mrs. Blacklidge, who contends she was duped by the faro swindlers and that Litsinger put up the $50,000 knowing it was to be used in a faro game that had showed her a paper profit of $207,000, has intimated a desire to file suit for damages against the board of review member because of his charges against her.

Three days ago, when interviewed at the home of friends on the south side, Mrs. Blacklidge said she was awaiting the arrival of her mother and a sister before determining whether to authorize legal action. Yesterday she said her sister and mother had arrived, but that she was still undecided as to the suit.

Mrs. Blacklidge gave added details yesterday of the methods used by two of the three confidence men who induced her to go to Springfield and play faro.

Tell Gambling Club Story.

"These men, Roy Burgess and George Paker they called themselves, said they were old friends of my late husband, John W. Blacklidge, and used to play cards with him. They said they had heard of my luck and cleverness at cards and that I might have a chance to win some money at faro down at Springfield.

"They said they were opening up a gambling club in which my husband, shortly before his death, had agreed to invest $25,000. When I reached Springfield they told me the club had not opened because of labor trouble, that the plastering had not been finished. So we played at the St. Nicholas hotel. We bet as high as $3,000 on the turn of a card, and in two hours I had paper profit of $207,000."

POLICE RAID GAMBLING DEN IN MIAMI BEACH HOTEL; EIGHT SEIZED

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Eight men were under arrest here today in the latest police effort to clamp the lid on gambling.

But in their arrest there appeared an element of mystery. A raid was made yesterday on a hotel room which, authorities said, had been assigned to M. Werthemer. He was arrested, along with seven men who gave their names as Harry Kelson, William Abramson, D. Tucker, George Arthur, Walter Young, L. F. Jeffries, and Richard Sharp.

Police said expensive gambling devices were found in the room, but when they returned to confiscate it after taking the prisoners to the police station it had been removed and a few worn tables left instead.

Meanwhile the eight men were at liberty under bond pending trial on charges of gambling.

The raid was the second made since city officials promised wealthy residents of Miami Beach that gambling resorts would be stamped out.

GETS 2 YEARS ON CAR THEFT CHARGE.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Harry Morgan, charged with transporting a stolen car from Zanesville, O., to Decatur, Ill., was sentenced by Judge Louis Fitz Henry in United States District court today to two years in federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas.

BOARD HEARS 46 MORE PROTESTS IN COUNCIL RACE

Ald. Clark Hits Petitions of 3 Other Clarks.

Unemployment, the business depression and the sacred right of American citizens to become candidates for public office were drawn into the protests against 46 more aldermanic candidates yesterday before the board of election commissioners.

Up to last night more than 120 objections to nominating petitions had been heard by the board, and taken under advisement, leaving more than 50 challenges on the list.

The hearing included attacks on the jurisdiction of the election board, the question of what constitutes a legal voter and the definition of an "interested party" in the election.

Ald. John S. Clark Heard.

Ald. John S. Clark, seeking reëlection in the 30th ward, and William F. Hartman, appearing as the "interested party" in the 34th ward, were among the objectors heard yesterday. Hartman, a railroad man, appeared as the objector to all the candidates in the 34th ward except State Representative Thomas P. Keane, who is seeking the seat to be vacated by Ald. Edward J. Kaindl, Democratic nominee for city treasurer.

Rosenberg asked Hartman about his occupation and residence in the ward. Hartman replied that for 20 years he had voted in the ward and had been a railroad man during all that time. "What about that little store you've been interested in?" asked Rosenberg. "O, that was just a little club I operated," replied Hartman. "Have you ever been arrested for operating the club?" inquired the attorney. "No, no!" was the answer. Whereupon, Izadore Brown, counsel for Hartman, objected and was sustained.

Attorney Brown contended that all the candidates against Keane had improper petitions, which contained names of nonregistered voters, nonresident voters and the names of other citizens who had not, themselves, signed the petitions.

Ald. Clark attacked in particular the candidacies of three others named Clark. He argued that each of them had presented petitions lacking the proper number of qualified signatures, and charged forgery.

Numerous withdrawals were filed yesterday, including State Representative John M. Bolton in the 26th ward and Samuel L. Freedman in the 40th ward. Bolton, elected to the legislature last fall, had entered the aldermanic campaign with the indorsement of the ward Democratic organization. Freedman had been opposing the reelection of Ald. Joseph C. Ross.

Coughlin Opposition Quits.

Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st] was left without any opposition yesterday by the withdrawal of M. W. Rolnick. Rolnick and V. George Pirofalo, who already had withdrawn, were the only candidates who filed against the veteran who is finishing his 19th term in the council.

Evert O. Hutchins, an assistant state's attorney and Deneen's candidate for alderman in the 39th ward, has invited the ten other candidates against the reëlection of Ald. Frank R. Ringa to join in a combined movement against Ringa and Thompsonism at a conference on Tuesday afternoon.

DEATH HELD ACCIDENTAL.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury in the case of William Narel, 45 years old, 5031 South Racine avenue, who died Thursday of injuries suffered in a fall down a flight of stars at 404 East 31st street.

PADDEN STAYS ON LYLE BENCH IN FELONY COURT

Judge Frank A. Padden will continue to substitute for Judge John H. Lyle in the Felony court during February, Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court announced yesterday in making the assignments of the judges. Judge Lyle was granted a leave of absence to conduct his campaign for the Republican mayoralty nomination.

Judge Francis Borrelli, in addition to presiding over the racket court, also will continue his work in the speeders' court. Judge Joseph A. Graber was sent to take the place of Judge F. W. Elliott at the Des Plaines and Fillmore street courts. Judge Elliott and Judge Samuel H. Trude were left temporarily unassigned. The remaining judges will continue in the same assignments for the next month.

Military Patrol to Force Bathers to Dress Properly

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Malin Craig, commanding officer of Fort Winfield Scott, is not one to permit his soldiers to suffer embarrassment.

He has ordered a patrol of Baker's beach [part of the military reservation] to force bathers to appear properly attired. The state of undress of many bathers has made it "most embarrassing to members of the garrison who habitually ride along the beach," the general's order said.

INSPECT HOUSE WIDOW OFFERS VICE PRESIDENT

Congressional Committee Visits Mansion.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—A United States senator and two members of the house of representatives went today to look a gift house in the mouth. They conducted a regular congressional investigation of the 30 room mansion at 2437 15th street which Mrs. John B. Henderson, wealthy widow and real estate dealer, has just offered to our government as a permanent home for our transient vice presidents. These three gentlemen peered into clothes closets and examined plumbing fixtures. They counted fireplaces and figured out just how many people could be seated in the dining room. In all, they had a fine, housewifey time of it.

"What a beautiful view," exclaimed Representative Ernest Gibson, stepping to a balcony overlooking Meridian park, where the gentle slopes may have reminded him of his native Vermont hills.

"There's plenty of room for entertaining," remarked Representative Richard Elliott, a sociable Indianian, as he pointed to the large ballroom.

Room Available for Office.

"And this room could be used for an office, with the files in that closet, and the stenographer's desk here," suggested Senator Wesley L. Jones, the assiduous worker from the state of Washington.

"There's an elevator, and——" Seman, Mrs. Handerson's Filipino steward began to catalogue additional virtues of the establishment—"And an oil burner, and big refrigerators and garages, and five major baths, no six, and, of course, I'm not counting about ten small lavatories, and——"

"Bet it would cost a pile to keep up." The reflection cast a shadow across the white marble mantel.

There was silence as the visitors did sums. Their answer was $25,000 a year. At least that is the figure which Representative Gibson will mention in his bill, to be introduced into the house Monday, asking acceptance of the gift house, and asking, in addition to an annual $25,000 upkeep appropriation, an initial governmental expenditure of $30,000 for furnishings.

Called $300,000 House.

"But it's a $300,000 house the government will get for nothing," mused one of the representatives.

"And no taxes," said another.

"And it was built by Maj. Totten, George O. Totten," urged the steward, "and he's a fine architect."

As the committee stood in the second floor drawing room and admired the glittering cut glass chandelier that once hung in the Italian embassy, upstairs, in a sunny bedroom, a tiny woman in black sat and rocked by the window, a tiny black dog at her diminutive feet.

She was Mrs. Henderson, widow of the Missouri senator who introduced the thirteenth amendment, abolishing slavery.

Built for an Embassy.

"I built this house last year for an embassy," the little old lady recalled. "I call it embassy number 9, for 8 others are homes of diplomats. But I'd rather this would be a second White House. Our Vice President ought to have the dignity and comfort of a real home.

"I am living here now. But the castle [her brown stone dwelling high up on Sixteenth street is called Boundary castle] is all ready for me to step right into it at a moment's notice."

This is the second time Mrs. Henderson has offered a house to her government. The first offer came back in 1923 when she felt "so sorry for Mr. Coolidge having to crowd his family into a hotel." Then she bethought herself of a roomy mansion, it was said to have cost half a million, which was standing vacant at 2801 Sixteenth street.

First Offer Declined.

As a memorial to her dead son, John, she offered the building. Senator Warren carried her message to his colleagues. They did arithmetic and shook their heads. And Mr. Coolidge sent word that it was a fine house, but that he did not choose to run it. Later, however, he deplored the houseless state of our Vice Presidents and it was this postscript to his earlier refusal that led Mrs. Henderson to try a second time. The first house has been sold to the Spanish embassy, so she offered the mansion on Fifteenth street, looking across Meridian park and straight into the front yard of the French embassy.

Her activities in real estate have won her the title, "Mother of Embassies." This is the way it happened:

For many years Massachusetts avenue had been the swank corridor of embassies and legations. Then one morning she declared it was a terrible place, "Dead Man's Gulch," and she vowed she'd swing the diplomatic traffic over to Sixteenth street.

Builds and Sells Them.

Washington laughed—for a while. First she built her own castle, with its turrets and its sunken swimming pool. Then she built half a dozen more and sold or rented them to foreign governments. The neighborhood now includes the Mexican, Italian, Spanish, Cuban, and French embassies and the legations of Lithuania, Nicaragua, Persia, Poland, and the Netherlands.

In addition to her positive interest in real estate this sprightly widow has a negative interest in alcohol, tobacco and animal food.

Washington insists that she assembled her servants one bright day and had them pour gallons of priceless old wine into the gutters. Washington also insists that her meatless dinners so impressed Wu Ting-fang, the Chinese diplomat, that he returned to China with a trunk full of her recipes.

She's a "Sandetarian."

A "sanditarian" she calls herself. The word, she explains, is manufactured from "sanus," the Latin word for health, and from a derivative of the word diet.

But Washington calls her a mighty smart and energetic real estate operator. And, remembering the way she brought the diplomats to Sixteenth street, Washington is wondering if she won't succeed in bringing a Vice President to Fifteenth street.

WOMEN INSIST PATRIOTISM BE TAUGHT EARLY

Should Begin in Nursery, Society Declares.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Patriotism, as well as peace, ought to begin in the nursery, according to the middle aged women sponsors of both projects.

Just as the sixth conference on the cause and cure of war closed here last week with resolutions denouncing toy soldiers as playthings, so, today, the sixth women's patriotic conference on national defense closed here with resolutions warning youngsters to beware of communist pacifist propaganda.

Endorse the R. O. T. C.

In the more formal words of this recent resolution the patriotic conference voted to "reaffirm its former stand against the propaganda among children by the branches of the Workers' [communist] party, known as the Young Pioneers. Also it demanded that all teachers in school and college be made to take an oath of allegiance.

Carrying the preparedness idea from the nursery to the high school, the 875 advocates of national defense endorsed the R. O. T. C. and recommended sufficient congressional appropriations for its continuance.

Washington Career Upheld.

George Washington came into the discussion when Mrs. Noble Newport Potts of Washington complained that the George Washington bicentennial commission planning a big celebration for next year had omitted from its program any mention of the first President's military career. When the resolutions committee had finished its report Mrs. Potts introduced a resolution of her own, chiding the Washington commission for its omission and demanding that it include in the program two more militant episodes—Washington, the young soldier before the revolution, and Washington, the general.

Unanimously the women adopted it.

Other resolutions adopted included the following:

Advocacy of making April 3 American Creed day; increased pay for the army and navy; more land for West Point; speeding up of the navy building program; endorsement of house resolution to declare "Star Spangled Banner" our national anthem; and a pledge to combat "malicious propaganda" aimed at interference with the constitutional form of government in the United States.

Britten Addresses Women.

During the morning session Representative Fred A. Britten of Chicago, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, urged the women to prod congress into doing its "full duty" with regard to preparedness in material and men.

And the women, heeding his advice, went off this afternoon to call on their senators and congressmen, to urge them to get busy on building up a navy. The national defense women will hold their seventh conference in January, 1932.

"Isn't it just too adorable," cooed the lady in the plumed hat as she lifted up a corner of the pink blanket decorated with kitty heads and gazed at the sleeping form pillowed in a silken lined market basket.

"And such an affectionate thing for only 3 months old," murmured the middle aged lady upon whose lap the basket rested. "She feels so lonely here, so I have to sit and amuse her."

Whereupon the middle aged lady fell to chucking the 3 month old under the chin with a playful "Nice kitty, me-ow, me-ow; I'll get you; I'll get you!" making a pass to tickle the kitten behind the ears.

That was one of the scenes yesterday at the 25th annual Beresford Cat club show. Nearly 200 cats from around about Chicago and even as far as Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio had traveled to the Hotel Sherman to compete with one another.

Society Cats and Alley Cats.

There were cats from every walk of life, so to speak—from the slums to the gold coast. But all were treated alike, regardless of social caste, in the exhibition hall where they occupied lodgings side by side. Some doting owners, however, beautified the stalls by hanging them elaborately with silks, satins, and velvets, and old prize ribbons hung from the ceiling. Some cats slept upon velvet cushions, and one, an orange ball of fluff, reclined upon a white doll bed in a boudoir hung with turquoise blue silk splattered with gold stars.

The show, which continues today, is not without its scientific aspect. Dr. James John Monahan of Chicago pointed to Nip, who boasts seven toes on each forefoot, and Tuck, with six toes, as proof of Mendel's law of inheritance. The two tiger cats are the offspring of Shadow, a seven toed female, and a normal male. Dr. Monahan traces the genealogy, showing that Shadow's parents were a six toed female and a normal male. The six toed grand-dam had borne offspring with six or eight toes on each front foot, the rear feet being normal. Shadow's offspring, Dr. Monahan explained, were 50 per cent normal, 25 per cent with six toes and 25 per cent with seven toes.

Just Plain Cats, Too.

Although many long haired Persian cats are on exhibit in colors of black, orange, white, silver, blue, and tortoise, the alley cat, or "the domestic, short haired cat," as it prefers to be called, claimed considerable attention. The owner of one made no bones about the cat's name, proclaiming it as "Sally in Our Alley."

Of special interest to some cat fanciers are the Royal Sacred Siamese cats with chocolate ears, tails, and mouths, and shadings of browns and tans over the body.

The best cat of the show will be chosen today.

Mrs. George D. Kessler is president of the club.

Felines Have Their Great Day

TRIBUNE OFFERS $25,000 IN GIFTS TO ITS READERS

Today THE TRIBUNE announces a unique and interesting offer for the benefit of its readers. It is not a contest in the real sense of the word, since there is no puzzle to be solved, no essay to write, and no subscription to be taken or solicited. It requires no more physical effort than filling out an information coupon.

But with the exception of TRIBUNE employés and members of their families any man, woman, or child anywhere who fills out the coupon may share in the distribution of $25,000 in awards.

Just Write Name.

Every Sunday, beginning today and continuing for ten weeks, there will appear in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE a coupon on which entrants are requested to inscribe their name and address, their occupation, their ambition, and the date of their birth. This coupon is to be sent to Doris Blake, THE TRIBUNE'S famous characterologist and personal advice editor.

From the information given on this coupon Miss Blake will make readings concerning the indications of the signs of the zodiac on the individual as determined by the date of birth. One hundred of the most interesting readings will be announced each Sunday.

A total of $2,000 in awards will be distributed each week in the following sums: The first award will amount to $500, the second $200, and the third $100. Two entrants whose readings are selected will be awarded $50 each, ten will be awarded $25 each, and eighty-five will receive $10 each.

At the end of ten weeks three major awards will be given, the first $2,500, the second $1,500, and the third $1,000.

Any entrant is eligible for one of these grand prizes, even though his or her reading did not receive a weekly prize.

An Ancient Science.

According to Miss Blake, interest in the stars is as old as the intelligence of man. Modern astronomy is generally believed to be the outgrowth of ancient astrology.

This study may be sound and it may be unsound. For some it is diversion, for others a whole souled belief. At any rate Miss Blake invites TRIBUNE readers not only to find out what the stars may bequeath or predict for them, but in the discovery of their lucky star to share in the distribution of $25,000.

The coupon and full information appears elsewhere in this issue.

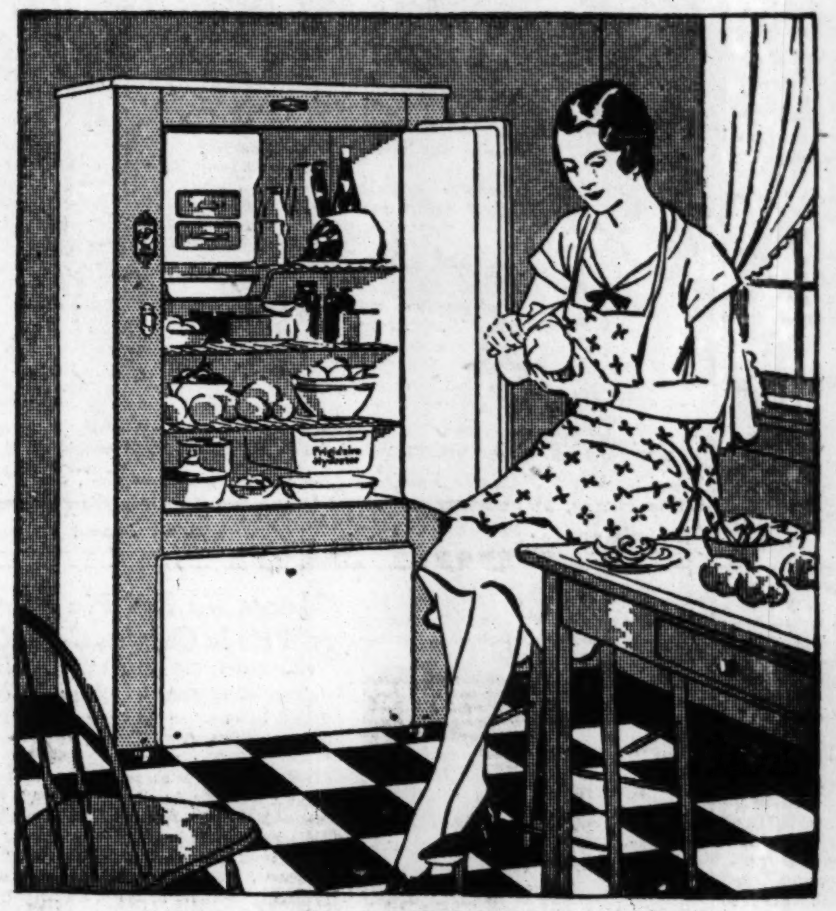
"PORTRAYERS OF THE SPIRIT OF YOUTH IN SHOES"

To thrifty directors of the household budget



IF you would like to serve the kind of desserts and salads that bring a satisfied "Um-m-m" from the head of the house, there's an easy way to do it. And it is a way that enables you to compliment yourself on thrifty management, too!

Just put a Frigidaire in your kitchen!

Then you will be able to substitute delicious, yet inexpensive frozen desserts and chilled salads for more expensive dishes—a feat made possible by the positive "Frigidaire Cold Control."

You never have to coax Frigidaire to freeze things—not even the most stubborn kind of desserts. You simply turn the "Cold Control," and temperatures begin going down in the High-Speed Freezing Chamber. In just a short time you have a dessert or salad to replace other more costly things in a way that they'll never be missed!

And this is only one of many ways that Frigidaire lowers household expenses. For this famous refrigerator embodies dozens of improvements and refinements that make it the truly economical refrigerator to own and to use.

The "Cold Control" is one of the many reasons why you should investigate Frigidaire before you buy a refrigerator. And there are others just as important. We invite you to come and see them. The latest models are on display.

CHURCHILL OUT TO GET BALDWIN'S TORY SCEPTER

Liberal Leader Opens War on Socialism.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—British political forces, already shaken by internal party revolts and the precarious position of the Labor cabinet, were plunged further into a momentous realignment process tonight, apparently in preparation for the next general election.

There were two important new developments—the swing of Sir John Simon further away from the Liberal leadership of David Lloyd George, and the possibility that Winston Churchill, who has now won the support of the powerful Rothermere newspapers, would make a bid to oust Stanley Baldwin from the Conservative leadership.

Simon, leader of a Liberal party faction which has opposed Lloyd George's efforts to use the Liberals as a means of keeping the cabinet of Prime Minister MacDonald in power, emphasized his determination to separate himself from such tactics in a speech this afternoon at South Mouthmoulton.

"Socialism Poisonous Doctrine."

"The time has come when Liberal parliament members must eschew ingenious tactics and note every proposal on its merits," said Sir John. "The Laborites are openly declaring there is no real difference between labor and liberalism.

"On the contrary, I believe there is a vast difference. Socialism is a poisonous doctrine that saps enterprise and character. When I see Liberals patronized as lagging sheep, soon to be within the socialistic fold, I feel bound to separate myself definitely from plans and policies leading to this humiliating disaster."

In his declaration he emphasized the wide extent of his split with Lloyd George and also followed the tactics of Mr. Churchill, former conservative cabinet minister, in breaking away from the leadership of Baldwin on the Indian constitution question. Churchill—bidding for support of the staunchest Conservatives—has caused wide speculation as to his ultimate purpose.

Churchill Attacks MacDonald.

His decision not to participate in future councils of Baldwin's "shadow cabinet" and his speech at Manchester last night opening an independent attack on MacDonald were known merely to be the opening of a series of attacks in the strategic cities of all parts of Britain.

Some sources believed that Mr. Churchill might be representing the actual "unofficial" attitude of many Conservatives, while Mr. Baldwin, who has pledged support to the Indian constitution plans, represents the "official" and diplomatic attitude to strengthen the party in case of general elections in the near future.

Others believed the break between Churchill and Baldwin was even wider than it appeared on the surface and that Churchill was hoping to gain Conservative leadership.

Nye Latest Senate Victim of Influenza Epidemic

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Another senator—Nye of North Dakota—fell victim today to the mild influenza spreading over the national capital.

The chairman of the senate campaign funds committee was confined to bed at his home under doctor's orders to remain away from his duties at the capitol until cured.

Pilot and His Passenger Escape from Burning Plane

Cortland, N. Y., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Pilot H. W. Bresee and his passenger, H. E. Howard of Syracuse, were injured when their plane nosed over in deep snow and burst into flames after a forced landing in a field north of here today.

Charge He Fed Pin Points to Wife in Quinine Capsules

San Pedro, Cal., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Accused of feeding pin points concealed in quinine capsules to his wife in an attempt to kill her, Charles E. Limerich, 32, was arrested today. Limerich, who is almost blind, told arresting officers he had "loaded" the capsules, but he had intended them for his own use in a suicide attempt.

"I took three of them myself," he declared. Mrs. Limerich became suspicious when she suffered an intestinal hemorrhage.

JEALOUS WIFE STABS GIRL ON SHERIDAN ROAD

Wields Paring Knife as "L" Crowds Pass.

A jealous wife, armed with a paring knife, stabbed a girl whom she accused of stealing her husband's affections yesterday morning at Sheridan road and Albion avenue, a short distance from the Loyola avenue elevated station where numbers of loop bound workers were passing to their trains.

Disarmed by a Rogers Park policeman, the wife, Mrs. Helen Porter, 29 years old, was locked up on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Her husband, Henry Porter, 33 years old, proprietor of the Porter-Hanna pharmacy, 1065 Granville avenue, and the girl, Miss Anna Marjorie Fredrich, 24 years old, a stenographer, were also held. Both were charged with disorderly conduct. Miss Fredrich's injuries were not serious.

The Porters have been married seven years. They separated a few months ago, the wife remaining in their apartment at 6236 Magnolia avenue while Porter moved to 6019 Winthrop avenue.

Miss Fredrich, a resident of the Albion Shore apartments, 1217 Albion avenue, was a patron of Porter's drug store. Mrs. Porter charges that the young woman and her husband became sweethearts after the separation.

$857,464 STILL NEEDED TO FILL RELIEF QUOTA

Total subscriptions to the $5,000,000 relief fund being raised by Gov. Emmerson's unemployment commission last night totaled $4,142,536, leaving a deficit of $857,464 to be made up before completion of the drive on Feb. 11.

Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the fund raising committee, last night commented on the fine response by persons of limited means.

"Almost all of the contributions received yesterday," he said, "were in checks for $5 to $25. While small with regard to the total required, each check shows the proper spirit and serves to make others feel the need."

Man Who Kept 'Harem' Must Hang for Auto Torch Slaying

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The most sensational murder trial in England in years was concluded at Northampton today, when Justice Talbot solemnly covered his judicial wig with a black cap and sentenced Arthur Rouse to hang for the murder of an unknown tramp, who was incinerated in the flames which consumed Rouse's car along a deserted country road on Nov. 6.

The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, based on a brief consideration of the evidence in the case, which has stirred London and the British Isles like no other in some time. Newspapers have printed pages of verbatim testimony on the "blazing car murder" daily, indicating the public interest in the trial. The evidence was wholly circumstantial. During the trial evidence was introduced regarding Rouse's infidelities, about which his wife heard only after she had extended her financial resources to the limit to pay defense lawyers.

Admits Having "Harem."

The traveling salesman's admitted "harem" was frequently brought into the evidence. This "harem," the prosecution contended, was the motive for the crime—that Rouse meant the charred, unrecognizable body in his car to be taken for himself, while he would disappear in order to escape accounting for his philanderings. The jury evidently based its conclusions on the tangled story told by Rouse about his actions from the time he hitch hiked to London while the embers of his car cooled on the deserted road, until his arrest on his return to London from a visit to Ivy Jenkins of Cardiff, one of the women with whom he was involved, on the day after the death of the unidentified man.

Rouse said he picked up the man and drove for five hours. He said he left the car by the side of the road at 2 o'clock in the morning, asking his companion to fill the gasoline tank from a reserve can in the car during his absence. He said he saw the car burst into flames and fled in panic.

Find Mallet Near Car.

The prosecution contended that he struck the victim with a mallet, which was found near the burned car, and fled.

Rouse maintained his innocence in the face of the verdict.

The trial was swamped from the start by crowds of writers, criminologists and dramatists, and the court room was railed off to handle the throngs.

The question of an appeal has not yet been decided.

SEEK TO REDUCE TOLL IN FALSE ALARMS OF FIRE

Signs attracting attention to the fact that firemen have lost their lives in responding to false alarms are being pasted on the 2,600 fire alarm boxes in the city in an effort to reduce unnecessary runs, Fire Commissioner Goodrich announced yesterday. The signs, which are printed in red and black, read:

"Firemen have lost their lives responding to false alarms. Pull this box only in case of fire." They are signed by Goodrich.

"Last year we cut the number of false and unnecessary alarms to 5,904," said Commissioner Goodrich, a reduction of 1,144 alarms under the number for 1929. That means that approximately 6,000 runs have been cut from the usual annual total, as more than one piece of apparatus responds to each alarm. This has resulted in a decrease in accidents to fire apparatus responding to these false alarms."

War Department Approves Bridge at North Aurora

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The war department today approved plans of Aurora, Ill., township for a bridge across the Fox river at State street, North Aurora.

Girl Held as Slayer of Escort, Shot in Her Car

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—A charge of murder was lodged late today against Gretchen Gregory, 19 year old Sunday school teacher, whose companion, Henry Moore, a married man, was fatally wounded under mysterious circumstances on a highway near here early today. She told police he took her for an automobile ride and that two men accosted them and shot Moore. Authorities said there were discrepancies in her story.

Then Mr. Underhill turned to the ages of the Congressional Record, here the account of the Nye com- ittee was displayed.

"On page 3538," he said, "I note item of $375 for transportation om Spokane to Chicago and re- rn."

The members grabbed for their pies of the record and learned that e item was one paid by Donald O. ye, brother of Senator Nye, to re- burse Senator C. C. Dill [Democrat, 'ash.], a committee member.

"At that time there was a round ip rate between Chicago and Spo- ne of $130," said Rep. Underhill. Even if one adds $50 for Pullman d tips, there is still a difference of arly $200."

He pointed out a $75 item for a und trip between Washington and oston taken by a special investigator.

Has "Probable Explanation."

"As a matter of fact," he went on, n one of the extra fare trains, the re to Boston and return is $50. e probable explanation is that the vestigator hired a state room and aveled in style at the taxpayers' pense."

"Now," Representative Underhill nt on, "I do not question the hon- ty of this report in any way, but o question the ethics and the judg- nt of allowing a relative of one of e members of this committee——" Representative Robert Luce [Rep., ass.] who was in the chair tapped s gavel with a great show of lemnity.

"The chair is obliged to protect mbers of the other branch from y statements in this body impugning eir motives or criticizing their ac- ns," he intoned. "I shall have to ution the gentleman. He is tread- close to the line."

Asks Hypothetical Question.

"Then may I put a hypothetical estion?" Mr. Underhill asked. "As airman of the committee on accounts ould I be justified in transferring my arge over the contingent fund to a se relative in order that he might dit the bills and report upon the cessary expenditures?"

That, Mr. Luce said, was not a par- mentary inquiry. Mr. Underhill was t abashed. He tried again.

The record showed that Senator Dale ep., Vt.] had attended a committee nference in Glacier National park.

"Would the chairman of the com- ttee on accounts, in exercising his ntrol over traveling expenses," Mr. nderhill wanted to know, "be justified routing a member from Island Pond, ., to Chicago by way of Glacier ational park, Montana?"

That brought another reproof from e chair.

Asked to Hew to Line.

"The gentleman has been admon- ed that he is approaching the bor- r line pretty closely," said Repre- ntative William C. Wright [Dem., .]. "Will he not just get on the e and proceed right down the middle it?"

"Will the gentleman advise who did is?" pleaded Representative Sam Reynolds [Dem., Tenn.], knowing ry well who had done it.

"I regret"—Mr. Underhill's words re mellow with sincerity—"that the les of the house do not allow that."

"Does the gentleman intimate that it was a member of the house?" asked Representative August Andresen [Rep., Minn.] anxiously.

"O, no, far from it," Mr. Underhill replied.

"Of course," suggested Representative Fred S. Purnell [Rep., Ind.], "the gentleman may properly refer to pages of the Congressional Record for the guidance of the members."

The gentleman thought he could, and did, copiously.

Newspaper Bill Heavy.

Mr. Underhill noted that considerable money was spent for newspapers and he remarked that the committee was evidently aware of the value of publicity.

There was a taxicab bill of $50 in Boston. Why, he wanted to know, such a bill as that. One could walk around Boston.

"What did he do with a taxicab which cost fifty dollars?" he inquired. "He must have bought the whole outfit."

"Was that the Fresh-Air Taxicab?" queried Representative John C. Allen [Rep., Ill.].

"I also notice," Mr. Underhill continued, "that there are several items which extend over Sunday, for trips from this point to that and in looking up the record I find that many of them were trips for employés who may have been in Chicago or Fargo or somewhere in North America, back home to stay over Sunday, and then making the return trip on Monday."

Against Hiring Detectives.

"I would suggest," Mr. Underhill concluded, "that since the money for the senate contingent fund must be contained in a bill originating in the house, that it would be an excellent thing if it were possible to place limitations on it so that it would not be spent for lawyers to prosecute quo warranto proceedings or for pseudo-detectives."

And the house clapped its pleased approval.

ARREST 2 FOR GAMBLING.

Canton, Ill., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The war on slot machines and gambling devices, started recently by State's Attorney G. Ray Senift resulted today in the arrests of Eugene Seghi of Norris and Sebastian Mugavero of Farmington. They are being held pending action by the grand jury.

Two Veterans of Railway Service Make Last Runs

Started in 1884

Commuters between Chicago and Barrington are going to miss a familiar face beginning today. John F. Meyer, brakeman and collector on Chicago and North Western train 638, running between those points, who for 47 years has been in service on the Wisconsin and Milwaukee divisions, made his last run yesterday. He is being retired with a number of other employés who have reached the age of 70 years.

It was in 1884 that Meyer started work for the North Western as a brakeman. For the last ten years he has been leaving Barrington each morning at 7:24, arriving in Chicago at 8:23, and leaving the city again for Barrington on the 6:45 train. Meyer lives at 6137 Nassau avenue.

After fifty-four years of steady "workin' on the railroad," even so genial an engineer as Edward W. Egan of the Rock Island lines was pleased enough when quitting time rolled around for him last night. His name goes upon the company's honor roll, and down on the employés' pension list, for his retirement comes as he achieves the seventieth milestone of his life. He lives at 12706 Western avenue, Blue Island.

There was quite a little bustle and stir in the La Salle street station last night as Engineer Egan walked down the runway to the cab of the 5:40 train south. Not all of his brood of seven children were there, but their mother, still his pal, and two of his grandchildren, Marilyn Johler and Loren Hollenbech, were along to take the last ride with him.

Egan was only sixteen years old when he began his service with the Rock Island as an office boy in the shops at 47th street.

GERMANY GIRDS FOR FASCIST-RED CIVIL WAR FEB. 22

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—Blood will run in the streets of Germany on Feb. 22. Fascist and Red agitators have been whispering among their friends for weeks. Consequently, thousands have withdrawn their savings from the banks and bought food to prepare for civil war.

Fredrich Hoersing, leader of the Republican Reichsbanner, today issued a statement assuring the population that the "Republican forces are so strong that neither the Reds nor the Fascisti dare try civil war.

"All able bodied youths in the Reichsbanner have been learning jiu jitsu. Others have been trained as regular leaders by wartime officers. Their training will be finished by Feb. 22 and on that day our millions of followers will hold giant meetings in 36 towns to show the German republic the strength of its supporters, the Reichsbanner. That will not be a signal for civil war, but an assurance of peace."

PRESBYTERIAN GIVES MOST TO MISSION WORK

Average Episcopalian Pays Most to Church.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A survey showing the annual per capita giving for missionary work among 25 Protestant denominations puts the Presbyterians far in the lead. The survey was made public yesterday by Harry S. Myers, secretary of the United Stewardship council. The chart shows that the average member of the United Presbyterian church annually gives $11.63, while the average member of the Presbyterian church in the United States [the southern branch] gives $9.99 and ranks second in the list.

The Moravian church is third in per capita missionary giving among churches in the United States, although it is outranked by Canadian Baptists, who give $1.05 more than the Moravians, or $7.85 per capita. In the matter of parish expense the average Episcopalian gives more than $10 annually above the amount given by the average member of any other church. The per capita giving for local demands by Episcopalians is $37.25 annually, but the same average Episcopalian ranks twentieth among the church members in giving to missionary causes.

Episcopalians Pay Most.

Mr. Myers' statistics show that membership in the Episcopal church is the most costly of all. The average member of that communion pays a total of $40.51 annually, while the least expensive of the churches is the Southern Baptist, whose average member spends $10.34 a year for church work. The United Presbyterian average is $36.03, and ranks second after the average Episcopalian.

In total gifts for all purposes, the Methodist Episcopal church outruns the whole field by a margin of nearly $20,000,000 each year. The Northern Methodist Episcopal total was $94,117,400 for the last year, while the Northern Presbyterian church received an aggregate of $64,685,810, according to Dr. Meyers, Episcopalians rate third with a total of $50,140,163, out of which $3,787,446.16 was spent for benevolent causes.

Other Churches' Gifts.

Other churches in the order of their giving to all causes follow:

Episcopal	$50,140,163
Methodist Episcopal [South]	44,644,810
Baptist [northern convention]	39,337,148
Baptist [Canadian]	32,597,662
Congregational	25,627,874
United Lutheran	22,204,365
American Lutheran conference	18,416,715
Disciples	17,420,257
Lutheran synodical conference	17,925,356
United Church of Canada	16,800,532
Presbyterian [south]	14,307,835
Reformed	6,756,242
Evangelical	6,613,133

The total amount of giving for all causes by the 25 denominations is $507,491,165 a year.

REPORT TWO CONFESS INSURANCE FORGERY AND BURIAL FRAUD

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 31.—(AP)—A. W. Taggert, mortician, and Fred Segar, former insurance agent, today were held to the District court on charges of forgery in connection with the filing of a forged insurance claim.

The men, county authorities say, have confessed burying the body of a homeless, friendless man who died in the county hospital, under the name of a woman still living in order to collect on three insuruance policies issued in the woman's name and held by Taggert.

Taggert had come into possession of the insurance policies in 1928. They had been given him by Rose White, 41, an inmate of the county hospital. The woman said she had been unable to meet her payments and that when Taggert said he would pay them for her, she had turned over her receipt book to him and had "forgotten about the matter."

Huntley Chapin's Contest of Wife's Suit Is Begun

Huntley Chapin's contest of the separate maintenance suit brought by his wife, Mrs. Myrtice McLaughlin Chapin of 7859 South Shore drive, was begun yesterday in Superior Judge Desort's court. Chapin, who recently inherited $1,000,000 from his grand father, the late Charles Huntley, Buffalo traction magnate, is charged by his wife with cruelty and adultery. Robert Glanz, 3260 Sheridan road, testified yesterday concerning a party given by Chapin at his apartment at 60 East Walton place while Mrs. Chapin was out of the city. The hearing will continue tomorrow.

MILITIA REVOLTS IN NORTH BRAZIL; SEIZES DISTRICT

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 31.—Dispatches from Rio de Janeiro report a serious counter revolutionary movement in the northern Brazilian state of Piauhy, where the state militia, headed by a judge, has overthrown the naval officer who, as representative of the federal provisional government, was exercising administrative and legislative powers in the state.

The federal government has sent Capt. Juarez Tavora to the north again in an effort to pacify the northern states, which have always, opposed the Vargas government. Capt. Tavora was the leader of the victorious northern armies which coöperated with the southern armies in the revolution which overthrew President Washington Luis. The north believes it did not receive sufficient representation in the provisional government.

Capt. Tavora is popular in the north. He returned there after resigning from the cabinet the day after he was sworn in, but returned later to Rio de Janeiro. It was reported President Vargas wanted him where he could watch him. He has now been commissioned to inspect all the northern states and to recommend changes in federal commissioners in states where the opposition is strongest.

Capt. Towers, Pioneer Navy Airman, Made Staff Chief

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Capt. John H. Towers, a native of Rome, Ga., and one of the first three naval officers to be assigned to aviation, is to become chief of staff for the commander of the aircraft battle force. He has been assistant chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, a post to which Capt. Arthur B. Cook of Evansville, Ind., will succeed. Capt. Towers received early flight instruction under Glenn H. Curtiss, pioneer flyer. In 1912 he established a world's record for endurance in a seaplane and an American record for endurance in planes of any type.

SPECIAL FRONT-DRIVE WEEK

CORD

$2395

A complete revision of the standard of values in the fine car field results from the new 1931 price of $2395 on the Front-Drive Cord automobile. Now, this distinctive and exclusive car, with advantages obtainable in no other automobile, is available at prices comparable to ordinary standard cars. Due to the unprecedented attendance that crowded our exhibit at the Automobile Show in the Coliseum, we were unable to give everyone proper attention. Therefore, we will continue the Automobile Show at our stores this week and offer a special opportunity for you to drive a Cord. Chicago's Automobile Show last week convincingly proved that the Cord Front-Drive remains the outstanding advancement of the entire industry in the fine car field. If you have never driven a front-drive car, and enjoyed this entirely different experience, you are invited to do so this week without the slightest obligation. Now that the new low price makes the Cord available for the first time to a larger market, you should avail yourself of this opportunity to see for yourself the many advantages possible only with front-drive. These include such advantages as effortless handling, a different roadability, a sense of security, and an absence of fatigue that obsolete any car less efficient and commodious. We invite you to get the thrill of the maneuverability of the front-drive, the way it holds the road, and especially of the relaxation possible in the rear seat. We promise you that driving a Cord is a distinct revelation; it performs differently, it "feels" different, and it will give you a renewed zest in motoring. Competitors no longer attempt to stem the tide of front-drive popularity by saying it is an untried experiment. The experience of more than 4,000 Cord owners furnishes irrefutable proof of front-drive convenience, comfort, and durability. And now, an improved and refined Cord car is offered at a price that makes the Cord the most sensational value in the fine car field.

NO COMPROMISE ON RIGHTS.

Gov. Emmerson tried to work out a compromise in his suggestions to the legislature for a settlement of the question of representation between the cities and the country. The compromise is akin to others proposed before—restriction in one branch of the legislature and full representation in the other. The metropolitan areas cannot afford to accept it. They are restricted now, but without their consent and without authority of law. The longer the nullification of the constitution continues the stronger the city position becomes. The pressure upon the opposition grows stronger all the time.

Rural Illinois has a diminishing population. The metropolitan population grows. The social and economic conditions expressed by this movement have their political consequences. Rural Illinois has been able to check and discount one of them, but it cannot check all. The proper adjustment of representation to population has been prevented, but the city franchise cannot be restricted in other political action. Eventually the metropolitan voters will take possession of state government for their own protection if they are forced to do so.

It would be a reversal of the theory of representative government if rights were taken away from one section of the state, from one body of citizenship, for the strange reason that this section contained the most important interests and activities of the state and the largest population. It is an odd doctrine of democracy that authority should be granted with partiality to a diminishing class of citizens of more primitive interests. The social and economic problems are concentrated in one area, political supremacy in another. One community would have the problems. The other would have the right to make laws for them.

City voters cannot consent to such an inconsistency. They must continue to assert their equality, voter for voter, with the other people of the state. Although they are deprived of equality by the violation of the constitution, they still retain in the constitution a guaranty of their rights. Although for years there has been a wrong with no apparent remedy, the principle of representation remains intact, and in time the remedy will be found. The legislature which nullifies the source of its own being and the sanction for its own acts is on infirm ground which does not become firmer with time but more unsound. There is a consciousness of that in Springfield now. The burden is on the other side and it will not grow lighter.

CORRUPTION UNDER PROHIBITION.

Among the most impressive findings of the report on prohibition are those which deal with the extent and sources of corruption under the dry régime.

"It is sufficient," says the report, "to refer to the reported decisions of the courts during the last decade in all parts of the country, which reveal a succession of prosecutions for conspiracies sometimes involving the police, prosecuting and administrative organizations of whole communities; to the flagrant corruption disclosed in connection with diversions of industrial alcohol and unlawful production of beer; to the record of the federal prohibition administration, as to which cases of corruption have been continuous, and corruption has appeared in services which in the past had been above suspicion; to the records of state police organizations; to the revelations as to police corruption in every type of municipality, large and small, throughout the decade; to the conditions as to prosecution revealed in surveys of criminal justice in many parts of the land; to the evidence of connection between corrupt local politics and gangs and the organized unlawful liquor traffic, and of systematic collection of tribute from that traffic for corrupt political purposes.

"There have been other eras of corruption. Indeed, such eras are likely to follow wars. Also there was much corruption in connection with the regulation of the liquor traffic before prohibition. But the present régime of corruption in connection with the liquor traffic is operating in a new and larger field and is more extensive."

Such corruption, of course, depends upon the possession of the means of corruption, of which the report remarks:

"But of even more significance is the margin of profit in smuggling liquor, in diversion of industrial alcohol, in illicit distilling and brewing, in bootlegging, and in the manufacture and sale of products of which the bulk goes into illicit or doubtfully lawful making of liquor. This profit makes possible systematic and organized violation of the national prohibition act on a large scale and offers rewards on a par with the most important legitimate industries. It makes lavish expenditure in corruption possible. It puts heavy temptation in the way of every one engaged in enforcement or administration of the law. It affords a financial basis for organized crime."

No government, no society can long survive such conditions. Prohibition partisanship persistently ignores or belittles them. They represent a fundamental demoralization of the essentials of civilized order, and the alleged benefits in industrial efficiency which prohibition advocates ascribe to the dry laws, even if they were as great as they assert, are not sufficient compensation for such demoralization.

THE RADICALS AND THEIR PROGRAM.

When the question of Senator Norris' qualification as a Republican was raised again by the disclosure of the attempts of Mr. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, to defeat him Prof. John Dewey invited the senator and his radical associates to join in forming a new party. The invitation was declined and Prof. Dewey in comment said that the radicals were content with sniping and had no heart for a comprehensive program of consistent designs.

Norman Thomas, the Socialist leader, has contempt for them on the same score, but he also has about the same feeling for Prof. Dewey and his progressives.

It would clear the ground if the senate radicals would declare their principles of government. Are they for the continuance of an organization of society on the basis of individualism and private initiative and enterprise or are they for collectivism and communism? By maintaining a seeming attachment to the Republican party they appear to hold with individualism. This enables them to present their case as one of superior political morality, an entirely false presentation. It is not a question of political morality, but of public policy.

There are citizens who advocate the nationalization of resources and the control of production by the state. On the extreme left they would substitute communism for capitalism. Extremists would do it by force. Others hope that the orderly political development of the United States will substitute a different organization of society for the present one. If there were representatives of these doctrines in congress the purpose of their acts would be understood. Their objective would be in the clear. If they proposed a government control railroad bill it would be understood that this was one step toward the realization of a new order.

When the radicals propose that the government shall go into the electric power industry it is not understood that they are advancing toward collectivism. They are supposed to be offering policies for the improvement of the individualistic system. There could not be any such effect. The grafting of government operation upon private enterprise must contemplate the destruction of the latter. If it does not contemplate it the consequences will respond just the same.

If the radicals intend that bureaucracy shall be extended into private enterprise until nationalization of production is brought about they should announce their policies and purposes. Then political decisions would be made for reasons of economic doctrine and not for spurious reasons of public morality. As it is the radicals do not mark their departure from the individualistic system, but merely assert their finer public spirit. That lacks proof. Their methods lack explanation and candor.

THE RECAPTURE CLAUSE.

The interstate commerce commission favors repeal of the recapture clause of the interstate commerce act. Under the law as it now reads, a railroad is required to turn half of its earnings above 6 per cent of its valuation into a common fund which, in turn, is to be divided among the less successful railroad companies.

The recommendation of the commission should have the indorsement of congress without delay. The recapture scheme, as the commission observes, has already led to a vast amount of litigation which will continue for years unless checked at the source. That is one consideration, but by no means the most important one. However the courts have described or may describe the recapture scheme, the fact is that it is confiscation of private property. The money earned by better planning, better business judgment, and better management is taken from those who had earned it and given to others who have not. In consequence, the credit and therefore the serviceability of the more successful railroad companies is jeopardized while a premium is attached to incompetence. The folly of this plan becomes the more apparent when it is remembered that the more profitable roads, generally speaking, are also the roads which have the densest traffic and therefore are the most important in the nation's transportation.

Every one except the collectivists pays lip service to the formula of "less government in business." Here is an unexcelled opportunity to apply the formula.

Editorial of the Day

NATURE IMITATES ART.

[New York Sun.]

For a fortnight or more readers of the London Morning Post were busy supplying that journal with examples of malapropisms taken from life, such as the charwoman's assertion that a friend had died of pantomime poisoning or the information furnished by a postmistress that certain facilities were available only in the providential cities. A manager of a London theater used to vow that he would never go to Brighton again, because the place was too full of exertionists. An old village character habitually described her pains as scrutinizing. A landlady recommended a furnished room as scripturously clean. A proud grandmother reported that her grandson was working like a slogan. A student at a first aid class, asked what he would do if he had no proper stretcher, said that he would use an impoverished one.

Unfortunately, many of the malapropisms supplied by readers of the Post required explanations longer than themselves. One reader, for instance, tells of the judge who said to a witness before him, "You know no more about this case than you do about riding Greek goats." The addition, in parentheses, of the suspicion that the judge meant "writing Greek odes" tames all wild laughter. An incongruity that needs so much explanation is too far gone, too stale, too pale and innocuous to pass over into the common possession of mankind. Too many of the examples in the Post's anthology are accompanied by footnotes and parenthetical explanations; too many of these are introduced by those fatal, humorless words, "needless to say."

In short, a study of twoscore of these products of real life merely convinces the reader that Sheridan was happier in the expressions he put into the mouth of his dear creature than life has been in confusing the tongues of its creatures.

FEEDING BERLIN'S HUNGRY

City and Nation Spending Millions in Systematic Relief.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—Saving thousands of men, women, and children from starvation at a minimum cost is the feat Berlin's town administration is accomplishing.

The town of Berlin itself, out of its own coffers, supports at present 260,000 unemployed, sick, and aged, and the number is constantly growing. The state and national unemployment insurance takes care of another 280,000 unemployed and their families. Experts believe this brings the total of men, women, and children living on the brink of starvation close to one million out of Berlin's 4,300,000 inhabitants.

Four thousand dollars is spent every hour day and night, as the clock ticks on, by Berlin for its own unemployed, sick, and cripples. One hundred thousand dollars a day is spent to keep 260,000 from starvation. The money is advanced by Berlin's town administration, and the huge welfare machinery is administered by a special "welfare parliament."

Berlin's welfare organization dwarfs all other enterprises of the administration of Germany's capital. It swallows alone nearly one-third of all the revenue of the city. Berlin spends close to $250,000,000 a year. Each Berliner pays about $13 a year in taxes for the welfare fund alone.

The "welfare parliament," central overseeing and coördinating body for all of Berlin's relief work, meets in the city hall under chairmanship of the mayor. To this parliament the representatives of different districts report regularly on conditions in their neighborhood. Once a year each district sends in a budget estimate on how much it will be needing for the "Krankenkasse" (sick relief) welfare work among the young, and all the other municipal expenses, including the estimated outlays for dependent and unemployed relief.

The needs of the districts vary greatly—in aristocratic Zehlendorf only 69 inhabitants were entitled to relief funds and $500 was spent last September. In the wealthy district in the heart of Berlin $211,000 was distributed to 14,500 unemployed in September, with the figure growing every month.

All systems have been tried out, Berlin's relief organizers will tell you. They tried distributing food and clothes bought wholesale, then they found that they never could tell exactly how much of each would be needed. Waste was unavoidable if they kept sufficient supplies, and what they found still more disastrous—the self-respect of their charges suffered. Clothes chosen by others, food cooked according to the taste of others, standing in line with down-and-outers—all this "rubbed it in." Berlin's charity chiefs decided in favor of cash allowances to be given only to those who have been thoroughly "social serviced" until the minimum on which they can live has been established. "Live" is a euphemistic term—"vegetate" would be better—since the town pays just enough to keep its wards from starvation.

Of the 260,000 men and women supported by the town of Berlin itself, 80,000 are known as "Sozialrentner" (social pensioners), including the old, the sick, the maimed, the permanently disabled. One hundred eighty thousand are unemployed. According to German law they must be supported by the community after the means of the jobless insurance and the national crisis insurance have been exhausted.

Each individual gets $13 a month if the investigators find that he has made all possible efforts to obtain a job and has exhausted all his reserves. The figure varies slightly according to the special cases. A married couple will get 71.85 marks, or close to $17 a month; if they have a child, a little less than $20 will have to suffice; with two children, the family must live on just over $22 a month.

Berlin has twelve public kitchens where food is served at almost half cost price. Last year meals cost 2½ cents each; this year the price was increased to 6 cents, and the number of "customers" dropped from 18,000 to below 10,000, which gives an idea of how pitifully poor these 8,000 are when 6 cents for a nourishing meal proves too high a price. Since the number of customers of public kitchens fluctuates, food is sometimes left over, other times there is not enough, and so the town fathers find kitchens wasteful.

The twelve municipal kitchens receive only a small share of the government's welfare funds. In August, for instance, one of the least expensive months of the year, Berlin's unemployed received $1,200,000, while food, garments, and furniture distributed represented scarcely one-seventh of this sum. At present, the kitchens receive about $18,000 a month, while a much smaller sum is spent on halls where the unemployed can come in, sit down and get warm.

Private organizations try to supplement the aid given by the city, but they admit that the bulk of the work is done by the city itself.

Beside the 260,000 who are supported by the town, Berlin has its 280,000 families mentioned earlier who are receiving relief from the state and jobless insurance.

Every worker and every employer pays jobless insurance of 6½ per cent of the worker's wages, 3¼ per cent being paid by the employer and 3¼ per cent by the worker. If he loses his job, he is entitled to insurance money, provided he has been working for at least twenty-six weeks in the preceding year. He can get as much as 27.80 marks a week, or $6.60, if he has belonged to the top wage class, but if his salary was small he will get less. The average paid out to each receiver of unemployment insurance every month is $16.

The founders of Germany's unemployment insurance thought it would finance itself through the dues paid by worker and employer, but, owing to the world business crisis and the sudden gigantic increase in unemployment, it never had time to accumulate funds. It started collecting only 3 per cent, but promptly landed in debt, nearly wrecking Germany's finances, since the government kept on loaning money to the jobless insurance administration, until finally, by decree extraordinary, the Bruening government set the jobless insurance rate at 6½ per cent.

A billion gold marks was loaned by the government to the jobless insurance administration to enable it to meet its obligations in the course of the last months.

For twenty-six weeks the unemployed may receive unemployment insurance—then he is stricken off the list and turns to the "national emergency service," or "Krisenfürsorge," which will save him from starvation for 32 weeks if he is under 40, for 45 weeks if he is over 40.

Emergency relief pays $14.30 a month, provided the relief seeker worked 13 weeks out of the preceding year. Four-fifths of the funds for the emergency relief are provided by the state, while the remaining one-fifth must be paid by the community. The government has set aside 400,000,000 marks for the emergency relief and the latter's chiefs hope to be able to take care of the steady growing tide of unemployed.

In the month of April, 1930, 294,000 men and women were helped by the emergency funds. For April, 1931, officials estimate 566,000 men and women will turn to them after the jobless insurance strikes them off the lists. If they fail to find jobs in thirty-two or forty-five weeks, they are turned over to the mercy of the town administration—and the latter, to keep these hundreds of thousands of half starved men and women from following the calls of anarchist leaders, will scurry around to secure $13 a month for each.

Though the load grows more staggering each month, and though the bottom of the money chests has shown through, black and menacing, day after day during the last weeks, the city fathers are determined to cling to their program: systematic city support in cash, instead of haphazard charity; no time limit after which a man and his family face absolute starvation; organize all donations with the aim of saving the home, which alone will help luckless unemployed to keep "a stiff upper lip," and the hope that, despite his "temporary proletarization," he can again rebuild this home when spring and summer bring new jobs.

SINUS INFECTION.

H. A. O. writes: Please say something about sinus infection. Is it dangerous? How long does a person who is 58 years of age live while the trouble continues? Can it be cured? This person has had it for about twenty-one months. Headaches occur quite frequently.

REPLY.

What was formerly called catarrh is now called sinus trouble. Many people have it. It does not cause death, at least not directly. It is quite likely to last a lifetime. It is a frequent cause of headaches. This answers your questions, but it may not extinguish your interest.

There are several sinuses and any one of them may be the location of sinus trouble. It is not necessary to say more of the nose than that it takes air just as it finds it, warms it, moistens it, and cleans it and, having conditioned it, passes it on to the lungs. To properly do this important job in a very short space and in a very short time it is provided with baffles, pockets, filters, and an adhering surface constantly moistened by a gluey liquid.

In the building plan for this very compact air conditioning tube certain chambers called sinuses are provided. Perhaps in the beginning these dust depositing chambers were roomy and opened by good sized ducts into the main tube, the nose. But such a person had very high cheek bones, beetling brows, and other coarse features. He was gorillalike in appearance and quite unrefined. The Athenian brow became the vogue. The cave man went out of style. In time the man type acquired a brow that projected at the hairline and not in the eyebrow zone. The cheek bones decreased in size.

All of this means smaller sinuses and, what is more to our immediate point, sinuses with smaller openings into the nose. The result is poor sinus drainage. When producing bacteria get into the sinuses from the air the consequent pus cannot drain. Of the several changes noted the decrease in the ease of drainage is the chief contribution to the development of sinus disease. Perhaps the day will come when the cheek bones will be even lower, the brows even less beetling, and the sinuses will have disappeared entirely. In that day there will be no sinus disease and not much catarrh. Now we are in between and, in consequence, we suffer somewhat from catarrh, but it does not kill us and most of us get along moderately comfortable and make no complaint.

PROBABLY IS RINGWORM.

P. D. writes: What is the cause of skin peeling off between the toes and what is the cure?

REPLY.

I judge you have ringworm of the feet. Everybody's having it. There are many remedies that hold it in check. Several manufacturers have such remedies under trade names, which you can buy at your drug store. Complete cure is more difficult.

NOT WORTH WORRYING.

R. M. writes: My little sister, age 12, sneezes from eight to ten times continuously every morning since she was 10 years old. Now, this has been going on every morning as soon as she awakes.

REPLY.

If this is her only symptom my advice is that she do nothing. For some reason the membrane of her nose is sensitive or its nerves are on edge, but the symptom is scarcely worth the trouble of trying to cure. And then, there is the uncertainty.

IT MAY BE JAUNDICE.

Mrs. D. C. writes: What causes the whites of the eyes to look yellowish?

REPLY.

Jaundice is the most frequently encountered cause. In pernicious anemia, the eyes may have a faint, light yellow tinge. Certain people seem to have yellowish brown pigmentation of the sclerotics naturally. This is especially true among Negroes.

TUITION CONTRACT.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My brother signed for a written course in guitar lessons. After receiving the first lessons he was notified by his employer of a cut in working hours so that he is financially unable to continue with the lessons. He wrote to the school explaining the situation and returned their instrument, lessons, etc., forfeiting what he had already paid. They have notified him that he is liable for the balance due. Please advise.

A. P.

The mere fact that a pupil becomes dissatisfied or unable to take the course does not free him from liability on the tuition contract nor entitle him to recover payments that he has made. He must show some additional defense such as minority or breach of contract by the school. He cannot rely on oral representations and understandings not incorporated in the writing. The school is ordinarily entitled to recover the agreed tuition. While the pupil is theoretically entitled to credit for the saving that the school enjoys by having one pupil less to serve, it ordinarily cannot be proved that such saving is appreciable.

WILL IS CONTROLLING.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother died in 1929, naming me as the only heir to an estate consisting of a seven room cottage and a small bank account held in trust by a local bank for ten years. I am to get the income from the estate for ten years, after which it is to pass to me entirely. If I should die before the ten years are up the estate is to be divided among my aunts. Nothing is said about my wife or children. I do not like the way the will has been written and probated. Is there any way to break the will?

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 1, 1915.

CHICAGO—Jane Addams, head of Hull House, was snubbed in her own hall by agitators who packed a meeting of the ostensibly unemployed. The anarchists and agitators hooted her down when she sought to address them. At the street door another woman, Mrs. Lucy Parsons, shouted an invitation to those in the hall to leave and parade through the slush. Despite Miss Addams' plea, hundreds of them left.

LONDON—An official statement by the French ministry of marine announces that two British merchant ships have been sunk in the English channel off Havre by a German submarine. They were the steamers Tokomaru and Icaria. The Tokomaru was bound from New Zealand to England. Its crew was rescued by a trawler. The cargo included clothing and $7,500 New Zealand's gift to Belgian refugees.

LONDON—The Paris official statement says the British near La Bassee have recaptured all the trenches which they lost momentarily, and reports gains for the allies at several other points.

GALVESTON, Tex.—The steamship Dacia departed at noon from Galveston for Rotterdam, with 11,000 bales of cotton to be transshipped to Bremen. Seizure of the steamer by Great Britain as contraband of war is expected, and will result in prize court proceedings and diplomatic representations that may be of far reaching importance.

FEBRUARY 1, 1901.

LONDON.—The body of Queen Victoria will be taken from the Isle of Wight at 3 o'clock this afternoon to Portsmouth in the pomp of naval and military pageantry. It will remain on the yacht Alberta till 1 o'clock tomorrow, when it will be escorted to St. George's chapel, Windson, where the funeral services will be held.

NEW YORK.—An explosion in the Wicke cigar box factory was followed by a fire which burned over two blocks and furnished a brilliant spectacle. A newspaper could be read at the Fifth Avenue hotel, at least a mile away, by the light of the fire. The loss was $1,500,000. No one was in the building.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Steve Brodie died tonight. He jumped into public notice by his leap from the Brooklyn bridge in 1885. Later he opened a saloon on the Bowery and went into New York politics. In 1889 he attempted to deceive the public by declaring he had gone through Niagara rapids in a rubber suit, but was detected. He amassed a fortune in his various ventures.

CHICAGO.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt was the guest of the Twentieth Century club at a reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Jones, 1834 Prairie avenue. Mme. Bernhardt arrived with Mrs. Carter Harrison.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 1, 1881.

WASHINGTON—Senator Dawes addressed the senate on the killing of Big Snake, the Ponca chief, by soldiers from the offices of the agent of the Poncas in Indian territory. The methods of the Indian department were scathingly criticized as un-American and vindictive. Mr. Dawes concluded by presenting a protest from Standing Bear and thirty-five others against the sale of the old reservation.

PHILADELPHIA—The Beth Eden, the finest Baptist church in the city, and Horticultural hall, the largest public hall here, burned with a loss of more than a quarter of a million dollars. The American Academy of Music, adjoining the hall, was saved by a fortunate change in the wind.

LONDON—John Edward Redmond has been elected a member of parliament for New Ross in place of Foley [Nationalist and Home Ruler], resigned. Mr. Redmond describes himself as a member of the Land League and a determined enemy of British rule in Ireland.

LONDON — Thomas Carlyle is believed to be slowly sinking. He passed a quiet night but he is very weak. Mr. Carlyle was born in 1795 in Dumfriesshire, where his father was a farmer.

AMUSEMENT.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—The far famed investigating commission becomes an old gentleman hunting frantically for spectacles that are resting on his nose. An astute official of the treasury department would be likely to buy the Brooklyn bridge from the first passerby. C, Gilbert! O, Sullivan! STANTON METER.

PRO-MYRTLE.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—I feel rather sorry for Mrs. Blackidge, and I also feel she can clear herself to the satisfaction of every one concerned. I am surprised at Ed Litsinger howling so much about what should seem to him a small sum, considering the mutual friendship of the two for so many years.

Don't get downhearted, Mrs. Blackidge; everything will be all right, and don't forget you are never too old to learn. MRS. ISABEL ABRAHAM.

BUS COMPETITION.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—The editorial today on "Regulating Bus Competition" is certainly a masterpiece of muddled reasoning. You state that buses provide a more economical means of transportation. Supposing your competitors were doing business on property owned and maintained by the government and paying neither taxes nor rent! You also mention something about unemployment. What about the 500,000 or more railroad and traction workers who have been laid off in the last few years on account of unregulated bus and automobile competition? Are they not worthy of any consideration whatever? You say that regulating the buses will interfere with progress. Transportation by bus is the oldest form of transportation known to mankind. One hundred years ago it was practically the only means of transportation. There is nothing new or modern about the bus except the kind of motive power used. The bus is merely a horseless stage coach and travels just about as fast. CARL L. HALLBERG.

A NEW BUILDING CODE.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—I believe one of the quickest ways to revive general business in Chicago would be a resumption of building trade activities. There is, however, a halter around every one's neck, including my own, who desires at this time to build a new home in Chicago, due to the fact that for many months we have been promised by Mr. Paschen a new building code, which, according to information given to me today from his office, will reduce the cost of a home approximately 20 per cent. What changes will be made—seemingly nobody knows—that will reflect this tremendous saving to me and every one else interested in building at this time? It certainly would help our hundreds of thousands of tradesmen who are now idle if Mr. Paschen would tell. They now say this code will not be ready for 60 days. C. T. S.

TOO HARD.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—In offering your Sunday cross word puzzle why not consider the people who make it possible for your paper to have such a large circulation? Omit, leave out, delete all such stuff as who was the son of the second wife of Whoosit, born 1847 B. C. Who cares? Sunday should be considered the day to get some rest, not a headache when one runs into a lot of pre-antediluvian mush put together with the obvious reason of showing off.

J. B.

A GREAT LIGHT.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—After eighteen months of thorough investigation and hard study of prohibition and thousands of dollars wasted, the Wickersham commission lets the American people in on a little secret. They tell us that Canada is the source of our liquor. Another piece of Hoover uselessness.

THOROUGHLY DISGUSTED.

COMMISSION DIZZY.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—I heard years ago that a man would spend his money for beer and booze and let his family starve, but I did not think that this government would get commission dizzy enough to do the same thing and let the nation starve. E. H. FUNKE.

1932.

Des Plaines, Ill., Jan. 21.—Evidently Mr. Hoover is not seeking a second term as President, for not only has the unemployment situation hurt him but his stand on the prohibition question will cost him millions of votes in 1932.

G. O. HIXON.

A REED IN THE WIND.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—I am wondering if it is just coincidence that the patronymic of the chairman of the committee appointed to report on prohibition begins with the instability of a reed in the wind and ends in sham. R. P. D.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS.

Algona, Ia., Jan. 18.—I have just read your eloquent plea against government in business and for a continuation of the present and past leadership as vested in our chambers of commerce, stock exchanges and boards of trade. The net result of this leadership is fifty per cent of the wealth of the United States is in New York City, a very large block of it is in Chicago, the present poverty and bankruptcy of farmers and the idleness and suffering of the unemployed. Its latest major manifestation was the stock market debacle. People may be so dumb as to tolerate this system. It is entirely probable they have not sufficient wisdom to work out a remedy. But people of your wisdom or even of mine know that, granted proper leaders, it could be remedied, and that present conditions are intolerable.

E. L. GILBERT.

DISAGREEING WITH MR. MELLON.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—I read with interest Secretary Mellon's statement to the effect that the country's prosperity would be considerably hampered were the soldiers to receive their bonus. I am a veteran myself, perhaps a little more fortunate in that I don't need the bonus; nevertheless I sympathize with my former comrades who are in dire need. I regard Mellon's preposterous statement worse than the most insidious propaganda of the radicals, inasmuch as it tends to undermine and destroy confidence in true Americanism and ideals.

ARNOLD SAURIN.

CORN PONE.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Floyd Gibbons has said that the starving people of the near east would not eat corn meal. If you want to see gratitude try some hot corn pone on some poor unfortunate of Arkansas or Kentucky. Anyway, charity should begin at home.

LIQUOR QUESTION, REMAPPING ON STATE PROGRAM

Liberals Claim a Senate Majority.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Prohibition, the drive against gangland, and reapportionment are outstanding questions in the 1931 legislature. With the house demonstrating an overwhelming sentiment for the O'Grady bill to repeal the Illinois search and seizure act, the battle against Volsteadism is now concentrated upon the senate, which has been traditionally dry. Liberals declare 26 votes, a majority, are in sight for the repealer in the senate, with 2 others in prospect. They claim the following as lined up in support of expunging the state prohibition law from the books, in conformity with the 2 to 1 majority in the November referendum:

Cook county—Republicans—Huebsch, Leonard, Roberts, Serritella, Woods—5. Democrats: Broderick, Carroll, Courtney, Gillmeister, Graham, Huckin, Kielminski, Loughran, Maypole, McDermott, Mendel, O'Grady, Ward—13. Total, 26.

Some Wabbly Spots.

The Anti-Saloon league supporters claim one or two wabbly spots are on this list, and on them pressure is concentrated. The liberals are quoting utterances from the Republican slate, which presented the wet and dry referendum to the public for an expression, and are pointing out that of the fifty-one senatorial districts in Illinois only eleven voted against repeal.

In the vote on "Shall the Illinois prohibition act be repealed?" the nineteen Cook county districts voted "yes" by better than 2 to 1, giving a majority of 460,436. The nineteen districts all voted wet, and of the nineteen Cook county senators James J. Barbour of the Evanston district is the only one not lined up with the liberals.

Downstate twenty-one districts voted for repeal. Only eleven voted against. These eleven districts have a population of 1,014,793, which is less than 15 per cent of the population of Illinois.

The Vote on Repeal.

A tabulation of the voting on repeal of the state prohibition law in the downstate districts, as compiled by the Association Opposed to Prohibition, is as follows:

*Claimed by repeal forces.

The district vote, the liberals point out, raises a significant point of how far state senators regard a party platform as binding when translated by the voters themselves into a popular mandate. Senator Richard Barr of Joliet, for instance, is from a district that went nearly 16,000 for repeal, the second strongest district downstate. In the past he has voted dry.

First Remapping Bill.

Senator Barbour opened the battle over reapportionment by submitting the first remapping measure. His bill in the senate proposes a reapportionment of senatorial districts, from which state lawmakers are elected, giving Cook county 26, a majority, and downstate 25. Cook county has 52 per cent of the population, but has only 19 of the districts, while downstate has 32. It reopens the old battle between the countryside and the cities. A map of the downstate districts as proposed in the Barbour bill may be found elsewhere in this paper.

In making the tentative remap, the quotient followed was 149,000, or the 1930 population divided by 51. Districts are required to be bounded by county lines, and the minimum population prescribed by the constitution is four-fifths of the quotient, or about 120,000. None of the proposed districts is below the four-fifths. The Joliet district is left oversize, due to DuPage county, which cannot be absorbed into another district without making that also overstuffed.

Many Disparities.

Twenty-one of the present downstate districts, which were established in 1901, are below the constitutional four-fifths population requirement of 120,000. The disparities among the downstate districts themselves are almost as pronounced as in Cook county as may be seen from the following table of high districts and low:

District.
41—Joliet	202,730
50—Cairo	170,581
47—Alton	158,236
49—East St. Louis	157,775
8—Waukegan	154,544
45—Springfield	145,973
10—Rockford	145,491
24—Mattoon	73,101
32—Monmouth	75,494
16—Pontiac	76,142
46—Mount Vernon	77,026
12—Freeport	78,732
51—Metropolis	82,375
26—Bloomington	88,606

Ever since 1911, the legislature has failed to redistrict the state in conformity with the command of the state constitution, and the present districts are thirty years old, dating back to a time when the state population was only 4,821,550, as against 7,630,654 in 1930.

Do The Stars Say You'll Be Lucky ?

GN OF THE ZODIAC

Blake, The CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Personal Advice Editor,

t the STARS reveal about you • •

end the information blank below • IT'S FREE!

SINCETIME BEGAN man has consulted the stars for guidance. Ancient kings and rulers of vast domains sought the advice and predictions of astrologers. Cæsar was warned of the "Ides of March." Even the tides of the sea are influenced by the moon. Today the mystic powers of the stars are being interpreted by scientists with surprising accuracy . . . What, then, do the stars reveal about you? Were you born under a lucky star? What does the Sign of the Zodiac tell? Here's an amazing opportunity to have the significance of your stars' position read for you.

Not a Game or a Contest! Nothing to solve. No essays to write. No guessing! No subscriptions to solicit. Just fill in the information blank below and send it in. There is nothing else to do. Then watch the Tribune every Sunday for names and readings.

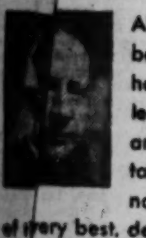
You may send in an information blank for yourself or any relative or friend. You may send one in every week if you wish—and as many as you like.

This offer is open to every man, woman, boy and girl except employes of the Tribune and their families. It costs nothing. It does not matter where you live.

In forming her conclusions Doris Blake will be governed by the position of the stars as they stood on the date of your birth and by your expressed ambition and the other information you submit. The Chicago Tribune will pay $25,000.00 in Cash Awards. $2,000.00 will be paid each Sunday to the persons whose birth dates and information, in the opinion of Miss Blake, lead to the most interesting readings.

Three grand prizes totaling $5,000.00 will be paid to the three persons whose birth dates and information, in Doris Blake's opinion, lead to the three readings that are the most interesting of all. The awards will be paid to the persons from whose names, birth dates and other information the readings are made . . . Fill in the information blank now and send it in. It costs nothing.

Here Are A Few Sample Readings of Famous Persons:



AL SMITH Dec. 30, 1873—You were born under the sign of Capricorn, which has bequeathed you an enviable gift for leadership. You are independent and ambitious and have genuine executive talent. You are extravagant but fortunate in financial affairs. Your health is of very best, despite the fact that you are careless a certain extent. You have a gift for happiness; the s have given you self-confidence and resources yourself that make moodiness or continued depression impossibility. You are fraternal in sentiment and strong family feeling. You should be wary of your venturesome spirit this year, particularly during the part of March, later part of June and the entire month ctober. December should be a good month for you.

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH, Jr., June 22, 1930. Baby Lindbergh was born under the sign of Cancer. The stars indicate that he is endowed with the good, old fashioned virtues of industry, economy and a strong sense of responsibility. He has will power and determination, he will not change his ideas easily, nor his likes and dislikes, but he will have excellent intuitive discernment about the real character of people. He will have a strong sense of friendship, but his intimates will be few. Physically, he will not be robust but he will be careful of his health. The stars indicate the most favorable financial conditions for him. Emotionally he will be well controlled and reserved and dignified under all circumstances. Compulsion will irritate him and he will refuse to be ruled by it, but he will respond to kindness.

ETHEL BARRYMORE, Aug. 15. Born under the powerful and beneficent sign of Leo, you are endowed with tremendous magnetism, courage amounting almost to recklessness and remarkable artistic sensitiveness. These attributes support you well in your calling, but your impulsiveness and power over people sometime tempt you to disregard the warnings of your best judgment. In temperament you are very emotional, something of an extremist and a bit too sensitive of your personal dignity. The stars have given you physical power and resistance but you are extravagant of both. In financial matters you are clever, but a bit too generous and optimistic. July of this year should be a good month for you.

is an opportunity for a remarkable experience. Doris Blake will endeavor to tell ther you are lucky by the Sign of the Zodiac. No entries will be returned. Due to enormous interest, the Tribune cannot engage in any correspondence on this ject. You do not have to buy the Tribune. It may be examined at Public Libraries of charge. Entries should be addressed to Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. Entries for each week's awards must reach the Tribune Office by noon Thursday following the Sunday of publication. All entries for each week's consideration, whether they receive awards or not will be eligible for the Grand Prizes of $5,000.00. Send in the information blank today. Nothing else is required.

AUTO DEATHS SET JANUARY RECORD; BLAME WEATHER

Coroner Issues Plea for Safer Driving.

Automobile accidents in Cook county caused the deaths of 109 persons during January, a record for the first month of the year, according to statistics made public yesterday by Coroner Bundesen. The toll of 109 is nearly double the total of 55 deaths during January of 1930.

Coroner Bundesen attributed the high toll to the unusually balmy weather during the last month. He pointed out that icy and snow covered pavements tend to make motorists more careful, whereas driving conditions during the last few weeks have been similar to conditions in midsummer.

The record breaking pace for 1931 began on Jan. 1, when nine deaths caused when a train struck an automobile in Harvey, and eight other deaths resulting from automobile accidents made a total of 17 for the day. The 109 deaths during January exceeds the average of three deaths a day established during 1930, when there was a total of 1,136, a new high record.

Urges Safety Measures.

The coroner warned that unless motorists are more careful and more safety measures are provided the 1931 toll will exceed the record figure for 1930. As a platform for motor safety he suggested wider roads, more grade separations, better paving, additional policemen on traffic duty, and more signal lights.

The coroner also asks for educational campaigns for motorists and pedestrians and stricter enforcement of motor vehicle laws.

The seven deaths yesterday, which raised the motor toll for the year to 109, were:

D. Wonnack, 39 years old, 260 North Campbell avenue. Crushed to death beneath a truck while working on the excavation for a new building on the grounds of Rosary college in River Forest. While backing his truck, he noticed that the edge of the excavation was caving in beneath the rear wheels. He leaped from his seat and fell beneath a front wheel.

Rudolph Hrivar, 6 years old, 1933 West 21st place, died at St. Anthony's hospital a few hours after being struck by an automobile while playing in the street near his home. The driver of the car was Edward Eagleshan of Riverside.

J. J. Saracino, 63 years old, who lived at Hillside avenue and St. Charles road, Berkeley. Fatally injured when struck by an auto in front of his home. The driver, Harry J. Hansen, 43 years old, 116 South Kenmore avenue, Elmhurst, was held.

Unidentified woman, about 43 years old. Killed by the automobile of a hit and run driver at 51st street and Albany avenue. Her body was found by Policeman Patrick Blackwell.

Jacob Harris, 61 years old, 3817 West 14th street. Died at the Mount Sinai hospital of injuries received on Friday when he was struck by the automobile of Byron Cheney, 517 Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, while crossing 13th street at Independence boulevard. Cheney was held.

John J. McMahon, 68 years old, 9208 Ellis avenue, a motorman for the surface lines. Died at the South Chicago hospital of injuries incurred on last Tuesday, when his street car was struck by a truck at 87th street and South Chicago avenue.

Mrs. Rachel Sour, 74 years old, 201 South Maple avenue, Oak Park. Died at the Oak Park hospital of injuries received on Jan. 2, when she was struck by an automobile in front of 208 South Marion street, Oak Park. The driver was John M. Schmidt, 6208 North Hermitage avenue.

Held on Manslaughter Charge.

Otto Rueter, a real estate operator living in Flossmoor, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Theodore Kicmal, 11 years old, 14430 Palmer avenue, Posen. The boy was killed Friday night when struck by Rueter's car at 141st street and Western avenue.

Rueter tried to escape following the accident, police said, but was captured after a chase of nine blocks. A physician's certificate stating that Rueter was intoxicated when examined at the police station was introduced by Deputy Coroner Lafan. Rueter testified that he had taken a few drinks before leaving his office at 103d street and Western avenue. He was taken into custody by Assistant State's Attorney Leonard Stieger to arrange bail.

Graham Gets Venue Change.

J. W. Graham, 30 years old, president of an oil company at 228 South La Salle street, living in Glencoe, arrested last Wednesday after his car collided with three automobiles and ran into a fence near Calvary cemetery, was granted a change of venue yesterday when he appeared before Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter in Evanston charged with driving a car while intoxicated. A pint of gin was found in Graham's car, the police reported. Police Magistrate Corcoran will hear the case next week.

Cottie Rinchiuso, 7 years old, 813 Sholto street, was critically injured when struck by a stolen auto while crossing Sholto street near Vedder street. Two men in the auto abandoned it a short distance from the scene. The car was stolen on Friday from James A. Beggs Jr., 7414 Merrill avenue.

MRS. CHARLES P. TAFT, FORMER PRESIDENT'S KIN, DIES SUDDENLY

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Mrs. Annie Sinton Taft, whose philonthropies ran into millions of dollars, died unexpectedly today. She was a sister-in-law of former President William Howard Taft and widow of Charles P. Taft, publisher of The Times-Star.

Mrs. Taft apparently was in good health until a half hour before she died. After luncheon she suffered a fainting spell, collapsed and died of a heart attack before a physician could aid her.

The wealth of Mrs. Taft estimated on the basis of real estate holdings, was believed to be from $50,000,000 to $80,000,000.

One of her latest gifts was $2,000,000 to the University of Cincinnati.

About two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Taft deed their residence here and their art collection valued at from $14,000,000 to $20,000,000 to the Cincinnati Institute of Fine Arts.

For years Mrs. Taft devoted the largest part of her energies to the forward movement of music and fine arts.

A member of the Episcopal church, Mrs. Taft will be buried here in the family lot at Spring Grove cemetery. Funeral plans have not been completed.

BANK FAILURES, EMBEZZLEMENTS STRIKE FRANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 31.—A wave of bank failures and embezzlements suddenly struck France today.

The Comptoir National d'Escompte at Nantes, after enjoying the confidence of the community for 57 years, was closed. The D'Alle Pezzi, a bank in Paris, suspended payments. This provoked a violent demonstration before the bank's doors. The police were compelled to intervene. The bank in Nimes reported a deficit of $1,000,000. The bank at Vonnas in the department of Aisne reported a $200,000 deficit and the crash imperils the savings of numerous farmers and small merchants.

Two Paris bankers, one of whom was Alvarez de Toledo, son of a Spanish grandee, were sentenced to two years imprisonment for embezzling $20,000. The president of the bank at Aix En Provence was arrested today and charged with defalcation. A dozen other lesser arrests of bank employés for embezzlement were reported.

Wife of Chester S. Lord, Noted Editor, Dies in East

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Mrs. Elizabeth S. Lord, the wife of Chester S. Lord, died today at her home in Brooklyn. She had been ill of pneumonia for seven weeks. Mr. Lord is chancellor of the university of the state of New York and was for years managing editor of the Sun. Mrs. Lord was active in charitable and social service work of many kinds.

City of Buenos Aires Sells Potatoes to Cut H. C. of L.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The city of Buenos Aires went into the potato business today in an effort to reduce the cost of living. Potatoes were placed on stalls in the public market for less than 1 cent a pound. Flour and soap were later added to the list of articles sold by the municipality.

Mrs. Myrta Ray Walker Dead at Hartford, Mich.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The sudden death of Mrs. Myrta Ray Walker, 59, today, attributed to a heart attack, took one of southwestern Michigan's best known club and church leaders of Hartford, where she had lived thirty years.

FRIENDS OF DOG DIFFER ON HIS CHANCES TODAY

Anti-Cruelty Body Reports on 15,709 of Them.

Small animals cared for by the Anti-Cruelty society during 1930 numbered 27,838, as compared to 1,760 in 1920. Of the 27,838, there were 15,709 dogs, 12,059 cats and one opossum, one coyote, 19 rats and mice, a few guinea pigs and parrots, and one turtle. Those figures were included in the annual report of the society read at the annual meeting yesterday in the Stevens hotel.

Among the cases listed by H. J. Streibert, superintendent of the society, whose shelter is at 155 West Grand avenue, were the following: a dog with a broken leg, left by owners when they moved; a paralyzed dog on a prairie at Narragansett and Sunnyside avenues; seven newborn puppies found in an alley; a blind and sick puppy left on a doorstep; three puppies thrown from an automobile and a six weeks-old puppy found in an ash can. Fourteen horses were treated at the society's clinic which cared for 3,744 cases.

Of the 15,709 dogs cared for by the society, 14,327 were destroyed; 942 were placed in homes, 262 sent to Orphans of the Storm, Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin's dog refuge, and 105 were restored to their owners.

Explains Attitude on Dogs.

"It seems that that is a small number of dogs to place in homes compared to the large number destroyed," said Superintendent Striebert, "but many of the dogs were unfit to place—were mangy, had distemper, were too old, or injured, and many were the kind of dog that no matter how long we kept it, no one would give it a good home."

Mr. Streibert then quoted a passage which stated that a prolonged life in the majority of cases was not the greatest boon to a dog, and that many times destruction was a merciful release from a world in which they could not find happiness. Mr. Streibert sat down amidst hearty applause.

Mrs. Charlotte Hunt offered a resolution leaving the disposal of dogs entirely to Superintendent Streibert and condemning the practice of allowing "reckless breeding of the poor little animals" in an unfriendly world. Charles S. Peterson, president, asked that the resolution be amended and put in the form of a recommendation to the board of directors with the stipulation that the officers of the society control the policy of the disposal of dogs.

Society Divided on Issue.

Mr. Peterson explained following the meeting that the society was divided. One faction believes in placing as many dogs in homes as possible, and of this faction Mrs. McLaughlin is a leader. The other believes that there is no hope for dogs and that the only kind thing to do is to kill them speedily. Popular opinion supports the former, he said.

An echo of the last annual meeting, which almost broke up when members of the two factions spoke their minds, and which ended in Mrs. McLaughlin's resigning, was heard in the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. Duane T. McNabb. She explained that she had not written the minutes, that she didn't know who had, that they had been sent to her unsigned. When she concluded, Mrs. Hunt arose to ask that a correction be made. Mrs. McLaughlin had reconsidered and remained a member, she said.

Officers were reëlected, with the exception that B. Bottsford Young will succeed J. J. Abbott, who resigned as treasurer. They are: Mr. Peterson, president; Lewis E. Myers, vice president; John T. McCutcheon, second vice president; Mrs. George M. Wisner, third vice president, and Mrs. McNabb, secretary.

For over half a century this firm has rendered a high type of service at an extremely moderate price.

BULGAR TOWN PAINTS HOUSES RED; CHEERS LENIN; COPS STOP IT

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 31.—(AP)—In the village of Troros in the district of Loukovite in northwestern Bulgaria, the entire population went suddenly bolshevik, reports received here today said.

They daubed their houses with red paint, hoisted a red flag on a church steeple and posted a sign on the church which read, "Lenin's club."

Before the police got things under control the people had renamed most of the streets in honor of Lenin and other soviet leaders. The gendarmes subdued the brief rebellion quickly after they reached the village, and arrested a number of the ringleaders.

VICTIM OF FIUME RAID BURIED ON ESTATE OF POET

GARDONE, Italy, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Gabriele D'Annunzio, the noted Italian poet who startled the world in 1919 by capturing the city of Fiume and defying the world fifteen months, today saluted the coffin of the first victim of that famous raid.

Standing on the flag-draped bow of the reconstructed cruiser Puglia in the grounds of his home, Villa Vittoriale, D'Annunzio watched with emotion the interment of the casket in a monumental mausoleum he has constructed on the estate.

D'Annunzio's capture of Fiume was caused by his anger at the world war peace treaties, which refused to give Italy control of the former Austrian city. For fifteen months the poet defied not only his own government but the world, although he eventually was forced to submit after conclusion of the Rapallo treaty and went to live in Gardone. In 1924 the city he had fought for became Italian territory by agreement with Jugo-Slavia.

CONGRESSMAN CHIPERFIELD'S DAUGHTER DIES

Canton, Ill., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Miss Margaret Chiperfield, 31, daughter of Congressman B. M. Chiperfield, died suddenly at the family residence this afternoon. She had been an invalid for many years, but had not been considered in a serious condition and her death came as a distinct shock to family and friends. Chiperfield left Wednesday for Washington.

Charles Bruning of Paper Company Dies at Phoenix

Charles Bruning, president of the blue print paper company of that name, died last Friday, it was learned yesterday, of a heart attack at Phoenix, Ariz. He had been in business here for more than 35 years. He is survived by his widow and three sons, Paul T. and Walter of New York, and Herbert F. of Chicago. Funeral services were held at Phoenix yesterday.

The Rt. Rev. E. Rondthaler, 88; Dies of Pneumonia

Winston Salem, N. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. Edward Rondthaler, 88, bishop of the southern province of the Moravian church, died of bronchial pneumonia at his home here this afternoon.

Hursen Funerals in Every Neighborhood

HURSEN Funerals are being conducted constantly in every nook and corner of Chicago. They are seen constantly, also, in all the suburbs—north, south and west. This has been so for a quarter of a century. The demand is constantly increasing.

A situation such as this is unusual in this country. Hursen's has always been unusual. Years ago Hursen revolutionized the methods of funeral technique. Service, environment, manner, personnel, automobile equipment, and above all, price, were all revolutionized.

Hursen Chapels are today recognized as the finest institutions of the kind in this country. The North Side Chapel particularly is a masterpiece of beauty, massiveness, facilities and arrangement. It has recently been remodeled. The South Side and West Side Chapels are palaces, convenient for the smallest or the largest funerals.

All Hursen automobile equipment, the finest things on wheels, was built for Hursen along Hursen special designs. Yet, the charge is no greater than for equipment far less desirable.

There is no charge for the use of any of the three Hursen Chapels, each equipped with organs of unmatchable tone and size. The charges for Hursen funerals are less than the charges usually made elsewhere. So, call Hursen, of course!

TUNE UP DO-X FOR NEXT HOP OVER SEA TODAY

had to wait still another. But eventually they reached Brazil and received the welcome of conquerors.

The admiral said the roar of the twelve motors bothered his ears but he enjoyed the trip nevertheless.

U. S. Pilot Describes Flight.

New York, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—The flight of the DO-X through fog from Lisbon to Las Palmas was described tonight in a cable from the American co-pilot, Clarence H. Schildhauer, who alternated each hour at the controls with the German pilot. Schildhauer's running story of the flight follows:

"The DO-X took off with the rising sun. The crew boarded in darkness Motors are warmed. Many boats out. One circle around the harbor and we are off. Good weather reports from Hamburg. An excellent radio. Tail winds moderate. Sea bumpy, air easy to fly.

"Cape Vincent at 9:50 a. m. Good speed. Sky overcast. No sun sights. Radio compass on board excellent. Without compass sea flights should not be made. Motors humming nicely.

"The captain smiles as he sights five ships. Says we could walk across with them. Coutinho taking many notes in navigator's cabin.

Passengers Drink at Bar.

"Passengers are lounging in cabin, eating and drinking at bar.

"Noon at halfway position. Cruising speed 102 miles an hour. Still have a tail wind. Getting warmer. Mechanics' lunch is eggs, sandwiches, fruit, coffee, and tea.

"Captain receiving congratulatory messages. Merz and Schildhauer change control hourly. Steamers whistle salute. Mechanics smiling confidently. Tune of motors hazy. Nearing islands, we rely on radio compass. Merz sights land on port side."

Germany Celebrates.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—Germany is celebrating tonight because Elli Beiborn, young aviatrix, succeeded in her solo flight to Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, in a 40 horsepower Klemm-Daimler plane, and because Germany's pride, the DO-X, made a record flight to the Canary islands from Portugal.

Elli made her flight in easy stages, flying a total distance of 4,375 miles in 70 hours flying time. Over the last stretch, which was dangerous, Elli was prohibited from flying by the Spaniards, but she took off secretly. Her plane is now being transformed into a seaplane to enable her to carry scientists to the Brissagos islands.

GANG LEADER ADMITS BOMBING AMERICAN BANKS

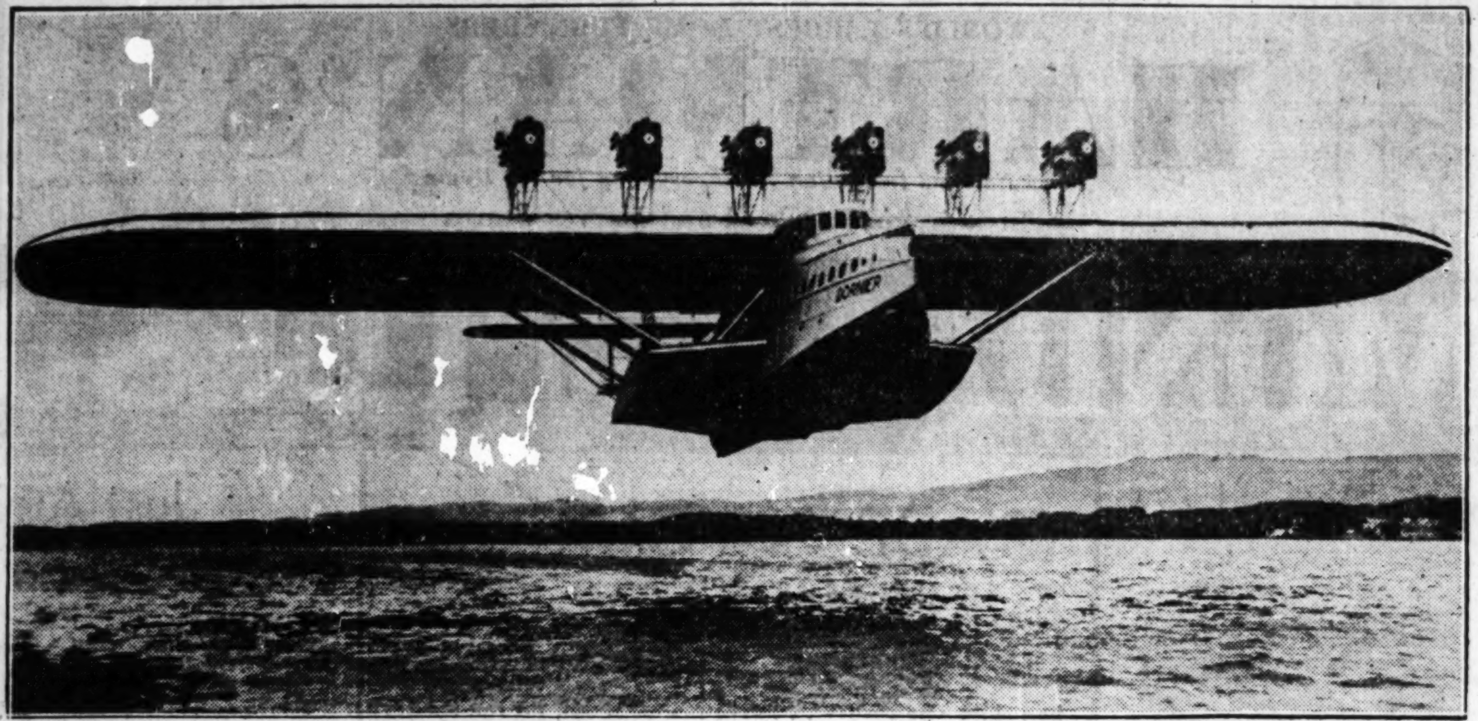
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 31.—Severino de Giovanni, gangster, who was condemned to be shot at sunrise tomorrow, confessed today that he placed the bombs which wrecked local branches of the National City Bank of New York and the First National Bank of Boston in 1928.

A court martial this morning sentenced to death Paulino Scarfo, who was De Giovanni's chief lieutenant, and who was captured in yesterday's round up in the suburb of Burzaco. He will probably be executed Monday.

Scarfo confessed that it was his gang that placed bombs with recently exploded in three Buenos Aires railroad stations.

DO-X Lands at Canary Islands on First Leg of South Atlantic Flight



The DO-X, giant German flying boat, which landed yesterday at Las Palmas, Canary islands, after flight from Lisbon, Portugal, en route to South America. The ship carried nineteen persons, including a crew of thirteen. An American, Clarence Schildhauer, is second pilot.

AIMEE SAILS FOR INDIA WITH NEW HULA-HULA SKIRT

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—Wrathful over the discovery of her "incognito," but with her pique somewhat mollified by the purchase of a bright, new hula-hula skirt, Aimee Semple McPherson, preacher of the "four-square gospel," sped toward India today aboard the liner President Wilson. Followers of Mahatma Gandhi will be the next to listen to the persuasive tongue of the Los Angeles evangelist.

Traveling under the name of "Mrs. Grant," the evangelist was discovered yesterday after the President Wilson docked. Her daughter, Roberta, was with her. While in Honolulu the evangelist and her daughter went for a short shopping tour. Among their purchases were the hula skirt and a book of instructions on Hawaii's colorful dance. The President Wilson's next stop will be at Hongkong.

CHINA DECREES DEATH FOR REDS WHO STIR REVOLT

Drastic Law Aimed to Curb Foes of Government.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31.—The Nationalist government council today promulgated an emergency law covering crimes against the state, which, if strictly enforced, is likely to create a situation resembling Fascist rule. This law takes precedence over the ordinary criminal law and provides heavy penalties for persons guilty of rebellion, treason and other crimes intended to subvert the republic.

The law provides death sentences for those who disturb the peace with a view to subverting the republic; for conspiring with foreign countries; for conspiring with or allying with rebels for the purpose of disturbing the peace and for inciting troops to violate military discipline.

Other Penalties Provided.

Persons found guilty of inciting actions other than the foregoing will also be liable to sentences of death or life imprisonment. Further penalties, ranging from ten years to life imprisonment, are provided for those involved in subversive propaganda, disclosing political secrets and interfering with communications.

Those joining organizations with the intention of subverting the republic or propagating doctrines conflicting with the present form of government are liable to varying forms of punishment.

Although the new law is not accompanied with an explanation of its purpose, it is believed that its chief motive is to assist the government in coping with the communist situation in the interior provinces, the growing seriousness of which is indicated by Gen. Chiang Kai-sek's recent decision to send 100,00 additional troops into the red area of the Kiangsi and Hunan provinces.

The government today also promulgated a set of regulations controlling the exchange and speculation in silver and gold, placing severe penalties on those guilty of speculation, unless directly concerned with bona fide trading in connection with the import or export business.

COLOMBIA VOTES FOR NEW CONGRESS TODAY; DISORDERS FEARED

BOGOTA, Colombia, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Colombian authorities are looking for some trouble in the congressional elections tomorrow but consider that it will be more in the nature of sporadic brawls than a united movement.

"There probably will be disturbances in scattered and outlying regions," said President Enrique Olaya Herrera tonight, "but troubles of a national nature are impossible. The election will be bitter but peaceful."

Authorities have banned the sale of alcoholic beverages and also forbidden the movement of train and highway traffic to prevent enthusiastic electors from traveling and voting wherever they stop. Troop trains will be held in readiness all day to rush to scenes of disturbances.

Both a senate and a lower house will be elected.

MOVE TO UNIFY MENTAL CLINICS AS CRIME CURB

More Funds Sought for Study of Offenders.

Believing that a large percentage of crime had its source in mental delinquency, social service leaders, psychiatrists, judges, university professors and others gathered yesterday in the chambers of Chief Justime John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court to plan the unification of all agencies dealing with the subject of mental hygiene in Chicago.

The experts discussed the prevalence of crime in the city, the work of detecting and caring for the criminals who are mentally subnormal and finally gave their attention to the problem of preventive work among juveniles, which they said offers the greatest opportunity for solution of their problem.

Traces Schoolboys' Careers.

Dr. D. P. McMillan, director of child study for the board of education, who has been tracing the careers of school boys in his charge for 32 years, declared that his bureau has a record of every school boy who later became a criminal. He urged the necessity for correlating the work of the various agencies supervising school mental cases as a means of curbing crime.

"The trouble with our criminals is not that they are subnormal mentally, but that they are anti-social," said Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, psychiatrist at the Bridewell. "The average criminal—the one who has been caught and incarcerated—is just as sane as the average man on the streets. There is, at present, one psychiatrist for the 18,000 inmates of the Bridewell. All this work should be unified. As it stands, the department of education does a little, the social service workers do a little and there are too many bosses for real efficiency."

Urges Adequate Equipment.

Dr. Sydney Kuh, chief of the psychiatric division of the county hospital, declared that treatment for psychiatric cases practically does not exist in Chicago.

"The present inadequate building is nothing more than a detention home," he said. "We could handle a large percentage of our 5,000 cases in the hospital if it were adequate and we would be able to send a good many of them home cured without the stigma of commitment. The trouble is the lack of funds."

The same plea for funds was advanced by Miss Edith Abbott, dean of the school of social service administration at the University of Chicago, who said that while her personnel is capable it is insufficient to handle the large number of cases demanding attention.

Judge Sonsteby was authorized to name a committee to formulate plans to unify the school, social welfare, and psychiatric agencies, and decide how to bring their work closer to the courts and the police.

SHEIK, 96, DIES WHEN TOLD HE IS TO BE HANGED

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Sheik Essad, 96 year old leader of a holy war which flamed and died in a day last December, dropped dead in his cell today when told he was to be hanged for treason. He would not have gone to the gallows, for the parliament was ready to commute the sentence to a long prison term.

The military court which recently condemned several other leaders in the movement today passed sentence of execution on thirty-seven more of the accused, including the old sheik's son, Ali, himself 63 years old. Five of the condemned, all of them over 65, were reprieved. Their sentences were commuted to twenty-four years at hard labor. The other thirty-two will be hanged tomorrow in the public square at Menemen.

The revolt, which had for its objective restoration of the caliphate in Turkey, began as a protest against the introduction of occidental customs and the disbarment of the traditional fez.

REPORT ADVANCE ON PLAN TO CUT BRITISH WAGES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Negotiations are reported to be proceeding favorably between members of the Federation of British Industries and the trade union congress on the proposal to reduce the cost of all manufactures ten per cent. The scheme involves similar reductions in wages. The plan appears to have the approval of the chancellor of the exchequer, Philip Snowden.

It is understood that figures compiled with the assistance of government departments indicate a weekly saving in wages amounting to $30,000,000 throughout the country. The scheme affects approximately half of Great Britain's 16,000,000 workers who are at present drawing a payroll of $300,000,000 weekly.

It is estimated that the saving in wage cuts will release capital of approximately $1,060,000,000 annually. Taking into account all factors, it is estimated that at least $1,250,000,000 would be released for fresh enterprises which, it is asserted, would bring an expansion in employment foreseen through the more advantageous position in the world's market.

Radio Operator Who Saved Many as Ship Sank Killed

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Clifford T. Paulson, 24, radio operator credited with saving many lives when the steamer San Juan sank in a collision off the Pacific coast Aug. 31, 1929, was electrocuted while working at the radio transmitting set of the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., here during the night.

JOHN H. STUBE IS HONORED; RETIRES AS SCHOOL OFFICIAL

JOHN H. STUBE.

John H. Stube, 70 years old, was honored last night by a banquet at the Midland club on the occasion of his retirement after 35 years as a teacher, principal and district superintendent in the Chicago public school system. Five hundred and seventy-five teachers and principals, who worked under Mr. Stube in district 7 were present.

Herbert C. Hansen, principal of the Talcott school, acted as toastmaster and spoke on friendship as exemplified in the career of Mr. Stube. "The chief thing we will remember when we think of Mr. Stube," he said, "is his capacity for friendship and the friendly service he has given to those working under him, to his pupils, and to the people of Chicago." Other speakers on the program, all of whom congratulated Mr. Stube on his record as a leader, were: William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools; Dr. Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent, William Hedges, district superintendent, and Miss Ida Mighell, principal of Hay school.

SALLY SENDS OUT APPEAL FOR HELP AS JOBS DWINDLE

Work, Not Charity, Is Plea of Unemployed Men.

Along about this time of year there usually bobs up a number of jobs about every house and lot that would give employment to the hordes of unemployed men who wait daily for Sally Joy Brown to provide them with a job through the Illinois Free Employment service, at 166 North Dearborn street. Jobs for men have grown more and more scarce the last few weeks, Sally reported yesterday in issuing a special plea for help for these unemployed workers, hundreds of whom are the heads of families and have been out of work for many months.

Workmen Wait for Jobs.

Whatever you may suggest around your own or your neighbor's home, there is a skilled workman awaiting the call. Whether the furnace needs discipline, or the ashes need to be removed, whether the lock on the garage has been broken, or the back yard needs raking, whether the back porch and steps would be the better for a few coats of paint, or the broken window sash yawns for repairs, there's a man equipped to handle it and scores of youngsters who could be fed if each householder heeded the things that require doing.

They Don't Want Charity.

It isn't charity these jobless men want—it's work. Over and over they make that appeal to Sally Joy Brown. Most of them are healthy, willing men thrown out of work through no fault of their own. Some are chauffeurs, some clerks, some plumbers. There are among them all types of skilled laborers as well as the unskilled. Either temporary or permanent work will be received gratefully by them.

You can reach Sally Joy Brown at Superior 0100. She will be glad to report any work you have to suggest.

Investigate Incendiary Fire in Posen Roadhouse

County highway police last night were investigating an incendiary fire which caused $800 damage to the Sparrow inn, a roadhouse at 139th street and Western avenue, Posen, yesterday morning. Gasoline had been poured over part of the roof, and saturated rags had been stuffed into several doors and ignited. The inn was leased only a week ago by Andy Charello from John Sparrow, the owner, and was to be opened Feb. 14.

House Hears Philippine Envoy's Freedom Appeal

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—An appeal for independence of the Philippine islands was made in the house today by Camilo Osias, Philippine resident commissioner. He said the islands would gladly be relieved of the free tariff privileges to obtain independence. Osias said his country was being discriminated against by the United States and that now a move was on foot to further limit Filipino immigration.

Children Meet Their Benefactor

Beniamino Gigli, tenor of the Metropolitan opera, being greeted yesterday upon his arrival over the Michigan Central by two children from the Olivet institute nursery. Gigli will give a concert at the Civic Opera house this afternoon for the benefit of the institute.

AUTO RIDING KING FIRES CAMEL MEN ON MECCA MARCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAGDAD, Jan. 31. — Commercial greed with scant regard for religious devotion on which it preys brought a "war" between pilgrim agents and King Ibn Saud of Hedjaz at the outset of the annual march of the faithful to Mecca. The king won.

Last year Ibn Saud distributed the pilgrim transport trade between 25 companies, thus robbing the agents of fat profits, which they garner each year by taking the pilgrims in tow and forcing rival companies to bid against each other for their fare. Beaten by this regal decision, the pilgrim agents decided to boycott the motor transport across the desert.

They told pilgrims that travel by automobile would be displeasing to the prophet, and that the journey should be made in the most uncomfortable manner possible. The result was that the first batch of pilgrims arriving at Mecca, most of them fanatically religious, came on backs of camels. But the king, highly interested in the development of motor transportation, fired every pilgrim agent in the Hedjaz.

Building Permits Up 20% in Philadelphia in Month

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 31.—(AP)—An increase of approximately 20 per cent in building permits in January over December was reported today by the bureau of building inspection. During January 280 permits for 360 operations valued at $1,008,275 were issued.

Barthelmess Recovers $12,363 from Secretary

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Richard Barthelmess, movie star, today was granted judgment of $12,363 against his ex-secretary, Dallas S. Squires. In December, Barthelmess visited the district attorney's office and unsuccessfully sought a complaint against Squires, whom he accused of taking some of the actor's securities and pledging them to guarantee a stock brokerage transaction.

THIS TELLS WHY GOOD FELLOWS' AID IS NEEDED

Typical Cases of Needy Families Shown.

The purpose of this is to describe the cases of some of the 27 families adopted within the last 10 days by THE TRIBUNE Good Fellows. They are among the 304 families who have come under the care of the Good Fellows since October.

The Good Fellows have contributed a total of $85,615.77 since the fund was started. This money, every penny of it, is being used to give these families a lift over the employment slump—to provide food, shelter, and warmth, and some of the other necessities of life during the winter.

These cases described were recommended to Good Fellows by the Central Charity bureau [Catholic]. Others of the 304 Good Fellow families were nominated by the United Charities, the Salvation Army, and the Jewish Social Service bureau.

Widow and Family Aided.

Case No. 73—Mrs. D. is a widow with three children, 5, 7 and 12 years old. She has been out of work since last November. When the family applied they had been served with an eviction notice. The Central Charity bureau moved them to another flat where living conditions were much better. Mrs. D. has made application for her second citizenship papers and when she obtains them will be eligible for a mother's pension. The budget for this family is $83.88 a month.

Case No. 72—Mr. W. died a year ago, leaving eight children ranging from 4 months to 15 years. The family was buying property, but inability to keep up the payments caused the building and loan association to foreclose and they lost it. This family has been receiving $3 worth of groceries a week and milk from a neighborhood club. Mrs. W. is a good mother and gives the children the best of care.

Case No. 76—Mr. D. has been out of work for the last six months. The family applied for assistance after credit at the grocery was discontinued. They also owe several months' rent. Mr. D. has been sick, but is able to work now. While the building in which they live is old and dilapidated, the home and children are immaculately clean.

Case No. 81—This family of five members was called to the Good Fellows' attention when Mr. F. was ill with pneumonia. He has been unable to do anything but light work since the illness as he was left with a heart affliction. Mrs. F. has worked whenever possible. The children have been ill recently and Mr. F. is still taking treatment at a dispensary.

Case No. 77—Mr. C. has been out of work since last August. There are three children under 11 years old. Mrs. C. is tubercular and is living with her brother in the east. Mr. C.'s mother is keeping house for the children, who are under the care of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium.

Church Group Finds Jobs for 744 Women and Girls

Mrs. Minnie M. Chapman, superintendent of the Woman's Church federation protectorate, said in her annual report yesterday that the protectorate had obtained employment for 744 women and girls in the last year. The report was read at the annual meeting at the Morrison hotel. Mrs. Chapman said 3,068 persons had applied to the protectorate for work. The protectorate gave financial aid to 422 persons, while 317 were given shelter. People from 49 religious denominations and 42 nationalities asked help. The Rev. CHICAGO RED CROSS HAS $327,960 OF ITS DROUGHT FUND QUOTA

At the end yesterday of the first week of its campaign for $940,000 for drought relief the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross announced that $327,960 had been received or pledged. The Chicago quota is a part of the $10,000,000 fund being raised nationally.

No intensive solicitation has been made yet, the Chicago chapter explained, but it is expected that this week important business organizations and citizens of means will be visited. No effort to solicit among employés will be made. The Red Cross believes, officials said, that these people have already given much on other demands this winter. Unless employés care to do so without solicitation, the Chicago chapter said, they will not be asked to take part in the drought campaign.

150,000 TO GET JOBS ON ROADS IN MIDDLE WEST

Funds Ready for Work in Sixteen States.

BY HAL FOUST.

In the ensuing spring and summer 150,000 men will be employed in highway construction and maintenance in sixteen states of the Mississippi valley. This winter 75,000 men have been engaged in this work as the states pressed their road programs as an unemployment relief measure.

These figures were made public yesterday at the close of a three day conference of the Missisipi Valley association of State Highway officials, meeting in the Stevens hotel. It was the twenty-third annual session of the group and was devoted principally to a discussion of means to increase 1931 road work to furnish employment.

Mild Weather Helps.

"The mild weather," said T. H. Cutler of the Missouri highway department, who was elected president of the association yesterday, "has permitted road work to continue through the winter, giving much employment relief. Even in the northern states it has been possible to continue grading and bridge work.

"When spring makes it possible to lay pavements without danger of frost damage, the Mississippi valley will begin a record year in highway construction. There is money available for this program. More gasoline taxes were collected in the last year than ever before, and congress has aided by increasing federal aid."

The association passed a resolution directed to congress, asking for a modification of the federal aid regulations in order to stimulate road building in metropolitan areas.

Seek Change in Law.

"The present law," said Mr. Cutler, "does not permit the government to pay more than $15,000 a mile in sharing in the cost of constructing a federal highway. The association would modify this regulation so that the government can pay half the cost of building a federal road regardless of the total cost.

"The present federal rules are satisfactory for building country roads. But one of the biggest needs of traffic today is improved facilities in metropolitan districts. Broad pavements and grade separations in and near cities cost several times $15,000 a mile."

Wife Confident Husband Is Alive

Norval C. Wolcott, Evanston husband, missing since July.

Mrs. Gloria Wolcott with two months' old baby, Nancy Lee.

Search Continued

Search has been renewed, it was learned yesterday, for Norval C. Wolcott, 21 years old, 1129 Grant street, Evanston, missing since last July. The action was taken by the missing persons bureau of the police department at the request of his wife, Mrs. Gloria Wolcott, who lives with her mother, Mrs. Olivia Kirkpatrick, 1917 Estes avenue. Mrs. Wolcott is the mother of a two months old girl.

Despite the fact that a body picked up off the southern California coast by a passing steamer was identified last November as that of young Wolcott, his wife expresses the opinion he is still alive. She says his relatives opposed the marriage, and that they eloped in January of 1930. She also says he was heir to a large estate. She received letters from him right up to the time he was reported drowned, she said.

Young Wolcott was the son of Carl F. Wolcott, Chicago representative of the Philadelphia Quartz company, 205 Wacker drive.

MICHIGAN SHOWS GRADUAL UPWARD BUSINESS TREND

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—A pronounced upward trend—gradual but none the less positive—in the unemployment and industrial situation throughout Michigan since the beginning of the new year, has been made apparent by a recent survey of the leading cities in all parts of the state by the Detroit Free Press.

Jan. 1, 1931, according to available figures, seems to have been a decided turning point from the industrial depression which for the last year has swept over the country, and, although this survey has been confined to Michigan cities only it is fair to assume that it will serve as a barometer for conditions over the country at large.

From 18 of the leading Michigan cities came these optimistic reports based on actual production and employment figures. A shrinkage of the registration of unemployed was almost universal.

WOES OF SOUTH STIR UP REFORM OF GOVERNMENT

State Systems Found to Be Antiquated.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—State governmental reorganization, a scrapping of outgrown, disorganized systems which have broken under the present strain, a centering of responsibility, and a stricter watch on finances is coming in the south as a result of this year of business depression, drought, and bank failures.

Passed out of the golden age of agrarianism, with its easy, spacious life, and in process of adjustment to the swiftly moving demands of the industrial revolution, several of the southern states have long been in need of administrative changes, and now the blooming is being forced by a cumulative series of disasters.

Bank Failures Show Trend.

Like a blight across the face of this fair land, the resources of which have hardly begun to be used, is the physical evidence of empty banks, with notices pasted on the front doors. Hundreds have been closed and hundreds of millions of depositors' money taken out of business. The fall of big banks in the financial centers has been followed by that of small banks in the country districts, so that some counties are now without a bank.

The states enter this situation because their money is involved. Politics enters in, and dishonesty and the bursting of bubbles of expansion and speculation, bubbles on which were painted the colors of great dreams and a new financial oligarchy. Now proud homes are gone and proud figures have moved into the shadows of the courts, and for some death has seemed the only way out.

In Arkansas, Tennessee, and Kentucky about eleven million dollars of public funds are tied up in closed banks.

Official Shortcomings Added.

Through official investigation and court inquiry it has gradually become known that these financial troubles were not entirely the result of drought and the world depression, but that there was a reckless handling of the people's money in some places and an entirely inadequate check by state officials.

And so, while men's hearts cannot be made honest by law, it is coming into demand that greater safeguards be erected for the future. And while these departments of state are being reorganized, the matter of general waste and inefficiency is being looked into, with a prospect disastrous to the old system.

Gov. Harvey Parnell, at the opening of the Arkansas general assembly on Jan. 14, presented a report containing the findings and recommendations of the National Institute of Public Administration, a New York institution which had made a survey for him at a cost of about $6,000. He recommended that the reorganization plan contained therein be adopted and the legislature is asked to permit this question to go before the people in a vote on constitutional amendments.

Present Comes Before Future.

When the legislature gets through its present fury of investigations and trying to find some money in a tax exhausted people for drought relief they will take up this question for the protection of future generations.

Tennessee is in the throes of the same birth pains, and Kentucky will face it when the legislature meets next January. Missouri, Mississippi, and Alabama also have their problems. A deficit is reported in the Georgia treasury.

The Arkansas plan proposes to abolish 92 present state agencies and commissions and the centering of all responsibility in the governor through the establishment of a small number of administrative departments under his control and direction.

"As a structure," says this report on the state, "the administration is very ramshackle, consisting of many statutory leantos without the proper constitutional groundwork, not at all closely integrated and largely lacking in the coördination of its numerous activities.

Calls Methods Antiquated.

"Some extremely antiquated methods are followed, particularly in the state's financial procedure. The state administration lacks unified direction and control; it has entirely too many officials for a comparatively small government. Official responsibility is easily shifted or practically dissipated. Finally, political patronage looms large throughout the entire state service.

"The time ought to be ripe for a thoroughgoing administrative reorganization. Undoubtedly the future growth of the business, industry, and commerce of the state would be greatly aided by such a reorganization."

A bureau of personnel is set up for this reason:

"Hundreds of state employés are selected with little regard for their training and experience or other evidence to do the jobs to which they are assigned. Political patronage looms large in many of the offices and agencies at the state capitol. At times the turnover of employés in the offices of some of the elective officials is almost 100 per cent. In some of these cases practically raw recruits are brought in for personal or political reasons and assigned to carry on important work. Can the state government hope to operate efficiently on such basis? Certainly here is one of the chief sources of waste in the Arkansas government."

State Debts Mounting.

Commenting on the state debts, and showing why Arkansas cannot do much for its own relief at this time, the report continues:

"The magnitude of the debt problem is indicated by the fact that the state now has a valid, authorized debt for highways, for confederate pensions, for the construction of institutions, for the permanent school fund and all other purposes, amounting in round figures to more than $165,000,000."

SENATE AND HOUSE ARE DEADLOCKED ON $25,000,000 RELIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The house, where the administration holds control, and the senate, where the Democratic-radical Republican coalition is in the saddle, continued deadlocked today over the question of relief.

In the senate, the Democrats under the leadership of Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader, and supported by the insurgent bloc of the Republican membership, held fast to their threat to filibuster the supply bills and force an extra session, if what they considered adequate relief was not granted.

The house, on the other hand, was equally determined in its support of President Hoover and his opposition to any relief legislation providing a federal appropriation for the distribution of food.

Meanwhile the measure that is the immediate issue—the $25,000,000 Red Cross appropriation which is attached to the interior department supply bill—lay dormant in a conference committee of the two houses. Senate conferees have been instructed to insist on the Red Cross appropriation's passage. House conferees have been instructed to refuse it, and there the matter stands.

In former conferences over relief measures the house has prevailed and forced the senate to withdraw. But in this case the relief measure is attached as an amendment to one of the huge annual appropriation bills, and unless some compromise is reached, house opposition to the relief measure means the holding up of the interior department's grant of funds.

It is considered likely that the situation will remain much as it is until the final days of the session, with each side trying to wait the other out, and that whatever concessions are made will be made under the pressure of the last minute and the threat of an extra session.

FIGURES REVEAL BIG INCREASE IN WHITE SLAVERY

Grows 5 Times as Fast as Population.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The white slave traffic in Chicago has grown five times as fast as the population since Len Small, as governor, in 1923, saved Harry Guzik from a prison term. This Guzik, or Cusick, as the name is spelled in the Criminal court record, is high in the ranks of the Capone gang. He was convicted of putting a country girl in a vice den. The Appellate court confirmed the conviction.

Since then the amount of pandering in Chicago has doubled, according to the Municipal court records. There were approximately twice as many pandering cases in that court last year as in 1923 and more than twice as many convicted and lodged in the Bridewell.

Investigators of the Committee of Fifteen report a substantial increase in the efforts to prey upon women and girls out of work because of the business depression. On Jan. 1, 1930, the Committee of Fifteen had competent evidence against 49 vice dens, against which it had taken evidence. On Jan. 1 last it had evidence on 94 such places.

Deals with Commercial Vice.

While some members of the Committee of Fifteen are much concerned about morals, the primary interest of the committee lies in the economic aspects of vice. It deals only with commercial vice. A place of ill-repute will eventually lower the rents of nearby property, thus decreasing its value. That, in the opinion of the committee and its civic backers, is injurious to the city, and it is concerned with vice as a property detriment rather than as a moral question.

From that angle, added interest should attach to Harry Guzik, his brother, Jack Guzik, Denny Cooney, "Mike de Pike" Heitler, the late Jack Zuta, and probably others.

Cite Case of Guzik.

Investigators of vice say there is no reason for surprise that the white slave traffic has been increasing. They point to the fact that after Harry Guzik escaped punishment for pandering, through the then governor's leniency, he opened the Blue Goose inn at 119th and Paulina streets in Burr Oak. He was so bold about it that the property he operated was bought and held in the name of Rose Guzik, his sister-in-law. Even after it was ordered padlocked by Judge Ira D. Ryner in October, 1924, it was said to have continued to operate for a time.

In 1924 only fifty-two persons were charged with pandering in the Municipal court. Last year the number was 106.

Social workers generally believe that the enticing, forcing, and selling of girls into white slavery must be remunerative, or the business of pandering would not have increased so greatly.

Chief Clerk Gill of the Municipal court has prepared the following tabulation, which shows the total number of pandering cases annually, and the number sent to the Bridewell and the county jail for this offense, and those fined:

Year—	Total	In Bridewell.	In jail	Fined
1923	57	13	2	2
1924	52	5	2	1
1925	64	15	1	3
1926	68	15	0	1
1927	56	12	1	0
1928	77	16	0	1
1929	89	19	3	11
1930	106	29	4	4
Totals	569	124	13	26

It will be noticed that the figure for 1930 was nearly 50 per cent above the average for the eight years.

Add to the 1930 cases of pandering the 343 cases of criminal assaults on women and girls and the 129 crimes against children, and some idea is conveyed of the influence spread by racketeers who have, until recently, been beating the game at every turn.

The older generation who used to read about the old red light district remember the occasional publication of the name of "Vic" Shaw, who is credited with being a friend of Roy Jones, a vice lord for years, who in turn is said to have taught Harry Guzik to tend bar.

"Vic," whose real name is Emma Ludwig, is believed to have been encouraged to fight for the privilege of operating a vice den because Harry Guzik and other "public enemies" have been able to escape punishment. The efforts of the Committee of Fifteen caused her to be fined $500 and she is fighting the penalty in the Appellate court. Her place was at 2904 Prairie avenue.

Emily Marshall, who has operated on the west side for many years, is said by vice investigators to have tried to maintain an Everleigh club atmosphere in her recent place at 18 North Curtis street. It frequently has been charged that she had the backing for years of the late Jack Zuta, "public enemy," who was murdered in Wisconsin.

Affiliated with Ralph Capone.

"Bon Bon" Allegretti is reported to be closely connected with the racketeers. He operated a vice den at 519 South State street until it was padlocked. Lately he has been connected with the Cotton club in Cicero, one of Ralph Capone's places.

LANDMARK GOES

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The wrecking of the old stone building at 2400 South Michigan avenue, occupied by the Standard club from the time of its erection in 1893 until 1926, when it was taken over by the Motorists' Association of Illinois, was started yesterday with speeches and the formal displacement of one stone block.

Hugo Meyer, secretary-manager of the motorists' association, shoved the block from a second story balcony with a large pickax to signal the passing of the old structure, which had been a center of Jewish social life since the Columbian exposition.

Harry K. Curtis, president of the motorists' association, announced that a new building would be built on the same site, 35 stories high at a cost of over $2,000,000. Other speakers were William D. Saltiel, William J. Stratton, secretary of state; Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board; Oscar E. Carlstrom, attorney general; Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district, and David H. Jackson.

FORMER INDIAN BOARD MEMBER DEFENDS RECORD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Herbert J. Hagerman, former territorial governor of New Mexico, testified for more than four hours before the senate Indian committee today in refutation of charges that led the senate to eliminate his salary as special Indian commissioner from the interior department appropriation bill.

Hagerman vigorously defended his record reiterating his emphatic denial of accusations made by Senator Frazier [Rep., N. D.] in the senate, and by John Collier, secretary of the American Indian Defense association, in connection with Indian oil leases.

The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday when Oliver La Farge, novelist and director of the Eastern Association of Indian Affairs, is expected to speak in Hagerman's defense.

BUSINESS BOARD FIGHTS NEW LAW ON IMMIGRATION

Says Present Rules Are Sufficient.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special]—Business interests, through the chamber of commerce of the United States, today took a stand in opposition to the enactment of any restrictive immigration legislation at this session of congress. The chamber made public a report of a special committee declaring against proposed emergency legislation intended to relieve the unemployment situation.

While the report does not deal with the details of the legislation it is aimed at the bill recently reported from the house committee on immigration reducing all immigration by 90 per cent for a period of two years. A strong effort is being made by its proponents, including organized labor, to obtain action before adjournment of congress on March 4.

"Emergency exclusion of immigrants, whose entry under present conditions might aggravate existing unemployment in this country already is being brought about through administrative action of the department of state under existing law and the proposed emergency legislation is not needed," the report said.

"Hence, it is seen that under strict administration of existing law in this emergency period there already has been achieved a cut of 85 per cent in the normally allotted volume of immigration from old world countries, a reduction of 78.5 per cent from Canada, and a reduction of 93 per cent from Mexico."

HIS WHISKY STOLEN WHILE HE'S IN JAIL; HE PREFERS CHARGES

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 31.—(AP)—C. W. Brey had Ambrose Presley arrested here today on a burglary charge.

Brey alleges that while he was in jail before making bond on a federal charge of possessing whisky Presley broke into a shed back of his home and stole seven gallons of moonshine the federal agents had overlooked.

"You realize, of course, in signing this warrant you are admitting the possession of whisky," Prosecutor Earl Winter asked.

"Certainly I do," replied Brey. "But they can't give me any more punishment than I'm in for now. And I can send Presley to the pen."

HURLS BRICK THROUGH SHOP.

Wife Missing 12 Years, Believed Dead, Is Home

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 31—(AP)—Mrs. Mary M. Donnelly, believed dead for 12 years, came home today.

Her husband, John, after an unsuccessful search, concluded she had died and collected $2,413 insurance.

Mrs. Donnelly said today she had no knowledge of where she had been. A few days ago her mind cleared she related, and she found herself in San Bernardino, Cal.

Plan for Development of Inland Waterways in 1931

A program to further inland waterway development in 1931 was discussed yesterday by the executive council of the Mississippi Valley association. Delegations from Minnesota, Nebraska, and Iowa presented data concerning river projects for the upper Mississippi and the Missouri. Among those attending were Mayor William F. Kunze of Minneapolis and Mayor Gerhard Bundlie of St. Paul.

A-1 STATE MANAGERS

Two Orders Per Week Makes You $15,000 Per Year Net Cash Now and $25,000 Per Year Additional on Repeat Orders

BIG! NEW! NATIONAL! DYNAMIC! 25 Million Sales in 5 Years Our Goal

Orders for thousands of this article started pouring in as soon as it was offered for sale. Many of the leading merchandising men of America have pronounced it the biggest thing in specialty selling that has come out in years. Our business has already taken on national proportions.

It has taken nearly four years with thoroughly competent engineers and an expenditure of $72,000 to produce this device, and we have not offered it for sale until it was perfected. Last week we paid $5,000 plus a royalty for the patent right to an item just to facilitate the installation and operation of the specialty we are selling. We just rented four thousand feet of floor space adjoining our present factory in Chicago. We are spending $4,000 this month for an extra set of dies in order to bring our immediate production capacity up to three or four thousand devices per day. We have employed an additional production manager, and are leaving nothing undone to make this business the outstanding specialty of the age, which we believe it is destined to be.

On actual test some of our first men in the field have sold ninety per cent of the garages and car dealers on the first call. As high as fourteen out of fifteen car owners have ordered this device upon seeing the first demonstration.

As soon as we have twenty territories each producing an average of twenty-four sales daily, which at our present rate of progress will be very soon, we will spend approximately $50,000 in radio and newspaper advertising in Chicago in twelve weeks, and will shortly branch into national advertising.

We are utilizing a unique plan of distribution. This embraces the sale to the public through car dealers and garages and a merchandising system through our own distributors, who have exclusive territory. We have several openings in our sales organization for a few high grade men who can make from twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars per year. Two sales a week in one branch of our business will yield this income. Several men already in the field state they will make $50,000 with us in 1931.

WE OFFER DISTRIBUTORS EXCLUSIVE TERRITORIAL RIGHTS. WE ARE NOT SELLING TERRITORY AND WE ARE ESPECIALLY INTERESTED IN DISTRIBUTORS WHO ARE ONLY SATISFIED WITH MAXIMUM EARNINGS.

If you cannot call at our office and want to try a sample, send us the dealer's price of $6.50. Give name and model of your car and we will make shipment promptly. Keep it three days. If you would take ten times the price for it, return it within this time and your money will be immediately refunded.

The device we are selling is a brand new auto specialty. We believe it will go over as big as balloon tires, self-starters and free wheeling. It makes a spectacular demonstration which has an instant appeal. In the hands of a good man it literally sells on sight. It is not a gas saver or a signal. There is nothing on the market like it. We believe from the present sales and progress that 25,000,000 will be sold within the next five years. If you are qualified to take advantage of an opportunity of this kind, call at once if possible; otherwise write or wire.

Beautiful new Dodge cars CARRY ON A FINE TRADITION

A New Six Sedan $845

It is Dodge Brothers belief that the best way to stimulate business is to offer the public more for its dollars—to meet the desire for higher living standards by giving real advancements without increase in cost. ∞ The new Dodge Six and Eight are better cars, not cheaper cars. They represent a great stride forward in beauty, size, comfort and power. And they are built with the firm conviction that the most important thing about a motor car is that it be a good motor car. ∞ In offering cars so obviously advanced in character, yet remaining at traditional Dodge levels in price, Dodge feels that it is acting in the true spirit of American progress, and that the value which results is instantly apparent.

PARIS DECREES SPLIT SKIRT OF PRE-WAR DAYS

Slash Reveals Bit of Gay Colored Petticoat.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Split skirts are back.

Frocks with slashed skirts, reminders of pre-war days, returned to the Paris fashion world today by way of the gilt decked and mirrored salons of the prominent couturiers.

The new skirts were slit all the way from the knee to the hipline, but varied from the old models by overlapping slightly at the slashes, displaying gay hued silk petticoats underneath.

Black crêpe dresses with overlapping slits in front, revealed yellow crêpe de chine accordion plaited underskirts when the wearer walked. Dark blue wool frocks, slashed to the knee both front and back, were displayed with rose, blue, gray, and plaid silk petticoats. Even the pajama mode reverted to slits, with several linen models having bell-bottom trousers slashed to the knee in front.

Divided Skirts for Sports.

Sports frocks carried the slit idea into divided skirts. One model of Alice blue kasha, apparently designed with the slit skirt overlapping front and back, revealed, when the mannequin was in motion, a full pantaloon skirt. The suit was worn with a three-quarter length cape, lined in red and black plaid.

Capes, small and large, were one of the outstanding features of today's exhibitions.

Full length capes of green, brown, or blue wool flecked with white, were displayed with matching two piece suits for travel and sports. Jaunty waistline capes of chiffon or crêpe appeared as wraps for evening gowns.

Wool Street Dresses.

Several street dresses of dark blue or black wool were displayed with short capes swung from the left shoulder to the right waistline, military fashion.

Street frocks with bolero and Eton jackets were other favorites in the latest showing. They were often designed in navy blue or black wool, or of silk with pastel crêpe blouses tied around the waist to form a belt.

3 OF BROADWAY'S FAMOUS CAFES RAIDED BY DRYS

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Three of Broadway's most famous cafés were quietly raided this afternoon by twelve prohibition agents.

Two of the restaurants had been raided the afternoon before New Year's and, curiously enough, both had just about as much liquor on hand today, it was said, as on Dec. 31, despite the fact that the agents had seized all liquor lying loosely about on the earlier date.

The places raided were Jack and Jill's, the Arena restaurant, and the English Chop house.

Seven half barrels of beer and 25 bottles of whisky were found at Jack and Jill's, agents said. Twenty-seven bottles of liquor and the same amount of beer were found at the English Chop house, and seven bottles were found at the Arena, they declared.

Ten laborers in the vineyards were arrested, four at the chop house and three each at the other restaurants.

The agents, disguised as gentlemen lunchers, entered quietly, armed with search warrants and smiles. Announcing their presence with an apologetic cough, they proceeded quickly and noiselessly with their search.

Diners, however, sensing the presence of unwelcome guests, hurriedly curtailed their meals, swallowed drinks hastily, and called for their checks. Not until they were outside, well out of reach of the arm of the law, did they linger, attracting a considerable crowd.

PARIS ADDS 900 POLICE OFFICERS TO CHECK CRIME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Persisting in his efforts to firmly check crime in Paris, Prefect of Police Jean Chiappe is putting into effect new measures to increase safety. Within the next few months the Paris police force will be increased by 900 men and new squads of motorcycle police are already patrolling the streets at night.

The apprentice policemen must undergo stringent tests before they are admitted to the force. The applicants must first of all be French born—naturalized citizens are not accepted. They must be over 21 but under 30 years old and must have performed military service. They must be robust and not under 5 feet 8 inches tall. In addition all candidates accepted will hereafter have to learn one foreign language with a teacher attached to the prefecture of police.

With the new measures taken by the prefect the well known silhouette of the old mustached pre-war "gendarme" is gradually disappearing on the Paris streets.

Through New Aid Deaf Hear Again

Earpiece No Bigger Than Dime Wins Enthusiastic Following Ten-Day Free Trial Offer

After twenty-five years devoted exclusively to the manufacture of scientific hearing-aids, the Dictograph Products Co., Inc., Dept. 143B, 180 North Michigan Blvd. Chicago, Ill., has just perfected a new model Acousticon that represents the greatest advance yet made in the restoration of hearing for the deaf. This latest Acousticon is featured by a tiny earpiece no bigger than a dime. Through this device, sounds are clearly and distinctly transmitted to subnormal ears with wonderful benefit to hearing and health alike. The makers offer an absolutely free trial for 10 days to any person who may be interested and a letter will bring one of these remarkable aids to your home for a thorough and convincing test. Send them your name and address today.

RED CHILDREN STORM GOTHAM POSTOFFICE

New York, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—The general postoffice was closed for two hours today while 250 rioting communist children stormed the huge building to protest a department ruling denying privileges of second class mail to three communist publications.

The children, ranging in age from 12 to 18, ostensibly formed for a parade near the Pennsylvania station. Police squads were present to keep order.

After the parade started toward the postoffice building a small bespectacled boy broke through the police line, and with vivid profanity directed at the police ordered the children to rush the postoffice.

Spurred on by hundreds of their elders, the young communists charged the postoffice doors. They were repulsed several times by police, and then resorted to throwing missiles. The postoffice was closed during the first rush, and the mêlée lasted two hours.

The only casualty was a mounted policeman who was thrown from his horse when the children stoned the mount.

Fire Destroys Records of Artists Listed for Show

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Records and photographs pertaining to the enrollment of more than 400 artists in the spring show of the Society of Independent Artists were destroyed in Friday's fire which consumed the Lincoln Square Arcade building, housing the offices of the society, it became known today.

All records of payments of artists from various places in the country for exhibition space were lost. A. S. Baylinson, secretary of the society, said that the show will be held as intended, March 6 to 29. The enrollment time limit has been extended to Feb. 15 because of the fire.

FALL FROM WAGON FATAL.

At Havana Today

HAVANA, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The steamship Oropesa, bringing the prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, is due from Hamilton, Bermuda, about 6:30 a. m. tomorrow. Sir Thomas J. Morris, the British minister; the Cuban secretary of state, and one or two personal friends of the princes will be the only persons permitted aboard.

The royal tourists will not come ashore because the steamer will remain in Cuban waters only a few hours. She is scheduled to sail at 11 a. m. for Kingston, Jamaica, the third stop on the way to South America by way of the Panama canal. The heir to the throne will open the British trade exposition in Buenos Aires in March.

Former N. Y. Police Head Faces Mail Fraud Trial

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Roy St. Lewis, district attorney, today advised Richard E. Enright, former police commissioner of New York City, and Henry Knight Miller, editor of the magazine Psychology, to furnish $5,000 bonds each before a United States commissioner in New York for their appearance in Oklahoma at trial on mail fraud charges. The men were indicted by a federal grand jury last Wednesday in connection with the alleged promotion activities of the Universal Oil and Gas company, of which the unofficial head was said to be S. E. J. Cox, former associate of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer. Cox also was indicted.

CAUGHT COLD?

IT'S easy to throw off a cold when you know what to do—and do it. Two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin will break up a cold in a jiffy! Take them promptly. Bayer Aspirin will check your cold at any stage, but why wait until you are miserable? These tablets are perfectly harmless because they don't depress the heart. If your throat feels sore, crush three more tablets in half a glassful of water and gargle. This will ease your throat instantly and reduce any infection. A cold needn't worry you when you take these simple precautions. But the simplest cold is serious when you don't. Remember that, and remember to get the genuine tablets stamped Bayer. Read the proven directions for headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, sciatica; and for the prompt, positive relief of periodic pain. Until you are familiar with the many valuable uses of Bayer Aspirin you can't realize how much suffering is really needless.

All druggists have the genuine tablets of Bayer Aspirin. The box says Bayer, and you will see the word Genuine printed in red.

INQUIRY CLEARS SLAYER OF RUM BOAT'S SKIPPER

Boatswain Is Commended for Capture.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The treasury department today announced that the special coast guard board of inquiry called to investigate the killing of a Canadian sea captain during the capture of the rum runner Josephine K. had filed a report exonerating the crew of the coast guard cutter making the seizure and praising the conduct of the cutter's boatswain who fired the fatal shot.

A copy of this report was immediately forwarded to the state department and from there transmitted to the Canadian legation, which had filed a request for information. The Canadian government on the basis of this report plus the results of its own investigations, is expected to reach a decision shortly as to whether a formal protest against the coast guard killing will be registered.

Commend Cutter Commander.

A statement made public by Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of coast guard matters, disclosed that the board had officially recommended commendation for Boatswain Karl Schmidt, commander of cutter 145 which fired the shots that resulted in the death of William P. Cluett of Lunenberg, Nova Scotia, captain of the Canadian rum runner Josephine K. The Canadian ship was captured with a load of whisky a week ago today.

The board stated that Mr. Schmidt was not intoxicated at the time of the seizure, as had been charged. It also found that the Josephine K. when captured was "clearly within the twelve mile limit" in which certain foreign rum running ships are liable to seizure under the 1924 Canadian and British conventions. Although terming the incident "regrettable" the board found it also had been "unavoidable under the circumstances."

No Discipline Recommended.

Secretary Lowman declared that the board has recommended that no disciplinary action be taken "against any member of the coast guard on account of this unfortunate accident."

"The board of investigation convened by the coast guard division commander at New York, and consisting of three ranking commissioned officers, made a thorough investigation of the circumstances attending the capture of the Canadian rum runner Josephine K., by the patrol boat CG-145, and has submitted its report," Mr. Lowman said.

"The board found that the Josephine K. was discovered by Boatswain Karl Schmidt, in charge of the coast guard patrol boat CG-145 in the act of transferring liquor to an American vessel within twelve miles of the coast of the United States."

3 WOMEN BURNED TO DEATH AS FIRE SWEEPS BUILDING

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Three women were found burned to death early today when firemen, after an hour's battle, made their way into the ruins of a downtown four story dwelling that had been converted into an apartment house.

Two men, injured in a fall from a third story window, were in a serious condition at a hospital. One fell when a rope of sheets broke, and the other jumped before firemen arrived.

The three women victims were tentatively identified as Miss Alberta Claggett, Mrs. Arthur Tucker, and Marcella Rogers.

One of the men injured was the husband of Mrs. Tucker and the other was Milton Long.

Hours after the flames had been extinguished, a check was in progress to determine whether all occupants of the building were accounted for. Two firemen suffered minor injuries.

Hold Funerals for 22 of 28 Indiana Mine Victims

Linton, Ind., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The bodies of twenty-two of the twenty-eight victims of an explosion Wednesday at the Little Betty mine were buried today. Others will be buried tomorrow and Monday. Business in this city and in the little mining communities nearby was practically suspended today while final tribute was paid to those killed in the blast.

AMPHIBIAN BASE IS PLANNED FOR NEAR NORTH SIDE

Project Now Pending in Congress.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

An airplane base for the north side, situated within easy reach of the loop, will be provided if the present plans of the Lincoln park board are carried out. Legislation now pending before congress would place under the jurisdiction of the park commissioners the harbor opposite Lake Shore drive which the commissioners plan to develop as a docking place for yachts and airplanes.

The plan, projected at this time, has been received with enthusiasm in Chicago flying circles. Air transport companies plan to extend the use of the lake front for airplanes next spring, when new air lines will be started and private flying will be resumed.

Thompson Aeronautical corporation, mail carrier between Chicago and the Michigan peninsula, has announced plans for the inauguration of amphibian service for passengers flying between Chicago, Detroit, and Milwaukee. The company plans to open the service early in the spring upon the delivery of a fleet of new amphibians. The terminals will be the Detroit river and the harbors in Milwaukee and Chicago.

Shuttle Service Considered.

A shuttle air service running between the lake front and Chicago's outlying air fields in order to provide faster transportation between airports and the loop is also being considered.

With these and other developments in amphibian and seaplane flying, Chicago can well afford to have two downtown bases for water-going aircraft, in the opinion of air operators. While the Grant park ramp serves the loop and the south side, another such base situated between Oak and Ohio streets and as close to the loop as the Grant park aviation beach would be of value to north side residents. Air transport officials also point to the fact that in order to be fully useful for passenger service an amphibian ramp should be equipped with a permanent ticket office to provide shelter for waiting passengers. This phase of the project is being considered by Lincoln park engineers.

Although the waters of Chicago's downtown harbors are seldom sufficiently disturbed by strong winds or swells to make alighting in them impossible, it is pointed out that on the few occasions when this is the case airmen will have a choice between two harbors in which to land.

Bill Would Cede Land.

The bill under consideration by congress would cede to the park board the inner harbor and an area 350 feet wide extending from Ohio street to Oak street along the shore line and from Oak street out into the lake along the breakwater for a distance of a half mile. The opening between the shore and the western end of the breakwater will eventually be closed and an esplanade will be constructed along the entire length of this new area.

Construction of a ramp for amphibian planes previously has been hindered because of the limited space held by the park board between Lake Shore drive and the lake. Should the bill pass congress and later receive the sanction of the state legislature, the park board will come into possession of an area large enough to accommodate an extensive docking place for water airplanes.

HIGH POWER CABLES CRACKLE LIKE GUNS AS RESULT OF FIRE

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—A network of high powered electric cables went on a rampage in downtown Brooklyn today and treated the borough to a mock machine gun fusillade which lasted all forenoon.

Fire, which started 10 feet below the ground in a subway excavation, burned the insulation from a cable carrying 27,000 volts. The explosions began as short circuits were created, 10 minutes apart at first and decreasing to half minute intervals.

Light were cut off within a radius of 10 blocks and 1,000 telephones were rendered unserviceable. The Holy Family hospital was without light or power.

A hundred electricians from the Brooklyn Edison company began to cut and splice cables, shunting the power circuits. A police rescue squad stood by. Firemen were unable to approach the fire. Two of them were knocked down by an explosion while attempting it, but were not injured.

Contributes Live Ox to Emergency Relief Drive

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 31.—(AP)—"One beef on the hoof" was recorded today among the contributions to a Huntington emergency fund drive. W. H. Bias of Ona drove an ox to the Salvation Army citadel.

EWING HAILED AS WORLD'S LEADING CANCER FIGHTER

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Fifty-four leading cancer authorities of the world presented a symposium of honor tonight to Prof. James Ewing of Cornell university, and hailed as the world's greatest cancer fighter this quiet teacher who rarely becomes excited, except at a baseball game.

Prof. Ewing is 64. Scientists call him the greatest authority in the world on cancer, which continues to leap rapidly to first place as the most deadly of human ills.

Given "Homage Book."

At a testimonial dinner tonight he was given an "homage book" in which were grouped and bound for the occasion 54 special articles on cancer by the leading experts in all the branches of cancer fighting technic. Between 300 and 400 noted physicians attended the dinner and inscribed their names in the book after the presentation.

As citadels of the world war against cancer, Prof. Ewing would like to see six $10,000,000 research centers in the United States, around which the forces of humanity might rally and in which they might entrench themselves for sallies against the still largely mysterious enemy. Barnard hospital in St. Louis is now setting out to become a nucleus of this array of "fortresses."

Cancer Can Be Cured.

The public's attitude toward cancer should be "calmly suspicious, but not afraid," Prof. Ewing thinks. He frowns upon hysteria, without minimizing the seriousness of the growth of the disease.

Cancer can be cured, he insists, if it is detected and attacked in its early stages, and the public's job is to help to detect it early. His advice is to go to the doctor at the first sign, any unusual lump in the flesh, persistent sores, unusual moles or warts, or bleeding from the mouth or body openings.

Evidence . . . but not an idle boast!

Chicagoans have learned that living at Hotel Shoreland means more than merely a full measure of living enjoyment. For living at Hotel Shoreland is evidence that you know and demand the best; that your social position permits no lower standard; that refinement, culture, character must mark your hotel-home.

Shoreland clientele is evidence of Shoreland distinction. Proof of its achievement. Stamp of its prosperity . . . a prosperity that makes possible the highest standard and scope of hotel service.

There is prestige, charm, and still economy in Shoreland living. There is ease, freedom . . . and sane luxury here. There is quality . . . whether you select a complete housekeeping apartment, a suite, or a single room. And prices are attractive.

Two husbands . . . . OWED BILLS . . past due

TWO husbands (you may know them) are plunged into debt by the troubles that anyone is liable to meet.

One man lets his bills go.

The other takes advantage of everyone's privilege to borrow on a business basis and straightens out his accounts.

Which one best serves himself and his community?

Perhaps the first man doesn't realize that he is hurting his credit and closing to himself the doors of the better stores which he owes.

Maybe he hasn't stopped to think that in delaying his payments to his dealer, the dealer cannot be prompt in paying the wholesaler, who in turn is slow in paying the manufacturer to whom labor must look for its wages.

So he is bothered by bill collectors, worries, loses sleep, doesn't do his work justice, even risks losing his home and his job.

The second man knows that the wise law-makers of this state have made it possible for him to borrow economically and on as dignified a basis as businesses borrow from banks. They have fixed a rate that permits "retailing" money in small amounts with equity to both individual and finance company.

He goes to a family finance company and borrows from $50 to $300 in business-like confidence without the need of informing his friends, employer, or landlord. He pays his bills, keeps his credit standing, and looks the world in the eye.

Re-payments, spread over as long as twenty months, give him the opportunity to budget his income and straighten out his money problems.

For those who think that the second man was the wiser, there is in this city, such a family finance company, the foremost in the world, with 130 offices in 72 cities . . . Household Finance Corporation.

Household is meeting the emergency credit needs of more than 330,000 families without the securities required by banks but with the finer collateral of integrity and the ability to earn their way out of difficulties.

The first large company to voluntarily reduce its interest almost a third under the rate stipulated by law on amounts above $100 and up to $300, Household will continue to return to its customers the advantages of any further reduction in operating costs accomplished by efficient management and large volume.

MONEY MANAGEMENT FOR HOUSEHOLDS, a helpful booklet on budgeting your income, leading to the happiness of financial security, is offered without charge to all. Telephone, call, or write for a copy

A SKY SCANNER MEETS DEFEAT AS FORECASTER

Federal Man Scores Over Amateur Prophet.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Science slipped across the finish line far ahead of soothsaying tonight at the conclusion of a month's weather guessing contest between George W. Bliss, government forecaster, and Sam Brunner, veteran sky scanner of Tioga.

The contest, in the opinion of the Philadelphia Record, which conducted it, provided that goosebone prophets, back yard astrologers, and almanac astronomers have little to buttress their forecasts other than a close study of the weather's "past performances." Modern, scientific methods were found to be comparatively accurate.

Scores 42 Wins.

During the forecasts for January, Bliss was credited with 42 wins on the Record's scoreboard and eight losses; Brunner with 26 wins and 26 losses, the final percentage standing being Bliss, .840, and Brunner, .590. Under the scoring system it was possible for the contestants to win two, lose two, or break even each day.

The test ended about as predicted by Bliss at the beginning.

"The United States weather bureau," he said, "claims to make accurate forecasts a little over 80 per cent of the time. We also feel that amateurs who make a study of seasonal weather conditions, can make long range guesses with a 50 per cent degree of accuracy."

Says He's Scientific.

Brunner, referred to as a goosebone prophet during the early stages of the forecasting Marathon, subsequently informed the newspaper he was not to be identified as such. "I'm no gooseboner," he said. "I may not be as scientific as Mr. Bliss, but I'm scientific to a certain extent. My calculations have an astronomical basis worked out by my father before me. There are plenty of back yard soothsayers, but I'm not one of them."

Brunner took his defeat good naturedly, and at the same time pointed out that he considers his forecasts accurate when the conditions he predicts for two or three days occur on any of those days. His predictions were made several weeks before the contest started.

HAVE NO HOPE OF IDENTIFYING ANY IN LYNCHING MOB

Williston, N. D., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Belief that it will be impossible to identify members of the mob that lynched Charles Bannon, slayer of six, at Schafer early Thursday, was expressed today by Attorney General James Morris as he completed his investigation into the hanging.

Morris started back to Bismarck today to report to Gov. George F. Shafer that he and other investigators had done everything in their power to identify members of the mob but without success. He also declared that if any were identified it would be practically impossible to prove they were members of the lynching party.

Funeral services of the lynching victim will be held Monday.

2 FEET OF SNOW, COLD WEATHER IN NEW ENGLAND

Traffic Is Hard Hit; Shovelers Busy.

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Upstate New York and New England was buried under snow ranging from six inches to two feet today. Train service and vehicular traffic were crippled.

The snow storm, coming on the anniversary of the great blizzard of 1925, blew in from the great lakes region and held sway for twenty-four hours. The snowstorm was followed by sharp drops in temperature, the mercury dipping to zero in some places.

Two Feet at Utica.

At Utica and other points of western New York the snowfall reached a depth of two feet. Rochester reported seven inches and Watertown six.

An airplane of the Colonial Western Airways was forced down near Rochester. Bus service was disrupted everywhere and at some points train service had to be suspended until snow plows could clear the ways.

The storm furnished employment to thousands of unemployed men shoveling snow from city streets and highways.

Hail Hits Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Snowflakes and a heavy fall of hail hit the Alhambra suburban section of Los Angeles this morning. A high wind accompanied by hail and inky black clouds swept over a portion of Long Beach. It unroofed a hangar at the municipal airport there, wrenched the doors off other hangars. It damaged several cottages.

The storm was accompanied by a rainfall so heavy, at Riverside, Cal, that streets were flooded and traffic stopped.

A cloudburst hit the region near Escondido, south of Los Angeles, and water rose from three to six feet over the inland state highway.

Cincinnati Surgeon Gets Cornell Professorship

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Dr. George J. Heuer, surgical director of the Cincinnati General hospital and Holmes professor in the medical college of the University of Cincinnati, has been appointed surgeon in chief of New York hospital and professor of surgery in Cornell university.

MOONSHINE STILLS RUN BY COMMUNITY EFFORT IN INDIANA

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—Moonshiners in southern Indiana have adopted coöperative methods in running their stills, United States Dry Agent Charles Britt reported today.

Britt said farmers of the Rocky Hill district banded together after the fall tobacco crop was harvested to manufacture moonshine liquor.

The practice is, Britt said, for each man to furnish a certain quantity of mash and aid in building the still. The farmers then tend the still in rotation, each working about one day a week and carrying on farming the rest of the time.

Order Italian Consul at New Orleans to Home Post

New Orleans, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—Dr. Paul A. Rossi, Italian consul to New Orleans, has been ordered to Rome, Italy, for home service, Italian consulate here announced tonight. Dr. Rossi has been stationed here since 1925. He will be succeeded by Chev. Mario Dessaules, Italian consul at St. Louis.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, as they all set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime no matter the size of the rupture, and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil. The Spermatic Shield-Complex in combination with the Retainer-Simplex (Patent No. 747247. No. 1237709 and other patents pending)—a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Infinitely superior to any instrument method of operations and producing results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime as against further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases or incisional rupture (following operations) specially solicited. The instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injection, medical treatment or prescriptions with distinguished personal patrons of all nations. *See Booklet on "The Fallacy of Surgical Procedure." TOBEY FURNITURE STORE TO MARK 75TH BIRTHDAY

Reception Is Planned for Event Tomorrow.

The Tobey Furniture company, founded in 1856 when Chicago had a population of only 86,000, will celebrate its 75th birthday tomorrow.

The company, which was founded by Charles Tobey, who was joined a year later by his brother, Frank B., is one of the few that survived the great Chicago fire of 1871, and it is still under the management of the Tobey family. F. T. Shiverick, who is now the president, is a grand nephew of Charles Tobey. The latter died in 1888. Frank B. Tobey died in 1913.

The celebration of the diamond anniversary will take form of a reception to all friends of the company to be held tomorrow from 5:30 to 9 p. m.

Other Notables in Business.

Among those who were in business in Chicago when Charles Tobey started to sell furniture in a little store on State street, near Van Buren, were the Farwells, the McCormicks, Potter Palmer, and William G. Hibbard. Marshall Field came the same year, and George M. Pullman came two years later.

In 1862 the Tobeys moved to Lake street, near Dearborn and opposite the Tremont hotel, then the center of the retail district, and three years later they were ridiculed for moving from the center of the established business section to a location in the middle of the block on State street, between Randolph and Washington streets, where the Marshall Field store now stands.

Following the Chicago fire of 1871 the Tobeys established themselves at the northeast corner of State and Adams streets, where they remained until 1888 when they moved to the corner of Wabash avenue and Washington street.

Next Move in 1925.

They remained at the Wabash avenue address for 37 years until late in 1925 they leased their present quarters in the building erected by the McCormick estates at Michigan avenue and Lake street. This move marked their return to Lake street after an absence of 60 years.

Among the possessions in which the company takes the greatest pride is the roll call of prominent Americans who in years past purchased the furnishings for their homes at the Tobey stores.

These include four Presidents of the United States, Abraham Lincoln, U. S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, and James A. Garfield; other officials such as Joseph Cannon and Lyman J. Gage; Chief Justices Fuller and Davis; Generals John A. Logan, George B. McClelland, Lew Wallace, Phil Sheridan, and Frederick Funston.

Among former mayors of Chicago who were patrons were Joseph Medill, John Wentworth, John Roach, and Carter Harrison.

Hoover to Get a Puppy, Rare Norwegian Elkhound

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—A Norwegian elkhound, 2 months old, will arrive Monday from Norway to be presented to President Hoover by the Norwegian Elkhound association of America.

The puppy was selected from one of the best kennels in its native country. It is gray, with an overtone of black on the back and sides.

Probably there are not more than thirty of the dogs in the United States.

75 years ARE WORTH A SALE!

New Styles . . New Prices . . Same Quality Furniture for Every Home!

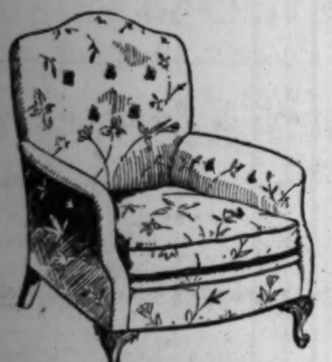
Seventy-five years of success deserve a celebration. And what a celebration this is going to be!

With this great Sale Tobey's, now seventy-five years young, demonstrates anew its right to leadership with a presentation of better furniture of the new era at astonishingly lower prices. Now it costs you less than ever before to share in the pleasure of trading at Tobey's.

Glance through the pictures on this page. Note the new smart styling, the surprisingly low prices. All have the famous old Tobey quality. Sale begins Monday morning at 9.

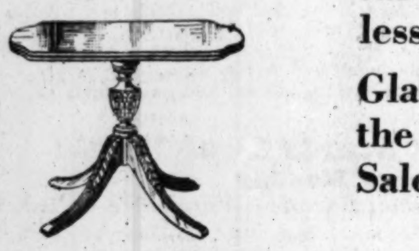
Open House Monday Night

We will remain open Monday evening to celebrate our 75th Anniversary, and we extend a cordial invitation to any one who wishes to visit the store.



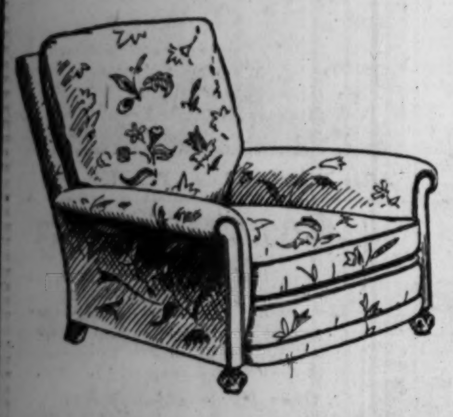
In Tapestries
$49.50

Comfort is the keynote of these chairs but comfort is combined with an individuality of design rarely seen at this low price. Down cushions create a luxurious comfort made beautiful by tapestry or damask covers.



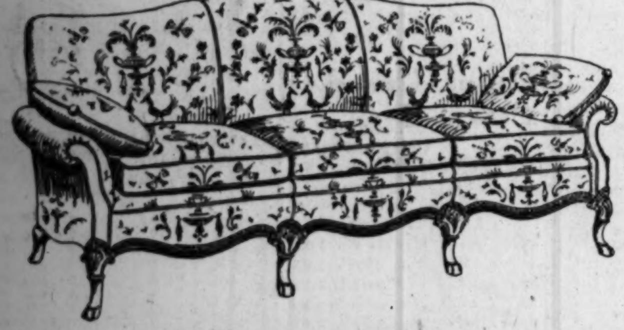
Mahogany Coffee Tables, $15

Duncan Phyfe tables with finely carved pedestals and acanthus leaves on the legs. Handsome indeed and a real $35 grade.



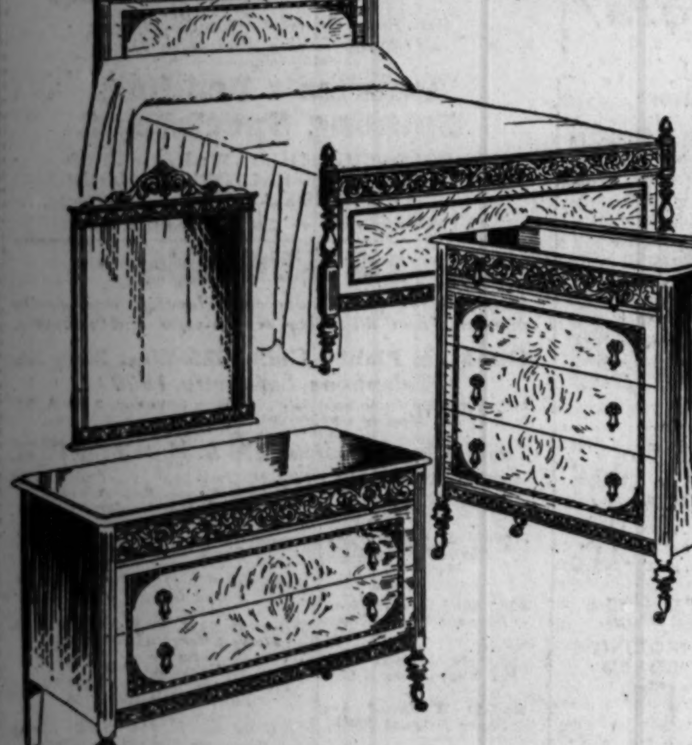
Down Back Chairs
$55

There's a new proportion in these chairs and they are roomy and comfortable without being massive. The down pillow backs are high and make luxurious headresses. Various tapestries to choose from.



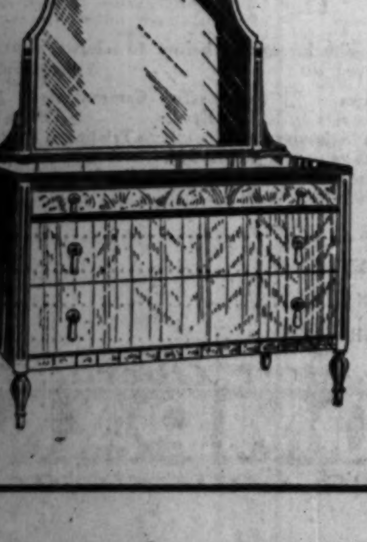
In Tapestries, $159

Down pillows rest on the arms of this smart sofa. There is a mahogany carved base that has the appearance of a genuine antique. Covered, as it is, in a pleasingly colored tapestry of new weave, this sofa is truly exceptional both in beauty and in value.



Bed, Dresser and Chest, $175

A product of a new era. Attractive in design with walnut surfaces and exceptionally reasonable in price for a suite of this distinguished appearance. Can be had with twin beds. Also other pieces to match in this sale.



Walnut Dresser

Walnut Group of 9 Pieces, $495

To note the beautiful hand carving and really fine workmanship of this set is to appreciate that it is worthy of becoming an heirloom. Indeed, the normal price is $900, but Tobey's 75th Year Sales bring it at this low price.

Oriental Rugs and Carpets

Included in this event are rugs and carpets priced at levels heretofore thought impossible. We list a few of the rugs—they are wonderful specimens and the prices make them very attractive.

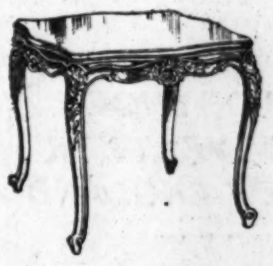
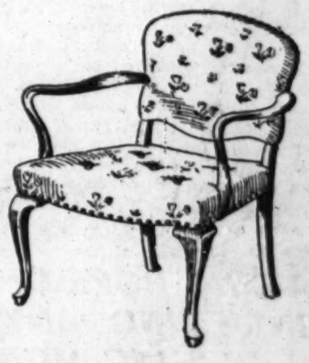
Cape Cod Arm Chairs, $19

Smart design sets off these chairs the moment you see them. The selection includes maple, mahogany or walnut finish with various semi-glazed chintz coverings.



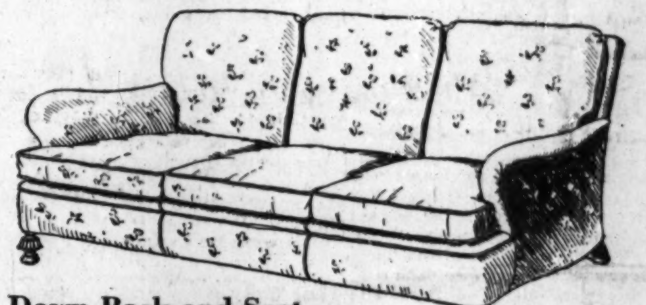
Louis XV. Coffee Tables, $29

French design, hand carved tables with finely figured walnut tops, 22 inches high. The same attractive design in a table 29 inches high can be had at the same price.



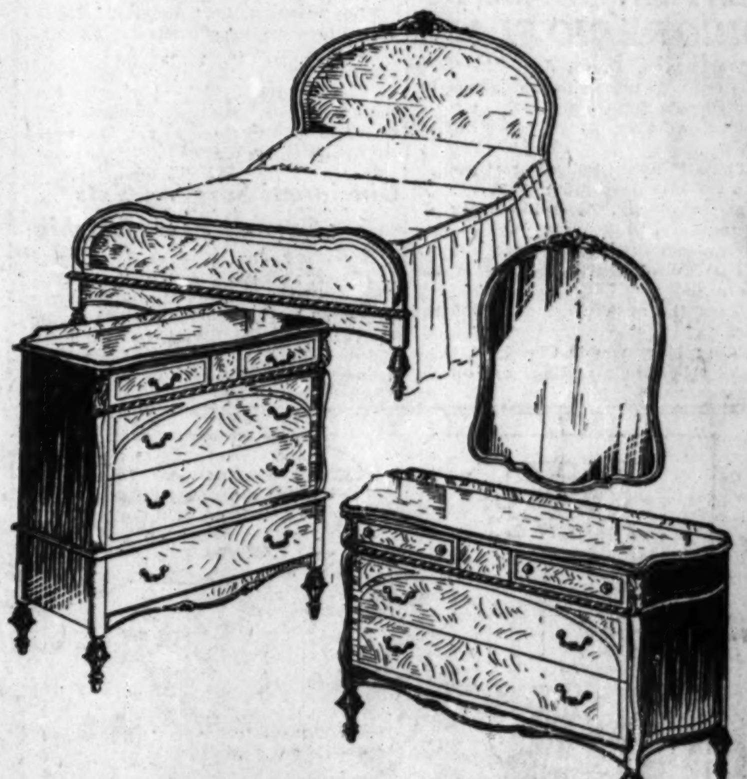
Solid Mahogany Chairs, $19.50

Nearly every home will be more livable with one of these pull-about chairs. They're covered in short lengths of fine fabrics and, incidentally, are real 75 Year Sale values.



Down Back and Seat Sofas, $158

English charm reflects itself in the style and design of this sofa. With down seat and back, of course, and covered in tapestry. An arm chair to match is only $79.



Walnut Bedroom Suite, 3 Pieces, $315

Skilled workmanship is outstanding in this handsome suite. The flat surfaces are of unusually fine figured walnut and the posts and frames are solid walnut. Finished in a lovely warm color. Other pieces can be had to match.

Four Post Beds, $17.50

These beds retain the charm of a former era with definite accuracy. Mahogany panels and a stylish footboard add a finish unlooked for in this price range.

CLOSE SOLDIERS' FIELD TO N. Y. CHARITY BOUT

MINNESOTA BEATS CHICAGO, 30-27; TIES FOR SECOND

FISH SCORES 12 POINTS, BUT GETS LITTLE AID

Free Throws Keep Maroons in Game.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The University of Minnesota basketball team, flashing bursts of speed at opportune moments, repulsed the Chicago Maroons in a rough game here tonight. The score was 30 to 27 for the Gophers, and gave them a tie with Indiana for second place in the Big Ten race, with three victories and one defeat.

The Gophers started out as if they would make a runaway contest of it, cutting loose with a brilliant exhibition of passing, but the Maroons quickly solved the attack and came up on even terms.

The Gophers were ahead, 15 to 12, at half time, and except for a few seconds kept the lead all the way. But several times the crowd of more than 1,000 persons was wild with excitement as the Gophers took five point leads, only to have the Maroons come within a point of overtaking them.

Fish Scores Five Baskets.

On the basis of field goals, the Gophers outclassed their opponents; but in respect to free throws the contest was a repetition of their previous meeting in Chicago. The Maroons made 11 of their 17 free throws, while the Gophers missed 11 of 16.

Loose, Schoening, and Fish proved the scoring stars of the night, each with five goals. Yates, Ashley and Cielisak were ruled out of the contest on four personal fouls. Lineups:

PURDUE, 42; MIAMI, 25

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Purdue's remodeled basketball team, with Johnny Wooden moved to forward and Harry Kellar at guard, piled up a 42 to 25 victory over Miami tonight in the first appearance of the Boilermakers in nearly three weeks.

Purdue took a lead of 17 to 2 in the first ten minutes. The score was 21 at half time.

Norman Miner, sophomore center who started the game in place of Stewart, captured high point honors with six field goals and two free throws.

In the second period Assistant Coach Mel Harmeson made wholesale substitutions, but the score kept mounting.

ARMY, 40; OHIO STATE, 29

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—Army's basketball team won its ninth consecutive game today by beating Ohio State, 40 to 29. Kreuger of the Army scored 14 points. Wes Fesler was Ohio's star performer. The game was a duel between Ray Stecker of Army and Fesler, both of whom were football stars last fall.

Army was ahead, 19-8, as the half ended. Each team made 21 points in the second half. With Fesler leading the attack, Ohio closed some of the gap between the teams, and the score was 21-17 after five minutes of the period.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

RECRUITING ATHLETES.

West Point athletic officials have felt called upon to deny charges that improper efforts were made to induce college football players to enter the military academy, where, under existing rules, they would have three more years of eligibility.

Evidence so far adduced is somewhat vague relating to efforts of unofficial sponsors who furnished information on how to secure appointment and told of the benefits of West Point training. It is not dissimilar to efforts of college alumni to interest promising prep athletes in their alma mater.

There is one difference, however. When a zealous college alumnus talks "business" with a prep star he usually mentions the subject of jobs or some form of financial aid. At West Point the government furnishes the maintenance and education without charge. So the question is more one of obtaining a congressman's appointment.

Now, college alumni always have and always will try to secure good prep athletes. Aid, direct or indirect, always has and always will be given in some instances. Much of it comes within the rules. Sometimes it transgresses the spirit if not the letter of the rules. Why should we expect West Point graduates or retired army officers to be different from college alumni?

The Wake always has maintained that the basic test was the honesty of the colleges themselves. If entrance requirements and standards of scholarship eligibility are maintained and no favors granted, all the rest of it will take care of itself, with perhaps an occasional "black spot." Certainly, no one ever has charged that West Point's rigid entrance and scholarship tests have been softened for football men.

Looking back over the years, a number of notable football stars have entered West Point after completing their college course. Just how many nonathletes have done the same thing we do not know, because, naturally, their names are unknown to the sport world. If Maj. Fleming of the athletic department has any statistics on this subject it would be good reading for comparative purposes.

Let us assume, however, that a boy does enter West Point and is not insensible to the idea of playing football. He receives a good military education with plenty of hard work. If he's the right sort the government has a potentially good army officer. Even if promotions are so slow in our small peacetime standing army that the young second lieutenant resigns to earn more money, he is an experienced reserve, available for service in time of war.

Just as in college athletics, the whole question is simply one of good faith.

On a Minor Scale.

Harve: The recent faro case and its ending reminds me of an experience I once had in a dime museum on State street. In a corner of the second floor a guy had a concession which consisted of a colored man's face made of canvas with a large open mouth. You paid two bits for a chance to throw a small ball into this opening. The ball then would roll back toward you into one of twelve pockets, six of which were blanks and six of which paid varying amounts.

Business apparently was slack, for the "capper" said, "Here, Buddy, try your luck—just for fun." So I shoots the ball into the opening and it parked in a pocket that paid four bits. I cashes my ticket and starts for the stairway [very thirsty], but about the time I hit the top step a big tall guy gets his mitt mixed up in my coat collar, demanding, "Dig up them four bits, Buddy. You can't get away with that." Perhaps that's what happened to Myrtle and Eddie.

Wasted Effort?

The New York Stock exchange, we read, has ceased giving exact totals of the number of shares traded in daily. The purpose, although not announced, is to thwart gamblers who use the figures as the basis for policy or lottery prizes. These figures had taken the place of New York clearing house figures, discontinued some time ago for the same reason. While one may commend the intent, it all seems foolish. If people are determined to gamble they will find a way, just as they have from the earliest times. Which isn't saying one word about the liquor question.

OPEN SECTIONAL FIGHTS TO WIN GOLDEN GLOVES

Hundreds of Boxers Seek Awards.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Those loud smacks you hear echoing and reëchoing in every nook and corner of Chicagoland need not cause any great alarm.

It's just the amateur boxers in all parts of Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin slamming away at each other's chins, getting ready to fight for THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves and to battle for a place on the team of 24 which will journey east to fight New York's Golden Gloves champions in Madison Square Garden on the night of March 30.

Dates for nearly all the sectional tournaments have been selected and the first one got under way last week when the Davenport Times started to select its team of eight, which will be made up of the huskiest boys from Iowa, northwestern Illinois, and southwestern Wisconsin.

Davenport Team Strong.

Reports from Davenport are that the team representing that section will be much stronger this season than the one which came to Chicago a year ago. The semi-finals are to be fought on Wednesday night. Buzz Green, the butcher boy who was a great favorite with the Chicago crowds 12 months ago, again is pounding away at the big boys in the Davenport section trying to win the heavyweight title.

Reports from every sectional center are that the entries are far more numerous than in 1930. This has caused tournament centers, which planned to stage one night elimination meets, to stretch their tournaments into two or three days. In some of the cities it will require four or five days for the boys to fight their way through to a place on the team.

Peoria Obtains Larger Arena.

The boxing fans are also showing great interest in the sectional meets. The Peoria Journal-Transcript conducted its Golden Gloves tournament in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. a year ago. Only a few hundred spectators could be accommodated. The demand for tickets for this year's tournament is so great the big amphitheater in the Shrine temple will be the scene of it, and already capacity crowds have been assured for every session. Dave Barry has been engaged to referee the Peoria bouts.

The News-Times in South Bend has found it necessary to continue its tournament for at least four and possibly five days because of the large number of contestants. At Kokomo The Tribune's preliminaries, semifinals and finals will be under way for six or seven days. Similar reports come from every tournament center, and it indicates that the Chicago boys who fight these lads from surrounding Chicagoland territory will have no easy time winning the Golden Gloves this year.

Sectional Dates.

Some of the dates for the sectional meets are as follows:

Peoria Journal-Transcript, Feb. 16.
Rockford Morning Star, Feb. 16, 17, 18.
South Bend News-Times, Feb. 9, to continue for four or five days.
Springfield State Register, Feb. 10, 11.
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette, Feb. 16 and 23d.
Danville Commercial News, Feb. 10, 11, 12.
Michigan City Dispatch, Feb. 16 and 17.
Vincennes Sun Commercial, Feb. 11, 12.
Streator Times-Press, Feb. 16 and 17.
Kokomo Tribune, Feb. 22 and 23.
Davenport Times [semi-finals], Feb. 4.

Dates for the tournaments in the other half dozen cities will be named within the next few days and all of them will be decided at least a week before the boxers invade Chicago on March 2, 3, and 4 to begin their struggles for the Golden Gloves.

Will Bring Own Rooters.

The boys from the surrounding cities will bring their own rooters. A check on the mail orders for tickets indicates the demand from cities other than Chicago will run fully 50 per cent higher than a year ago.

ORDER NOW

You can obtain choice seats for the Golden Gloves Boxing tournament, the biggest amateur boxing show on earth, by mailing your order now. Applications should be addressed to the Ticket Manager, Golden Gloves Tournament, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Prices for the bouts at the Coliseum March 2, 3, 4 are $1, $1.50, and $2. Seat for the finals at Chicago Stadium sell for $1, $2 and $3.

Every order must be accompanied by a check.

Last year thousands were disappointed when they were unable to obtain tickets. Order now if you want to see the 1931 show.

Tickets will be on sale at The Tribune Public Service Office, 1 S. Dearborn St. starting tomorrow.

HALFWAY TO U. S. TITLES

Frank Stack of the Amphion A. C., who led the senior skaters at Oconomowoc with a total of 50 points. Stack took first place in the 880 yard race and finished second in the mile event.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oconomowoc, Wis., Jan. 31.—Frank Stack, Chicago amateur ice skating star, today took the lead in the 1931 national senior championship meet here. A victory in the 880 yard dash, plus a second place in the one mile event, gave the Amphion Athletic club skater 50 points, enough to top the country's best, gathered here for the two day carnival. Stack's total was ten more than that of Eddie Schroeder, also of Chicago, and two Detroit representatives, Charles Delpier and Eddie Wedge.

Boxed out in the finals of the 220 yard event, Stack came back to take the 880 in easy fashion, finishing almost one hundred yards ahead of his nearest competitor, Eddie Wedge. Only a step deprived Stack of a victory in the mile, Delpier coming from behind to nose him out.

Champion Fares Poorly.

With four events scheduled for tomorrow, any one of the leaders may take the crown, so far unsuccessfully defended by Allan Potts, who won it in 1929. Potts, New York state's entry, fared poorly today, and except for an occasional preliminary triumph, his performances were mediocre.

Schroeder couldn't seem to get started in any of the events except the two mile. Over the longer distance, he showed lots of speed. His victory was no fluke. In the 880 he managed to come home third, but in the mile final, he fell on the next to the last lap and failed to finish.

Al Krux of New York and Ed Stundl of Chicago shared honors after the day's races in the intermediate division. They had thirty points each.

Jablonowski Ties for Lead.

Sig Jablonowski and Clayton Burnett, the former of Chicago and the latter from Detroit, were scoring leaders in the junior class. Milwaukee's representatives topped the juveniles, each with 50 points. The ice was fair, but the attendance poor, less than 2,000 turning out.

Cub Boss Goes Forth to Get Men—a Pair of 'Em

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs probably are going to do something about first basemen inside the next few days. George Kelly, hustled back from the minors when an emergency arose last season, is to draw his unconditional release. And next Tuesday William Veeck, the Cub president, will be in New York with the idea of finally convincing the owners of the St. Louis Cardinals that they should take a hatful of Chicago cash in exchange for Jim Bottomley, the veteran front door attendant.

The above items, although not revealed by formal announcements, developed yesterday when President Veeck, just back from California, held his first conference in more than a month with Manager Rogers Hornsby. All that Veeck would say covering the Bottomley matter was, "It is still in the air," but he displayed no backwardness about pointing out that no holdouts had appeared as yet and that he anticipated no trouble when he talks terms with Hack Wilson, the illustrious homerunner.

Veeck to See Wilson.

Veeck is leaving tomorrow evening to keep a rendezvous with Wilson, probably at Pittsburgh. Hack has intimated to friends that his expectation is a mere $40,000 for the coming campaign, but whether he'll remember his speech when he gets face to face with the boss is a question. Veeck, while refusing to even hint what the club's limit might be, didn't appear at all worried about the $40,000 hint. He thinks he'll have Hack signed in less than an hour. Then he'll continue toward New York to attend Tuesday's National league meeting.

Among the bundle of signed contracts on Veeck's desk when he resumed work was that of Charley Grimm. Although the club has made no secret of the fact that Bottomley is wanted for Grimm's place, the salary given the latter didn't indicate his services are not well thought of. He was awarded an increase. Accompanying the signed document was a letter in which Grimm expressed appreciation over the boost in pay and a hope that he would be able to play a big part in making the season a success for Manager Hornsby. That should quiet the gossipers who have been insisting Grimm and Rog weren't friendly.

It's Up to Cards.

Whether Bottomley finally becomes a Cub after two months of spasmodic negotiations is entirely a matter of the St. Louis owners being satisfied with money. They were ready to peddle him on that basis in December, but Rip Collins, the Rochester club recruit who is billed to succeed the veteran, developed an illness which was serious enough to convince the Cardinal bosses that they had best proceed cautiously. Since then Collins has recovered his health and the present intention, according to report, is to unload Bottomley.

So far this winter the ankle Rog broke sliding into a base last May 30 or the heel on which an operation was performed a year ago haven't bothered him despite strenuous daily exercise. He'll know more about them after a few days of charging around in baseball togs at Catalina.

Sheriff John Fred Blake greeted President Veeck on his return yesterday and secured a new contract. The West Virginian, who has had his ups and downs on the pitching hill for the Cubs during the last three years, said he felt fine and expected a good season in 1931.

Enter Capone Into Florida's Fight Comedy

Ignore Ban

Miami, Fla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Suspension of Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, by the National Boxing association, will not affect his fight with Jimmy Maloney here March 5, Frank Bruen, promoter of the bout, said today.

"Maloney and Carnera have signed to fight in Miami, and they are going to fight," Bruen said. "I can't see where it will have any effect on the local fight, for Florida is not a member of the N. B. A., but I will investigate the charges brought against Carnera."

Gen. John V. Clinnin, N. B. A. president, said in Chicago the suspension was in support of the International Boxing union and the Pugilistica Italian, which barred Carnera for failure to carry out a boxing contract in Italy.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, N. Y., Jan. 31.—News of a most sinister nature is to hand from Miami, Fla., where the boys are trying to promote a couple of winter prizefights.

Frank Bruen, of the Miami horse track, plans to present Primo Carnera and Jimmy Maloney in a revival of their act, which scored quite a high note on the cash registers in Boston last fall. Pa Stribling, in collaboration with the Madison Square garden firm of New York, is proceeding with arrangements to reopen the Garden's branch store for one night only with a slashing contest between Johnny Risko, the stale gingerbread man, and Mickey Walker.

Not Enough Customers.

However, there are not really sufficient customers in Florida to support one prizefight in the customary style, and the garden firm's decision to split this patronage by moving in first with a counter attraction has aroused resentment on Mr. Bruen's side. Mr. Bruen selected March 5 as his date and Pa Stribling has decided that Feb. 24 would be a nice evening for his presentation. But Mr. Bruen hired his fighters and named his date first.

Intimations are now being conveyed that Alphonse Capone is a friend of Bruen's and will regard any attempt on the part of the garden and Pa Stribling to anticipate Bruen's production as an act of muscling. Mr. Capone's method of dealing with those who muscle in on his territorial rights is well known and dispatches from Florida of the kind known as inspired suggest that vigorous steps will be taken by Mr. Capone to impress the intruders with the sanctity of territorial rights.

Just a Broken Leg or So.

These dispatches do not go so far as to say that the branch store will be blown up together with the customers, but it is implied that Mr. Jack Kearns, the manager of Mickey Walker, might be taken down with a serious case of broken leg unless he should decide to withdraw his gladiator. Broken leg never develops gradually, but occurs overnight.

Or there might be a case of spontaneous combustion in the Garden firm's wooden arena some night before Feb. 24. This would not be at all surprising, as the arena is made of southern pine, which is highly inflammable and likely to start burning on its own initiative or with very little encouragement at any time, but especially so at a time when muscling is going on and resentment is rife.

Call for Mr. Carey.

In addition to the dispatches there has been an expensive telephone call, collect, to Mr. Will Carey, the president of the Garden, from a sincere friend in Florida, urging him to reconsider the rash plan if only on the ground that two exhibition bouts on Pa Stribling's program by Max Schmeling and William Stribling, will tend to incriminate and degrade the Schmeling-Stribling contest next summer.

Mr. Carey quickly disavowed responsibility for the production in Florida, insisting that his firm had merely leased the branch store for Feb. 24. But he is deeply puzzled about the matter of the territorial rights. It was his impression that these rights belonged to the Garden on the ground of discovery, settlement, and cash subsidy, but of course he does not wish to argu them with any one so obdurate and impulsive as Alphonse Capone. Moreover, his naturally open and trustful disposition is troubled by suspicion regarding the sincerity of his sincere friend, who is also a sincere friend of Mr. Bruen.

It's All Very Confusing.

"I do not like to entertain suspicions of people's motives," says Mr. Carey, "but the prize fighting business is very confusing at times. I often sit down quietly and ask myself what it is all about. One sportsman tells me one thing and another sportsman looks me in the eye and tells me that the first one had an angle and was trying to mislead me. Then another one tells me that they both had angles and both distorted the facts. Why do people try to deceive me all the time?"

Only a few weeks ago when Mr. James Bronson asked Mr. Carey what he thought of Schmeling and Stribling he replied, "Well, to be perfectly frank with you, I never schmell nor strible." And it was just last week that, becoming exasperated by the criticism of his boxing matches in the

KELLY INSISTS CHICAGO PROFIT BY TITLE FIGHT

Gen. Clinnin Replies to Strotz Query.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Soldiers' field will not be leased to Madison Square Garden of New York or any other organization promoting a heavyweight championship fight between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling unless the proceeds are donated to Chicago charities. This was the dictum yesterday of Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, in reply to a telegraph query from Sidney N. Strotz, president of the Chicago Stadium.

Strotz and his directors, on the advice of their attorneys that the proposed invasion of Chicago by Madison Square Garden only could be accomplished by evasion of the Illinois boxing law, have threatened to enjoin the state athletic commission from issuing a license to the Garden. Then Friday night Strotz telegraphed President Kelly:

Strotz Queries Kelly.

"It is reported that Madison Square Garden still is endeavoring to promote a Schmeling-Stribling championship bout at Soldiers' field in June. What is your stand on the use of a Chicago memorial stadium under the guise of charity when the proceeds will go to a New York charity?"

"The commissioners of the south park district who control the leasing of Soldiers' field are concerned first and always with Chicago's needs. This memorial stadium cannot be used by a corporation or group of promoters for the benefit of outsiders," Mr. Kelly said.

"Charity begins at home. We have our own needy and it is our duty to care for them. I am for Chicago industries and Chicago labor. I would not consider any plan by which Soldiers' field, built by Chicago taxes, will be used to raise funds for a New York charity."

Garden Still Divided.

While the edict of the south parks yesterday apparently blocked the way for an outdoor championship fight here in June, Madison Square Garden and an associated group seeking a site for Schmeling's title defense also seemed to have a divided purpose, according to news dispatches.

W. S. Farnsworth, one of the sponsors of the New York milk fund, which is said to control the champion Max Schmeling, was quoted in news from Miami, Fla., as saying that Chicago had been eliminated as a site for the championship bout. However, William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, which had coöperated in previous New York charity bouts, for which service it is said the Garden received half of the net receipts, insisted last night that Chicago still was under consideration.

Evidently Farnsworth and Damon Runyon, who is assisting in the milk fund arrangements, had neglected to notify President Carey of their "decision" to pass by Chicago. Farnsworth's pronouncement read in part as follows:

Say Chicago Is Out.

"We have decided that Chicago is out. The statement made by George Getz, Illinois boxing commissioner, that the New York milk fund could not share in the profits of a Schmeling-Stribling fight in Chicago has resulted in our seeking bids from three other cities."

It is believed that Detroit, Cleveland and Jersey City are under consideration. New York was eliminated when the New York boxing commission suspended Schmeling for his refusal to meet Jack Sharkey. Schmeling chose rather to defend his title against Young Stribling.

Farnsworth went on to warn Madison Square authorities that "it will be a sad day" for them "if they break with the milk fund," pointing out that the Garden netted nearly $150,000 from its share of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight last summer.

Stadium officials have attacked their rival promotional corporation, the New York Garden, on the basis that the Garden cannot legally promote in Illinois; that the Stadium, which to a large extent fosters and supports boxing in Illinois, has not been accorded impartial treatment, and that the combination of the Garden and the New York milk fund would profit a foreign competitor and an out of town charity.

Clinnin Answers Strotz.

Friday night Mr. Strotz telegraphed a questionnaire to Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission. Gen Clinnin yesterday answered, basing his replies largely on assertion that neither Madison Square Garden, nor any other promoter, had applied to the Illinois commission for a license. Gen. Clinnin's letter follows:

Mr. Sidney N. Strotz, Chicago Stadium corporation, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir: Replying to your night letter of Jan. 30, 1931, which no doubt has accomplished its objective before reaching me, inasmuch as same is carried in this morning's press, nevertheless calls for a courteous answer, which is hereinafter set forth in detail.

Question No. 1—Is it true that the Illinois athletic commission is so interested in Madison Square Garden that one of its members is now in New York conferring with Garden officials?

Answer—It is not true that the Illinois athletic commission has any inter-

SHUTE HOLDS HIS LEAD AT TEXAS $6,500 TOURNEY

Cards 137 to Lead at the Half Way Mark.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Leading the Texas open golf tournament has become a fixed habit with Densmore Shute, calm young professional from Columbus, O. He has been pacing the field now without a break for two years and, although he wobbled for a time today, collected himself before he finished and led the field by three strokes at the end of 36 holes with 137.

Shute had par 71 to add to 66 of yesterday and is a favorite to breeze right on through to his second straight title and $1,500 first place prize in the 36 hole final tomorrow.

Cooper, Turner Next.

Shute's closest rivals were Harry Cooper, Chicago start, and Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., each with 140 for the first two laps, two under par. Turnesa, himself a former Texas open champion, added 71 to his 69 of yesterday, while Cooper fell off to a 72, compared with 68 on the opening round.

Cooper, playing in the same threesome with Shute, caught the Columbus star going out today and passed him by a stroke at the start homeward, but could not hold it. After taking 39, three over par on the out nine, Shute regained form to come in in 32. A gallery of 2,000 followed Shute, Cooper, and Horton Smith, New York threat. Smith contributed 71 to place his 36 hole total at 144, along with John Golden, Agua Caliente open champion from Stanford, Conn., and Frank Walsh, Chicago.

Lally, Cox Tie for Third.

Tied for third place with 141 were Tom Lally, San Antonio, who carded 72 today, and Whiffy Cox, Brooklyn, who registered 70 to tie Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., for the day's low. Although the course was dry, scores ran consistently higher than yesterday, when 21 equaled or bettered par.

Grouped at 142 were three well known professionals, including Ralph Guldahl, Dallas ace. Jack Forrester, veteran from Oradell, N. J., posted a pair of 71's along with Guldahl, while Francis Schneider of Dallas placed a 73 with his 69 of the previous day.

E. James Gives Jimmy Moran $10,000 Ride

New Orleans, La., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Eugene James, king of apprentice jockeys, was astride Jimmy Moran to give Mose Goldblatt the winning combination in the $10,000 New Orleans handicap at the Fair Grounds today.

Back of the four year old son of Lucky Hour-Memento at the end of the mile and one-sixteenth journey trailed 14 of the winter's best handicap performers. A length back, in second place, followed Rocket Glare one half of the lightly weighted S. W. Labrot entry, while third went to Playtime of the Southland stable.

Backed by two previous victories and the crowd's remembrance of James' many sensational rides, Jimmy Moran went to the post the favorite paying $6.20 for a $2 mutuel. He was close up from the start, raced a trifle wide to get ample room, and then held his field safe in a stretch drive.

Approximately 20,000 saw the seventh running of the handicap over a mile and a sixteenth.

Storm, finishing fourth, went into the rail near the paddock after the finish, but his jockey escaped injury.

AUSTIN RUNNERS WIN TRIANGULAR MEET AT U. OF C.

Austin High's track teams won a triangular meet with University High and Bowen at Bartlett gymnasium yesterday morning. The Austin seniors scored 42 points against University's 33 and Bowen's 24. The juniors ran up a total of 29, University placing second with 21, while Bowen garnered only 4.

The Austin seniors clinched their victory in the relay. Kassay, Fusco, Murphy and Moore composed the winning quartet. Their time was 1:3.3. August Siniscalchi featured for the Austin juniors. Moore of the Austin seniors and Block of University High tied in the 50 yard dash, both turning in a time of :5.5.

Name 35 for U. S. All-Star Track Squad

Equals World Mark

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Monty Wells, former Dartmouth hurler, equaled the world's record of 5 4-5 seconds for the 45 yard high hurdles here tonight and successfully defended his New England A. A. U. championship. He was competing in the tenth annual Prout memorial games at the Boston Garden under Boston A. A. colors.

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The all-America track team of 1930, selected each year by Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic union, shows that life on the track is as a rule a short and not always merry one.

Of the 35 places on the team only twelve of the 1929 all-Americas retain their standing for 1930. Two, Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C. and Gus Moore, Brooklyn Harriers' star, formerly of the University of Pittsburgh, are again on the team, but listed for different places.

The 1930 team also records the passing of Pat McDonald, grand old man of American track and field sports, who was supplanted as 56 pound weight throwing champion by Leo Sexton, former Georgetown athlete, now of the New York A. C.

The full team follows:

*60 YARDS—Jack Elder, Notre Dame.
*70 YARDS—James Daley, Holy Cross.
100 YARDS—Frank Wykoff, U. S. C.
*220 YARDS—George Simpson, Ohio State.
300 YARDS—John Lewis, Detroit City college.
*440 YARDS—Reginald F. Bowen, University of Pittsburgh.
*600 YARDS—Bernard McCafferty, Holy Cross.

KRONE VISIONS MAT BATTLE OF LONDOS, GEORGE

Doc Krone, Chicago wrestling promoter, was attempting yesterday to bring together Jim Londos and Don George, the two leading claimants of the heavyweight championship, in a match here for the world's title.

"I have the consent of Londos, and his manager, Ed White, to try to get George in the same ring within the next 60 days," said Krone. "Jim Londos will ask the champion's end, while George would get the challenger's end.

"I will give 25 per cent of the gross receipts, less state tax, to Gov. Emmerson's state unemployed fund, through its chairman, George Getz."

Krone said that White will post $5,000 with the Illinois athletic commission as proof of his good faith in consenting to send Londos against the former University of Michigan athlete.

est whatsoever in the Madison Square Garden, and no member of the Illinois commission, as representing the commission, is conferring with the Madison Square Garden officials. Mr. George F. Getz is in New York attending to personal business matters pertaining to his industries. If he has seen fit to make a social call upon Mr. William F. Carey or members of the New York athletic comission, such courtesy cannot be considered a crime or misdemeanor, nor are his acts, as an indidivual, binding upon the Illinois state athletic commission. The commission has implicit confidence in the integrity and high character of George F. Getz, both as a citizen of Chicago, with Chicago's interests always at heart, and as a fellow member of the commission, where his official acts have always been for the best interests of the boxing and wrestling game in Illinois.

No Application Received.

Question No. 2—Why have officials of Madison Square Garden conducted negotiations for the proposed fight in Chicago through only one member of the Illinois commission? Why hasn't the entire commission been consulted?

Answer—No application for permit or official communication of any kind has been received by the Illinois state athletic commission from the Madison Square Garden or any of its officials. The Illinois state athletic commission has no knowledge of any negotiations being conducted with any individual member of the commission and does not believe that any such negotiations have taken place.

Question No. 3—Why did Madison Square Garden attempt to get one of the commissioners to promote the fight?

Answer—The commision has no knowledge of any such attempt, but would assume that inasmuch as Mr. George F. Getz was so successful in promoting the Dempsey-Tunny fight, that it would be good business upon the part of any promoter to secure his coöperation in a second championship event. Mr. Getz has repeatedly stated that he would not promote any fight, nor would he loan his name to any venture whatever, while acting as a member of the Illinois state athletic commission.

Will Help Chicago.

Question No. 4—[a] Is Chicago, to be asked to contribute to New York's unemployed?

Answer—Not being a fortune teller, the commission cannot foretell the future.

[b] What has New York done for Chicago's unemployed?

Answer—The New York commission, by its act in driving the heavyweight championship out of the State of New York, has aided and assisted Chicago's unemployed, providing the heavyweight contest comes to Chicago.

Question No. 5—Why hasn't Madison Square Garden emphasized that it received one-half of the profits in the Schmeling-Sharkey charity bout?

Answer—The Illinois state athletic commission cannot answer this question, inasmuch as said contest was under the jurisdiction of the New York state athletic commission and all records, etc., pertaining to said contest are in the files of the said commission, or at least should be.

The Illinois state athletic commission has repeatedly stated that as a commission it cannot prejudge matters that have never been submitted officially to the commission. At the present time there is no application pending for a permit to conduct a heavyweight championship contest in Chicago by any person, club, corporation, or association. In the event that an application is made, the Illinois state athletic commission will be guided by the law of Illinois and the rules of the commission. Any promoter who meets the requirements of the law and the rules of the commission will be granted a permit.

Yours very truly,
ILLINOIS ATHLETIC COMMISSION,
Gen. John V. Clinnin, Chairman.

SIXTH CORPS POLOISTS BEAT BROOKLYN, 9-4

The Sixth Corps area polo team defeated the Brooklyn Riding and Driving club, national indoor champions, in the 124th field artillery armory last night, 9 to 4. The Sixth Corps squad will meet North Shore in the final match of the tournament tonight.

In the opening game of the meet, the North Shore trio triumphed over the Chicago Riding club, 5 to 3½. Fitzpatrick, playing No. 2 for the Chicago team, scored three goals, while Maj. Frank Bering contributed one, but Fitzpatrick's last goal was ruled a foul, which counted as a half point.

Lieut. Reed featured for the Sixth Corps team, scoring five goals. The victors substituted for the 124th field artillery team, which withdrew from the tournament because of the illness of Capt. Lee Everett.

Capt. Warren Sackman, former Chicagoan, and member of the Brooklyn open championship team for three years, was injured in the last chukker. Capt. Sackman, riding fast on a new polo pony, ran into the east wall of the armory.

The lineups follow:

SIXTH CORPS AREA [9].		BROOKLYN [4].
Hunter	No. 1	Pflug
Reed	No. 2	Webster
Smith	Back	Sackman

Goals—Pflug, Webster, Smith, Sackman [2], Hunter [3], Reed [5].

Enter Capone Into Florida's Fight Comedy

New York papers, he called one of the experts before him and with the severe manner of an executive admonishing a subordinate said: "I warn you that I will stand just so much criticism."

"And then what are you going to do?" the expert inquired.

Al a Valuable Servant.

If the present situation marks the beginning of an active supervision of the prize fight industry by Mr. Capone, I should say that the industry had acquired a valuable servant, with ideal qualifications to serve as the Will Hays or the Judge Landis of pugilism. Mr. Capone has an excellent knowledge of just what the public will stand and, unlike the various prize fight commissions which have made ineffectual efforts to compel the boys to be nice, he is qualified to enforce his edicts or else.

Considering his record in other lines of business, I should think that if Commissioner Capone ordered Max Schmeling to fight Jack Sharkey, and nobody else, the boys would fight. Similarly, if, for the good of the game he ordered the Garden firm to desist from harmful competition against the interests of the Chicago Stadium or some other deserving promoter, such as Mr. Bruen, the Garden would desist.

Miami has never appreciated the power for good which her unacknowledged first citizen of the winter season could exert if he were bidden to do so.

Offered to Help Gamblers.

He offered his services as the Mussolini of the gambling industry, which was becoming quite disorderly, due to unregulated competition, promising a clean, honest business administration, but the public officials forbade gambling altogether. Well, perhaps not altogether, but almost altogether, and then, a few nights ago, a party of lawless characters with shotguns entered one of the gambling parlors and held up the bank in utter, cynical disrespect for the law.

But I believe that in time the two Miamis will come to respect Mr. Capone and avail themselves of his genius. They are not really hostile to him even now. They are very impatient and severe with impecunious derelicts who sit in all-night lunchrooms uttering dangerous un-American sentiments, and a party of them tarred and feathered a communist last summer, dumping him in the street from an automobile after he had been taught a lesson in respect for American institutions.

Didn't Try It with Al.

But the same posse has never made any attempt to instill a similar respect for American institutions in Mr. Capone. In the first place, Mr. Capone and his bodyguard always go well heeled, and then, anyway, he is an American institution himself.

Like Mr. Carey, I am naturally trustful and do not like to question people's motives, but I hear and see so much that is confusing and conflicting that I am wondering if perhaps the boys in Florida are not making unauthorized use of Mr. Capone's name to stimulate interest in their boxing matches. He should copyright his name and take legal steps to prevent unworthy exploitation of it for private gain.

Campbell Does 200 M.P.H. in 1st Speed Test

Daytona Beach, Fla., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Capt. Malcolm Campbell gave Bluebird, his trim racing car, it's first test of speed on the beach here today by clicking off nearly 200 miles an hour on a practice trial preliminary to his proposed shot at the world's straightaway record.

A crowd watched the veteran British driver send his 1,450 horsepower machine roaring along over a slightly ruffled beach, on the first run it has made since leaving its factory in England. His tachometer or motor speed indicator, registered approximately 192 miles an hour at top speed.

He said he was highly pleased and pronounced the car virtually in condition for official runs.

On the second of his two trials today, Campbell averted what might have been a "tight pinch," as he described it, by stopping his speeding machine just short of a beach crowd.

Traveling at 175 to 180 miles an hour, he saw the spectators a mile and a half ahead, and burned out his brakes stopping.

Campbell described the beach today as being only fair.

"It was not bad," he said, "but certainly not good enough for a record attempt. The course has been improving and I hope for a record beach soon."

He said he would not take his car to the beach tomorrow, but hoped to do so Monday. His mechanics will repair the damaged brakes over the week-end.

HESS CATCHES A COLD ON EVE OF CANZONERI BOUT

"It's Just Another Tough Break."

Tony Canzoneri will not fight Goldie Hess at the Stadium Wednesday night. Hess, who is suffering a light attack of influenza, was removed from the card last night on advice of Dr. Mitchell S. Corbett, attending physician.

"Hess had a temperature of 104 Friday night and, while he is much improved now, I do not believe he will be strong enough to engage in a ten round bout," Dr. Mitchell said.

Hess was reported resting easily last night in his suite at the Southmoor hotel.

"It's just another tough break for Goldie," Harvey Pettit, Hess' manager said. "We had hoped to show Chicago what Goldie can do with proper preparation. When Goldie met Canzoneri in the east he took the bout on short notice. Tony's margin of victory was close, and we believe Goldie would reverse the decision at the Stadium."

The Stadium program of four ten round bouts will be held, Nate Lewis said last night. The Stadium matchmaker, if possible, will submit a list of substitute boxers to the Illinois Athletic commission today. It is expected that an opponent will be named no later than tomorrow morning, but the commission must consent to the substitution and waive the rule which requires fighters to train in Chicago five days before their bouts.

Maybe Berg Will Fight.

Herman Perlick, Kalamazoo, Mich., who was defeated Friday night in New York by Jack Berg, was discussed yesterday as an opponent for Tony. Cecil Payne also was mentioned. Payne is said to have defeated Bud Taylor in a bout on the Pacific coast.

José Santa, the extra sized Portuguese heavyweight, arrived yesterday to prepare for his ten round bout with Knute Hanson. Santa is worthy of notice if for no other reason than his proportions. He's 6 feet 9 inches tall and his weight is estimated at 265 pounds. José is 25 years old and has been fighting for five years. Inasmuch as he was born on Christmas day, his name suggests the handiwork of a clever publicity agent. However, if his record is half as good as admitted, he will be an attraction.

Tables Show He's Good.

According to these tabulations Santa has had thirty-five fights. He is said to have won twenty-eight by knockouts and six others by decision. Pierra Charles holds a 15 round victory over the Portuguese. Santa has fought twice in this country and won both, although it is said he was knocked down in each encounter.

Tony Canzoneri, already in excellent condition because of his recent fight with Johnny Farr, is training today while his manager helps pick his opponent Wednesday night.

The other ten round bouts remain without change. Georgie Nate faces Kid Francis and Larry Johnson meets Marty Gallagher.

DALE LETTS SETS MAROON RECORD IN HALF MILE RUN

Chicago Beats Boilermakers, 52⅓ to 33⅔.

Dale Letts of Chicago set a new Bartlett gymnasium record in the half mile yesterday afternoon in a dual track meet with Purdue. The Maroons were victorious, 52⅓ to 33 2-3.

Letts stepped away from the field to win the 880 yard event in 1:57.9. The old record of 1:58.3 was held by James Cusack, former Maroon.

Last week Letts set a new Bartlett mark in the mile run, negotiating that distance on the 12 lap board track in 4:21.4. Summaries:

50 YARD DASH—Won by East, Chicago; Odom, Purdue, second; Wallace, Chicago, third. Time, :05.5.

50 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Black, Chicago; Bibb, Chicago, second; Haydon, Chicago, third. Time, :06.8.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Brainard, Chicago; Flinn, Purdue, second; Nelson, Chicago, third. Time, 4:26.9.

440 YARD RUN—Won by Cameron, Chicago; Miller, Purdue, second; Chasey, Purdue, third. Time, :53.1.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Kelly, Chicago; Lewrie, Chicago, second; Strainahan, Purdue, third. Time, 10:02.3.

880 yard run—Won by Letts, Chicago; Doyle, Purdue, second; Holt, Chicago, third. Time, 1:57.9 [new gym record].

POLE VAULT—Birney, Chicago; Gohl and Rouse, Purdue, tied for first. Height, 11 feet.

SHOT PUT—Won by Toigo, Chicago; Betswatskas, Chicago, second; Johnson, Chicago, third. Distance, 36 feet 9¾ inches.

HIGH JUMP—Creager and Hollingsworth, Purdue, tied for first; Reynolds and Hartman, Purdue, and Black, Chicago, tied for third. Height, 5 feet 8 inches.

EIGHT LAP RELAY—Won by Purdue [Odom, Miller, Chasey, Doyle]. Time, 2:14.4.

Weasel Doesn't Pack a Gun, but He's Racketeer

BY BOB BECKER.

Although some of our largest game animals lead a pretty quiet life during the cold winter months, because they dig deep into their dens or underground burrows and sleep, there is one small fellow that is keeping up his daily outdoor program of hunting irrespective of weather. This is the weasel, the long, slim, active killer.

A few days ago when we were tramping along the high bluffs overlooking Lake Michigan north of Chicago we picked up the trail of a weasel and followed it for quite a distance. There was about three or possibly four inches of snow on the ground, so it was easy to check the trail of the little killer, who apparently was trying to pick up a nice fat rabbit. Tracks of the latter were abundant on the hillside.

The weasel, as the sign in the snow indicated, was just taking it easy on his hunting expedition. When his trail finally ended in a big pile of logs and branches stacked in the bottom of a ravine, we had a hunch that one or more rabbits which usually find a refuge in that cover had had a mighty uncomfortable time.

States War on Weasel.

Nearly every state ranks the weasel as a predator whose numbers must be kept way down if the quail, grouse, pheasants, partridges and other game birds are going to have the best chances to raise their broods of chicks. Pennsylvania traps hundreds of them every year and pays a bounty on them. Just recently we learned that Michigan state trappers took 113 weasels in 1929 and 152 in 1930, comparatively small numbers for that state. However, more hundreds are taken each year by independent trappers who sell the weasel pelts along with mink, muskrat, and other furs.

The weasel can live close to civilization, so within a few miles of Chicago's loop it still is possible to pick up a number of these animals by carefully placed traps. Although he is a bloodthirsty rascal—often killing just for the sheer love of it—we must confess to a genuine admiration for this little "racketeer" of the forest. He is so bold and so full of fight that we like him, although we know that he is bad medicine for small animals and birds.

White Coat Protects Him.

Right now the weasel is wearing a stylish coat of winter fur, pure white in color. Nature gives him a dandy break in this protective coloration. In the spring this white coat is replaced with a brown one. The winter coat of white is mighty handy, especially in those states where snow comes early and stays late. It enables the weasel to take the track of a big white snow shoe hare and remain almost invisible while he stalks his prey.

ENGLISH WOMEN GOLF STARS TO ARRIVE TUESDAY

New York, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—Miss Diana Fishwick, British women's golf champion, and her party of 15, will be tendered a reception when they arrive in New York on Tuesday.

A large delegation of American women golf stars, headed by Miss Glenna Collett, five times national champion, will meet the British party at the pier. Miss Collett was runner-up to Miss Fishwick in the British championship last year.

The British players will remain here until Saturday when they will leave for St. Augustine to compete in three Florida east coast championships.

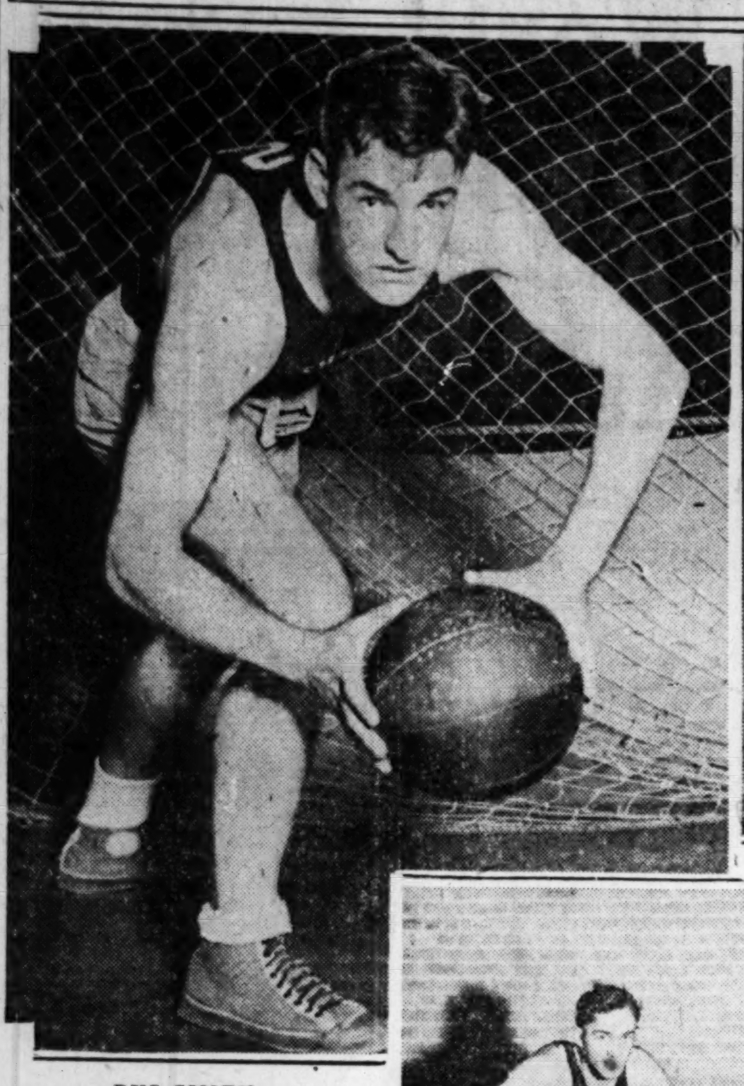
Father of John McMahon, Boxing Promoter, Dies

John J. McMahon, father of Johnny McMahon, boxing promoter and wrestling referee, died yesterday from injuries sustained when he was struck by a motor truck last Tuesday. He failed to regain consciousness. He was 68 years old. Before his retirement he was for many years an official of the street car men's union. Funeral services will be held Monday from Roger Sheehy's understanding establishment, 7653 South Halsted street.

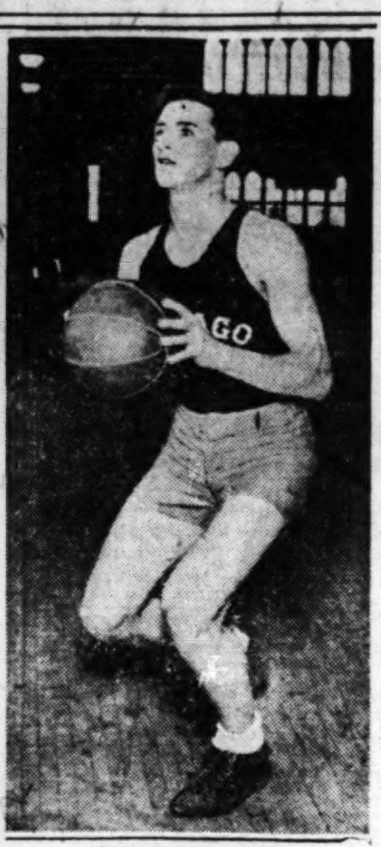
Chicago Checker Title Play Starts on Feb. 15

Play for the Chicago checker championship will begin Feb. 15 at the Chicago Checker and Chess club, 155 North Clark street.

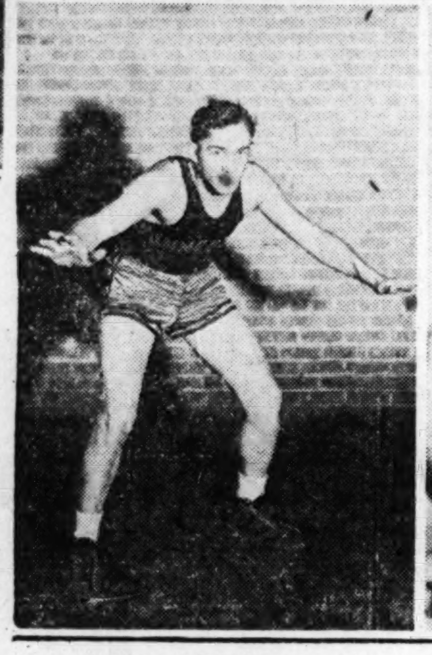
EARLY SEASON BASKETBALL STARS



BUS SMITH
[Guard, Northwestern]



SIDNEY YATES



MIKE CIELUSAK
[Guard, Minnesota]

CLARION VELLER
[Guard, Indiana]

Every Big Ten basketball race produces a new crop of star players. The 1931 group includes Bus Smith, Northwestern guard, who has played great ball since Bob Lockhart was injured; Yates, Chicago spark plug and high scorer; Veller, Indiana's veteran guard, and Cielusak, who plays guard for Minnesota.

LOYOLA TURNS BACK DETROIT QUINTET, 25-20

Dick Butzen led a fighting Loyola quintet to victory over the University of Detroit last night, 25 to 20, at the Loyola gymnasium. He led the Rambler scoring with four field goals and two free throws to lead Bob Schulmann, who counted seven points.

At half time the invaders led with a 10 to 9 margin after both teams had decided on a five man defense.

The second half saw Loyola take the advantage on free throws, especially toward the end.

Aaron, Detroit guard, was the center of the visitors' attack and defense. He scored three baskets and a free throw in addition to smearing Loyola advances time and again.

The game was anybody's battle until the final minute, when Joe Wagner sank his free tosses and Butzen ran in on an underbasket shot a half minute later to clinch victory. Lineup:

LOYOLA [25].	B	F	P	DETROIT [20].	B	F	P

K. OF C. QUINTETS TO QUALIFY FOR TITLE PLAY TODAY

With more than half of the 49 teams in the league still in the running for divisional honors and a chance to play in the championship round, fast and furious battles are expected to mark this afternoon's play in the Knights of Columbus Basketball league.

Perez will play McHale and Englewood meets Dowling in the feature south division games, where four teams are tied for first place. In the west division, a three way tie seems possible with Damen meeting Carroll and Hennepin-Shields battling Americus.

The championship round will start March 22 at the Coliseum. The first three teams in each section will qualify for titular play, but five to seven teams are in the running in each section. The schedule:

SOUTH DIVISION.
[White City.]
Perez vs. McHale.
Dowling vs. Englewood.
La Rabida vs. Calumet.
Aquinas vs. Auburn Park.

SOUTH END DIVISION.
[Fenger High school.]
St. Philip Neri vs. Ridge.
Genoa vs. San Salvador.
Garcia Marene vs. Santa Maria.

WEST DIVISION.
[4711 W. Madison-st.]
Americus vs. Hennepin-Shields.
Setters vs. Tonti.
Damen vs. Carroll.
Feehan vs. Barry.

NORTHWEST DIVISION.
[4300 W. North-av., 3:15 p. m.]
Cardinal vs. Washington.
Ketteler vs. Lafayette.
Hughes vs. Oak Park.

NORTH DIVISION.
[Broadway Armory.]
De Soto vs. St. Cyr.
Marquette vs. Fr. O'Connor.
Columbus vs. O'Connell.
Brownson vs. University.

CENTRAL DIVISION.
[52d and Cottage Grove.]
Ft. Dearborn vs. St. Patrick.
St. Rita vs. Madonna.
Leo XIII. vs. St. James.
De La Salle vs. Sa. Augustine.

TOM WARNE, N. U. VAULT STAR, MAY BE OUT FOR YEAR

Tom Warne, star pole vaulter and captain of Northwestern university's track team, may be unable to compete this year, due to an injury to his ankle. Tom broke a bone in his right ankle at the National A. A. U. championships last summer, and the injury continues to give him trouble. He underwent an operation recently, and it is considered unlikely that he will be able to vault during the coming season.

Pell and Mortimer Win National Racquet Title

Clarence Pell and Stanley Mortimer, New York, captured the national racquet doubles championship yesterday by defeating Robert Gardiner and Howard Linn, Chicago team, three matches out of four after a hard battle at the Racquet club. The scores were 15-6, 9-15, 15-11, and 15-7.

S. & L. Motors Shoot 3,338 in Woodlawn League

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

What's the fastest bowling league on the south side? That question is easy to answer if you talk to a member of the Woodlawn Recreation Major league.

To support the contention that the boys of the Woodlawn league put the ball squarely into the pocket, attention is called to the 3,338 total hung up by the S. & L. Motor team, which clams this is the best team series in Chicago this season.

The S. & L. Motors hold second place in the league standing, having won 40 games and lost 17. The pace setting Brucks are one game in front with 41 victories and 16 defeats. Sixteen teams are in the league. Standing:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Brucks	41	16	H. & H. Auto	30	27
S. and L Mots	40	17	Bishop Hamlin	27	30

Am. Markets	30	27	Judge Brooks	18	39
American For'e	30	27	Honey Boy	10	14

Snite Furnitures are comfortably seated on top in the Kaad No. 2 league, having registered 42 victories while losing 15 games. Cunningham Ice Cream has melted somewhat and trails by four games. E. Braun's individual average is only two shy of the double century mark. Standing:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Snite Furniture	42	15	Dutch Masters	26	28

The average bowler can see enough 200 games in one evening at the Randolph league matches to last him a year. Further evidence of the class of the league came Friday when Bjorne Petersen of the Polacki Recreations put together counts of 248, 277, and 237 for a 762 total, second highest of the season. The second place Kankakee Steamers took it on the chin in three games and slipped farther behind the Green Rivers, who dropped two out of three. The leaders:

Leading by 83 pins, the Victor Champagne Insurance five will meet Benton Harbor, Mich., this afternoon in the final block of their match game at the Schueneman West Town alleys. The Chicagoans piled up their margin three weeks ago at Benton Harbor.

A three cornered duel for first place is keeping interest afresh in the Hardware league. Yale-Norton is on top with 33 won and 12 lost. Lind Hardware and Sargent & Co. are close up with 32 and 13. F. Klem boasts the best individual average, 184. Standing:

Chicago and North Western Offices expect to overtake the leading M. & L. Typesetters within a couple of weeks in the Wilson avenue "Y" Industrial league. The runnersup are only a game behind the printers, who have won 31 and lost 17. Standing:

Members of Chicago Typographical union No. 16 are getting in shape for the fifteenth annual union printers tournament Feb. 28 and March 1 at Bensinger's Congress alleys. Entries close Feb. 14 with Gus Englehardt at 1112 North Kedvale avenue.

Earnings-Pool assumed undisputed lead in the Pullman league by winning two out of three from Earnings Gov. Bureau. They had been tied but Earnings-Pool now has a one game margin. Ed Cowen holds the individual lead by a safe margin.

BASKET TEAMS MAY LACK SPEED, HEIGHT—YET WIN

Overcome Handicaps by Clever Blocking.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

If basketball primarily were a game in which the offense could be reduced to a science, it probably would lose much of its appeal. But basketball is an uncertain game, so uncertain that no team, despite apparent advantages, can be assured it will win.

To a great extent the uncertainty of scoring has brought the stalling, or delayed type of offense. Players have been taught not to shoot until they are in the best possible position or have a chance to dribble in under the basket for a shot which scarcely can be missed. By these tactics coaches have attempted to eliminate the "off nights" when star shooters, playing with the same speed on the floor as on nights when they broke away for ten field goals, fail to connect with the easiest of shots.

Luck Governs Some Shots.

Then, too, there's the luck which permits one shot to bound from the basket and fall in, while another, better executed attempt, falls outside.

Speed, height, and accurate passing are essential factors in a basketball victory. Unless the team is unusually erratic, scoring will take care of itself, for men who are fast and accurate in their passing also are good shots. A field goal is only an accurate pass at the basket.

A team with these three essentials scarcely needs a complicated blocking game to clear the path to its goal. However, if blocking is added, that team becomes invincible.

Wildcats Are Tall, Fast.

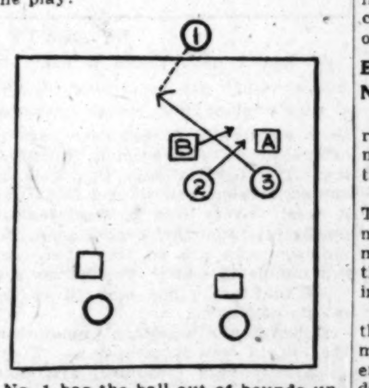
Northwestern, now leading the Western conference basketball race with four victories and no defeats, is an example. Frank Marshall and Capt. Bert Riel are exceptionally fast, while Bob McCarnes, Bus Smith, and Joe Reiff are at least average in this department. With the exception of Riel, the regulars are taller than the majority of their opponents. All are good passers, with Reiff one of the best in the conference.

So far Northwestern has scored its points either by long distance shooting or by virtue of speed which ran away from the guards without use of the block plays. Add to this that Reiff is the best pivot line man in the Big Ten [taking a pass a few feet in front of his own basket with a guard behind him and turning and shooting one handed] and you have recounted Northwestern's strength.

Where Blocking Is Needed.

The team which does not have these natural abilities [height and speed] needs a blocking, scientific style of game. It cannot outrace opponents, and it loses possession of the ball at jumps. The odds are all against it, although occasionally a player, by a series of long distance shots, will win a game single handed. The coach cannot count on this; neither does he know when it will happen.

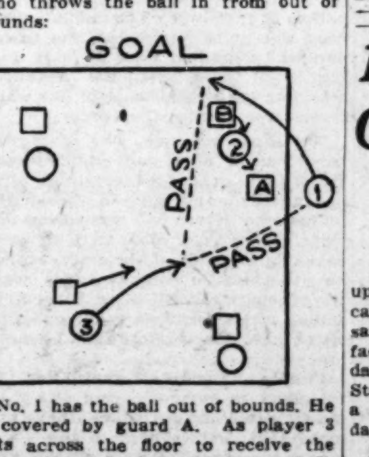
In addition to working out a system of floor play to advance the ball, and which in this basketball age generally involves blocking, coaches also give their teams specific out of bounds plays. We have seen Minnesota, Ohio State and Michigan use the following play this year when it was their ball out of bounds under their own basket. Ohio varied the play, using three men instead of two. The play has scored several times. The Gophers worked it twice on Chicago and Ohio counted one field goal against Northwestern. The play:



No. 1 has the ball out of bounds under his own goal and is covered by guard C. Player 2 [covered by guard B] fakes as if to cut in for the basket, but runs in a line to block guard A, who is covering player 3. Then No. 3 cuts away from his opponent and takes the pass from No. 1 for the shot. The play can be stopped only by guards A and B changing men.

Side Line Block Play.

Along the side line this favorite block play may work free the man who throws the ball in from out of bounds:



No. 1 has the ball out of bounds. He is covered by guard A. As player 3 cuts across the floor to receive the pass, player 2, covered by guard B, comes up to block guard A in a line with the basket. Player 1 cuts for the goal and takes a pass from player 3. If guards A and B switch men, the play can be stopped.

BAER TO BATTLE LOUGHRAN; STILL CAN MAKE GOOD

New York, Jan. 31.—[U. P.]—Max Baer, Livermore, Cal., who has almost made good in the big city, is to face his most serious boxing test this week. He will meet Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, one time light heavyweight champion, in a 10 round bout at Madison Square Garden Friday. This is the third bout here for Baer, who came out of the west on a wave of ballyhoo.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

by Westbrook Pegler

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STAMFORD, Conn., Jan. 31.—One night recently, after some routine nose punching, clinching, and savage feinting at the big store which Tex Rickard established, a party remarked: "What about one quick one before we go home?"

So we went to a place where there were some refreshment tables in the front room and a refreshment bar in the back room, and a pretty thick cigaret fog and some people sitting around the tables and other people chafing their vest buttons against the soda fountain.

Johnny Dundee sat there against a mirror, doing rope tricks with a coil of spaghetti and explaining in that little, shy-sounding voice of his why he thought he ought to get some more business in the ring.

It is odd that the actors, broadcasters and the like who wish to portray prize fighter rôles always assume that fighters invariably talk like actors and broadcasters doing prize fighter rôles. Dundee's voice is soft and somehow sounds respectful. Dempsey's is little and high, almost a whine.

Just About Everybody Was There.

Gus Wilson, the Frenchman who trained Carpentier and now runs a very elaborate cauliflower plantation down around the ankles of the Catskill foothills, where prize fighters train at so much per week, was there and so was a wet congressman who drank only coffee and remarked that the New York people were the best and the most forgiving sports in the United States.

Times, he said, undoubtedly were very tough in Arkansas, and New York would quickly go over the top in the Red Cross campaign to raise money to feed the share crop farmers. But he hadn't heard of any deaths in that distressed region and something called to mind the unworthy thought that back in 1920, when more than a hundred poor working people in the Connecticut valley near New York died from the first output of poison liquor, the general opinion of the dry southwest had been that it served them right.

Parties at another table were talking French. One of the men was Leon See, with black eyes and a tuft of fur on his upper lip about the size of a mouse—one of those mustaches that cartoonists draw on villains. Another one wore his face nude. This was Maurice Chevalier, the matinée idol of the movies.

There was another fellow with a red Irish face. His name was Bill Duffy. He is, to deny him none of his due, the most important beer dealer in New York, and with Leon See, and some others, the manager of Primo Carnera. Paulino Uzcudun was there also.

There was the sound of a door opening and muffled hoof beats along the carpet in the corridor as though some one was bringing in an elephant.

Enter a Large Gent Named Carnera.

A figure filled the entrance to the room. A face as big as a harvest moon turned a large, slow smile on the company, exposing his tusks.

Paulino got up and shook his hand. They had a fight in Barcelona a few months ago, but they both made money and business men do not carry their rivalries into their social meetings.

It had never occurred to me before this to inquire into Primo to see what made him tick, but now I made an engagement and met him the next day.

He was doing an act in vaudeville. "It's a no-good act," he said. "I punch a sort of punch bag, but the fight commission not let me box."

Leon See was not present, but Leon See's son, a pale, suspicious youth with grease on his hair and a Parisian suit of clothes, said he would act as interpreter.

"Never mind; we don't need an interpreter," I suggested.

"Well, I will stay," said Young Mr. See. "I might advise him."

"He won't need advising; I'm not selling anything."

"Well, I will stay," said young Mr. See. So he stayed.

"What you want?" Primo led off.

"Well," tactfully said I, "for a year or so I've been looking at you in the ring, and so forth, and I take you for a big, dumb cluck. So I thought I would take the trouble to find out if I have been right or wrong. Am I right?"

Young Mr. See moved in with some advice.

"I am as I am; what you see, I am," Primo said. "Ask me questions. Ask me where am I born. I am born in Sequal, Italy, near Venice. My father is in the war digging trenches and like that——"

"An engineer, a sapper," young Mr. See explained.

Kids Have Numbers, Not Names.

"When the war is over I am only 12 years old, but I am very huge, big for a boy and always hungry. I do not have enough bread; I do not have the shoes; my clothes are not good. So I go to France to work in mosaic. Sequal, where I am born, is a lot of mosaic around there. My father work in mosaic. My brother, Secundo, too, and my other brother, Savarino.

"My name is not a name. It is a number. I am number one. Secundo is number two. Around where I live many people instead of calling the children Angelo or Pietro—it is more simple to call them Primo, Secundo, and so up to twenty. Often Italian families have ten, fifteen, even twenty children. My mother is big, but mostly fat, not like me. My brothers are big, but not like me. Secundo works in London; mosaic work. Savarino did not get a number. He got a name. He works in Newark, N. J., in mosaic work. He is only 18. Nobody else is big like me.

"In France I work three years in mosaic and carpenter work, always hungry; not enough money. Now I got thirty-eight houses in California and my mother and father live in a big house I bought in Sequal.

"After the carpenter work I joined a carnival to wrestle. Some days I wrestle fifteen, twenty times; more. I am a good wrestler. Paul Journee, the old fighter, found me and told me to be a fighter, but when I am to sign the contract the circus manager says I am to sign a paper about something I do not understand. So I sign this paper, and after a long time they tell me I am a Frenchman. I am not a Frenchman but an Italian. I got the Italian consul to fix it up.

How He Gets Around Italian Army Law.

"The Italian law is so I do not have to do military duty if I do not stay three months in Italy. I stay two months and 28 days, and go up to France one day. Then I can stay two months and 28 days again. So forth. Max Schmeling is my friend socially, but I can lick him. I can lick Stribling. In London he fouled me. In Paris I knocked him out cold, but we are both punching after the bell. We do not hear the bell. When I knock him out they call it foul. But he is knocked out—both of us punching.

"To have money; it's wonderful. Five years ago, not enough food, no shoes. Today 38 houses in California and plenty money and shoes, but I don't eat much, now.

"America is a great place. I came here first on New Year's eve. Oh! Such drunk people. A crazy night. I thought they were all mad. I went to the Silver Slipper on Broadway. I take a glass of whisky. I spill some on my pants and it burns a hole in the cloth. Think what it does inside the people."

This was a faux pas. The Silver Slipper belongs to Primo's manager, Mr. Duffy, but the goods may have aged since then. I do not mean to spread a harmful report.

Anyway, that's Primo for you.

"I take a glass of whisky. I spill some on my pants and it burns a hole in the cloth."

15 Teams to Open Bike Race Next Sunday

Fifteen international teams, made up of fifteen of the outstanding American six day bicycle riders and the same number of foreign stars, will face the starter in Chicago's 25th six day bicycle race, which starts in the Stadium next Sunday. There will be a program of special races on Saturday night, preceding the grind.

Five riders will make their first appearance in a Chicago six day race. Three of them are Chicago boys. They are Steve Wagner, Tony Schaller, and Al Marxer, who are turning professional to compete in this race. The other riders are Lew Elder of Toronto and George Kroschel of Berlin, Germany.

Walthour's Form Team.

Bobby Walthour will ride with his cousin, Jimmy. Bobby has won six races, finished second six times, and third once. Five of his six victories were scored in the old Coliseum and his other in Madison Square Garden. Bobby won two races in Chicago with Reggie McNamara, one with Harry Horan, one with Freddie Spencer, and one with Franco Georgetti.

The race this year will be marked by several special nights. There will be a "Walthour night" in honor of Bobby and Jimmy; a Chicago night, and German, Belgian, and Italian nights.

Makeup of Teams.

Manager John M. Chapman has announced the makeup of eleven of the fifteen teams in the race as follows:

Bobby and Jimmy Walthour, Franco Georgetti and Paul Brocardo, Freddie Spencer and Norman Hill, Gerard Debaets and Tony Beckman, Paul Buschenhagen and George Kroschel, Alfred Letourner and Marcel Guimbretiere, Roger De Nef and Adolf Charlier, Gaetano Belloni and Pietro Linari, Reggie McNamara and Charley Winter, Tony Schaller and Steve Wagner, Mike Rodak and Al Marxer.

CHEVIGNY STAYS AT NOTRE DAME TO COACH BACKS

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Jack Chevigny will coach Notre Dame's football back field again next fall instead of assisting Navy Bill Ingram, California's new coach.

The Rev. M. A. Mulcaire, chairman of the Notre Dame athletic board of control, and Chevigny said today that, while no new contract had been signed, they had reached an agreement approved by Coach Rockne.

Harmon, Illinois College Sports Director, Resigns

Jacksonville, Ill., Jan. 31.—(AP)—W. T. Harmon, athletic director of Illinois college, resigned today. The resignation will not take effect until June 1932. Harmon has been in poor health for several years, and his condition prompted his decision to leave Illinois college. He said he had no definite plans.

NEW SCHOLASTIC STANDARDS DIM BADGERS' FUTURE

Athletic Eligibility Rules May Harm Teams.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The recently coined phrase and practice of de-emphasizing college athletics is having its repercussions on the University of Wisconsin campus.

The athletic coaching staff is seeing the "handwriting on the wall" as the result of faculty action last year, which revised the university curriculum to raise scholastic standards. The committee in charge of the revision laid such stringent athletic eligibility requirements that the coaches today admitted the success of Wisconsin's intercollegiate athletic future after the next school year is highly problematical.

Little Calls Coaches.

The situation has become so acute, it was learned today, that Athletic Director George Little has called a meeting of his staff for Monday night to discuss the eligibility requirements that will become effective when the present freshman class ends its sophomore year in June, 1932.

The attitude of the department also was mirrored in a press release today by George F. Downer, its publicity man, which said in part:

"Wisconsin athletic leaders also point out that when the new scholarship requirements for the first two years at the state university become effective, the standards of classroom work required of all students—athletes and nonathletes—will be higher than any university in the country. Meanwhile, they can see no merit in this talk of the overemphasis of football—or any other sport—at the University of Wisconsin."

Grid, Cage Coaches Speak.

While Mr. Little admitted no more than "it is a matter for consideration and we'll have to go into it," Glenn F. Thistlethwaite, football coach, and Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, basketball coach, held decided views on the matter.

"While the whole matter is still problematical," Dr. Meanwell said, "the new standards are certain to mow freshmen down. The rulings should not affect my varsity teams greatly, because my boys are imbued with a team spirit that makes them stay eligible in order to play."

Coach Thistlethwaite was not so optimistic. Himself a wearer of the Phi Beta Kappa key, the highest of scholastic awards, he sees no hope for the large majority of his players. He visualizes Wisconsin football teams as sophomore teams, teams that will be made up year after year largely of men playing their first—and usually their only—season of intercollegiate football.

The curriculum revision affects the present freshman class and all succeeding classes. At the end of the sophomore year only those students who have an average approximately 82 will be admitted to the junior year without question.

Others, who may be advanced, will be on probation, which will make them ineligible for extra-curricula activities, including athletics.

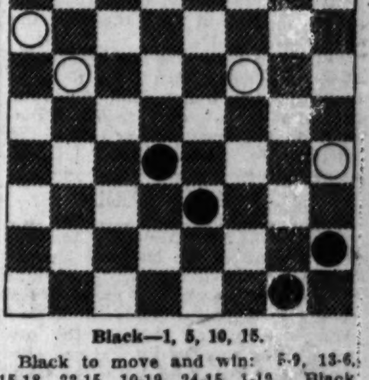
NEWELL W. BANKS

[American Champion.]

PROBLEM NO. 4.

White—13, 22, 24, 28.



Black—1, 5, 10, 15.

Black to move and win: 5-9, 13-6, 15-18, 22-15, 10-19, 24-15, 1-10. Black wins. This setup occurs often and should be remembered.

GAME NO. 4—SINGLE CORNER.

11-15, 25-22-A, 15-24, 21-14, 16-23, 22-18, 12-16, 28-19, 13-17-G, 26-19, 16-22, 24-20-B, 7-10-C, 22-13, 3-8-H, 25-18, 8-12, 32-28-D, 6-9, 30-25, 8-11, 27-24, 9-13, 13-6, 5-9-I, 29-25, 10-15, 18-14-F, 2-27, 25-22, 4-8, 24-19, 10-17, 31-24, 9-14-J. Black wins.

A—24-20 may be slightly stronger here, yet this move is in common use.

B—If 24-19, then Black gets a five game by 16-20.

C—A very tricky move that leads to many Black wins.

D—31-27 is preferable here and draws as follows: 10-15, 19-10, 6-15, 27-24, 2-7, 32-28, 16-19, 23-16, 12-19, 26-23, 19-26, 20-23, 9-14, 18-9, 5-14, 24-19, 15-24, 28-19, 7-10, 19-16-E, 1-6, 16-7, 14-18, 23-14, 10-26, 7-2, 6-10, 2-7, 10-15, 7-11, 15-19. Draw.

E—If 22-18, 1-5, 18-9, 5-14, 19-16, 10-15, 16-7, 3-10, 20-16, 15-19. Black wins.

F—A very natural looking move, yet loses in a few subsequent moves.

G—Forces a neat trap that wins in a hurry.

H—The winning move and cramps all of the White pieces.

I—The Black piece is just in time to prevent White from getting to square 18 with the idea of playing 19-16 to relieve the position.

J—The play just shown often occurs in games and the reason for showing the Black win is to enable the student to try it and see how many times it will come up.

A great deal of space will be devoted to the single corner opening, as it has so many attacks and defenses one must have a clear knowledge of all in order to become proficient.

ICE SPEEDSTERS CLASH AS HAWKS FACE CANADIENS

Morenz Leads Invasion of Stadium Tonight.

HOWIE MORENZ.

Two teams flashing the same style of attack and relying mainly on the speed of ever changing forward lines will clash at the Stadium tonight when the world's champion Montreal Canadiens will meet the Chicago Blackhawks. The game will start at 8:30 o'clock.

The teams have met twice this season — once in Chicago and once on Canadian ice—and on both occasions the Blackhawks stopped the powerful champs from scoring.

Howie Morenz, one of hockey's greatest point makers, will lead the Canadiens. He combines fine stick handling, skill, and a rifle-like shot. A powerful physique has enabled him to weather, for nine years, the most strenuous kind of hockey.

Joliat a Mighty Midget.

Howie's sidekick in the Canadiens' forward line is Aurel Joliat, left wing, known as the "Mighty Atom." He is the most temperamental player in the league and also the smallest. He leads the Canadian division in penalties. The third member of the first line is Pit Lepine, holder of the modern major league record for points acquired in a single game. Last season he scored six.

Another recruit with the same fiery complex as Joliat was added to the Canadiens' roster this year. He is Johnny Gagnon, left wing, and came from the French Canadian team of Providence of the Canadian American league, which he led both in penalties and points.

Sylvia Mantha, Battleship Leduc, and Marty Burke, and a newcomer, Art Lesieur, who joined the Stanley cup winners a few games ago, comprise the Canadiens' defense. The first three played with the team in 1928-'29 when it made a record of 22 shutouts in 44 games, with only 43 goals scored against it.

Hawks' Goalie Has Record, Too.

George Hainsworth, who was in the nets when that shutout record was made, will be opposed tonight by Chuck Gardiner, who this season has established a shutout record of nine games, four of them in a row—a difficult feat under the new forward passing rules.

The Blackhawks will pit their speedsters, Mush March, Frank Ingram, Tommy Cook, and Art Somers, against Morenz, Joliat, and Lepine, which promises the fastest game of the year on the Stadium rink.

Because of the absence of Earl Miller, who has been pronounced unfit for further hockey duty and has been sent home for the balance of the season, the Hawks' forward lines will be made up of Ripley, Couture, and Gottselig; Adams, Cook, and March, and Desjardins, Ingram, and Doc Romnes, the latter recalled from London.

The lineup:

BLACKHAWKS.		CANADIENS.
Gardiner	Goal	Hainsworth
Abel	Defense	Mantha
Wentworth	Defense	Leduc
Desjardins	Center	Morenz
Ingram	Right Wing	Lepine

SHAMROCKS AT BUFFALO

The Shamrocks will play at Buffalo tonight in the first of a series of five games which will keep them on the road until Feb. 17.

Following the game at Buffalo the Shamrocks will return home to begin training for their invasions of Kansas City and Tulsa. They face the Pla-Mors on Feb. 8 and 15 and meet the Oilers on Feb. 10 and 12.

CUP FINALS APRIL 2

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The board of governors of the National Hockey league set the dates for the annual playoffs for the Stanley cup, emblem of the world's professional hockey championship, and rejected the protest filed by the Detroit Falcons over last Tuesday's game with the Montreal Maroons at their regular monthly meeting today.

The teams which finish in the first three places in the league's two divisions are to engage in preliminary playoffs on March 24, 26, 28, and 31, the governors decided. The survivors of this series probably will begin the final series for the Stanley cup on April 2. The dates for this series, however, will depend upon the outcome of the preliminary playoffs.

Two changes of considerable importance were made in the system of playoffs for the Stanley cup. The final series for the trophy was increased to the best three out of five games. Last year, when the present system was put into effect, it was two out of three. The semi-final between the survivors of the second and third place playoffs was changed from the best two out of three games to two games, total goals to count.

In this series, as in the other two game preliminaries, there will be no overtime if the teams end the first game in a tie, but if the total score is deadlocked the teams will play an unlimited overtime session, ending when the winning goal is scored.

3 GAMES OPEN WORLD HOCKEY TOURNEY TODAY

KRYNICA, Poland, Jan. 31.—(AP)—All foreign teams competing in the international hockey tournament had arrived at this Polish health resort tonight.

Three matches will be played tomorrow, opening day of the tournament. Canada will meet France, Austria battles England, and Hungary clashes with Czecho-Slovakia.

On Monday, Rumania will meet the United States, represented by the Boston Hockey club; Sweden will play the winner of the Austria-England match, and Poland will meet the winner of the Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary game.

The United States and Canada are favorites to reach the final round.

Gets Shortstop for Turkey; Calls It a Good Trade

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Details of a now famous trade by which he acquired a shortstop, sound of wind and limb, in exchange for a 25 pound turkey were related here today by Felix Hayman, president of the Charlotte club of the South Atlantic league.

Hayman and Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga club of the Southern association, hit upon the deal at the minor league meeting at Montreal last month.

"Engel kept trying to sell me Johnny Jones," explained Hayman. "Finally he said: 'Felix, just send me a 25 pound turkey for that boy and he's yours.' I took him up.

"I figure I outsmarted Joe on that one. This is the off season for turkeys and I've got plenty right here in my butcher shop."

Open Bids This Week on Grade Separations

BY HAL FOUST.

The state highway department this week will receive bids for contracts to build four highway grade separations in Cook county. The locations are North avenue and Lake street, Archer and Kean avenues, North avenue and Mannheim road, and the Evanston-Elgin road and the Northwest highway, including the North Western railroad.

The state highway department, in the summer of 1930, widened 105 miles of pavement in the metropolitan area, a record that has been complemented for its benefits to traffic. But the state fell short of expectations in the construction of grade separations that become of more urgent necessity after widening has increased the traffic capacity of the main roads.

Today there are only two highway grade separations under construction in Cook county, one by the county highway department at Milwaukee avenue and Dempster street and the other by the state highway department at the Northwest highway and the Dundee road. Both will be completed this summer.

Work Could Have Been Done.

"Much work could have been accomplished this winter on many of the two level road crossings had the contracts been let last fall," said George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club. "There has been little weather that would interfere with this type of construction.

"Furthermore, the construction work this winter would have furnished employment for men at a time when there is much labor walking the streets of Chicago looking for jobs. And the prevailing low prices would have enabled the motoring public to obtain these permanent improvements at comparatively low cost.

Thirteen Other Projects.

"Perhaps many of the delays were unavoidable. However, the fact remains, and neither the state nor the county officials can deny it, that there is highway grade separation work that should be under construction this winter.

"There are thirteen other intersections where the county board, in a belated resolution last fall, agreed two level crossings are needed to relieve the delay and hazard of the crossing at grade."

The location of the thirteen intersections where construction of grade separations is being delayed are as follows:

Governors highway and Dixie highway.
96th avenue and 95th street.
Skokie road, Niles Center road, and Dempster street.
Waukegan road and Dempster street.
Milwaukee avenue and Evanston-Elgin highway.
Joliet road and Mannheim road.
Touhy avenue and Milwaukee avenue.
St. Charles road and Mannheim road.
Lake street and Mannheim road.
Roosevelt road and Mannheim road.
Touhy avenue and Mannheim road.
Cicero avenue, 95th street, and Southwest highway.
Skokie road and Oakton street.

Rights of Way Lacking.

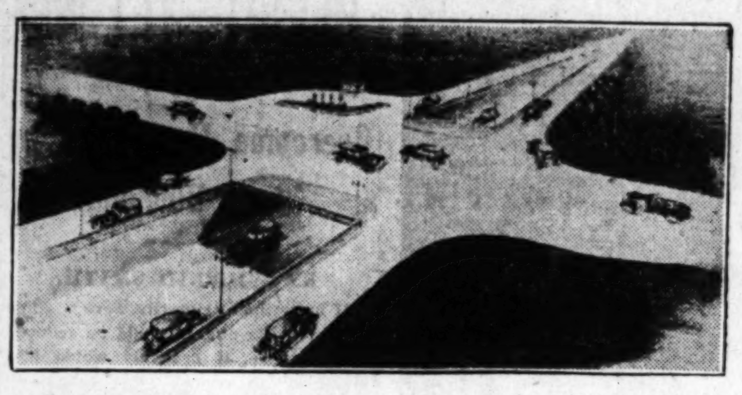
"At Roosevelt road and Mannheim road, one of the worst bottle-necks in Cook county even before the pavements were widened last year," said Engineer Barton, "the state is holding up progress by its failure to approve specifications prepared by the county and the Chicago Regional Planning association.

"Until the state approves the plans the county cannot proceed in acquiring the necessary right of way. The plans for the grade separation should have been prepared before the pavement was widened.

"The county's failure to secure right of way is responsible for the delay at the Governor's highway and Dixie highway, and at Lake street and Mannheim road.

"The delay in starting construction on the following structures can be attributed to the failure of the county and state to agree upon design: Skokie road, Dempster street, and Niles Center road; Joliet road and Mannheim road; St. Charles road and Mannheim road; and at Cicero avenue, 95th street, and Southwest highway."

UNDER CONSTRUCTION



Here is a drawing of the highway grade separation, under construction at Milwaukee avenue and Dempster street. The state highway department will let contracts for four such structures this week. Thirteen projected grade separations, sorely needed to break bottle necks, are being delayed.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

HEADLIGHTS IN WISCONSIN.

Kilbourn, Wis., Jan. 25.—In reply to R. G. Uselman regarding the dimming of the lights on his car when approaching another car in Wisconsin, permit me to enlighten him.

1. It is a state law that prohibits dim lights at all times.

2. Thousands of motorists have paid $16.50 as a fine for the very thing you request them to do.

3. The laws in Wisconsin may be "idiotic" but nevertheless they are enforced. So if you desire to enrich the county through which you are driving with your spare cash just continue to keep up the practice.

ARTHUR F. GALITZ.

HEADLIGHTS IN MICHIGAN.

Lawton, Mich., Jan. 25.—In regard to R. G. Uselman's advice to Wisconsin drivers in the matter of dimming lights, I would advise a few of the Illinois motorists driving through Michigan to take heed. I make frequent trips to Chicago and when driving at night am forced to keep my bright lights on for some selfish person who has no regard for the other fellow. In checking up on these drivers, the count points to the Illinois drivers as those who fail to observe this rule of courtesy.

While on the subject, I am going to voice my thoughts on the Illinois driver who invariably thinks that two-thirds of the highway belongs to him. More than once, traveling between South Haven and Benton Harbor, I have been forced to take to the side of the road to save the fenders of my car.

I was formerly a resident of Chicago, but I do not like the attitude of most of the drivers from the city.

MARY G. BUYS.

HEAD CLAMP FOR DRIVERS.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—I see in today's TRIBUNE that Dr. Robertson is advocating the passage of another law to regulate the driving of automobiles.

Well, well, the annual automobile show brings us a lot of political buncombe. Laws have been passed before to regulate the driving of cars but they have turned out to favor the politician more than the pedestrian.

The only way to please the scampering pedestrian is to have a law to compel each driver to attach a jig on the back of his seat. This jig having a head clamp to hold his head rigidly so his only view would be straight ahead, similar to the old photograher's "look pleasant, please," head attachment. This would assure the pedestrian the driver was looking in the direction he was going.

THOS. O. GRAY.

HEADLIGHTS IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Would suggest that you do what you can to enforce the state law requiring a prominent display of two headlights on automobiles. A one lighted vehicle is a great hazard in night driving, as you never know which light it is that is out and consequently never know how much room to allow in passing. This law is enforced to the letter in Wisconsin.

HAWLEY D. EALY.

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Will you please print the following question: "Does insurance lead towards careless driving and if so what would be your remedy?"

I would like to have the opinions of other drivers on this question for this reason: In July, 1929, I bought a new car, took the best of care of it, cuddled it, wrapped it up at night and everything a loving parent would do to his nice new shiny car.

For some reason or other the newness and neatness of this car aroused the jealousies of other drivers, with the result that they rammed their car into mine five times, three of these times while my car was standing quiet and inoffensive at the curb. Each tim I received the mimeographed and uncopyrighted answer, "O, I am insured."

The trouble and loss of the use of my car during repairs have no considerations. I am getting so tired of being run into by careless drivers that I would like to organize a necktie party for this type of driver.

Bruins and Majestics to Clash Tonight

Is professional basketball superior to the collegiate brand exemplified by the leading independent teams around Chicago? That question will receive an answer tonight at the Broadway armory when the Bruins meet the Majestics in the opening game of a series for the city championship.

The Majestics are representative of the collegiate caliber of basketball. Maury Farber and Bud Foster of Wisconsin, Tommy Cunningham of De Paul, and Herbie Lutz of Crane college, are listed in their lineup, while Elmer Hooker has long been an outstanding amateur and semipro performer around Chicago.

The Bruins play the typical pro game, with close man-to-man guarding, short passing, and no shooting until a block leaves a man open.

The Bruins rely upon Whitey Wickhorst and Benny Borgemann to do their scoring. Borgemann is leading the American Professianal league in individual point totals, and Wickhorst is in second place in this respect.

In addition to their starting lineup, the Majestics have Dick Kraft and Herbie Lutz available for action. There will be a preliminary game at 8 o'clock.

500 POUNDS OF WRESTLER IN ONE BOUT TOMORROW

A pair of wrestlers, who, together, weigh exactly 500 pounds, will meet in the windup of Promoter Arnold Minkley's show at the 132d Infantry armory, Madison and Rockwell streets, tomorrow night. They are George Zaharias of Colorado and Jim Clinkstock of Oklahoma. The latter has a 20 pound edge on his rival.

Eight other heavyweights of various tonnage will appear on the card. Karl Pojello will appear in a special match with Hans Bauer, German grappler. Pojello formerly was the owner of one of the light heavyweight titles, but has put on enough pounds to qualify him as a heavy.

Frank Brunovicz will attempt his fifth straight victory in a bout with Nick Velcoff, billed as a California Bulgarian.

The other skirmishes will feature Ray Stelle against Marshall Blackstock of Georgia, and Pat O'Shocker of Salt Lake City against Jack Washburn of Hollywood.

Woman's Place Is Anywhere but at a Bull Fight Arena!

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

At last I have found a sport in which women are not trying to take a man's place and where most of them apparently do not even care to be spectators. This sport is bull fighting. The fight I saw was held in Jaurez, Mexico, and what a fiesta day it was! Every one in the Mexican family attends the event, including children who are so tiny that they are unable to walk. The horses and bulls that are killed are fed to the militia of Mexico.

However, the American women were the ones I was interested in. There were four very disdainful and fearfully correct women from New York sitting in the front row. I knew they were from New York because I heard them talk. They were very bored and acted as though bull fights were most enervating, but later on they were radically of a different opinion.

Not a Real Fight—but It Was Enough!

Now, if you will just understand that this fight I saw was a parody on real bull fighting, perhaps you will be able to appreciate the humor and the pathos of the scene. The animals used were not bulls, but steers, the toreadors and matadors were farmers during week days, and the beautiful senoritas looked suspiciously like waitresses from across the border.

The arena reminded one of a gridiron instead of a bull ring, people strolled in, exchanged greetings with one another, and enjoyed themselves immensely. Every one was eating tortillas. They look like German pancakes, but outside of their appearance have nothing in common. The seats were concrete, and little boys were selling straw cushions to sit on at 35 cents each. Having foresight, I bought two.

Finally the judges signaled for the toreadors to enter the ring and with much rowelling of spurs they galloped their horses over to the stand where the senoritas were sitting, and presented themselvs. Here they received some special token from their "lady fair" to keep them safe during the fight. All was progressing beautifully until one of the horses refused to advance. All he would do was back up. This was very embarrassing to the rider, but he solved the problem. With much applause from the gallery, he backed his horse up to the lovely damsel and received his favor.

Another blast from the bugle and the steer was brought in. And what a steer he was! They had sawed off his horns so that even if he had worked himself into a temper he couldn't do much damage. He was bedecked with rosettes and bandilleros. The latter are shaped like fish hooks on the end and stuck into the animal just back of the shoulder blades. They are supposed to infuriate the steer so he will charge the matador and thus expedite the killing. The four New Yorkers thought the rosettes and bandilleros a quaint and charming idea of decoration. I wonder what the steer thought.

Steer Tries to Leave; Dragged Back by Tail.

A third blast from the bugle and they took the horses out and the business of killing proceeded. The steer wouldn't charge, so the judge ordered another pair of bandilleros. The steer didn't like this treatment and decided to leave, which he did by leaping an eight foot fence. He was dragged ignominiously by the tail back to his fate.

Things then became very difficult for the matador. The judges were impatient and all the matador succeeded in doing was stabbing the steer in the shoulder. One of the New Yorkers left, very suddenly. I wasn't feeling so well myself. Finally, in desperation, the matador hid the sword under his cape in his left hand, snapped the fingers of his right hand, and said, so I understood, "Here Toto, here Toto," instead of Toro, which is Spanish for bull. I laughed because we once had a dog named Toto. But laughing was the wrong thing to do; even the matador glared to see who had dared to disturb the silence of the death scene.

Certain Spectators Dive for Exit.

With the help of all the staff, and the steer not watching, the matador finally succeeded in his task. The steer bellowed, fell to his knees, and four people made a rush for the exit, the three remaining New Yorkers and myself.

So bull fights may come and bull fights may go, but I walked out of the last one I will ever attend, and the consensus among American women who have attended them seems to be—never again.

MACKS OBTAIN TODT, HEVING FROM RED SOX

Boston, Mass., Jan. 31.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics obtained Phil Todt, first baseman, and John Heving, catcher, for $7,500 each today when the Boston Red Sox asked for waivers on the veterans.

Both played with the Red Sox last season, but their light hitting failed to satisfy Owner Bob Quinn. It is likely that Bill Sweeney, Todt's understudy last year, will hold down first base for the Red Sox this coming season, and Charlie Berry probably will share the catching duties with Muddy Ruel.

World Famous U. S. Govt. Bacteriologist Astounded by Vitalex

ILIN J. MUNROE, F. R. B. A., of Champaign, Ill., graduate of Edinburgh University, Scotland; Lister Technical Institute Bacteriology, London, England; consultant to U. S. Government, University of Illinois, and leading institutions throughout the country in bacteriology.

"Health Brought to Millions Through Vitaminized Vitalex's Destruction of Dangerous Body Bacteria," Says Ilin Munroe

Ilin J. Munroe, a leading bacteriologist with world-wide connections, such as the Royal Public Health Department in India, Australian Bacteriological Work, the Egyptian and New Zealand health departments: a man who studied bacteriology throughout the world and more recently was called to this country to consult with the U. S. Government at Washington, D. C., says:

Every Person Has Millions of Deadly Bacteria slowly destroying their system. I have taken as high as 375 million bacteria count from stomachs. Vitaminized Vitalex, through its alkaline reaction, destroys these bacteria and brings back a normal, healthy condition.

Colds and Catarrh Start from Bacteria in the stomach. Vitalex, by destroying them, removes the cause. Thousands of days are lost by workers who, through the use of Vitalex, can protect their health.

Rheumatism Relieved

I have seen sufferers crippled and with backaches, hands taut, from the deadly rheumatism bacteria, released from these pains of torment by Vitaminized Vitalex, the medical discovery of the century.

Vitalex in Tablet Form incorporates the true value of liquid Vitalex, yet can be conveniently carried in pocket or purse.

Anemia Overcome—Pep Restored by the use of Vitalex. Modern day living conditions have brought a great increase of anemic, tired out and run down, nervous conditions throughout the world, leading to premature old age and death. In my microscopic blood tests I have found the real blood corpuscle count restored to normal through the use of Vitaminized Vitalex, thus bringing healthy bloom to sallow cheeks, new energy and pep to worn out men and women and real health and happiness.

RADIO ACTIVE VITAMINS RELIEVE CANCER, APPENDICITIS, AND STOMACH ULCERS

"The Vitamins B, C and D, through their radio activity," says Dr. Roy J. Juhre of Chicago, well known vitamin authority, "create a mucous membrane coating to stomach ulcers which relieve the pain and gradually healing sets in. In a similar way they have powers of eliminating poisons which activate cancer of the stomach and bladder and incite appendicular conditions. Sufferers from the poisons of constipation, gastritis, acidity of stomach and similar troubles can look for relief by the use of Vitaminized Vitalex which I prescribe to my patients in similar situations."

Minor Boom Crops Up in Gold Shares.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Periodical trading spurts enlivened the stock exchange this week, particularly the mining section where something like a minor boom in South African gold shares is showing promise of extension. The markets continue to indicate a ready willingness to rally on favorable developments, but public interest is still small and a majority of the activity is again traceable to professionals.

There is a noticeable difference, however, between the present markets than those of a few weeks ago. Forced liquidation has quite definitely stopped, weaknesses have been patched up and the deadly depression which for so long hung over the markets has been dispersed.

Retard Public Interest.

London, like Wall street, has benefited from a period of covering by short interests; but in the absence of outside support the rally will probably be difficult to sustain permanently. The absence of political developments is favorable to stock exchange sentiment, increasing public interest is likely to be nonexistent until the approaching budget is out of the way and the adverse influence of the dividend policy of certain leading industrial concerns has evaporated.

Interest appears to be moving towards market sections more or less immune from labor government or socialistic influences as the city's hopes last week of removal of the government from its responsibilities waned with Labor's victory in the trades dispute bill in the commons this week.

The outstanding feature in Lombard street has been the active intervention of the Bank of England towards the raising of discount rates. The recently indicated higher level of market rates is desirable in view of the weakness of sterling and the continued gold drain to France. The market apparently did not give the desired response with the result that at the beginning of the week the Bank of England commenced to sell treasury bills in the market at rates considerably in advance of market rates for fine commercial bills.

Is Proving Effective.

Until this action was taken, the American exchange was quoted at a level opening up possibilities of gold exports from London to New York. So far the bank's policy has been successful with the market rate reaching 2½ per cent, the advance proving effective as far as foreign exchanges are concerned. The American rate moved away from the gold point and the rise in the French exchange has been sufficient to stop the gold influx to France.

The new policy has also attracted some American and continental buying of sterling bills owing to the better level of rates ruling here. The official discount rates at New York and Geneva as well as France are 1 per cent below London, while Holland is ½ per cent below, therefore the entry of the Bank of England into the market promises to achieve the object in view—the attraction of foreign balances to London.

The improvement of exchanges brought support to the gilt edged market although British funds met with scattered selling. Foreign government securities found a better market with Austrian and Polish 7's and German sterling issues inquired for by readily responding buyers. The Austrian government stocks sold with some recovery with the recent low levels.

CITIES SERVICE MAY INTERVENE IN RECEIVERSHIP

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Chancellor J. O. Wolcott has granted the Cities Service company the right to intervene as a party complainant in the receivership bill filed here by A. Hicks Lawrence, stockholder, against the Richfield Oil company of California.

The court fixed next Wednesday as the date for a hearing on the receivership application. Lawrence, owner of 300 shares of common stock in the Richfield company, alleges insolvency. Cities Service is one of the largest owners of the Richfield common stock. Receivers for Richfield have already been appointed by courts in California, New York, Arizona, Washington, and Oregon.

Wall street today heard fresh reports that Cities Service company interests had acquired control of the $31,000,000 Warner-Quinlan company, which has an extensive oil marketing system in and about New York. Officials of both companies declined to comment.

Reduce Export Copper Price to 10.05 Cts. a Pound

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The price of export copper was reduced ¼c a pound today to 10.05c a pound, c. i. f. European base ports. The reduction followed a similar cut in the domestic price of the metal yesterday and brings the foreign price on a parity with the domestic quotation of 9⅝c a pound. The former export price was 10.30c for first quarter delivery and 10.35c for April.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad yesterday reported December net operating income of $2,622,901, against $3,312,880 in December, 1929. The Colorado and Southern, including Fort Worth and Denver City and Wichita Valley railroad, had December net operating income of $365,080, against $520,026 for December of the previous year.

Must Adjust Farm Output with Demand

BY SCRUTATOR.

Nothing has been accomplished by the federal farm board in its more than a year of active operation has served to change the basic facts on which farmers must depend for prosperity.

It has established coöperatives, five of them on a national scale; it has engaged in stabilization operations, taking quantities of wheat and cotton off the market. This last is done, in the words of the board itself, "to relieve the low price pressure and carry the product until some future date with the hope that there will be a more favorable opportunity to dispose of it."

Yet there is complete insistence by the federal agency that the farmer alone can solve his problem beyond the immediate present, and only by adjusting production to market demand; a simple restatement of the hoary and rather trite theory of supply and demand.

Different Objects in View.

The stabilization operations have had one object in view, the advice to cut production has another. These objects, in the normal way of looking at such things, seem diametrically opposed.

To demonstrate, as the stabilization corporation in wheat has demonstrated, that it can for a limited time hold the prices in America above those in the rest of the world, is to promote the idea that the same thing can be done for a longer time. It is an encouragement to grow wheat. The farm board has put forth both action and words, and it remains to be seen only whether the actions or the words are more powerful.

Admittedly, the farm board is going to lose some money. It may lose all of the 250 million dollars that have so far been turned over to it. Its statisticians more than a year ago made a serious error in their assumptions of what the course of wheat prices would be. This, too, has been admitted. The farm board has been frank in telling of its mistakes in the speculative markets.

The temporary benefits have not been unimportant. Chairman Legge told a Chicago audience a few days ago that banks had been saved in wheat growing sections by the board's refusal to permit prices to fall to the level prevalent in Liverpool, where wheat is in purchasing power lower than it has been in 337 years.

May Retard Recovery.

But the collection of vast wheat and cotton holdings in the hands of one owner of market controlling caliber may and probably will prevent the upturn in prices being so rapid as it might otherwise be when conditions improve. It is of course possible that they are not going to improve; the answer to that one is that they always have when they got too low.

The American Cotton Shippers association last week told a senate subcommittee that less than 160,000 of two million cotton growers had been functioning through federal subsidiary marketing machinery and that fear "generated in the trade by such control, and losses sustained by investors and mills," had depressed the cotton price and stimulated the substitution of foreign grown cotton. It was further pointed out that in 1929-1930 the world's consumption of cotton fell by 653,000 bales, but that world consumption of American cotton was two million bales less than in the previous year. Other growers than American, the association claimed, had taken American markets.

Evils Outweigh Benefits.

The view is partisan, but the demand that the marketing act be repealed shows that this group is certain that the evils have outweighed the benefits.

Speculation has been minimized in the wheat pits. It is a third or a fourth of what it used to be. The pertinent question is whether the government's use of public money is causing this, in setting a wheat price below which until May no one may go, is nullifying in some degree the good advice to adjust production to demand. Have wheat growers and cotton growers been convinced that the deeds were only designed to get them out of a situation already faced, or do they believe they will be continued?

No matter where the argument goes, it comes back to the obvious—that production adjustment to demand must be made.

Reports Quiet Week in Shoe and Leather Trade

New York, Jan. 31.—The shoe and leather trade was quiet this week. Dun's says in its survey. In the shoe trade some orders were reported in Boston following two style shows, but they did not come up to expectations. Contracts were largest where rates were reduced and the trend toward lower priced shoes was marked. Trading in sole leather was still dull. Patent leather showed no signs of reviving. The domestic packer hide market continued generally heavy, but futures in the speculative markets were firmer.

Weekly Debits Decline, Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago for the week ended Jan. 28, 1931, by 224 banks in thirty-eight leading clearing house cities in the Seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,175,334,000, a decrease of 6.7 per cent, compared with a week ago [$1,259,485,000]. Compared with the corresponding week of last year [$1,344,835,000], a decrease of 12.6 per cent was shown.

EUGENE MEYER SAYS FLAT 'NO!' TO BROOKHART

Will Not Commit Self on Future Actions.

EUGENE MEYER JR.
[Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Eugene Meyer Jr. answered sharp questioning before the senate banking subcommittee today with the blunt statement that he would sooner "forfeit" his job than to submit, before his confirmation, to an examination regarding the policies he intended to pursue as governor of the federal reserve board.

The New York financier's statement came in reply to Senator Brookhart [Rep., Ia.], an opponent of confirmation, who insisted upon his right to question the nominee regarding reserve board policies. Brookhart blocked subcommittee action by forcing another session next week.

Exchange Sharp Words.

Sharp words were exchanged over the committee table, with the Iowan declaring "The United States senate would say what questions are to be asked" and Meyer retorting he would "a great deal rather forfeit my position" than "prostitute my principles and lower the dignity of my office" by submitting to questions concerning future actions.

Senator Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] upheld Meyer. Senator Carey [Rep., Wyo.], chairman of the subcommittee, said it was difficult to draw the line between proper and improper questions. The latter, however, expressed the hope the matter would be amicably settled, although Brookhart clung to his stand that he had a "right to learn the facts."

Carey denied charges by Brookhart that the subcommittee was "jamming the nomination through." He agreed with Wagner, however, that the nomination was an important one and had been pending a long time.

Significance of Questions.

The chairman wanted to conclude consideration today but Brookhart said he could not attend an afternoon meeting and added "it will be some time before this is through."

The Iowan said it was not a question of dignity, but one of policy. He denied any intention of asking unfair questions. Meyer and Wagner likened the questions Brookhart would propound to those which might be put to a judgeship nominee concerning a decision he expected to make in a case pending before the court to which the man was appointed.

Wagner said Meyer's attitude regarding the reserve system could wait until the Glass banking subcommittee investigating the administration of the reserve and national banking acts called him for questioning.

Brookhart and Senator Fletcher [Dem., Fla.] questioned the nominee at length regarding speculation in Wall street. Meyer termed it a "mania" indulged in by the whole country.

Answers General Questions.

Meyer answered general questions regarding the reserve system. He said he regarded its chief function to supply an elastic currency and seasonal funds as business expanded or contracted. He added he thought the board had "done its best to warn people" against the "orgy of speculation," but added, "some people don't want to be warned."

Meyer denied charges that he was responsible for three joint stock land banks going into receivership during his two years' service on the farm loan board from 1927 to 1929.

One of the banks, that at Kansas City, he said, went into receivership before he went on the loan board. The other two, at Cincinnati and Milwaukee, he added, "were practically bankrupt" before he became a member. The board today, in his opinion, was on a "sound" basis.

U. S. RAILROADS TO SEND AID TO RUSSIAN LINES

New York, Jan. 31.—A hundred and fifty railroad executives are being recruited in the United States to rehabilitate and extend the transportation lines of soviet Russia.

Five American railroads—the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Illinois Central, the Great Northern, and the New Haven—are helping to select the men.

A dozen executives already have been engaged, the Amtorg Trading corporation, purchasing agency of the soviet government in the United States, said today, and the more than a hundred others are being signed as rapidly as possible to two year contracts.

Charles A. Gill of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad sails on Feb. 10 to be gone for a year. He will be chief consultant engineer for the Russian state railways. He will be followed shortly by W. E. Clark of Connecticut, an authority on port construction, and C. L. Christensen, former bridge engineer of the New York Central.

The objective of the American engineers is to put American methods into Russian railroading, to organize and man the roads along American lines, and to expend effectively almost a billion and three-quarters dollars a year appropriated by the soviet to make its railroads measure up to the standard which—also under the direction of American and other imported engineers—its manufacturing industries are attaining.

Auto Sales Gain in State; Total 9,356 in January

New automobile sales in Illinois for January give continued evidence that conditions in the motor industry are improving, according to the figures released yesterday by the Illinois chamber of commerce research department showing January, 1931, sales at 9,356 cars, an increase of 6,369 cars over the month of December. The monthly figure is only 3,199 cars less than the January, 1930, total and indicates that in Illinois there is some basis for improved sentiment in the motor industry. The monthly new car sales report, however, does not fully reflect the activity which went on at the Chicago automobile show just closed. These figures, in all probability, will be reflected in February and in early spring months when prospects created at the show are closed. Cook county sales for January, 1931, totaled 4,317 new cars as compared to 5,039 for the downstate counties.

CHICAGO BANK STOCK MARKET QUIET; SOME ISSUES DROP SLIGHTLY

Quietness prevailed in Chicago bank stocks last week, with a few issues showing slightly lower tendencies. First National in the late trading sold down to closing transactions between 502 and 506, off 8 points. Continental Illinois was 3 points easier at 392@395. Foreman-State National was in good demand at 415 bid, 419 asked. Northern Trust lost 8 points at 488@492. Terminal National was 1 point easier, being in supply at 50.

Offerings of Peoples Trust and Savings at 365 failed to attract buyers. Union Bank of Chicago was quoted at 158 bid, 163 asked. Harris Trust and Savings was inactive at 550@565. Central Trust Company of Illinois was wanted at 259, with offerings at 261. National Bank of the Republic was in a narrow range, with stock being wanted at 73, with offerings at 75.

The miscellaneous securities were also extremely inactive, with little price change. Chicago Title and Trust sold between 440 and 444. Chicago Daily News common was again quoted at 19 bid, 19¾ asked, while the preferred was one-half point higher at 88½@89½.

SIGNS FORMAL ORDER MODIFYING PACKERS DECREE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Justice Bailey of the District of Columbia Supreme court today signed the formal order modifying in conformance with his recent decision the 1920 packers' consent decree.

The packers are permitted under it to engage in the wholesale buying and selling of a number of commodities unrelated to meat packing, such as fish, vegetables, fruits, flours, grain, grape juice, and various miscellaneous articles. The decree also was modified to allow the packers' group to handle fresh milk and cream. The defendants are given one year in which to dispose of property which may be held in violation of the modified decree.

Swift & Co., Morris & Co., Armour & Co., Wilson & Co., and the Cudahy Packing company originally were affected. Morris & Co. has amalgamated with one of the other groups and the Wilson and Cudahy companies did not participate in the effort against the decree. They are affected by the decision, however.

Say Bonus Plan May Imperil U.S. Refunding

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 31.—Grave apprehension that a continued decline in United States government bond prices such as has been experienced in the last four days will jeopardize the treasury's plans for refunding the two issues of 3½ per cent treasury notes aggregating approximately $1,100,000,000, was expressed in banking circles here today. The treasury has called the issues for payment on March 15 next and is therefore committed to the operation.

It was pointed out that a further substantial decline in governments would make the refunding of these issues by long term loans impractical, which would mean that Secretary Mellon would have to resort to temporary borrowing which in the end would be far more expensive to the treasury. Not only would the plans for the March 15 financing be upset, but hopes entertained by the treasury for retiring the fourth Liberty 4¼s, and the first Liberty 3½s by an exchange offer would necessarily be dashed.

Prices Continue Fall.

The possibility of passage of the soldiers' cash bonus plan which was brought to the attention of the financial community and to holders of United States government obligations by Secretary Mellon's strongly voiced opposition on Wednesday, was responsible for the widespread selling of Liberty bonds and long term treasury issues. The decline started Wednesday and reached startling proportions on Thursday when government bonds experienced the worst break in nearly ten years. On Friday and during the short trading period today the decline was pursued relentlessly.

The longest term issue of the list, the treasury 4s of 1944, suffered the major decline, the loss amounting to 2⅜ points (around $23.00 per $1,000 bond), while the treasury 4¼s of 1947 and 3⅜s of 1946 both lost well over two points. The magnitude of this decline can be appreciated when consideration is given the fact that normal daily changes in Liberty and Treasury issues amount to but 1-32 or 2-32ds of a point.

The net losses of the active issues during the last four days were as follows: Liberty 3½s, off 1 9-32ds; First Liberty 4¼s, off 30-32ds; Fourth Liberty 4¼s, off 31-32ds; Treasury 4¼s of 1947, off 2 8-32rds; Treasury 4s of 1944, off 2 12-32ds; Treasury 3⅜s of 1946, off 2 4-32ds; Treasury 3⅜s of 1943, off 1 17-32ds, and the Treasury 3⅜s of 1940, off 1 10-32ds points.

Explains Short Term Demand.

With the proposed issuance of $3,400,000,000 of new long term securities overhanging the market, the action of prices during the last four days was a natural procedure. Such a new issue would be exceeded in size only by the amount of Fourth Liberty 4¼s outstanding, which amount to $6,268,000,000. Thus, the increase in the supply of long term government obligations naturally weakens the price of comparable issues already outstanding.

As the liquidation of long term governments takes place, the natural course is for at least a substantial portion of the funds thus released to find refuge in short term tax exempt bonds; this theory explains the heavy oversubscription on Friday of the new issue of treasury bills offered in the amount of $60,000,000. The bills run for 90 days. The bills sold at a discount, since they carry no interest, the average discount basis being about .95 of 1 per cent.

HOLDING CORP. VOTES INITIAL 50 CT. DIVIDEND

Continental Securities Holding corporation has declared an initial quarterly dividend of 50 cents, placing the shares on a $2 basis.

Harmonia Fire Insurance company has declared semi-annual dividend of 90 cents a share of its $10 par stock. Previously the rate had been 75 cents semi-annually.

Empire Public Service corporation has omitted the quarterly dividend of 45 cents a share due on its A stock.

Directors of Follansbee Brothers have omitted the dividend on the common stock due at this time. A payment of 25 cents a share was made three months ago, after a reduction six months ago from 75 cents to 50 cents a share in the quarterly payment. The regular preferred dividend of $1.50 a share was declared.

Appalachian Co. Negotiates for Ohio Natural Gas

Negotiations are under way for the Appalachian Gas corporation to acquire control of an Ohio Natural Gas company supplying public utilities serving 300 communities. The Apalchian corporation owns or controls more than 244,221 acres of gas land, as well as upwards of 400 miles of pipe line, and also operates through the Texas Gas Utilities company and Memphis Natural Gas company.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 31.—The stock market finished the week showing a decided list to starboard. Realizing played a prominent part in the short session's proceedings and cut down some of the star performers of yesterday's forward looking session rather sharply. Pivotals were heavy in tone, although inclined as a rule to keep in the background.

Trading was almost wholly professional and the backing and filling of values reflected little more than the give and take of this element which has been in control of operations for the last few weeks. Turnover fell considerably short of a million shares.

Auburn Auto, which has been so prominent on the up side here of late, suffered a rather severe setback, being off some 5 points from yesterday's final price at one stage of the proceedings. It found some demand in the late dealings, however, closing at 138½ off 3½ on the day. Worthington Pump, runner-up to the star cut-up, showed some disposition in the early dealing to continue its drive, but the buying soon dried up and the final gong found it fractionally lower also.

Some Rail Activity.

There was some activity in the railroad group, Norfolk and Western attaining a new high of 214, a net gain of a point on the day. Union Pacific also duplicated its previous high for the year.

Nash was the leader of the motors group. Mack Truck and one or two other issues of the division met with some demand. Copper shares continued heavy on news of a cut in the price of the metal by the export association today following a reduction yesterday in the domestic price. Farm implement shares were in demand led by Case Threshing Machine and International Harvester. The standard issues such as United States Steel, American Can, General Motors and General Electric were quiet, but ruled at generally lower levels.

Nothing came out on the news to influence trading in either direction. One feature that came in for comment today as it has for several days in the past is that the market has paid practically no attention to the weakness in the bond market which has developed since the bonus agitation arose.

This is in sharp contrast to the last few weeks of 1930 when a sharp decline in bonds had a distinctly unsettling effect on the stocks. Here of late in fact nothing from the outside

PRICES IN CORN PIT DECLINE TO SEASONAL LOW

Wheat Eases in All of the World's Markets.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Lack of a broad speculative demand and a slow call from the east for cash corn combined to cause a decline in futures yesterday to a new low for the season on all deliveries. Old May touched 63⅛c at the low point and showed a drop of 40⅝c from the high of last August.

Selling was largely in small lots with some stop loss orders uncovered on the way down. Short covering and buying on resting orders caused a rally from the inside figures, but the close was at net losses of ⅜@½c, with March, 61⅞c; May, 63½@63⅝c; July, 64½@64⅝c, and September, 64¼@64⅜c.

There is a growing belief that larger arrivals of corn will be noted at terminal markets in the immediate future. Reports from Nebraska points indicated farmers were more disposed to sell, despite the low prices, while local handlers booked 125,000 bu to arrive, the bulk of the latter grain being secured at other terminals.

Corn Feeding Liberal.

There is a large movement of cash corn from various parts of the belt which have a surplus to other sections where there is a deficit, but the grain is not passing through primary points, and large quantities are being trucked. That feeding operations are being carried on heavily was shown by the average weight of arrivals of hogs at Chicago in January, the average being 236 lbs, or the heaviest with one exception since 1897.

Liquidation was on in corn the greater part of the week, and at the finish Saturday net losses were 2¼@2⅝c as compared with the close of the previous week. Old crop deliveries of wheat were ¼c lower and July 1⅜c higher, while oats lost ⅛@⅜c, and rye, 1¼@1⅜c for the week. Lard declined 15@17½c, and bellies, 35@45c for the week.

July Wheat Weakens.

Prospects of the southwest receiving a little rain over the week-end with the weakness in corn, carried the July delivery off around 1c from Friday's finish, with the close at 65¾@65⅞c, with a net loss of ½c. March and May closed unchanged, the former being 79¼c, and May, 81⅝c. Dry weather talk has been steadily increasing from the winter wheat belt of late, but the weekly forecast held out little prospect of a general breaking of the drought, although a few scattered rain or snow storms may be experienced.

A little trading was under way in September wheat during the day here, although it will not be officially quoted until Monday. Pit brokers said the sales were at 1¾@2c under the July future. Winnipeg was firm early, but eased later and closed ½c lower with a limited foreign demand.

Increasing pressure of Argentine and Australian wheat had some effect on Liverpool which closed ⅜@⅝d lower, and Buenos Aires was ⅜@½c lower for the day. According to reports to the bureau of agricultural economics seeding of the new Indian wheat crop was completed by the middle of December, but germination on unirrigated land which comprises roughly one-half of the total area was retarded by lack of moisture and the condition of the crop as a whole has been rather unfavorable. General and beneficial rains have recently occurred in the Punjab district, which has about one-third of the Indian acreage, but in the United provinces rainfall is still deficient.

Expect Decrease in Oats.

A liberal reduction in the visible supply of oats is expected to be shown in Monday's statement. It is understood that the bulk of the 986,000 bu reported as afloat at Toledo a week ago has been unloaded and shipped out to industries. Receipts at Chicago the past week of 144,000 bu were the smallest in over 40 years, and the trade is inclined to feel that the March 1 farm reserve showing will show an abnormally large disappearance. Futures were dull and ⅛@¼c lower with March, 32⅛c; May, 32⅜c, and July, 31⅝c.

A sale of 405,000 bu cash rye was made by Chicago handlers to an industry Saturday, the largest business reported in many weeks. Liquidation was on in futures, which closed ⅛@1c lower, with March, 37c; May, 38⅝c, and July, 39⅝c.

Northern Pacific Reports $80,642,412 Operating Net

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 31.—(AP)—F. W. Sweney, controller of the Northern Pacific railway, in a statement to the board of directors, today announced that the road itself failed to earn its dividend requirement last year by about $2,000,000, but is still in a satisfactory cash position because of dividends received from other than operations.

The statement of earnings and expenses of the road, Sweney said, showed that in 1930 the total net operating revenues were $80,642,412, a decrease of $15,879,936 as compared with 1929. The controller pointed out that without the extra dividend of $4,150,000 which the Northern Pacific received from the Burlington and a liquidation dividend of $2,800,000 from the Northern Express company, the road would have been short about $2,000,000 of its dividend requirement of $12,400,000.

Suspends Higher Freight Rates on Forage Crop Seed

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—(AP)—Western railroads were prevented today by the interstate commerce commission from inaugurating Feb. 1 an increase in freight rates on forage crop seed throughout the northwest.

An order suspending the new schedules until Sept. 1 and requiring the maintenance of present rates at least until that time was issued. The commission also instituted an inquiry into the proposed rates. The elevations were to have been brought about by moving alfalfa, Lucerne and sweet clover seed shipments into the category of class A freight, their present status being that of class B.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Foreign demand for Manitoba wheats was much less active than of late, buyers having taken liberal quantities early in the week, and were disposed to wait for lower prices. In addition increased competition is being reported from Argentina and Australia.

Local handlers sold 3,000 bu wheat, 34,000 bu corn, 42,000 bu oats, and 407,000 bu rye to the domestic trade, with 200,000 bu wheat sold to go to store. Purchases of 10,000 bu wheat and 125,000 bu corn were made to arrive, mainly from other terminals.

Basis on cash wheat was unchanged, with No. 1 red, 1½c under; No. 2 red, 2c under; No. 1 hard, 2⅝c under; No. 2 hard, 3c under; No. 1 northern, 2½c under, and No. 2 northern, 2⅝c under the May.

Choice dry corn was in demand and the basis firm, while other kinds were steady. No. 2 yellow was 1@1¼c over May, nominals and No. 3 white, ½c over the future. Discounts as compared with May on other grades follow: No. 3 mixed, 2@3¼c; yellow, 1¼@3c; No. 4 mixed, 4c; yellow, 3⅝@4½c; white, 1½c; No. 5 mixed, 6⅜@7c, yellow, 6¼@7c.

Offerings of oats were small and the basis steady to ¼c higher. No. 2 white brought ¼@½c under, and No. 3 white, ¾@1c under May.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 80 cars; corn, 124 cars; oats, 23 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 5 cars.

CATTLE RUN SHRINKS

Chicago had the smallest receipts of cattle in January since 1886, a period of 45 years, the aggregate being 168,000. In only three Januarys was the total below 200,000. Calf receipts were 39,000, the smallest since 1918. Hog receipts last month were 1,056,000, as compared with 965,682 a year ago. Only ten times has the January run been above 1,000,000 hogs. Record receipts for January were 1,280,581. Average price for January was $7.65 the lowest of any month since June, 1924, and the lowest for January, with one exception, since 1916. In the last 21 years the January average has not been as low as the last month.

There were 341,000 sheep received at Chicago in January, compared with 332,651 last year. In 13 Januarys in the last 31 years receipts have exceeded those of this year. The average price of lambs for the month of $8.05 was the lowest since 1914.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The Clyde Steamship company of Boston announces that it will pay off its 5 per cent bonds maturing Feb. 1, of which $812,000 are outstanding of an original $6,000,000 issue. The company is a subsidiary of the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Steamship lines.

The Michigan Central railroad has asked authority to issue $4,000,000 4½ per cent improvement mortgage bonds dated Jan. 1, 1929, and maturing Jan. 1, 1979.

The interstate commerce commission authorized the Pittsburg and West Virginia railway to issue $2,200,000 4½ per cent short term notes in renewal of a like amount of maturing notes.

The interstate commerce commission has authorized the Osage county and Santa Fe railway to issue a registered first mortgage for $1,800,000 6 per cent series B bonds.

Mexico Reduces Export Taxes on Combustible Oils

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 31.—(AP)—The government has made a general reduction in export taxes on combustible oils, with a view to encouraging their production in Mexico. The export tax on combustible petroleum was reduced from 80 to 75 centavos the cubic meter. Crude gas oil, crude and refined gasoline and kerosene, and lubricants in general were affected by the order.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Grain traders in the main are bearish on wheat because of the large supplies and constant fear that the farm board will sell out, and leave the speculators to carry the load. For two days there has been selling of May wheat which pit traders credit to the farm board companies but there are official denials of it. There is also a little buying said to be for the same interest. Traders are looking forward to open trading in September wheat commencing Monday which they think will give greater opportunities for spreading operations with July in Chicago and in Winnipeg.

Trade sentiment in corn is mixed. Prices are so low that the average operator is constantly looking for bulges to put out lines for quick turns, and operations in all are limited. There are no new developments to affect values. Terminal markets having a surplus are selling it to industries, largely to come to Chicago, while country sales are small.

Expectations are for a fair increase in the visible supply of wheat for the week.

"Those in authority who understand the wheat situation fully are worried over the outlook and are hoping that a miracle will happen to save the situation, but such miracles do not occur," says the Uhlman Grain company. "It is planned to send out another acreage reduction plea in the form of a letter to the governor of North Dakota but we do not see what else the farmer can raise, and presuming even the spring wheat acreage will be cut 2,000,000 acres, which is certainly a high estimate, all the difference it would make would be about 25,000,000 bu, and this would be only a drop in the bucket. We are accumulating now an extra 10,000,000 bu a month, which ordinarily would be exported if the price would be let alone."

"The deficiency in moisture last fall has been followed by a moderate amount of snow covering, but it is not considered sufficient to insure spring planting a normal start," says J. E. Bennett & Co.'s Minneapolis correspondent. "The mild winter has drawn lightly on feed grains and already there are reports of stock grazing on pasturage. Considerable of these feed grains have been marketed instead of being fed on farms. Should weather conditions change to severe temperatures these feed grains would come in for a brisk demand."

Unmanufactured Copper Imports in Dec. Are Lower

New York, Jan. 31. — Imports of copper in unmanufactured form by the United States amounted to 21,895 metric tons in December, a decrease from 22,844 tons in November and 30,459 tons in October, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. Exports of refined copper from the United States aggregated 24,170 tons in December, compared with 31,478 tons in November and 26,251 tons in October.

Imports of copper in unmanufactured form by Great Britain increased to 11,024 tons in December, as compared with 10,877 tons in November but showed a decrease from the 16,399 tons imported in October.

The bureau also reported that world production of slab zinc in December totaled 108,193 short tons, against 104,271 tons in November and 112,306 tons in October.

New Offerings Again Exceed 200 Millions

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The aggregate of new bond offerings for the week ended yesterday exceeded $200,000,000 for the second time this year.

This week's total was $205,953,000, compared with $105,997,000 last week and with $257,001,000 the previous week. During the corresponding week last year the aggregate was $127,449,000.

Only two of the weekly totals in 1930 exceeded the $200,000,000 figure, the week ended Jan. 17, 1930, showed the bond financing total as $293,398,000, which was the heaviest since the week ended Feb. 4, 1927, and for the week ended June 13, 1930. The total of new bond financing was $233,673,020.

Nearly $100,000,000 of new public utility bonds was placed on the market this week, of which $40,000,000 was for the Philadelphia Electric company, $27,000,000 for the Kansas City Power and Light company, and $25,000,000 for the North American company. Two small issues completed the total.

Rail Issue Largest.

By far the largest issue brought out this week was that of $61,200,000 Missouri Pacific Railroad company 5s, due 1981, priced at 95, to yield more than 5.25 per cent. The only piece of foreign financing consisted of an additional issue of $20,000,000 Canadian National Railway company 4½s, due 1956, which was offered on a 4.60 per cent basis. The issue is unconditionally guaranteed by the Canadian government. The bankers reported that advance orders were received for the entire amount before formal offering was made. A single industrial issue, $15,000,000 Inland Steel company 4½s, due 1981, was placed on a 4.68 per cent basis.

New municipal bond offerings were of about the same amount as last week's total. The principal offering this week, that of $5,639,000 City of Rochester, N. Y., 4s, due 1932 to 1961, was quickly sold on Thursday.

Offerings by Groups.

Offerings by groups for this and last week follow:

	This week.	Last week.
Public utility	$ 97,260,000	$ 20,000,000
Railroad	62,200,000	24,804,000
Foreign	20,000,000	50,000,000
Industrial	15,000,000	....
State and munic.	11,493,000	11,193,000
Total	$205,953,000	$105,997,000

Although a long list of new bond financing has been tentatively scheduled for the next few weeks, investment bankers yesterday were inclined to predict that the upset in the bond market as a result of the discussion of the plan for paying a cash soldiers' bonus by the government might necessarily delay many of these issues pending a clearer outlook. Most of the new financing that is being discussed currently is in the public utility field.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Consolidated Gas.

The firmer tone that has been shown by Consolidated Gas of Baltimore is undoubtedly a reflection of the corporation's report for last year. In view of the general state of trade and the expenditures entailed in expansion the corporation's earnings must be regarded as somewhat better than anticipated. Marketwise the stock has been comparatively stable, although it has naturally given ground with the market as a whole. The 1930-'31 high was 136⅞, the low being 78. The current level is about 10 points above the last mentioned figure, and this price seems to have attracted a following of semi-investment character.

Auburn's Performance.

The spectacular showing of Auburn during recent proceedings on the stock exchange has caused somewhat of a sympathetic advance in Cord on the curb. Technically the situation in these stocks has nothing in common. Auburn's capitalization is exceedingly limited, but there seems to be a plentiful supply of the other issue at certain levels. Then, again, Cord is an investment trust. In that connection it is interesting to note that the company was able in the year ended Oct. 30, 1930, to show increased earnings.

Balaban & Katz.

The limited supply of Balaban & Katz for market purposes has reduced speculation in the stock to minimum, though at one time it was one of the features of the amusement group. According to reports, consolidated net profit of the company for 1930 probably will be below the net of $2,750,241 reported for 1929.

Blue Ridge Buying.

Buying of Blue Ridge probably has been inspired by the declaration of the usual dividend in stock or cash. Incidentally, sentiment on investment trust issues has been somewhat improved of late.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

The North American Light and Power company will spend $15,000,000 for new construction, extensions and improvements during 1931, it was announced by Clement Studebaker Jr., president of the corporation, in his annual letter to the stockholders. The fact that this figure is lower than the expenditures for 1930 is explained by the completion of the company's major projects.

The Somerville, Mass., plant of the Ford Motor company is to place 4,200 employés on full time, five days a week basis commencing Monday, as against a two days a week basis for the last two months.

C. T. Jaffray, president of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railway, said the road is having an increased movement of grain in its territory over a year ago, "largely because of the action of the farm board in fixing a price for May wheat that is higher than the price for July." This gain in movement now, however, may affect the road's grain receipts during the latter part of June and July when the movement ordinarily is fairly heavy, he added.

The surfeited condition of the short term money market caused a five fold oversubscription to the treasury's $60,000,000 bill offering, which was sold at the record low average yield of 0.95 per cent on a bank discount basis. It was this enormous surplus of funds which had been helping the bond market prior to the sudden attack of nervousness over the bonus.

Receipts at Chicago for Monday are estimated at 14,000 cattle, 67,000 hogs, and 17,000 sheep.

The meager supply of hogs left on the week-end trade after directs had been deducted from the supply sold at steady to 10c higher prices, medium and weighty butchers showing most improvement.

The extreme top was unchanged at $8.10, while the general average gained 5c at $7.50, comparing with a top of $8.25 and average of $7.55 the previous Saturday. Only pen holders were left at the close. Receipts at 13,000 included 11,800 direct to packers from other points.

Hog receipts and demand dropped off during the last week, and, with outlet for fresh pork the narrowest in years for late in January, packing houses insisted on a lower range of prices for live hogs. The week's general average was forced down 25c at $7.45, lowest since July, 1924, and $2.65 lower than a year ago.

Outsiders bought only 48,500 hogs at Chicago, against 61,936 a year ago and 87,492 two years ago. The gain in the average weight of hogs partly offset the decrease in receipts. Hogs are weighing heaviest in recent years for January.

Hog Futures Decline.

Bids and offers declined on the hog futures market yesterday, with trading very slow. March light were bid $8.50 and offered at $9.00. April light were also offered at the latter price.

Mediums for March carried bids of $8.00 and were offered at $8.50, while February heavy were offered at $7.15. March heavy were offered at $7.80 and bid $7.50. On the "to arrive" market light weights for Monday were bid $8.10 and mediums $7.50.

Most influences governing the cattle market during the last week were of a bearish nature and offset the slight strength developing from light supplies in midweek. Narrow outlet for beef at prevailing prices was reflected by the indifferent attitude of packing houses on the market for live steers practically all week.

The general average for live steers at $9.30, lowest since last summer, compares with $12.50 a year ago and with $12.10 two years ago. The fact that available supplies in the country are smallest in many years seems to have little or no effect on the trade.

Lamb Prices Advance.

Additional gains were scored in the lamb market during the past week, bringing the general average to $8.65, highest of the season. This price is $3.65 lower than in 1930. Three weeks ago prices were averaging almost $6.00 below the corresponding time last year. Demand for lambs held good at the advance most of the week and closing prices paid for fresh lamb carcasses were 2@3c above a month ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 14,000 cattle, 67,000 hogs, and 17,000 sheep, against 10,501 cattle, 68,124 hogs, 16,932 sheep a week ago, and 17,563 cattle, 62,551 hogs, and 22,741 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week receipts are estimated at 35,000 cattle, 230,000 hogs and 67,000 sheep, against 35,748 cattle 208,022 hogs, and 82,701 sheep a year ago, and 45,737 cattle, 240,581 hogs and 55,233 sheep two years ago.

TRANSFER CONTROL.

Transfer of control of the North European Oil company, operating in Germany with title to more than 1,600,000 acres in the provinces of Oldenburg, Brunswick and Mecklenburg, was announced by H. K. Tobias, treasurer of the company. The buyers were Sydney Keoughan of Denver and the Hope Engineering company of New York and Mount Vernon, O. The price was reported to be more than $2,000,000.

We Are Looking for A SALES MANAGER

OTIS BELIEVES BUSINESS NOW IS COMING BACK

Advises Leniency with Foreign Debtors.

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

JOSEPH E. OTIS.

American business is about at the point where it can now do some constructive work along the slow path of recovery, according to Joseph E. Otis, chairman of the board of the Central Trust Company of Illinois.

"I thought several years ago and still am of the opinion that cancellation or modification of the foreign war debts to the United States would stimulate trade. During the recent period of prosperity foreign nations were borrowing from this country. They were using that money to upbuild their structures and buy American goods to our profit. If a business associate, for example, suffers adversity and you help him financially he will soon pay off his debts and return a profit to you," declared Mr. Otis.

Known as "Dawes Bank."

Well justified is the association in the public mind of the Central Trust company as the "Dawes bank." Three brothers are directors—Charles G. Dawes, its organizer, first president and now honorary chairman of the board; Rufus C. Dawes (public utilities), and Henry M. Dawes (president Pure Oil company). Their cousin, William R. Dawes, is vice president and a director.

But best known is the colorful and versatile career of Charles G. Dawes, who is now ambassador to the Court of St. James's, was Vice President of the United States, and prominent as a banker, soldier, politician, musician, and lawyer.

Upon being graduated from the small Ohio college at Marietta in 1884, Charles G. Dawes worked and saved enough to put himself through the Cincinnati law school. He also taught himself music, playing the flute and piano. But westward he went to practice law—to Lincoln, Neb. There he became a close friend of one Lieut. John J. Pershing, at that time attached to the University of Nebraska. In the practice of law he became interested in public utilities.

In 1894 Lawyer Dawes moved to Evanston, becoming president of the Northwestern Gas Light and Coke company. William McKinley, a close friend in congress of his father, was aspiring to the presidency. Being restless and ambitious, Dawes jumped into politics and organized Illinois for McKinley. In reward McKinley made him controller of the currency. Following McKinley's assassination Dawes resigned.

Starts Bank in 1902.

Back in Chicago, he ran for the United States senate but withdrew during a losing fight. So on July 8, 1902, the Central Trust Company of Illinois opened its doors in the old Howland block at Monroe and Dearborn. Mr. Dawes was its first president. Capital was $4,000,000.

The bank prospered from the start. Deposits grew by the end of 1903 to $5,401,662; at the close of 1904 they were $7,589,316, and by 1911 exceeded $18,000,000. During these years the Metropolitan Trust and Savings bank and the Royal Trust company were absorbed.

It was in 1912, however, when the Central Trust bloomed out as one of Chicago's large downtown banks. In that year it merged with the Western Trust and Savings bank, bringing Joseph E. Otis, president of the latter, into the Central Trust as its first vice president. Later that year the Prairie State bank and the Monroe National bank had joined the fold. At the end of 1912 deposits had reached $44,-668,961, an increase of $26,000,000 in one year. In 1921 the business of the Great Lakes Trust company was transferred to the Central Trust.

With the merger of the old Continental and Commercial with the Illinois Merchants Trust company, the spacious banking quarters of the former at 208 South La Salle street were left vacant. On April 22, 1929, Central Trust moved into these quarters. About this time was announced the merger with the Bank of America, successor of the Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company, an old Chicago financial house founded in 1855.

Resources of $170,000,000.

Today Central Trust company resources amount to $170,000,000—its deposits are $140,000,000. The stock is currently quoted around $260 a share. Net earnings during the last five years follow:

		Earned per share.

Charles G. Dawes became chairman of the board in 1921. Well known enough is his war record, but suffice it to recall that (by appointment by an old friend of Nebraska days, Gen. Pershing) he was made chief purchasing agent of the American Expeditionary Forces. In typical Dawesian (Hell 'n' Maria) manner, he cut army red tape. The war left him a brigadier general, honored by the Distinguished Service medal.

President Harding made him the first director of the federal budget. The Dawes war reparations plan made his name world famous. Then the vice presidency of the United States during the Coolidge administration was followed by his appointment as ambassador to Great Britain. He remains devoted to the cause of Chicago's World's Fair in 1933, being chairman of the finance committee of the organization which his brother, Rufus C., heads. Charles G. Dawes is now 66 years old.

Philip R. Clarke is president of the Central Trust company; Eugene V. R. Thayer is chairman of the executive committee; M. E. Greenebaum is vice chairman of the directorate. William R. Dawes, vice president, is well known in business affairs, having headed the Chicago Association of Commerce for several years. Walter H. Wilson and James E. Greenebaum are also vice presidents.

seems to touch the market to any marked extent. The list is moving strictly "on its own" for the most part.

See Quiet Month Ahead.

If long established precedent holds, the new month in the market is likely to prove a dull and narrow affair. Normally February has proved a month of very narrow price movements, with interest at a relatively low ebb. It is, in fact, in the nature of a period of transition from winter dullness into the time of spring pickup. Ordinarily the speculative element is disposed to spend the greater part of the next three or four weeks in seeking a line on the prospective seasonal expansion which may be ahead for business and industry in the period of normal spring advance.

A study of the past reveals that in the month of February, from 1921 to 1928, industrial stocks were limited in their movements to about a five point range in the averages. In 1929, of course, abnormal condition then prevailing were reflected in unusual stock market activity in the period, with industrials moving over a 25 point range. But even in last year's unsettlement the range of industrials for the month was only about 8 points.

LARD VALUES LOWER

Lard prices recorded yesterday and closed 2½@5c lower, while bellies were unchanged in a limited trade. Warehousemen were credited with selling lard futures, while buying was scattered. Hog prices were up 10c. Average weight of hogs received for the month was 236 lbs. and heaviest for the period since 1897, indicating an increased yield of product, particularly of lard. General Tire Co. Reports Improvement in Condition

Akron, O., Jan. 31.—The financial condition of the General Tire and Rubber company shows a decided improvement at the end of the fiscal year over the preceding year despite the difficulties of the rubber industry in 1930, Vice President W. E. Fouse said today.

Inventory of raw material, stock in process and finished goods shows a reduction of 28 per cent at the end of 1930 as compared with the preceding year, Fouse said.

He said that "in spite of the depreciation of about $1,500,000 in inventory, there has been a decrease in surplus of only $28,000 as compared with 1929.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

CLUETT, PEABODY & CO.

Net income for 1930 was $798,478, or $2.53 a common share, against $663,540, or $1.71 a share, in 1929.

ATLANTIC REFINING.

Reports 1930 profit of $2,742,000, or $1.02 a share, compared with 1929 net of $17,332,000, or $6.79 a share.

GENERAL RAILWAY SIGNAL.

Reports for 1930 net income of $2,432,-349, equal to $7.07 a common share, against $8.25 a share in 1929.

LANE-BRYANT.

Including Coward Shoe, for the six months ended Nov. 30, the first half of its fiscal year, had net profit of $46,036. After providing for preferred dividends there was a deficit of $290.

WARD BAKING.

For the year ended Dec. 27 had net profit of $2,058,546, against $3,124,413 in 1929.

FEDERATED METALS.

For the year ended Nov. 30 reported net loss of $676,488, against net profit equal to $3.67 a share in the preceding year.

INTERNATIONAL CEMENT.

Reported net income in 1930 of $4,527,-744, equal to $7.12 a common share, against $4,950,433, equivalent to $7.88 a share, in the previous year. Its net income for the fourth quarter amounted to $1,080,978, or $1.70 a share of common, against $1,381,-467, equal to $2.20 a share, in the corresponding quarter of 1929.

PENN-DIXIE CEMENT.

Reports 1930 net profit of $587,461, equal to $4.32 a share on 135,888 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock, par $100, on which no dividends have been paid since Sept. 15, 1929. This compares with 1929 profit of $332,268, or $2.44 a preferred share.

KEN-RAD. TUBE.

For the year 1930 reported consolidated net loss of $131,410, after charges and taxes, contrasted with net profit of $285,-005, equal to $1.63 a share on the combined 150,000 class A shares and 25,000 class B shares, in 1929.

DE LONG HOOK AND EYE.

Earnings for the nine months ended Dec. 31, after all charges, including federal taxes, were $35,300. This compares with $22,900 for the corresponding 1929 period.

Hear Ford Motor May Soon Increase Output

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Reports in Wall street say the Ford Motor company soon will increase its output and add to its employment rolls. Several indications are said to point to such a move. One company financing Ford retail paper nationally reported that business had been increasing steadily during the last two weeks. It is said that the recent price cuts undoubtedly stimulated business, roads out of Detroit are reported again lined with carrier trucks delivering new cars and a company supplying material reports it has increased releases for next week. The Ford plants have been working on part time since operations were resumed after the holiday shutdown.

FINAL VALUATION.

A final valuation of $4,239,000 as of June, 1917, has been fixed by the interstate commerce commission on the property of the Kentucky-Indiana Terminal railway. This compared with the corporation's total outstanding security issues on the same date of $6,649,000 and with its own book investment figure of $5,330,000.

COTTON TRADE MIXED

Reports from the cotton industry indicate a varied situation. In a few instances there are claims of production of print cloths being well absorbed and in the south mills in a few sections are sold ahead. Sales since Jan. 10 are estimated at 750,000 pieces.

Consumption of cotton in the United States so far this season has fallen below last year and the impression prevails that there is to be a decreased acreage put in this season which, farm board interests say, is the salvation of the cotton growers.

Prices are at a level where weak spots develop buying orders from trade interests and at the same time the pressure from shorts is light. Liverpool yesterday opened 3@5 points higher and closed steady to 3 and 4 points higher, with spot sales 3,000 bales.

American prices had a narrow range, with close in Chicago unchanged to 3 points lower, and other markets unchanged to 8 points lower, New York being the weakest. Spots in New York were 5 points lower at 10.45c; New Orleans unchanged at 10.15c, Galveston, 10.25c, and Houston, 10.15c. Prices follow:

ESTIMATES GAIN OF BILLION IN NATION'S SAVINGS DEPOSITS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 31.—Savings deposits in the United States increased about $1,000,000,000 during 1930, according to an estimate made public today by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

An increase of almost $600,000,000 occurred last year in the deposits of mutual savings banks, operating in seventeen states, the association says, while thrift accounts in other classes of banks are estimated to have advanced not less than $400,000,000.

The mutual savings banks increased the number of their depositors by more than 500,000. Total deposits of these banks on Jan. 1 amounted to $9,464,732,492, a gain of $592,601,440, and compared with a gain of $65,236,-234 in 1929. The number of depositors on the first of the year was 12,775,192. Assets of the mutual savings banks increased during 1930 from $9,934,568,-723 to $10,585,056,321, a gain of $650,-487,598.

New York state led the nation in the amount of increase in savings bank deposits shown, an increase of $403,608,214 being recorded by banks in this state.

ALTORFER BROS. EARNINGS RISE DURING 1930

Makes Good Showing in Spite of Depression.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The sharp reduction in earnings experienced by nearly all industrial concerns last year was not shared by Altorfer Bros. company of Peoria, manufacturers of electrical household utilities. The annual statement of the company issued yesterday disclosed net earnings for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31 of $459,938 as compared with $454,176 in the preceding year.

The earnings showing was made, President Silas H. Altorfer says, in the face of a 15 per cent recession in the washing machine field as a whole and the general slackening in business everywhere.

Equal to $2.46 a Share.

The company's earnings for 1930 were equivalent to $2.46 a share on the 150,282 shares of common stock outstanding, as compared with $2.43 a share on approximately the same number of shares in 1929.

The company's balance sheet as of Dec. 31 shows current assets of $1,281,806, as compared with current liabilities of $313,305. Surplus at the close of 1930 stood at $442,373 after all dividends. Dividends paid by the company during the year amounted to $547,552, the largest in the firm's history. The payments included three extras of 65 cents on the common stock.

Competition in the industry cut prices generally, but the company enjoyed a sufficient increase in business volume to maintain earnings. Unit volume increased approximately 30 per cent over 1929, President Altorfer points out in his letter to stockholders. The company now has sales outlets in forty foreign countries and throughout North America. Late in the year the company opened a Canadian factory near Montreal.

Chicago Market Weak.

The company's preference stock is listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange and is currently quoted from 30 to 33. The company's report was not released until after the close of the market yesterday. No trades were made in the stock.

The market as a whole on the Chicago exchange was weak. Trading favorites were forced to make minor recessions, as few buying orders came into the market. Volume amounted to less than 60,000 shares, of which an estimated 50 per cent represented outside participation.

On issue Allied Products bucked the trend and finished the day with a gain of about 2 points. Sales in the issue were light. Among the active stocks, as Insull Utility and Middle West, the losses amounted to less than a point.

The narrow trading area in which the Chicago market moved last week is illustrated by the change in market value in fifty representative stocks. The market value of the 50 shares at the close yesterday was $11,967,466 or less than one per cent below the market value at the close of the preceding week. Compared with the closing prices on Feb. 1, 1930, the fifty stocks show a depreciation of $415,046,776 or 15.10 per cent.

Finds Department Store Sales Around N. Y. Off 6%

New York, Jan. 31.—(AP)—Department store sales in December in the New York federal reserve district were 6 per cent smaller than in the like month of the previous year, the review of credit and business conditions of the Federal Reserve bank of New York says. This decrease occurred although last month had one more selling day than December of 1929. Wholesale business averaged 15 per cent smaller last month, while reporting chain store systems averaged 6 per cent below the year before.

RAILROAD NOTES

Chicago and North Western hauled 10,589 revenue freighters in the first 28 days of January, off about 14.3 per cent from the same period last year. This is not quite as good a comparison as the 12.5 per cent decline shown for the first twenty days. Illinois Central handlings in the first 27 days totaled 120,884 cars, about 10 per cent fewer than a year ago. Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific hauled 115,195 cars in the 28 days of January, off around 14 per cent.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois had a little improvement in its freight volume in the last two weeks and the Alton experienced a considerable pickup in the later part of this month.

Grain movement over the Burlington railroad system showed an increase of 1,133 carloads from Jan. 1 to Jan. 26, according to C. E. Spens, vice president of the road.

Permission to extend its operations into the industrial district around Longview, Wash., is sought from the interstate commerce commission by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. The road proposed alternately to reach the city by securing operating rights over existing rail lines now connecting with it or to build its own extension.

Payment of reparation to Armour & Co. of Delaware on rates charged by the Baltimore and Ohio, Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh and Lake Erie, and New York Central railroads for transportation of six carloads of refuse palm oil from New Castle, Pa., to Chicago has been recommended by an examiner for the interstate commerce commission. The examiner held the rates of 32 cents per 100 pounds to be unreasonable and recommended they should be no more than 21.5 cents.

BRITISH FIRM GETS CONTRACT FOR U. S. PLANT

[Copyright: 1931: by the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—An American contract for a thousand tons of machinery for the production of weldless steel tube has been secured by a British engineering firm in the face of strong competition from the United States and Germany.

The machinery will be made in Staffordshire and will be transported to be finally erected at Pittsburgh. A representative of the Wellman Smith Owen Engineering corporation, the firm which secured the order, is now in the United States surveying the site for the plant, and other officials will follow to supervise the erection.

Realty Trusts.

[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

When a real estate mortgage bond goes into default there is small likelihood of the bondholder's recovering the full amount of his original investment through foreclosure proceedings, because the factors contributing to the failure of the issuer to pay interest mitigate against a profitable sale of the assets.

In order to prevent the severe losses that result to bondholders when a depressed real estate market is further punished by the putting up for sale of many properties against which there are defaulted bonds outstanding various expedients have been adopted. One of these goes under the name of "realty trust."

The realty trust is admittedly a makeshift, being an emergency measure. It is far from perfect and, like other procedures, in some cases it is abused.

Under proper management, however, and given sufficient support by bondholders, such a plan is feasible and it may be the means of saving investors' money. If the people who organize it are capable and are moved by sincere desire to give aid to the bondholders, the realty trust may prove to be an instrument for preserving the bondholders' equity until the market for real estate improves and the property can be disposed of at a figure more closely approximating its normal value.

No two realty trusts are exactly alike. The general idea behind most of them, however, is something like this: The defaulted bonds are turned into the trust by the holders, who receive in exchange part notes and part shares of the trust. An effort is sometimes made to acquire the equity junior to the bonds if it can be bought cheaply, and this equity may then be thrown into the trust.

Interest is paid on the senior paper first and then—when, as, and if earned—interest and dividends may be paid on the junior paper. Generally an effort is made to give the depositor some current return with the promise of additional return as the property can be made to produce more revenue.

The realty trust idea is still too new to say whether it will satisfactorily fill the need for which it is intended.

Each trust of this kind should be judged individually. Before going into such a proposition the bondholder should acquaint himself with all factors. He should make certain that the bonds he is asked to deposit will go into the trust, and that no extraneous matter such as unimproved real estate is being dumped into it. Furthermore, he should see that the other assets of the trust are of as good quality as the bonds he is asked to deposit.

MAY ERECT 48 STORY TOWER ON AUDITORIUM SITE

Albert H. Wetten Said to Be Back of Project.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

FERDINAND W. PECK.
[Moffett Photo.]

One of Chicago's outstanding landmarks, the historic old Auditorium, is to make way for a forty-eight story office building, probably within the next two or three years, if present negotiations are consummated, according to reports current yesterday. It is rumored in real estate circles that Albert H. Wetten holds an option on the capital stock of the Chicago Auditorium association, owners of the leasehold interests and the Auditorium hotel, theater, and office building, as well as an option on all of the land under the Auditorium building, with the exception of the north fifty-three feet of the Michigan avenue frontage, for which it is understood negotiations are pending.

The options referred to are said to cover 134 feet of frontage on Michigan boulevard, 360 feet on Congress street, and 160 feet on Wabash avenue, comprising approximately 53,000 square feet, thus being one of the largest unbroken land areas in the loop district.

Although, as already stated, it is understood that tentative plans call for the erection of a skyscraper of modernistic design, with setbacks and with vertical lines accentuated, an official confirmation of what Mr. Wetten purposes doing with the Auditorium property could not be had owing to his absence from the city.

Depends on Settlement.

It is understood, however, that the entire project will depend on whether or not a satisfactory settlement can be made with the bondholders under two existing mortgages, in which defaults occurred in the payment of interest and principal due Feb. 1, 1929, resulting in the appointment of the late R. Floyd Clinch as receiver. Upon his death the Chicago Title and Trust company succeeded him as receiver, and as such is now in possession of the property.

The Auditorium property has been the subject of litigation for many years. Complications in connection with it have been so many and varied that the task of successfully settling the differences between the landowners, stockholders, and bond owners long had been considered hopeless.

It is interesting, therefore, to find that there seems a probability that this outstanding property may be improved in the not distant future with an imposing building in keeping with the prominence of the site.

Birthplace of Local Opera.

Great interest has been centered in this property for more than four decades. The opening of the Auditorium theater marked a historic step in the city's cultural growth. It was the birthplace of Chicago's interest in grand opera and has been conspicuous in the growth of Chicago as a world music center. The building of the hotel and office building in connection with the great theater, one of the most beautiful and most perfect acoustically in the world, was merely incidental. It was the desire to have a great opera and theater auditorium that prompted the citizens of Chicago to provide the necessary money with which to erect the building.

The late Ferdinand W. Peck was the promoter of the Auditorium enterprise. As a preliminary step he negotiated ground leases with Wirt D. Walker for the irregular piece of land having a frontage of 134 feet on Michigan avenue, 205 feet on Congress street, and 105 feet on Wabash avenue. The interest of Mr. Walker is owned by Mark S. Willing individually, under the will of Henry J. Willing.

Mr. Peck Gets 99 Year Lease.

Mr. Peck also acquired a ninety-nine year lease from Aug. 1, 1886, of the land at the northeast corner of Wabash avenue and Congress street, 55x155, now owned by the Sears estate and the Slater estate of New York.

Mr. Peck also secured ground leases from the Studebaker Bros. Manufacturing company for a term of ninety-nine years from Aug. 1, 1886, of a parcel of land having a frontage of approximately 53 feet on Michigan avenue, with a depth of 171 feet. These fees and leaseholds comprise the site of the present Auditorium building.

The interminable litigation in connection with this property was caused by the fact that the ground leases did not give the lessees the specific right to remove the buildings and erect a new building. The directors of the Auditorium association contended that they had such right, which the landowners denied.

Landowners Win Suit.

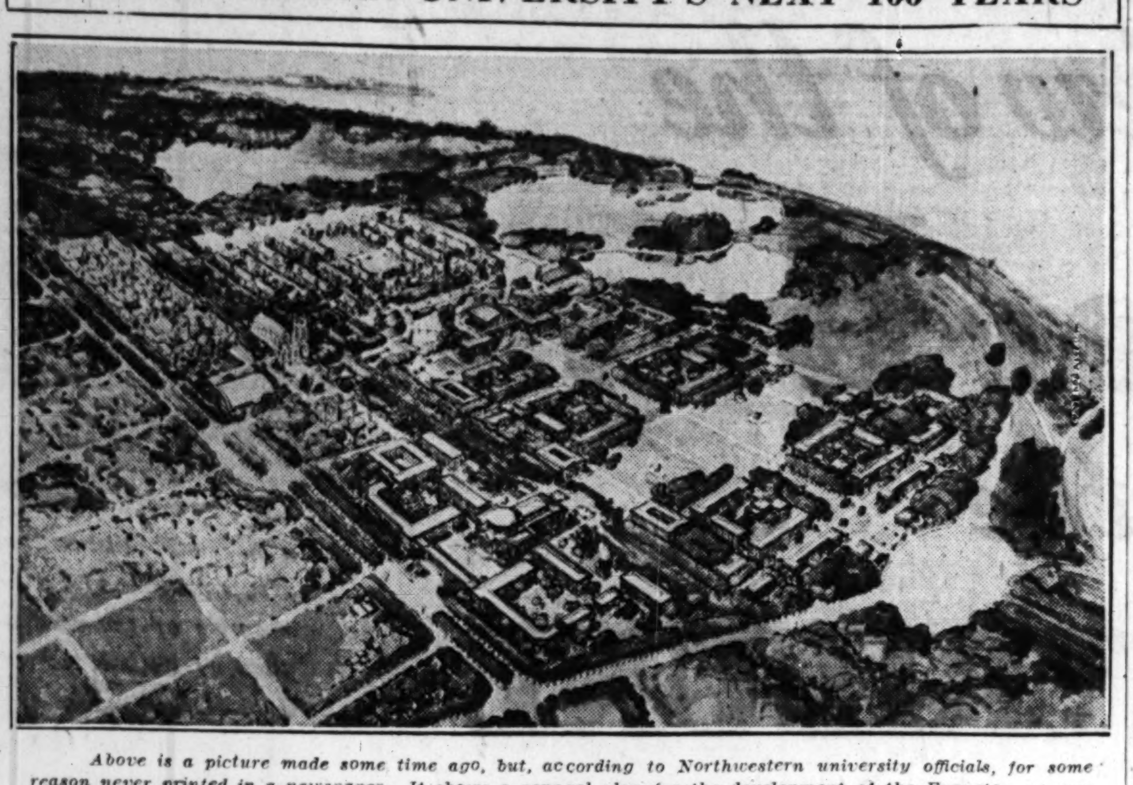
Accordingly the lessees filed a bill in Judge Wilkerson's court and asked for what was tantamount to a declaratory decree granting to the lessees the right to remove the building. The landowners won the case, which decision was later reversed in the United States Appellate court. The landowners then carried the case to the United States Supreme court, in which they were represented by present Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes. A decision favorable to them was obtained.

In the meantime the increase in taxes and operating costs and the decline in income, brought about largely through the obsolescence of the building, made a receivership of the property inevitable. Accordingly, in February, 1929, the late R. Floyd Clinch was made receiver. As already stated, on his death the Chicago Title and Trust company took possession of the property as receiver.

NILES CENTER DEAL.

C. B. Lindhoy & Co. of Niles Center report the sale of the southeast corner of Niles and Huli avenues for $65,000 from Lillian Lozo to Charles E. Doyle, both of Chicago. The corner is improved with a seven apartment building.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY'S NEXT 100 YEARS



Above is a picture made some time ago, but, according to Northwestern university officials, for some reason never printed in a newspaper. It shows a general plan for the development of the Evanston campus during the next fifty years, at an estimated cost of $100,000,000, made by Bennett, Parsons & Frost, consulting architects. According to a recent statement by President Walter Dill Scott it is expected that during the next decade the lake will be filled in for a distance of from one-quarter to one-half mile, providing a landing field for airplanes, lagoons and boulevards.

SAYS CHICAGO TOPS PARIS IN MODERN DESIGN

Alfred Granger Lauds Our Architecture.

ALFRED GRANGER.

Alfred Granger of Granger & Bollenbacher, Chicago architects, who is now temporarily residing in Vienna, was recently elected an honorary member of the Oesterreiches Ingenieur Un Artitekten Verein. This organization is comparable to the American Institute of Architects in this country. Some time this month Mr. Granger is to deliver a lecture on modern architecture in America before this Austrian society. Mr. Granger writes to F. E. Davidson, Chicago architect and editor of the Illinois Society of Architects' monthly bulletin, that the president of what we would call the city plan commission is personally seeing to it that he has an opportunity of examining in detail all of the municipal housing buildings in Vienna, which are internationally famous.

Mr. Granger states that he has access to all of the records and plans of these buildings and has secured many pictures which he plans to show the Architects' Club of Chicago upon his return to America next fall.

Writes from Vienna.

Following is a letter written by Mr. Granger to Mr. Davidson and published in the last issue of the architects' monthly bulletin:

"We have been in Vienna just one week, but begin to feel quite at home. Our crossing on the Statendam was smooth and delightful. I got off at Plymouth; spent nine days in England visiting Liverpool to see Sir Giles Gilbert Scott's great cathedral, which, when finished, will be much the largest church of England's cathedrals in Great Britain.

"Its situation is superb and the plan original and most interesting, but I was disappointed in the ornament, because to me it seemed greatly out of scale.

"London, as always, interested me greatly. I was blessed with beautiful weather all the time I was there and I walked miles and miles each day noting the changes that have taken place since my last visit. There is an imperial grandeur about London that no other city possesses and its modernization is so much more dignified and harmonious than what is being done in Paris. With its many trees, squares and gardens it always impresses me as a friendly home loving city. Not violent like New York.

Paris Being Americanized.

"Was only in Paris one week, and it poured rain all the time. Paris is being Americanized in the worst American manner and today the Champs Elysees looks at night like Broadway and is given over to automobile salesrooms. On the left bank of the river Paris still is French and beautiful.

"Le Corbusier was not in town when I called, but I met his partner, Jeanneret, saw some of his houses and his scheme for tearing down vast sections of the city, wiping out all the old landmarks and rebuilding in the modern manner. One can only hope and pray it may never be done. There is a great idea back of what these men are doing, but these developments should be carried out on the outskirts of the city, as is done in Vienna, and not wipe out the past. None of the modern work of Paris can in any way compare with what is being done in Chicago.

"We left Paris the night of Nov. 3, reaching here the next night. The ride through Switzerland and Austria was so beautiful one had no desire to read a word. It was enough to look out of the windows, enjoying God made beauty.

Praises Beauty of Vienna.

"Since reaching here we have been busy looking for winter quarters and getting one of our grandsons settled in school for the winter. The beauty of Vienna grows on us daily. I know no other city which has so many large open spaces for air and sunlight all over the city.

"This afternoon in the company of Mr. Nagels, a Viennese architect who visited Albert Eisemann in Chicago in September, we made a tour of the apartment houses for the poor, which the municipality has built since the war. They are on the southern edge of the city and are the most beautiful modern buildings I have ever seen. In each are garden courts with trees, flowers and fountains and plenty of places fo children to play without any risk from passing automobiles. We went to one group called "Sandlestein" because it is built entirely of concrete.

"Later I am to meet the architects of all these buildings and expect to visit with them many times to study their plans and learn about their costs. All of them face on streets as broad as Michigan avenue and all are as clean as our finest boulevards and here is where the laboring classes live and bring up their families in wholly healthful surroundings.

City Has No Slums.

"Then we went through the slum district, but there are no slums. Mrs. Granger is most impressed with the cleanliness and wholesomeness of everything. She plans to study the methods of public education in schools and kindergartens while I study plans and buildings.

"Since landing in Europe I think I have walked over fifty miles just absorbing streets and buildings.

"At home we are apt to think and speak of the 19th century rather contemptuously, but did it ever occur to you (it never did to me) that the art of city planning originated in and belonged to the 19th century?

"Excepting only Wrenn's plan for the rebuilding of London after the great fire, and which was never carried out, the first city to be built according to a carefully prepared plan in the whole world was our own city of Washington and I firmly believe that inside of fifty years it will be recognized as the most beautiful capital in the world.

"Prouder Than Ever of Chicago."

"In 1850 they began to tear down the old fortifications of Vienna and develop the famous Ring and all the parks and great thoroughfares. Paris was a hodge podge of dirty narrow streets with a few great squares, widely scattered, and the private gardens of the nobility until Napoleon III. in the 1860's commissioned Baron Haussman to make a plan of the city as it now is; and the great thoroughfares of London connecting the parks and public buildings began in the reign of Victoria. In our country Daniel Burnham started intelligent planning and his influence was world-wide.

"We owe this great idea, which is as yet in its infancy, to the much derided 19th century.

"Please remember me to my dear friends in the club, the chapter and the society. I think of them constantly and know I shall come home full of new ideas, but prouder than ever of Chicago.

"With all best wishes,
"Faithfully yours,
"ALFRED GRANGER."

Mr. Granger's address will be the Hotel Bristol, Vienna, for the next few months, he states.

Kiwanis International to Have Quarters on Boul Mich

RAYMOND M. CROSSMAN.
[Kauffman & Fabry Photo.]

Kiwanis International, one of the largest service organizations in the country, has leased practically all of the second floor of the McGraw-Hill building, 520 North Michigan avenue, which is owned by the Michigan-Grand Building corporation, of which Fred L. Maytag is president. Kiwanis will move about March 1st from the Federal Reserve building, where it has had its headquarters for the last eight years. Kiwanis International was founded in Detroit in 1915. It now has 1,875 clubs in Canada and the United States.

Raymond M. Grossman of Omaha is president. Harper Gatton of Madisonville, Ky., and C. E. Jeakins of Brantford, Ont., are vice presidents; Walter R. Weiser, Daytona Beach, Fla., is treasurer, and Fred C. W. Parker of Chicago is secretary. The local staff consists of Secretary Parker, Assistant Secretary George W. Kimball, eight department managers, seven field service representatives and approximately sixty other employés.

In addition to the Kiwanis lease, which is for ten years, Hall & Ellis, agents of the building, report having rented for ten years the north section of the tenth floor to the American Slicing Machine company for its general executive offices. It will move from the Republic building, where it has been for twenty-one years.

A third lease reported is by the Club Aluminum company, which has taken space on the third floor of its Chicago district sales office. Other leases reported by Hall & Ellis in the same building include the district sales office of the Stromberg Electric company, H. F. Friestedt company, Lowry & Co., Frederick Wellman, and J. M. Watson, International Casement company, and Astrid S. Rosing. It is stated that the building is now 84 per cent rented.

ACQUIRES 833 ACRES AT CARY FOR INDUSTRY

A large tract of land lying directly north and west of the John Hertz estate at Cary has been acquired by Edgar Ball of 10 South La Salle street. The farms or acreage involved in the transaction include the properties of Aggie Zogus, H. F. Senne, A. Cox, H. F. Brewer, Olof Ottoson, Peter Boyle, F. Lemke, K. Reko, B. V. S. Hawley, and E. H. Benson. The total acreage involved is approximately 833 acres, costing from $300 to $500 per acre. This tract was acquired by Mr. Ball for undisclosed interests for industrial purposes which he states will be announced later. Loucks, Eckert & Peterson were attorneys.

SHERIDAN ROAD LEASE.

Frank Bramson, children's wear, has leased the 15x60 store at 4711 Sheridan road for five years at a reported term rental of $10,500, from Sara Rosenzweig. James D. Harvey & Co. were brokers.

PLAN EVANSTON "L" STATION TO HANDLE FOOTBALL CROWDS

Plans have been completed for a new Rapid Transit lines station to be erected at Central street, Evanston, in connection with the track elevation project. This is one of three new "L" stations to be build, the others to be at Foster and Noyes streets. Each of the three stations will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Steel overhead structure work across Central street is being installed and construction of this station is expected to start in the near future. Plans for the other two stations are now in preparation, according to officials of the Chicago Rapid Transit company.

A feature of the Central street station will be the extensive provisions for handling football crowds attending games at Dyche stadium of Northwestern university. Four ticket booths with windows for eight agents will be located in the station proper, with five entrances to the station and six entrances to the island receiving platform, which will be 440 feet long and 16 feet wide. At the north end of the platform will be located four additional ticket booths, with turnstiles, to be used when occasion requires.

A 275 foot platform for southbound North Shore line trains will be constructed to the west of the main platform, which will serve "L" trains in both directions and also North Shore line trains northbound.

The Central street station, which will be located on the south side of the street, will have an attractive terra cotta front. The interior will be finished in art marble, with composition floors. The station was designed by Arthur U. Gerber, Rapid Transit architect.

OAK PARK REAL ESTATE BOARD HAS 150 MEMBERS

The Oak Park Real Estate board now has an active membership roll of fifty-eight and ninety-two others, either salesmen or business men and women engaged in work pertaining to the real estate field, according to the new president, John Cummings Lindop.

"The Oak Park Real state board has been very active in representing the property owners in Oak Park in effecting a fair taxation," said Mr. Lindop. "Last spring when the first acute situation arose in our tax affairs, the Oak Park Real Estate board organized a property owners' division, which has at present over 1,600 members and is handling over 2,300 cases.

"To date the court has not seen fit to have a hearing on the cases, but a great deal of work is being done daily toward equalizing the rights of valuation on future bills.

"Regular bi-monthly meetings are held and at present the greatest part of our efforts are toward the taxing

BETTERMENT IN BUILDING SEEN FOR CITY IN '31

Employers' Association Makes Survey.

JOSHUA D'ESPOSITO

To procure as accurate a forecast as possible dealing with Chicago's prospective construction program for 1931, the Building Construction Employers' association, at the direction of E. M. Craig, executive secretary, solicited the opinions of a number of Chicago building authorities. The following comments given by three are indicative of the opinions voiced by virtually all those asked, Mr. Craig states.

Joshua D'Esposito, consulting engineer, believes building for private use has been held up by financial conditions which are the result of financial mismanagement in the recent past.

"Building of a public character under control of the federal government, state, or other political bodies has been held up generally by the natural inertia of public bodies," he said. "Time and patience eventually will provide a way out. In my opinion the types of building most needed at the present time are public structures, road improvements, sewers, waterworks, and housing accommodations.

Urges Slum Reclamation.

"Every large city in the country contains square miles of dilapidated, insanitary slums, housing hundreds of thousands of people without the conveniences and comforts of modern life.

"Several public buildings will be started in the near future, but the effect of this construction will not be felt for several months to come. Private work probably will lag behind a year or two longer, and then will resume in a manner altogether different from that prevailing in the last few years.

"From the general trend of these remarks it may be inferred that I'm a pessimist in regard to the future of the building industry. This is not the case, as I believe that America has much more building to do than it already has done, but some fundamental readjustment must be made before the next step can take place."

Raps Dishonest Financing."

"An era of dishonest building financing has characterized a majority of building financing operations, not only in Chicago but in other cities for the last five years," said Frank D. Chase, president of Frank D. Chase, Inc., engineers and architects.

"Building is being held up now because of the impossibility of financing, due to the loss of confidence on the part of the investing public. This situation will be relieved when methods of honest financing are developed as required by a skeptical public.

"One of the necessities of improving this situation will be the enactment or enforcement of regularity laws which will regulate. Buildings of nearly all types are now needed. I believe that 1931 will be a far better year in all classes of structures than 1930.

Material Prices Rising.

"Prices of building materials have begun to increase and will continue to increase. The turn from a buyers' to a sellers' market is more imminent than most people realize."

William J. Lynch, Chicago builder, declares that "the commendable courage of manufacturers in putting large forces of unemployed to work has inspired the courageous, heartened the hesitant, and stimulated the weak. Sound business is getting started and building construction will closely follow. Symptoms of its revival are becoming apparent."

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

NOW'S TIME TO BUILD A HOME FOR LESS MONEY

Prices Lower than They've Been in Years.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]

LOUISE BARGELT.

These are cheering winter days of the new year, for the opportunity is here for prospective home builders to realize their desires and to build a new home or to improve an old one at rock bottom costs. A dollar spent on a home today brings what a dollar and ten cents or even a dollar and twenty cents would have bought a year ago. The home builder can take his choice and either bank the extra money saved or he can build a larger home than he could have afforded last year or furnish it more comfortably.

It has been over a decade since prices have been as low as now. It may be another decade before the same low market exists again. Opportunity has never been known for her stability of temperament; one seizes her when the time is propitious or loses her, perhaps forever, by procrastination.

A Friendly Type.

The prospective home owner can know now that his builder can select the best workmen who can produce the largest amount of work at established rates. He can know that the price of building materials in many cases—not all—has dropped considerably; in some instances as low as in 1917. As for builders themselves, in numberless instances the country over, profit making is not so important to them as to keep an efficient organization smoothly and busily at work.

Today is shown a five room home, fashioned after the early American farmhouse; architect, Bertram A. Weber, A. I. A., 343 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

This type of small home is well adapted to a dwelling for a suburban or country lot. It is a friendly, pleasant type in the simplicity of mass and roof lines, in the unassuming doorway and window design, and a total lack of ostentation dominates the spirit of the design throughout.

Modest Materials Used.

Modest materials are employed in the exterior. It has a common brick first floor and a shingle second story all painted white. An alternate treatment would be a stucco first floor and wood siding second floor, the color of weathered wood. The roof is of shingles.

So perfectly planned for garden lovers, surely a small but charming garden will be found in the rear. The house is particularly well adapted to a north or east front.

One enters a small vestibule, with lavatory and toilet on one side and space for coats on the other. Beyond the coat closet stairs lead up to the second floor.

A great glass bay in the living room looks over a terrace and secluded garden in the back. The dining room with its screened porch is a combination dining and living porch in summer.

Low windows in the living room bay have wide sills intended for small pots of ivy and flowers. The dining room opens on to the porch through glass doors. Lighted from two sides, it is bright and cheerful. A simple china cupboard is built into one wall.

The kitchen, small though practical [11x11], features a sink between wall cupboards where the housewife commands a view of her garden. China cases are near the dining room and the range and mechanical refrigerator are handily placed to receive good light. A built-in ironing board and broom closet, indispensable to the housekeeper, are not overlooked.

Garage Is Attached.

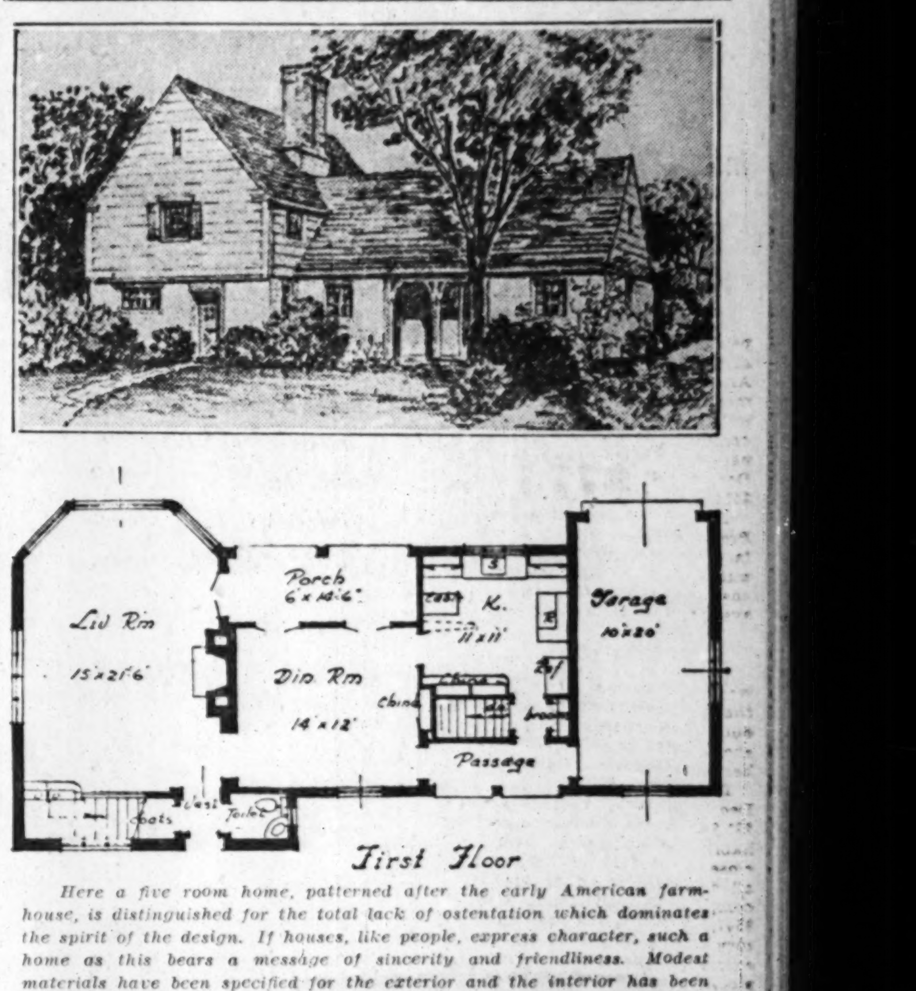
The ever desirable attached garage is conveniently located. A covered way serves the double purpose of kitchen porch and passage from the garage to the dining room. The homecomer on a stormy day can drive his dinner guests into the garage and enter the house without passing through the kitchen.

The second floor contains a large master room overlooking the garden front, amply supplied by two large closets. A guest or child's room, bathroom, a linen storage closet and a large storage space under the roof completes the arrangement.

The basement is laid out to contain space for well equipped laundry, incinerator, fruit and storage closets, oil or gas burner, and recreation room.

Approximate cost of building house in Chicago area $10,000. This house is designed for either a corner lot of 50 or 60 feet, or an inside lot of 75 feet.

Early American Farmhouse Type



Here a five room home, patterned after the early American farmhouse, is distinguished for the total lack of ostentation which dominates the spirit of the design. If houses, like people, express character, such a home as this bears a message of sincerity and friendliness. Modest materials have been specified for the exterior and the interior has been thoughtfully planned to meet the requirements of 1931 prospective home owners. Designed by Bertram A. Weber, architect, A. I. A., 343 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

Announces Series of Ten Home Building Lectures

The Institute of Vocational Arts and Sciences, 1522 Stevens building, announces a series of ten conversational lectures on all sides of home building for the layman by A. C. W. Buckett, architect. The first lecture starts Monday evening, Feb. 2. These lectures are primarily for prospective home owners or for those who already own their own homes but who are interested in all the problems attendant on home ownership and home building improvements.

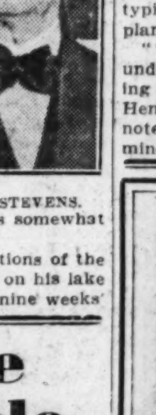
CARVES BOTTLES, PIPES, PITCHERS FROM GOURDS

BY PAUL POTTER.



C. A. STEVENS.

By prying into the secrets of the ventures that he has taken up as hobbies, Charles A. Stevens, Chicago merchant, has come to consider his gourd raising one of the most interesting.

First he noticed that his golf was giving way somewhat to the gardens in which he prides himself at Delavan lake, Wisconsin. Then Toggenburg goats took most of his spare time, but at present the gourds are forcing the three other hobbies somewhat from the picture.

Gourd seeds from all portions of the United States were planted on his lake shore estate last year. In nine weeks' time they covered with luxuriant growth an arbor that was 12 feet wide and 86 feet long. Approximately 300 seeds managed to produce such a profuse vegetation that in spite of much cutting and nipping of buds by Mr. Stevens he estimated that nearly 3,000 gourds of many shapes and sizes hung down from the vines.

There were "Hack Wilson" bat gourds, 4 feet long, heavy and shaped like a baseball bat; there were warty gourds, bottle gourds, pipe gourds, and vase gourds. Thirty-one varieties and many cross varieties which visitors told Mr. Stevens had never before been produced were harvested from the long arbor.

Some of the smaller, warty gourds that the 86 foot arbor supported last year were harvested after the first killing frost, and after they had been cut with a saw, were made into jewelry boxes. Dippers, vases and bottles are typically shaped containers which the plants grow.

"This year I shall start my seeds under glass to be more sure of giving them sufficient time to grow. Henry A. Dreer of Philadelphia has a noted collection of gourds but when mine has been developed I mean to make it the finest in America," says Mr. Stevens.

"Gourds are peculiar in that if they are permitted to cross fertilize, one plant with another, different varieties will produce an entirely new type of gourds. This year I will make use of that growing process and at the same time maintain nearly all of the true varieties by planting kinds together and merely letting the varieties cross where they are next to each other."

The substantial arbor which was constructed on the Stevens estate was built in 10 foot by 12 foot sections of steel and wood framing. Down through the center is a watering system consisting of a pipe line about four feet above the ground. When this is turned on it sprays through the vines to a height of about 12 feet above and falls down on the growing plants in a gentle shower.

sumed by the vines, which also require an exceedingly fertile plot of ground.

The harvest comes after the first heavy frost. The gourds are sorted out and those desired for dippers, bottles or vases are cut with a steel saw, the seeds and pulp removed. The outer skin is removed to get a more beautiful exterior, Mr. Stevens explains. In preparing some of the gourds this is done by soaking them in water, as in the case of the dipper shaped varieties. Others skin off

Here's a REAL Furniture SALE!!!

Manufacturer's Loss, Your Gain!

Like almost any business house, our greatest desire and aim has been to present at some time or other a value that no competitor can or will approach. Naturally, such accomplishments are few and far between—you know that . . . We've waited a long time for a fulfillment of our wish, but we know we have it now, and, in all sincerity, we offer you what we know is one of the finest assortments of living room furniture in Chicago, at prices you've never dreamed were possible. . . .

HERE'S HOW WE DID IT!!

After the furniture show we shopped around different manufacturers, intending to pick up odd lots of samples . . . By a stroke of luck, we were suddenly given the opportunity to purchase the complete sample line of one of the largest and best manufacturers of living room furniture, at a ridiculously low price. . . . Without thinking twice we snapped up the offer . . . It was, as we said, the chance of a lifetime for us, and now we're passing it on to you. . . . We bought at a tremendous discount, and we're selling at a tremendous discount. . . . There are 2-piece parlor suites, davenports, English lounging chairs, Coxwell chairs, love seats, all with a variety of colors and finest coverings . . . But don't take our word for anything . . . Drop in and see for yourself—you won't be obligated. We know you'll agree it's a value no competitor can approach . . . Open daily, Sundays, and evenings . . .

Advice to folks who some day will study another language

If you are one of the many who now or some time in the future intend to learn another language, here is sound advice that will save disappointment, time and money.

Progress has been made in education. Old methods have been discarded. New and more progressive ones have taken their place. In languages—as an example, lecture methods—shopworn book learning have given way to a new-day Method that no longer leaves progress problematical. Yearly, more than 150,000 men and women become linguists—easily, quickly. They learn without conscious mental effort. They actually enjoy learning. Because by a talking method—by conversation based on proved, psychological principles the study of languages has been made thrilling, fascinating. Progress is triply speeded—mastery made a scientific certainty. This Method is known as the Berlitz Conversational Method. When you decide to learn another language, please take our advice—test this Method first—take a free demonstration lesson in French, Spanish, German, Italian or English. It will prove its own superiority.

WHY— SWEDISH MASSAGE OFFERS YOU SPLENDID REWARDS

Swedish Massage and Physio-Therapy is a valuable ally in relieving human suffering. Its beneficial use in the treatment of specific cases has been thoroughly demonstrated in the great hospitals and clinics as well as in private practice.

Every thoroughly equipped hospital and most every sanitarium has its Physio-Therapy department. Doctors, clubs and institutions throughout the country are seeking those proficient in genuine Swedish methods of Massage and Hydro-Therapy as taught at the National College. But coupled with this demand is the further fact that we have assisted many of our graduates to establish themselves in business, serving their own clientele.

Just stop and figure out the earnings from giving 8 to 10 treatments daily at a fee of $3 to $5 each.

Spend a whole day or evening in our classroom WITHOUT CHARGE OR OBLIGATION, and learn how you, too, can become an expert in this fascinating field.

AAA MEN WHO REALLY WANT TO WORK

We are now increasing our local and national organization in preparation for spring business. Those men who join us now will be in a position to profit by the tremendous volume of business that will result from our national advertising campaign.

Our requirements are as follows: Ambition, neat appearance, good references, between 25 and 55 years of age. To seven such men we offer a permanent position with good pay and an assured future in the sales department of one of the leading manufacturers in the country.

Your earnings to start will be based on your own ability to understand our products and explain them to others, after we have given you, at our expense, a thorough sales training of 2 days. Our unusually fair and unique method of compensation where each man shares in the profits on a liberal commission plan has enabled us to boast of one of the largest, highest paid sales organizations in America, where men who work make regularly from $150 to $1,000 per month, and many of these men never sold anything before coming with us.

If you think you will measure up to our requirements we will be glad to have you call Monday. See Mr. Taylor, 75 E. Wacker-dr., Suite 1002, Mather Tower.

Oak Park residents see Mr. Crawford, Room 218, 715 W. Lake-st., Oak Park.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

DISTRIBUTORS SALESMEN

A week ago today our ad appeared in this paper. We received hundreds of inquiries from all parts of the United States, had distributors come to our office from other cities and towns. Many have returned to their territories after consummating contracts with us, and are now in actual production and actually making money. Salesmen answered this ad—received two days' training and the first day in the field they received orders and actual cash commissions.

We want a few real distributors to handle various territories in our national operation, and salesmen—a man with a sparkle in his eye, a smile on his face, and a song in his heart—who will really work. If you can meet these qualifications we can say to you that your financial worries are over and that you are connected with a company whose officials have been on the "firing line" and have been doing just what we are asking you to do. This means a permanent connection with an unlimited future if you are willing to follow a proven plan of success. Wire, write, or see us.

KANKAKEE STEAMER CO.,
310 S. MICHIGAN-AV.

DISTRIBUTOR WANTED.

Fast growing organization has unusual opening for experienced man to take exclusive distribution of remarkable office specialty for which big demand exists. Entirely new. Needed by every typewriter user. A proved and astonishing success.

If you want a permanent connection with income above the average, wire or write immediately. President, 719 Brown Marx Bldg., Birmingham, Ala.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

Salesmen interested in a permanent connection offering ample compensation and splendid future will find it to their advantage to call on us.

Specialized selling experience is not essential; the only important consideration is are you a successful salesman. The combination of our training, character of lead furnished and your willingness to work assures your success.

Earnings in five figures are not unusual and there are no reasonable limits to what you may hope to accomplish if you are sincere.

STARTING TODAY

Carroll, Schendorf & Boenicke

ARE PLACING AT THE DISPOSAL OF APARTMENT DWELLERS THE MOST COMPLETE AND REVOLUTIONARY RENTING SERVICE EVER CONCEIVED. ITS PURPOSE IS TWO-FOLD—THAT OF REDUCING TO A MINIMUM THE LABOR AND DRUDGERY OF APARTMENT HUNTING, AND INSURING TENANTS THE EXACT TYPE, SIZE, LOCATION, AND PRICE OF APARTMENT THAT THEY EXPRESSLY DESIRE.

Here's the plan!

IF YOUR LEASE EXPIRES ANY TIME WITHIN THE NEXT FOUR MONTHS, WE WILL LIST YOUR NAME, TOGETHER WITH THE SPECIFICATIONS OF ONE OR MORE TYPES OF APARTMENTS THAT YOU HAVE IN MIND AS YOUR IDEAL HOME. . . THEN, BETWEEN NOW AND THE EXPIRATION OF YOUR LEASE, OUR HIGHLY TRAINED STAFF OF HOME SPECIALISTS, HAVING COMPILED A COMPLETE LIST OF APARTMENTS OF EVERY TYPE IN THE BETTER RESIDENTIAL SECTIONS OF THE SOUTH SIDE, WILL MAKE A SELECTION OF THE BEST APARTMENTS FOR YOUR PURPOSES. . AT YOUR CONVENIENCE WE WILL ESCORT YOU BY AUTOMOBILE TO EACH LOCATION AND YOU MAY CHOOSE FOR YOURSELF. . . IF WE FAIL TO SATISFY WE WILL TRY AGAIN, BUT REMEMBER, YOU ARE UNDER NO OBLIGATION AT ANY TIME. HOWEVER, WE HONESTLY BELIEVE THAT OUR LONG EXPERIENCE, INHERENT KNOWLEDGE OF RENTING SITUATIONS, AND A CHOICE OF APARTMENTS MORE VARIED THAN EVER BEFORE, WILL PROVIDE FOR YOU, BY MEANS OF THIS PLAN, THE MOST PERFECT APPROACH TO THE HOME OF YOUR DREAMS. . . .

SO, WHY NOT PHONE OUR NEAREST OFFICE TODAY AND GIVE US AN OPPORTUNITY TO SERVE YOU? IT WILL COST YOU NOTHING AND WE FEEL CONFIDENT WE CAN SOLVE YOUR APARTMENT PROBLEM WITHOUT NEED OF ANY TROUBLE ON YOUR PART. OF COURSE, PREFERENCE WILL BE GIVEN IN THE ORDER OF NAMES RECEIVED, BUT WE CAN ACCOMMODATE MANY. BELOW IS A COMPLETE LIST OF

HOW TO GET A GOOD, IRRIGATED, DIVERSIFIED FARM HOME on the Sun River Project, near Fairfield, Montana, regulated by the United States Reclamation Service—35 miles from Great Falls, a large, attractive city on the Milwaukee road. A real opportunity to better yourself, be your own boss and become independent.

Forty-two thousand acres of level to gently rolling land. Soil fine for small grains, vegetables, alfalfa, sweet clover. Dairying, cattle and sheep raising successful; poultry and turkeys do well. Big crops of grain, alfalfa seed peas and vegetables harvested under unfavorable 1930 conditions prove the certain results from Sun River lands under irrigation. Good roads, markets, railroads, good neighbors, churches and schools—a happy home community.

Improved and unimproved lands offered generally on easy terms at $30 to $60 an acre. Gibson Dam insures plenty of irrigation water on your land at very low cost of $1.00 to $1.50 per acre for maintenance and operation. Very favorable government plan guarantees that 5% of average yearly crop values will pay all irrigation construction costs. This amounts to very little per acre.

Write us for illustrated folder, Government Bulletin and Map. Ask questions—they will be reliably answered. Our Agricultural Agents will help you before and after you locate. R. W. Reynolds, Commissioner, The Milwaukee Road, 921-Q, Union Station, Chicago, Illinois.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

DO YOU KNOW WHAT CONSTITUTES A USED CAR VALUE

A BLUE RIBBON AWARD IS SIGNIFICANT OF A LEADER.

Leaders must earn their laurels.

THE GAMBILL MOTOR CO. have labeled their reconditioned automobiles—"Blue Ribbon Values"—absolutely representative of the highest degree in value.

WHEN YOU BUY a Blue Ribbon used car of known make, inspected and conditioned by us, sold under a registered trade mark with a

5 Day Driving Trial

you are surrounded with all the safeguards necessary to make your purchase a safe investment.

BARGAINS ARE NUMEROUS but usually "Something for nothing is good for nothing." When buying a used car be cautious, look for value—not bargains.

WE LIST A FEW OF OUR BLUE RIBBON VALUES:

HIS name is many syllables longer — but, to make for easy reading, we will simply call him Philip Pappas here.

The other day as the distinguished Mr. Pappas, proud American—substantial Chicagoan—an honored and a feted visitor—he returned a modern, if a modest, Croesus in his quondam countrymen's astonished eyes.

A legend quickly grew about him—a legend of a city of his finding where "the streets are paved with gold."

And yet there is many a Philip Pappas in Chicago.

Chicago Land Fruitful in Profits

There is many a person born here—and many a one that only recently has come here—to whom the hand of Fortune has been both generous and kind. Many who have worked hard—and even lived meanly—in order to acquire the savings with which to seize the opportunities they have seen in the city's stupendous rate of growth.

The fruitful soil upon which Chicago's 200 square miles are spread gives its favors liberally. It richly rewards the ones who acquire a well located plot of it.

These Developments Will Enhance Values

Fifty thousand people add themselves to Chicago's population every year. The rapidly expanding commercial life of Chicago, its activity as the capital of Middle West finance and commerce, the 1933 Exposition—these will increase the city's temporary as well as permanent population—and the demand for places in which to work and live.

Right now—real estate prices in many sections of the city are more favorable for investment than they will be again for many years. And thousands of Chicagoans are sensibly planning to profit.

Tribune Leads in Real Estate Offers

Most of us wait too long for our real opportunities. But to those who are alert and money-minded, the best evidence of the opportunities that lie ahead is to be found day after day in the real estate classified pages of the Tribune, where the greatest volume of Chicago's advertising of this nature is consistently run.

Watch these classified real estate opportunities in the Tribune carefully—read them regularly. Who knows how soon one of them may prove to your satisfaction that there is much more fact than fiction to the characterization of Chicago as "the city that's paved with gold"?

I'VE ALWAYS SAID - THERE'S AN OPENING IN THIS WORLD FOR ANY MAN WHO WORKS HARD - IS SINCERE AND TENDS STRICTLY TO BUSINESS AND I'VE FOUND THAT OPENING — I'M IN THE HOLE ALL RIGHT -
WELL IF YOU USED YOUR HEAD YOU WOULDN'T BE IN THE HOLE - YOU'D BE OUT OF IT - AS YOU SHOULD BE - WITH BOTH FEET ON THE GROUND -
BOTH FEET ON THE GROUND IS RIGHT
AND BOTH HANDS UP IN THE AIR - AS YOU MANAGE TO KEEP THEM
NOW BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY - DON'T ACCUSE ME OF SPENDING YOUR MONEY - I SURELY AM NOT OBSTRUCTING YOUR PATHWAY TO SUCCESS
IF YOU'RE NOT A SUCCESS - DON'T BLAME ME FOR IT
I MAY NOT BE THE SUCCESSFUL MAN YOU HOPED TO MARRY - I'M NOT A MILLIONAIRE - I CAN'T WRITE OUT $10,000.00 CHECKS AND TELL YOU TO GO DOWN AND BUY FUR COATS AND DIAMONDS - BUT DON'T FORGET THAT THAT KIND OF SUCCESS HAS ITS DRAWBACKS ALSO - THERE IS MANY A MAN SPOILED BY SUCCESS -
AND FOR EVERY MAN WHO IS SPOILED BY SUCCESS - THERE ARE THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS WHO ARE RUINED BY THE LACK OF IT - AND DON'T FORGET THAT - TIGHTWAD - TELL ME I SPEND YOUR MONEY - WHERE DO YOU GET THAT - TIGHT WAD?
EVERY TIME YOU ASK FOR ANY THING MY HAND GOES RIGHT IN MY POCKET -
I'LL SAY YOUR HAND GOES IN YOUR POCKET -
AND YOU KEEP IT THERE WITH YOUR FIST CLOSED TIGHT - AND YOU DON'T OPEN YOUR PALM 'TIL THE DANGER IS OVER - ANY THING THAT IS CAUGHT IN THAT PAW - IS IN A VICE - IF THEY COULD ONLY BUILD SAFES HALF AS SECURE -
KEEP IT UP - TALK - GO AHEAD - AND IN A FEW MINUTES I'LL TELL YOU SOMETHING
WELL IF YOU INSIST ON TALKING - LET ME WHISPER SOMETHING TO YOU CONFIDENTIALLY -

I'M HERE ON BUSINESS, THAT'S WHAT I AM. A LADY GIMME A QUARTER TO MIND THIS KID WHILE SHE DONE SOME SHOPPIN.'
WELL, I'LL TAKE CARE OF THE BABY TILL IT'S MOTHER SHOWS UP. THE PRINCIPAL OF YOUR SCHOOL TOLD ME HE WAS GONNA HAVE YOU PUT IN JAIL IF YOU WAS LATE ANYMORE: SO BEAT IT.
SAY WHAT'S THE KID'S NAME ANYWAY?
YOU KIN SEARCH ME. I COULDN'T UNDERSTAND A WORD IT SAID-
KAYO WOULD GO OFF AND LEAVE HIS BOOKS- WELL, I GUESS I CAN CATCH HIM BEFORE HE GETS AROUND THE CORNER.
MY BABY! HAVE YOU SEEN A BABY IN A BUGGY WITH A LITTLE BOY IN A BLACK DERBY?
YES, MA'M- A MAN IN A BROWN DERBY HAD THE BABY AND WAS CHASING THE LITTLE BOY.
STOP HIM! STOP THAT MAN!
YOU HOUND! TAKE THAT AND THAT! AND THAT!
SAY LISTEN- OW! CUT THAT OUT.
LADY, IF YOU HAVE TO BEAT YOUR HUSBAND, DO IT AT HOME, PLEASE.
MY HUSBAND! HOW DARE YOU CALL THAT SCOUNDREL MY HUSBAND! HE'S A KIDNAPPER!
STOP HIM!
DON'T LET HIM ON THERE!

THAT BIG BRUTE! WILLIE! LOOK OUT!!!
WHY, WILLIE! ARE YOU TRYING TO TELL ME YOU'RE OLD FRIENDS? THAT'S IMPOSSIBLE-
BOUF! BOUF!
DON'T SEEM LIKELY THEY EVER MET BEFORE- SHE WAS CAPTURED 'BOUT A YEAR AGO NEAR A LITTLE BACK-WOODS TOWN CALLED BLUNDERVILLE-
WHAT? BLUNDERVILLE! WHY, THAT'S WHERE I WAS LIVIN' WHEN WILLIE CAME 'BOUT A YEAR AGO- SHE MUST BE WILLIE'S MAMA-'MAGINE THAT! NO WONDER THEY SEEM SO TICKLED TO SEE EACH OTHER-BOUF!
IT WOULD BE GOOD FOR BOTH OF THEM IF YOU'D LET WILLIE STAY HERE- I KNOW HE'D BE VERY HAPPY-
GEE- I NEVER FIGGERED ON ANYTHING LIKE THIS- STILL, HE WOULD HAVE A SWELL HOME HERE, AND HE WOULDN'T BE LONESOME-WE'RE GOIN' TO MISS WILLIE- BUT HE SURE WAS TICKLED TO SEE HIS MAMA AGAIN- HE'LL REALLY BE LOTS HAPPIER AT THE ZOO- AND, AFTER ALL, IF WE REALLY CARE FOR A FRIEND, OUR FIRST THOUGHT SHOULD BE FOR HIS HAPPINESS- EH, SANDY?

STUDIES IN STEEL: INDUSTRIAL IMPRESSIONS IN "THE CITY OF DESTINY"

THE FINISHED PRODUCT OF THE STEEL MILLS—Two other paintings by Mr. Chase, depicting the building of the city's bridges, tell a fascinating story of Chicago at work. It is a story of lusty, brawny building for the future, of material fundamentals strong and beautiful in their adaptation to use, of a city still young and gloriously alive rearing its physical world about it, even though taking its place among world centers in esthetic expressions.

NOW WE PRINT THE FACTS

Read heretofore suppressed details of recent cosmetic test made at New York Laboratory. Why these startling facts are revealed for first time.

Who else wants skin like this?

PILING UP THE EVIDENCE . . . Dramatic test made at New York Laboratory proves three new popular priced skin-care aids equal in quality to salon products costing two to eight times more.

● Women:—Read this article through to the end. It will take you 2½ minutes. It may mean much to you.

FOR certain reasons . . . until now it has been impossible to print complete details of the recent cosmetic test that has caused such an uproar throughout the country . . .

We are now able to do this. Read the amazing facts that follow.

On July 25, 1930, twenty-seven creams and lotions, made by the best-known "salon" lines bearing famous "individual" names were selected for test.

They were tested in direct comparison with three popular priced products, a cleansing cream, a liquid cleanser and a softening cream.

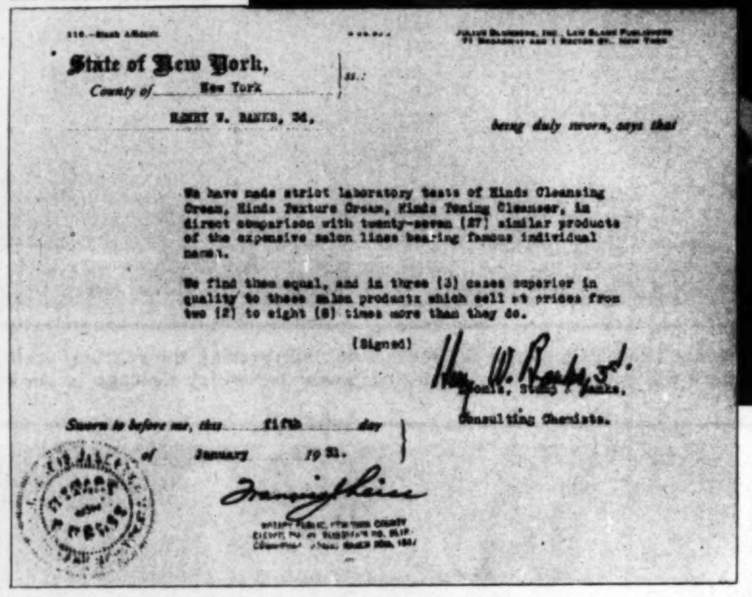
It took 17 days to make the analyses and compile the report.

At the end of that time, the Banks Report, a 32-page document, presented the most startling revelations ever divulged in the cosmetic industry.



State of New York,
County of New York } ss.:

HENRY W. BANKS, 3d, being duly sworn, says that

We have made strict laboratory tests of Hinds Cleansing Cream, Hinds Texture Cream, Hinds Toning Cleanser, in direct comparison with twenty-seven (27) similar products of the expensive salon lines bearing famous individual names.

We find them equal, and in three (3) cases superior in quality to these salon products which sell at prices from two (2) to eight (8) times more than they do.

(Signed) Henry W. Banks 3d.

Consulting Chemists.

Sworn to before me, this fifth day of January 1931.

Banks' Affidavit

What Report Shows

A summary of the findings in this report are shown in Banks' affidavit, directly at right above.

Thus for the first time in the history of the cosmetic industry you get salon quality products at actually the cost of ordinary creams and lotions!

SCIENTISTS spent three years perfecting these new skin-care aids.

How is it possible to make salon quality products to sell at a popular price?

Scientists at the Hinds Laboratories, Bloomfield, New Jersey, took three years to answer this question.

Three years of research in skin care methods, experimentation, study of the raw materials market. By making three products most needed in skin care instead of twenty or more, as salon manufacturers do, they solved the problem.

Findings in the Cleansing Cream Field

A study of cleansing creams revealed the modern cleansing cream liquefies.

Ordinary "heavy" type cleansing creams that go on skin like lard were deemed inadvisable. They stay "solid" until rubbed vigorously. This rubbing stretches skin . . . pushes dirt still deeper into pores. Skin texture may be ruined. Pore enlargement may come.

Hence, the New Hinds Cleansing Cream liquefies.

The moment you apply, it melts, gently penetrates pores, floats out all dirt and dust.

Your skin feels clean and soothed. Its delicate texture is protected. You avoid all that rubbing.

Is it not folly to continue with these old-type "solid" creams which may make trouble when now you can get this expensive-type liquefying cream for 40¢ the small jar, 65¢ the large?

A Way to End Large Pores is Discovered

A new way of pore refining was one of the most outstanding results of the three years' research.

It's a way that not only refines pores, but does so in a remarkably short time.

You accomplish this by means of a liquid which is both a cleanser and a solvent.

What It Does

First, it thoroughly cleans surface of skin, then it enters pores and dissolves out accumulated pore residue. Relieved of this residue, pores shrink back to normal size.

(Diagram shows how solvent of real penetrating power is needed to enter minute curving pore channel. And thus dissolve out this unexpelled residue which causes pores to enlarge. No ordinary method will do it.)

Observe how skin is left cool, clean, exhilarated. Due to a special ingredient used in the formula this delightful cooling sensation remains half an hour or longer after liquid is applied.

Use after cleansing cream to remove all traces of grease, all lingering particles of dirt, dust.

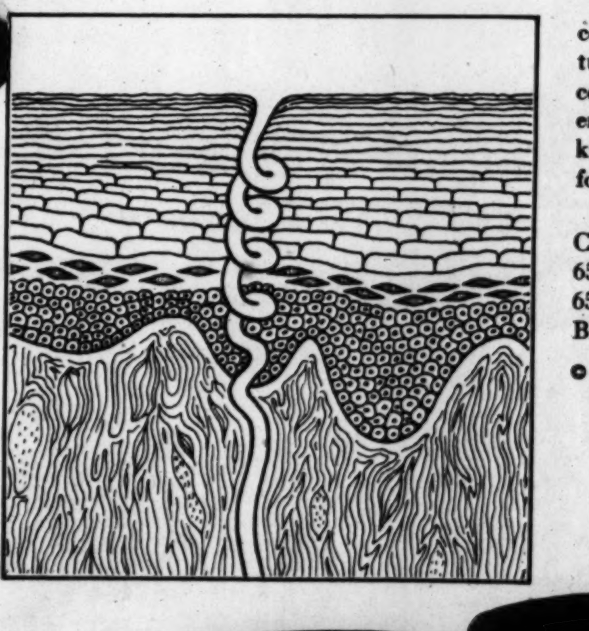
Use during day to cleanse skin when renewing make-up. Make-up then applied gives you the lustrous look of glowing health.

New Delicate Skin Texture

Note, please, the new delicate skin texture, the vivid cleanness regular use of Hinds Toning Cleanser brings you.

Do not confuse Hinds Toning Cleanser with skin tonics and fresheners. It is a liquid cleanser which refines pores. Hinds Toning Cleanser, 65¢.

LOOKS LOVELY. New greaseless cream for dry skins is absorbed rapidly by skin . . . Leaves no grease on face to make you uncomfortable . . . unattractive . . . at night. See details above.



PORE AS IT GOES → DOWN through skin layers. Opening fills with pore residue which accumulates over a period of time.

If residue is not removed, pores stretch to make a place for it.

That is why you see large ugly pores on many women.

Only a solvent with real penetrating power can enter this minute curving channel and dissolve pore residue. And thus let pores shrink back to their normal fine state.

(Diagram made from microscopic drawing)

Now We Come to Dry Skins

Dry skins have increased rapidly the last few years.

Hence, the third member of this trio is a remarkable Greaseless Cream that makes skin satin-soft . . . ends all that dry scaly condition. Hinds Texture Cream it's called.

A light, delicate cream you apply at night . . . it is utterly unlike greasy softening creams. Hence you retire with face smooth and lovely.

No need to smooth towel over pillow for fear of grease on linen.

No need to be uncomfortable with grease on face . . . in hair.

Absorbed rapidly by the skin, this scientifically compounded cream works through the night. Counteracts tight drawn feeling of skin, scaliness, dryness.

See how satin-smooth and flexible this new softening cream makes skin.

Hinds Texture Cream, 40¢ and 65¢.

Special Note

These three new Hinds Products are scientifically compounded to supplement each other. Three years have been spent in research at the Hinds laboratories to perfect them.

Use them together, please. We urge you not to counteract their good effect by using ordinary creams and lotions with them.

Remember, these statements do not come from some unknown manufacturer—they come from that fine, old conservative firm, A. S. Hinds Co., makers of Hinds Honey & Almond Cream—known and used by American women for over 50 years.

Insist on the genuine Hinds Cleansing Cream, Hinds Texture Cream (in 40¢ and 65¢ sizes), and Hinds Toning Cleanser, 65¢. At all druggists. A. S. Hinds Co., Bloomfield, N. J.

CANE SUGAR AND MAPLE SUGAR

"This syrup sure hits me where I keep my appetite"

ON dude ranch or Newport estate, wherever men eat with relish, Log Cabin Syrup is prized for its wonderfully rounded and satisfying flavor.

Why is this temptingly flavored syrup so eagerly sought in thousands of homes? What makes it the most popular maple-blended syrup in the world?

It's the second maple.

Log Cabin Syrup contains not only Vermont maple, not only tropical cane, but still another fragrant maple, bucketed in the North Forests by snowshoed woodsmen and hauled to camp on oxen-drawn bobsleds.

Just try Log Cabin Syrup on pancakes tomorrow—and you'll know why all America prizes it so highly.

CORNS
SORE TOES-CALLOUSES BUNIONS

Instant Relief

For these foot troubles nothing is so effective as Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads. Pain stops instantly. Their mild, soothing medication gives you this amazingly quick relief. They remove the cause—shoe pressure—by cushioning and protecting the sore spot. Special sizes for Corns, Corns between toes, Callouses, Bunions. At drug, shoe, dept. stores—35c box.

Dr Scholl's Zino-pads
Put one on—the pain is gone!

100% SAFE!

This way you avoid risk of blood-poisoning as with cutting your corns, or of acid burn which harsh liquids and plasters often cause.

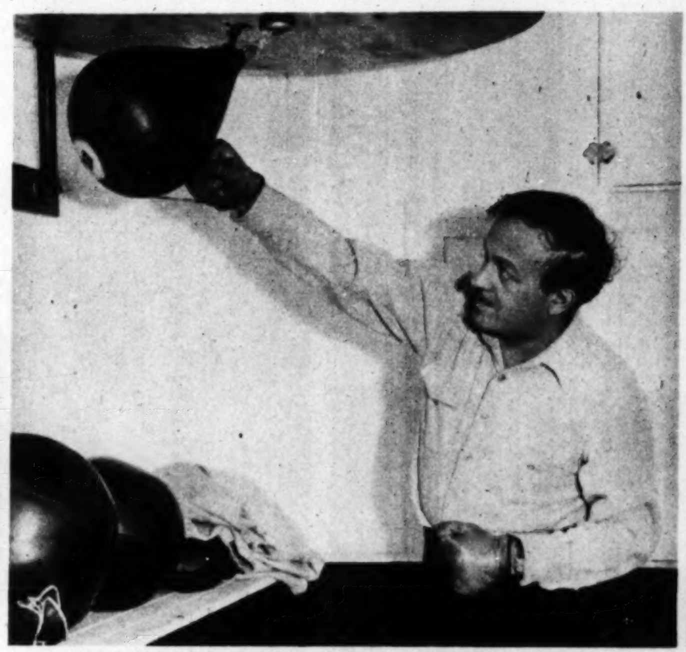
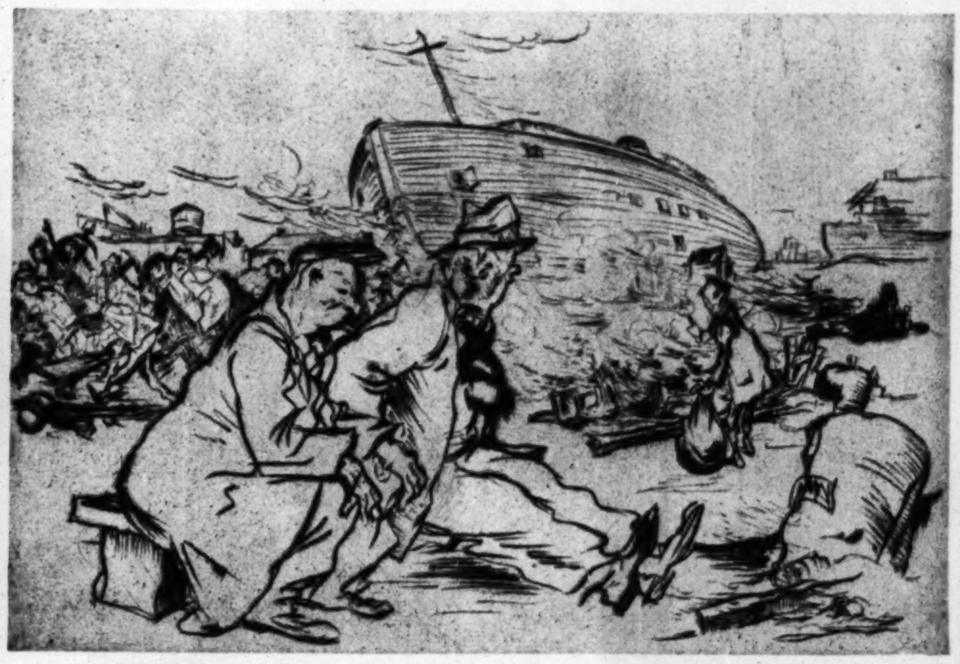
AMBIDEXTROUS—J. Frank Dobie teaches English at the University of Texas with his right hand. With his left he collects folk lore about the southwest. He knows more about its lost mines and buried treasure than any one else and tells about them in "Coronado's Children," the Literary guild choice for February.



BEN HECHT STILL HAS A PUNCH! This is how he trains for his literary pommelings on the estate in Rockwell county, New York, which the movies provided during the four years since his last novel was published. His latest, "A Jew in Love," is just off the press.

CHEERIO! ANOTHER GOAL! Young Miss Dorita Rohm, who is thoroughly bundled up for a tussle on the ice whether she actually plays the part or not, is the mascot of the Minneapolis hockey club.



A YOUNG ARTIST LOOKS AT LIFE IN CHICAGO—"The Sacking of Hooverville," telling a story of the lake shore, was etched by John Groth of the art staff of a Chicago newspaper, who has two etchings in the International exhibition at the Art institute. "Hooverville" will be remembered as a squatters' colony at the foot of Randolph street which was destroyed by police.

A FAMOUS CLIMATE IN A LITTLE KNOWN GUISE—A night's ride away from the shore where the natives are popularly supposed to pick breakfast oranges the year around, two San Francisco misses find the thrill of skiing at Lake Tahoe, in the California Sierras. Tryouts for the Olympic winter sports of 1932 will be held at the celebrated lake this month. (Acme-P. & A. photo.)

Cod Liver Oil once a punishment now a treat

Most children get cod liver oil—their doctors insist on it—but only the lucky kids get Coco Cod.

Full strength and pure, Coco Cod has all the vital life-giving vitamins that build surging, robust, athletic health into growing little bodies.

Try Coco Cod—the cod liver oil that tastes like chocolate—all druggists have it.

HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD: Lingering within scent of the dogs of the Seneca Hunt club of Seneca, Ill. One 'possum has almost vanished out of the picture for the moment, and another is just about to have his tail nipped by "Dan" in this episode of rustic sport within seventy-five miles of Chicago. C. E. Cooke and G. W. Murbach of the club contribute to the complications.

SCANT IN CLEARANCE, but good models for the country, nevertheless, the Seneca Hunt club beagles assist in keeping down the overproduction in cottontails. Mrs. C. E. Cooke holds four of the pack in leash.

DOESN'T SOMEBODY WANT TO GO HUNTING? Three sad young bird dogs of the Seneca club that would be made happy by a prowl through the brush, a romp in the open, or even a friendly pat on the head.

Identically

THE SAME AGE

-but what a difference!

NEGLECT! Perhaps—but often this is not the only reason for aged hands. Some women try, sincerely—but do not happen to find the single skin preparation that acts quickly; the kind they can "slap on and get results"—and so they give up in disgust. If you have given up—try the skin softener, Italian Balm. The women of cold Canada buy more of it, today, than any other skin aid. Invention of an internationally-famous skin specialist, this skin softener is not the usual commercial preparation. Its scientifically selected and blended ingredients include many imported essential oils. Approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. At drug and department stores in 35c, 60c and $1.00 bottles. Try it free.

This Genuine Mineral Oil
OF CERTIFIED EFFICIENCY

All efforts to imitate or provide a substitute for Genuine Russian Mineral Oil have failed. Medical authorities agree that Genuine Russian Mineral Oil is superior for keeping the system free from poisons due to faulty elimination.

A.D.S. Genuine Russian Mineral Oil is the finest Hydro-carbon Russian Oil—absolutely free from impurities. Clear as sparkling water, it is guaranteed to be tasteless and odorless. It is acceptable to the most delicate palate. It is not fattening.

Laxatives and pills which contain drugs, provide an artificial action which often develops into a habit and calls for more frequent doses as time goes on. The natural way to correct these troubles is with A.D.S. Genuine Russian Mineral Oil—a product of nature, imported from Russia.

Doctors prescribe the daily use of A.D.S. Russian Mineral Oil because it possesses that heavy body which insures perfect, natural elimination, with none of the annoying seepage associated with the use of ordinary thin oils.

Insist on the Genuine A.D.S. Russian Mineral Oil and know that you get the best. The name A.D.S. is your Guarantee of the Genuine.

Week End Wives

BEGINS IN THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE ON February 15!

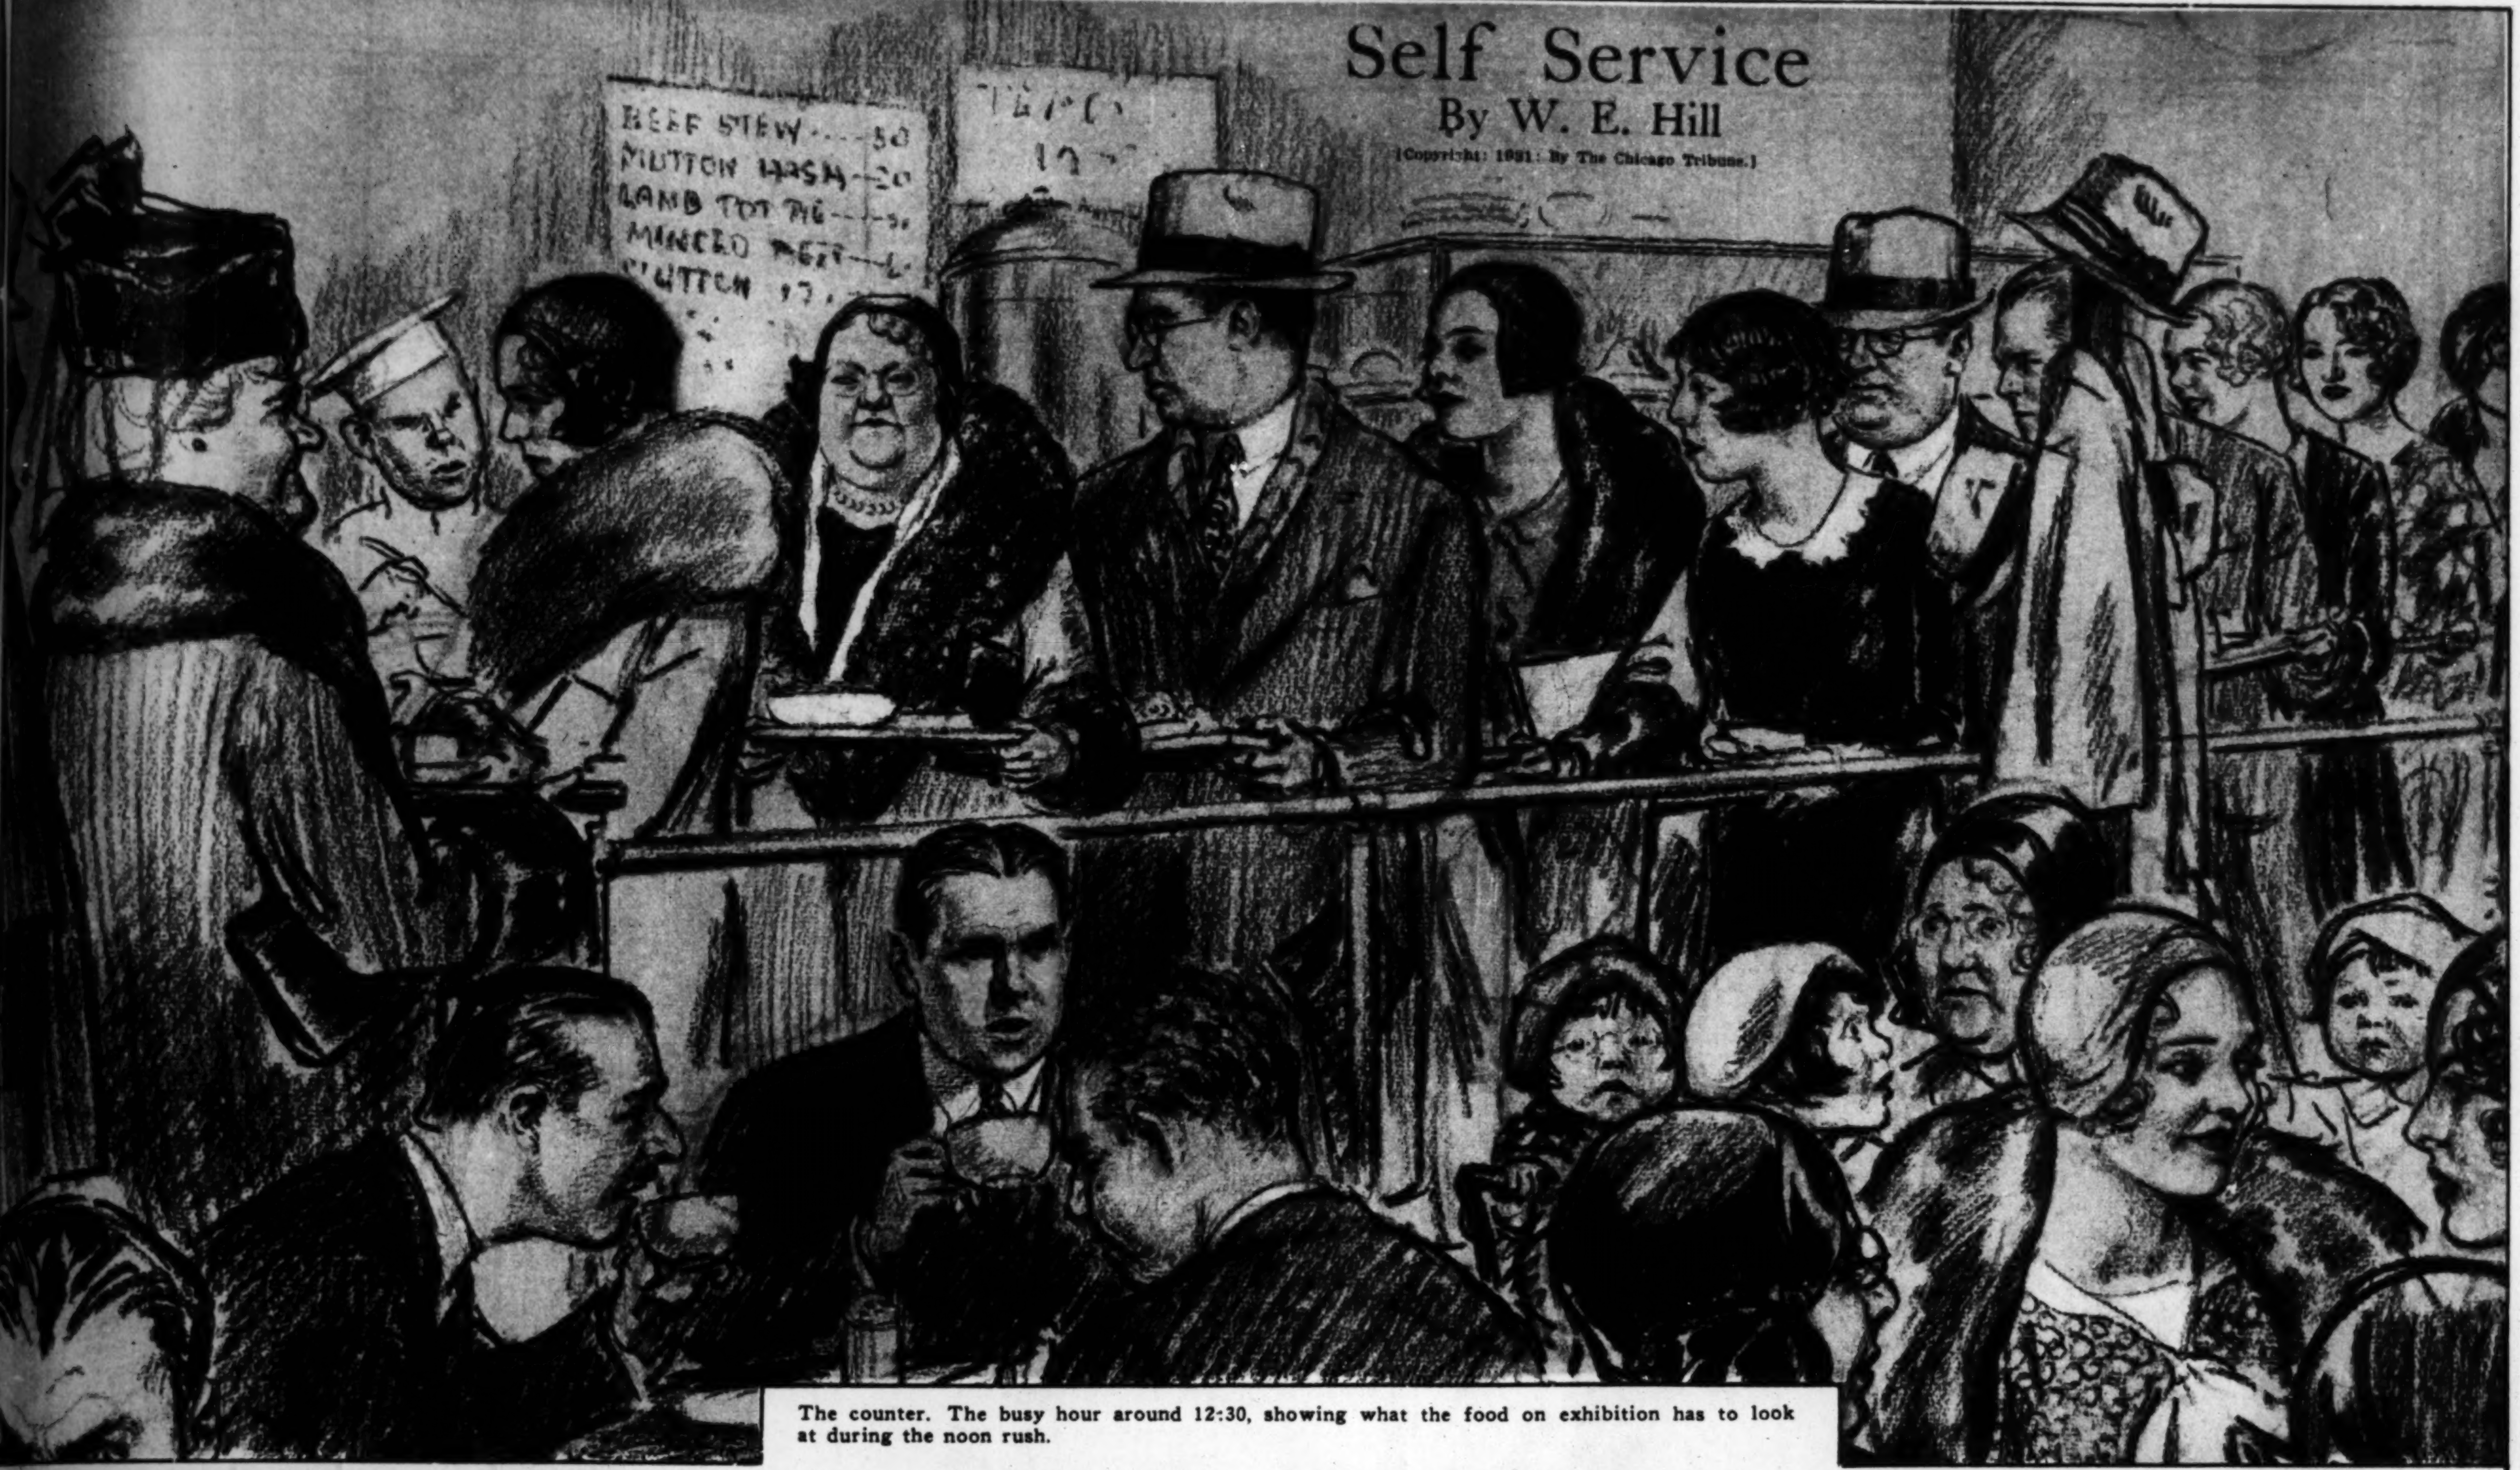
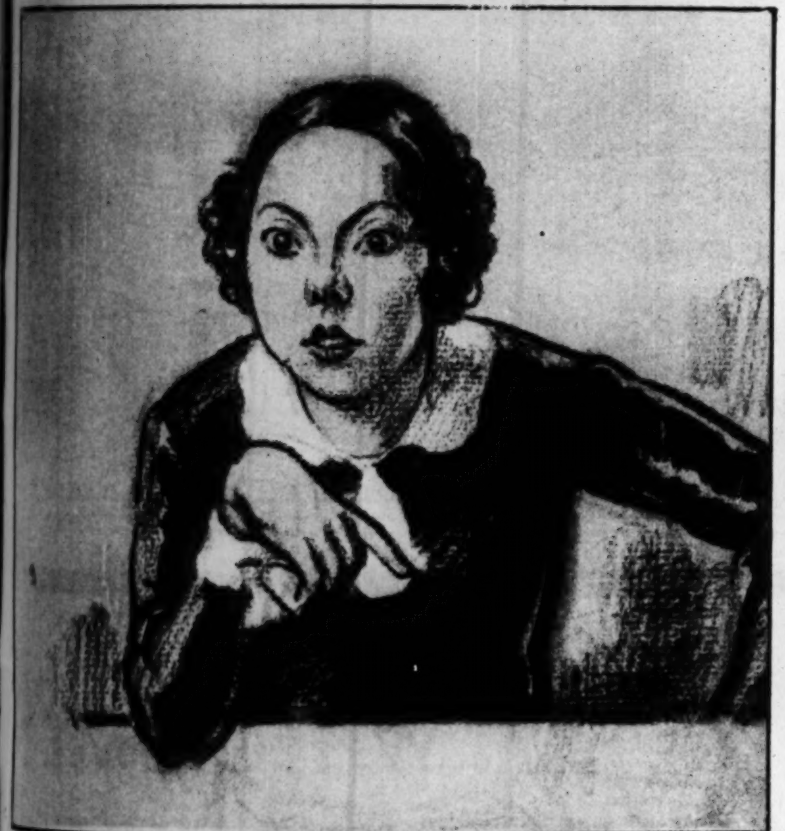
Self Service

By W. E. Hill

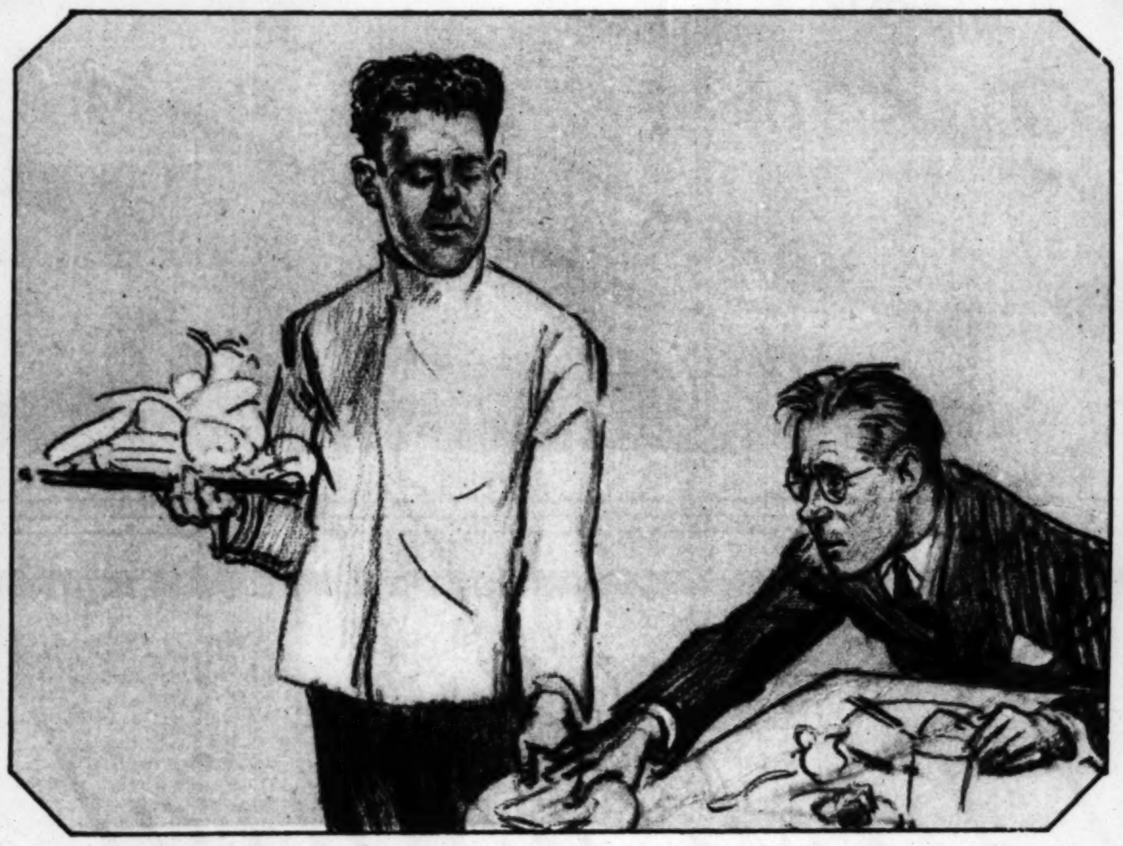
[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]



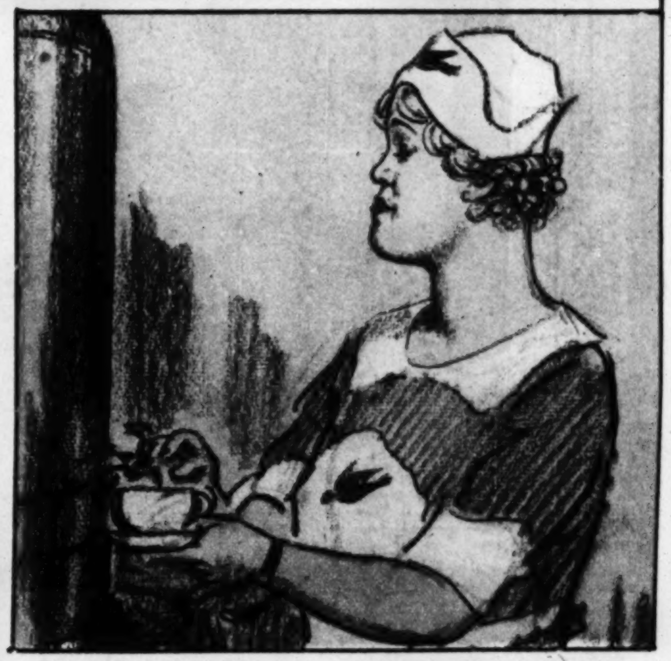
The counter. The busy hour around 12:30, showing what the food on exhibition has to look at during the noon rush.



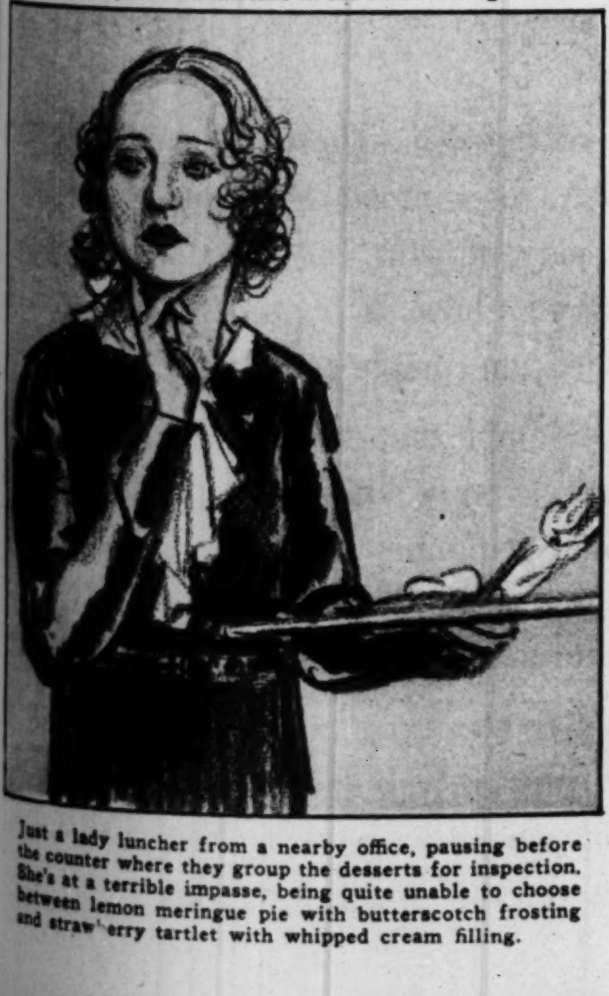
The checker. Every tray full of food, from the grandest to the humblest, has to pass under the watchful eye of Madge, the checker. Madge is a clever girl and seldom, if ever, makes a mistake in the sum total against the house.



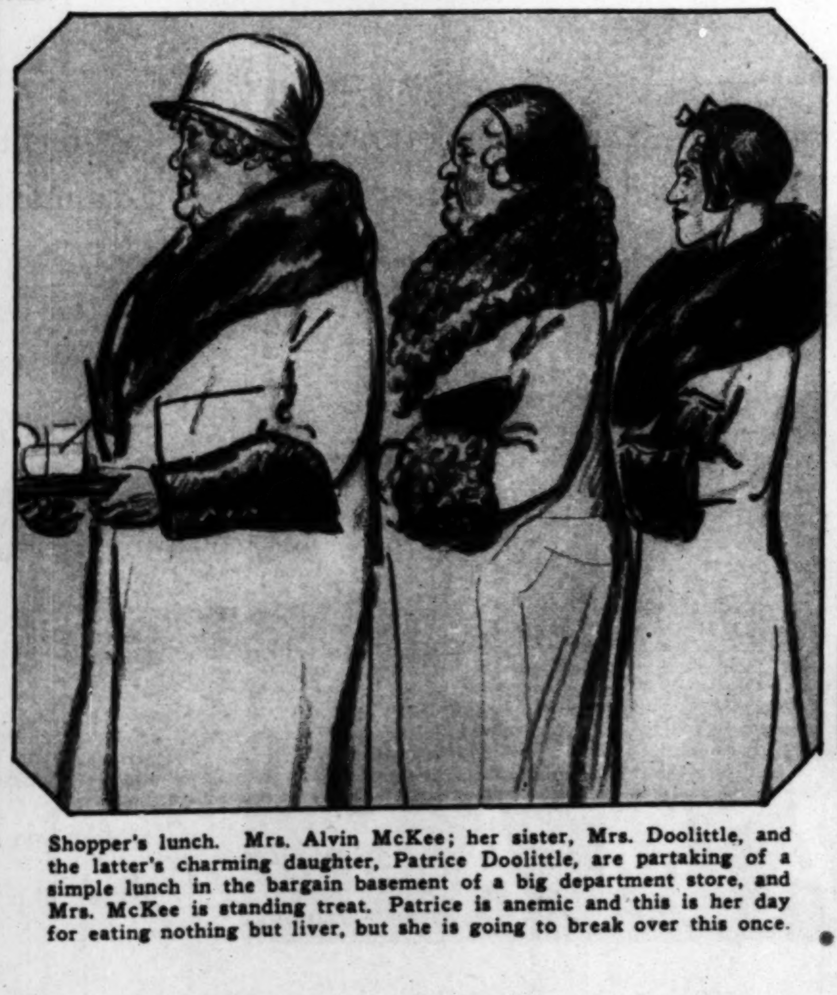
Eddie works around the Ideal cafeteria, his job being to collect the dirty dishes as soon as a customer seems to be tired of them. More often than not Eddie will remove a plate of food before a customer has finished, and this causes no end of backbiting and vituperation.



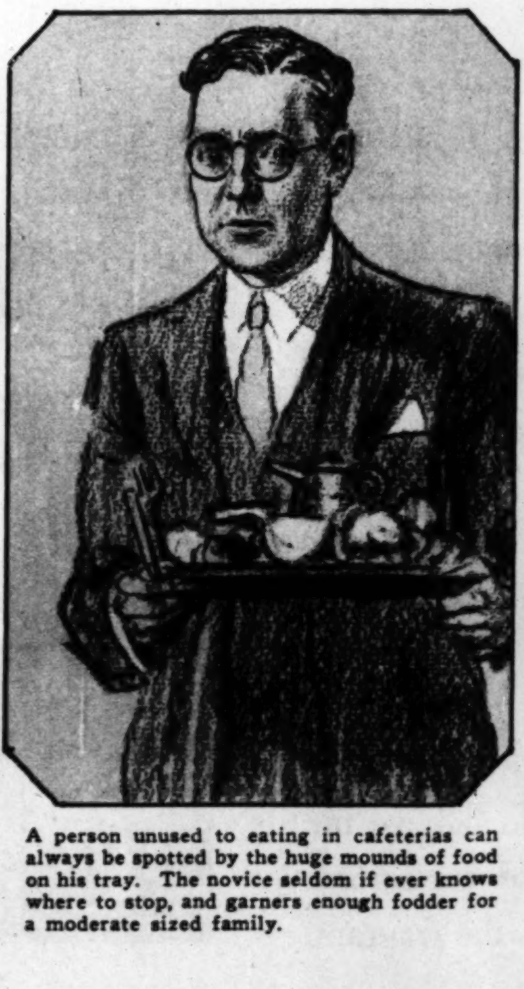
The coffee girl. Blanche works in the Red Bird cafeteria, and, it being a pretty swell place, all the lady workers have red birds on their caps and aprons. Colored birds are very lucky for most people, but somehow or other Blanche has had perfectly terrible luck. The very day she appeared wearing the red bird insignia she came down with ringworm on her neck, and that same evening her young man made the remark that Blanche had better forget about wanting the fox fur for Christmas, seeing it was a hard year, and anyway a good warm sweater was healthier. You can't blame the girl for being superstitious about red birds after that!



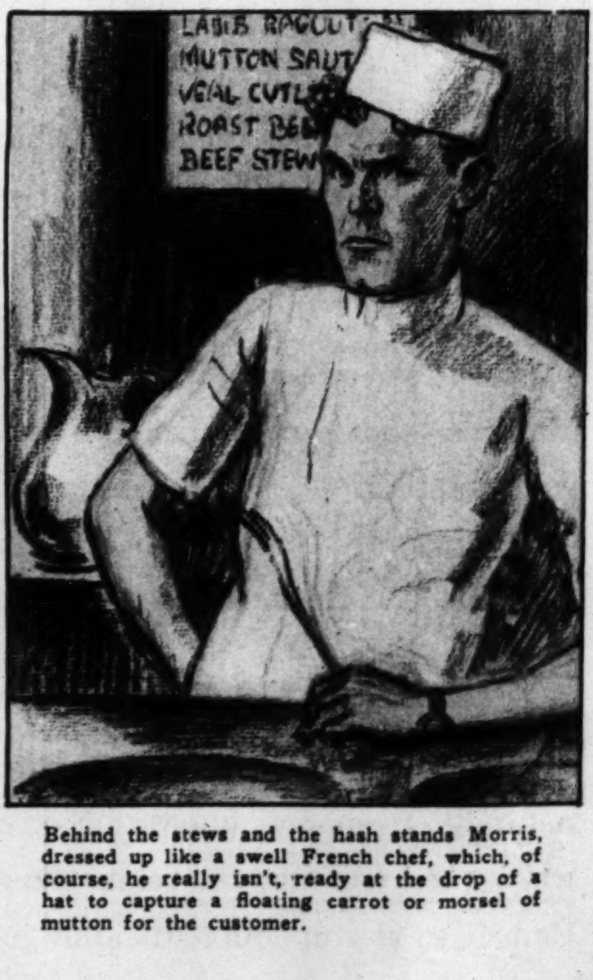
Just a lady luncher from a nearby office, pausing before the counter where they group the desserts for inspection. She's at a terrible impasse, being quite unable to choose between lemon meringue pie with butterscotch frosting and strawberry tartlet with whipped cream filling.



Shopper's lunch. Mrs. Alvin McKee; her sister, Mrs. Doolittle, and the latter's charming daughter, Patrice Doolittle, are partaking of a simple lunch in the bargain basement of a big department store, and Mrs. McKee is standing treat. Patrice is anemic and this is her day for eating nothing but liver, but she is going to break over this once.



A person unused to eating in cafeterias can always be spotted by the huge mounds of food on his tray. The novice seldom if ever knows where to stop, and garners enough fodder for a moderate sized family.



Behind the stews and the hash stands Morris, dressed up like a swell French chef, which, of course, he really isn't, ready at the drop of a hat to capture a floating carrot or morsel of mutton for the customer.

What I'll look for in the Girl I Marry

HERE'S A YOUNG ARCHITECT, AMBITIOUS, SUCCESSFUL, who believes that "marriage would be great if you could find the girl." What kind of girl is he looking for? He says:

"My ideal girl is more a companion than anything else. A companion to my thoughts, whims and badly assorted moods.

"She doesn't take me too seriously. She has a sense of humor. She tosses me a little unearned flattery now and then because she knows that I need it.

"She is trim and smart. Not a peacock. She doesn't look as though she spent her life in front of a mirror. She has a naturally nice skin and well cared for hands that don't look over-manicured.

"People don't stand back and admire her as though she were some dream goddess. Men and women like her because she's genuine and natural and good company."

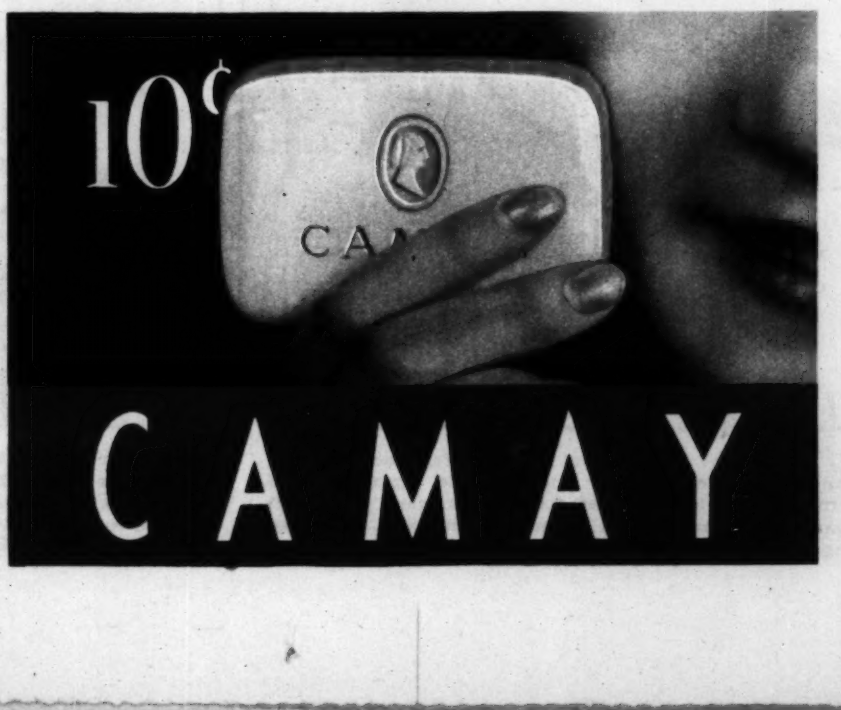
Keep that fresh, natural look WHICH MEN ADMIRE

Among fifty young bachelors whom I tactfully persuaded to describe their ideal girl, one word appeared again and again. Forty-eight of the fifty said they liked a girl who looked "natural!"

So unless you're the workaday type that scorns romance — and of course you aren't — look to your complexion! Don't do things that will age it — things that will give it that "hothouse" look. Keep it fresh, fine-textured, natural.

73 Famous Physicians Approve Camay

If you want to keep your skin naturally healthy, naturally fresh and fine-textured, do believe me when I tell you that you really should use Camay. Camay, as you undoubtedly know, is the fragrant, lovely complexion soap that women everywhere are praising. The exquisitely gentle soap which has been approved by 73 of America's most famous physicians specializing in the care and treatment of the skin. These 73 famous doctors unanimously recommend soap and water as a necessary part of skin care — and give Camay the highest approval as a proper soap for even the most delicate complexions.



After this important scientific approval, I feel that I need say very little. I'd only like to add my personal feminine word that Camay is the loveliest, most beautifully fragrant soap that ever bubbled into a lather of velvet.

Try Camay cleansing twice a day for a week. You'll soon realize you never found anything like it for giving your skin a fresh, clear, vital look — that "natural look" which men admire.

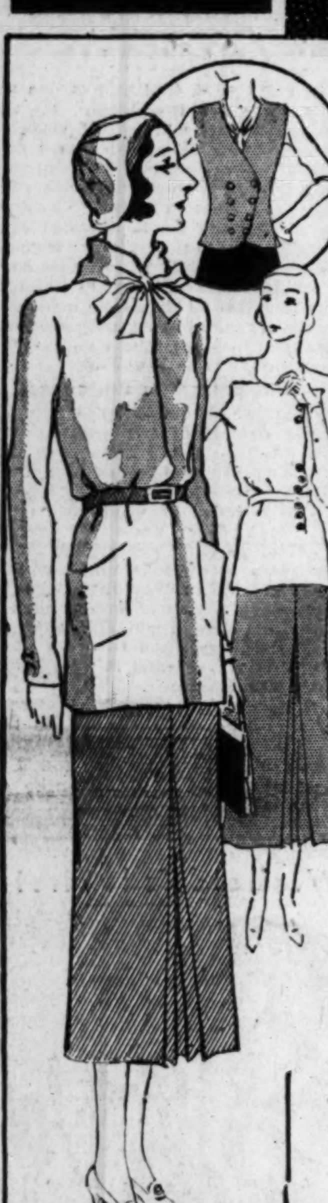
WINTER WARDROBES REVIVED BY CHIC

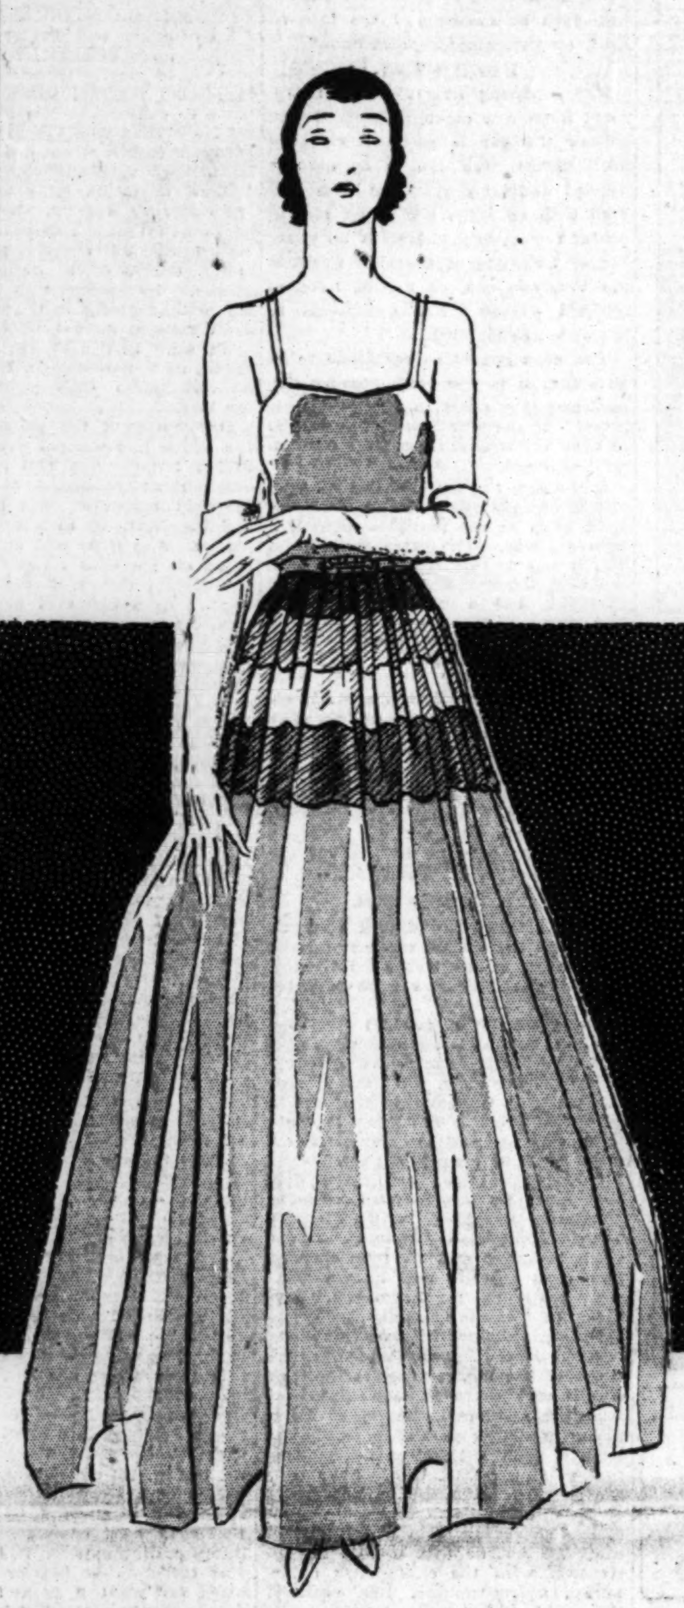
TUNIC-BLOUSE jacket, and vest in bright color are Paris means of pepping up the winter dress in a sober hue. The jacket is belted with material to match the skirt.

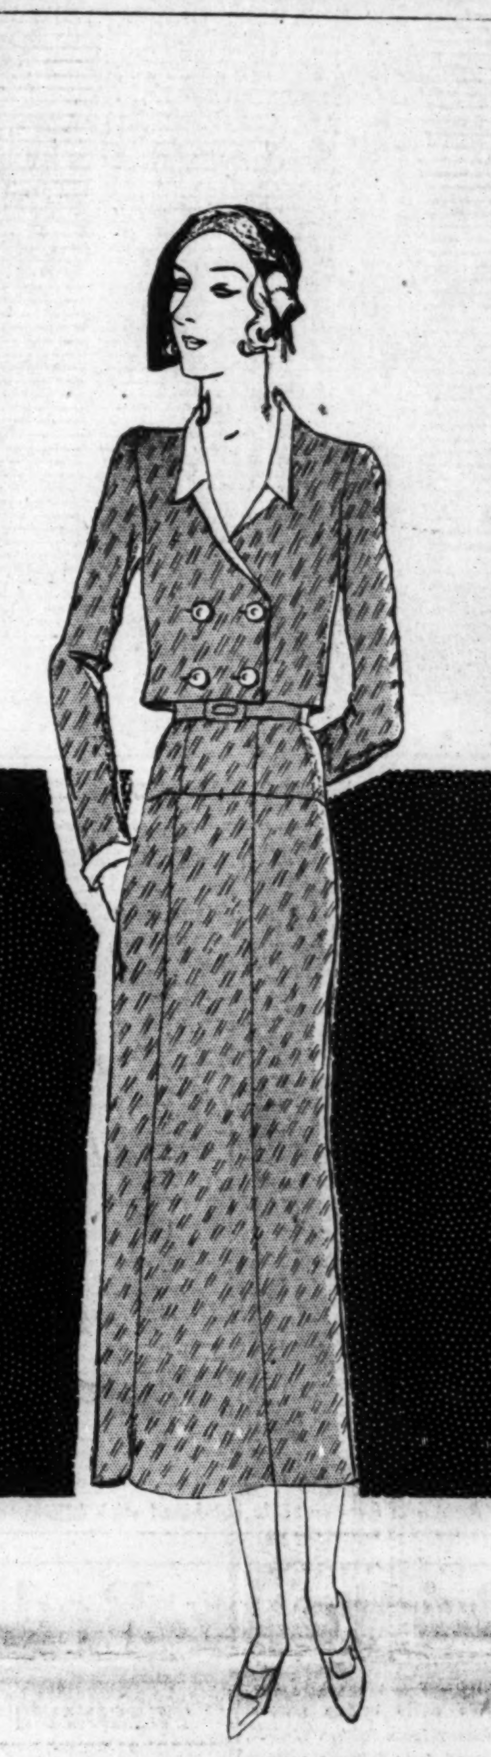
The four velvet bands in shades of blue at the top of the skirt of this pale blue chiffon evening frock, shown second, may be used by the clever girl to lengthen an old frock.

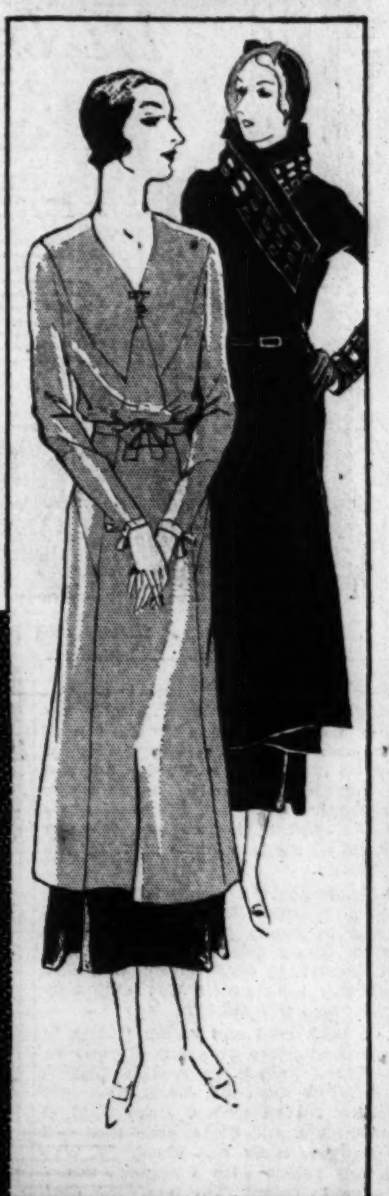
Third, this Eton jacket suit of fine patterned woolen is one of the smartest in Paris. It offers a practical suggestion for revamping an old suit with a full size jacket.

Fourth, this ensemble, with its three-quarters coat, lends itself agreeably to makeover.









Club Benefits Scheduled for Coming Week

Proceeds to Aid Needy and Unemployed.

By Roberta Nangle.

IN more prosperous years the business of giving charitable affairs was confined to the fall and the spring. This year, however, the good work has been carried on all through the winter. Each week the club editor's mail contains pleas for space for this or that benefit. There are several scheduled for this week, and the success of each one is important to the unemployed and needy.

Chronologically, the first one is the Friendly Aid society musicale and tea to be held on Tuesday afternoon at the Bendix galleries. The entire proceeds will be distributed among accredited charities. Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland, Mrs. Horace L. Hayward, and Mrs. James W. Stevens are in charge of arrangements.

Without much benefit of publicity, the Friendly Aid society has accomplished a great deal since its inception in 1892. To date, its membership of only 100 women has contributed almost a third of a million dollars to charity. Its beneficiaries for 1930-'31 include the Friendly Aid foundation fund, the Bethlehem Creche, the Chicago Home for Girls, the Home for Destitute Children, the Sherman Park station of the Infant Welfare society, the Juvenile Protective association, the Service Council for Girls, and many other charities.

Party for North Side Shelter.

The next benefit on the calendar will be a supper dance for the benefit of the North Side Shelter on Wednesday evening at the Drake hotel. The shelter at 2234 Geneva terrace is nonsectarian and was organized to feed school children under ten years of age who are undernourished and almost starving. At present from six to seven hundred children and their mothers from six neighboring public schools and one parochial school are being fed daily by the organization. The principals of these schools make investigations of the children's families.

Mrs. Nicholas J. Nelson is chairman of the dance committee and her daughter, Miss Kathryn Nelson, is in charge of entertainment. Mrs. A. D. Plamondon is general chairman of the Shelter and Mrs. William F. Juergens is treasurer.

On Friday evening the American Daughters of Sweden are sponsoring the presentation of the moving picture "Sweden" at Orchestra hall to augment the society's funds for the coming year. The program will be repeated on Monday evening. The organization's chief object is to further the interests of the Swedish-American woman in educational, social and civic movements.

An annual contribution is made to the Swedish Old People's home in Evanston and to the Quentin Roosevelt chapter for disabled soldiers. The club also has established a university scholarship for Chicago high school graduates of Swedish descent. It is awarded annually for the best essay on Swedish literature, the choice of the college being optional with the student.

Still another worthy and interesting benefit will be the "Pageant of Shawls" on Sunday afternoon at the Cordon club under the auspices of the Illinois Women's Press association. This club is composed of women in journalism, and the object of its benefit on Sunday is to replenish a loaning fund for members who are temporarily in need.

[Further news of club activities will be found in the Metropolitan section.]

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

THE women on the membership committee were chatting informally before starting work.

"What I'd like to know," said the chairman, "is how things get out. I've heard from two different sources that we tabled Mrs. Turgent's application last meeting."

"I heard it, too," contributed the secretary.

"Telephone, telegraph, or tell-a-woman if you want publicity," flipped the north side member.

"I tried to run it down, but I could get just so far and no farther," added the chairman.

"Some psychologist says, 'A liking for gossip may develop into an interest in psychology,'" repeated the south side member.

"That reminds me of the squib about Smith and Smart," recalled the treasurer. "Smith said to Smart, 'My wife doesn't gossip.' Said Smart, 'Neither does mine but, by the way, Smith, what does you wife call it?'"

"I can't imagine a member of this committee talking outside," persisted the chairman.

"Most of us talk too much, or in the wrong place at one time or another," claimed the north side member. "I've heard the most private things discussed on trains and buses and in tea rooms and restaurants."

"I was plugged in on a lively conversation between two club women over the telephone, one time," called the treasurer. "I'll admit I listened a bit and that it was hard to hang up."

"Mrs. Peters and I talked about Mrs. Turgent on the way home from our meeting, but there wasn't a person on the bus I'd ever seen before," worried the chairman.

"They were mostly high school girls," put in Mrs. Peters. "We talked quietly and said very little, anyway."

After the meeting the north side member and the treasurer walked out ahead of the rest.

"I'm glad you didn't tell them that it was one of the high school girls on the bus who carried the word home to her mother, who is a member of our club," commented the treasurer. "It wouldn't have helped any, but I do think the experience will make us all more careful of what we say anywhere we say it."

Presbyterians Meet to Discuss Religious Need

By the Rev. John Evans.

[Further church news will be found in the Metropolitan Section.]

REPRESENTATIVES from 1,000 Presbyterian churches of Chicago and vicinity will attend a conference on spiritual emphasis to be held Feb. 9 at the Presbyterian Theological seminary, Belden avenue and North Halsted street. The conference was announced last week from the headquarters of the Presbyterian board of education at Philadelphia, under whose auspices it will be directed. The general assembly of the church last May at Cincinnati voted that such a conference should be held.

The slogan of the conference will be "An Awakened Church for an Expectant World." The Rev. Edward P. Westphal of Philadelphia in announcing the speakers stated that pastors, church officers, Sunday school teachers, and heads of parish, synod, and presbyterial organizations who attend will carry back to their work the values of emphasis the conference speakers will bring.

Nationally Known Leaders.

Dr. Westphal announced such nationally known leaders as Prof. Samuel M. Zwemer, Princeton Theological seminary; the Rev. Dr. Joseph A. Vance of Detroit, the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo of Washington, D. C.; Dr. William Chalmers Covert of Philadelphia, and Prof. Norman E. Richardson of Chicago among those who will speak. Dr. Westphal announced the purpose of the conference as follows:

"To face squarely the need at home and abroad and to determine the church's share in meeting that need; to discover ways of discharging the responsibility of the church organiza-

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN

FOR ten years, fellow citizens, Mrs. Mary G. Ferris, genealogist, has been delving into the ancestral records of Gen. Dawes and his brothers. Plenty of families would have been paying her hush money the first year, if not the first six months.

GEN. DAWES.

The Dawses, though, are quite undisturbed by her probing, as they purpose bringing out the results of the research in two volumes as a memorial to their parents. The 900 page book of their mother's lineage is now ready for publication.

"All right, Abie, we're friends," nodded one, as they shook hands on it. "I'm wishing you everything just the same as you're wishing me."

Abie's eyes blazed as he jerked his hand away. "Are you starting everything all over again?" he hissed.

His Oak Park neighbors have spread the fame of Tommy Tucker's cat. The sly puss [literally] has no fancy for mice in her diet, yet she keeps the whole neighborhood clear of the pests. Whenever she bags one she brings it carefully home alive, jumps up outside a particular window and sits, watchfully waiting, until some member of the family takes notice. Whereupon she shakes the captive lifeless and discards it contemptuously before climbing down from her perch.

It takes more than a mere Mexican earthquake to shake the social poise of Dudley Crafts Watson, globetrotting artist. He had entered the capital of that country at the head of a party of Chicagoans touring under the auspices of the Art institute, when nature put on her elemental display for them. Friends here were vastly relieved the following day to receive his airy assurance by telegraph: "Earthquake delightful. Hotel still standing. Everybody happy."

Operators and Dye Not Always Responsible for Hair Fiascos

By Antoinette Donnelly.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—A textbook of cosmetology, the Beauty Specialists' Manual, comes to my notice through its compiler and publisher, Horace J. Smith and the H. R. Howell Publishing company. The manual is prepared for the use of beauty specialists and bears the indorsement of a dozen or so state boards of cosmetology. In it I find a number of things pertaining to hair and complexion work that I believe will interest the patrons of beauty parlors—and what woman is not these days?

Here are unfolded truths that to the average beauty parlor patron are clothed in mystery or are accepted with blissful indifference by her. The mere fact that she has turned her head or face over to one with a beauty operator sign hanging out seems guarantee sufficient to a great many women.

The emphasis that the manual lays on sanitary regulations in beauty parlors and the work conducted therein, supported by various boards of health, should impart confidence, and should also make woman patrons exacting about these sanitary conditions. Or, where conditions do not measure up, the shop should be avoided. Happily, the insanitary looking establishment and the untidy, soiled-aproned attendant are becoming rarer and rarer—nevertheless, there are some still in existence. The importance to the patron of properly sterilized towels and all "implements" cannot be overstated.

However, it was more of hair coloring and the stuffs used that I wanted to talk today—and from the beauty specialists' advisers' point of view. Women, in regard to the dyeing of their hair, are likely blissfully to believe whatever is told them—whether it is picked up by hearsay or given more authentic indorsement.

Hundreds of Years Old.

Anyway, we learn from the beauty specialists' lesson book that hair dyeing is no new sport or vanity or economic need. Its use is traced back hundreds of years before the Christian era. That fact may not be news to us, but the fact that kohl and henna were the favorite dyes of ancient Greece may be. Kohl, we learn, is a combination of antimony and sulphur. And henna is produced from the dried leaves of the so-called henna plant. Rastik, prepared from roasted gall nuts, was another dye preparation in favor, and a combination of henna and reng, the latter the powdered leaves of the indigo plant, was used and still is for a blue-black tone to hair.

The following paragraph about the dangers of hairdyeing might be absorbed to a patron's advantage. Referring to the cases in which legal action has been taken by a patron for alleged damage to the hair through use of a hair dye, the author says: "This unfortunate circumstance may occur with any hair dyer, not through the fault of his or her work, or even of the dye itself, but through certain individuals having a predisposed idiosyncrasy to certain substances in the dye so that they are susceptible to its deleterious action. We have all heard or know of cases of hypersensitive persons who are susceptible to such innocent substances as citrous fruits, strawberries, etc., who by this acquired predisposition to these products may develop a rash or an inflammatory condition from their use, while the majority of persons eat them with immunity. Likewise, some individuals show a predisposition towards one or more ingredients contained in the particular dyestuffs used and so may de-

Spring Touches Put Fresh Life in Old Clothes

New Blouse, Hat, or Belt Peps Things Up.

Paris Snapshots

Molyneux offers something new in pullover sweaters for the south. They're made of fine jersey, with long sleeves and they only reach an inch or two below the waistline.

Molyneux crushes long chiffon evening scarfs in the middle under three large silk flowers. The scarf is thrown over the shoulders and the flowers snuggle up to the base of the throat.

Parisiennes are wearing dark gloves to match their costumes, and hose of neutral brown that is very dark, throughout the winter day.

Spring silks are being printed with patterns of microscopic size for day time, and evening materials go in for big, splashy flowers.

Yellow, in soft banana tones, golden yellow, orange and terra cotta are colors that Paris is getting very much excited about for spring costumes.

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—Winter clothes commence to have a depressed aspect, and there's a good six weeks at least ahead before they can be laid away or given away. Something can be done about it. Why not? A belt, a blouse, or even a pair of buttons may put springtime pep into a wilting wardrobe.

A new hat might be a miracle if it's the right hat. A few inches added to a skirt, or that much subtracted from a coat, can change a girl's whole life. It's the difference, mayhap, between "getting by" with your clothes or being the "top of the morning" from now until April, when real, genuine spring styles come forward and save us.

Dr. Paris has psycho-analyzed the wardrobes of Parisiennes and prescribes some tonics that may be useful to all of us. That dark winter ensemble of warm woolen which looked so good 'way back in prehistoric October may be brought up to the minute, sez he, by whacking off some of the coat, adding a collar, or subtracting one. The dress may be divided into a new blouse, and the old skirt, so that even its own maker wouldn't recognize the child of his sewing machine. Or lively new accessories like hat, scarf, and bag may be all that is necessary to conquer your not in style complex about this ensemble.

New Style Law Helpful.

Advance spring fashions seem made to order for doctoring up winter clothes. Two colors in one ensemble and two materials in the same outfit is a spring style law that couldn't be better for those who want to keep their winter clothes looking fit and fashionable. Eton and other short-short jackets can be cut out of the longer and bulkier jacket of your winter suit without any danger whatsoever.

A new, bright vest over a plain, dark dress, or not so dark nor so plain, will be the difference between in-style and out. A pair of gloves to match this vest is just so much to the good, or a string of beads may do the trick.

Suppose you have a tweed skirt. All right, you have a tweed dress. Or you have one of these garments in another kind of woolen. You want a new suit or ensemble. Why, nothing could be simpler. Look at the ensemble shown in our first sketch. If the aforesaid dress or skirt is dark, get yourself a light tunic jacket on the order of or like the one shown in the picture. If your skirt or dress is patterned the jacket will be plain, and you will manage to eke out a belt of the material of the former. It's the belt that makes the jacket an ensemble with the dress or skirt.

If you have a dress to work on, then add the little double breasted vest shown in the circle above, and have this vest in the same stuff as the coat. If you have a skirt, get a tunic blouse on the order of the one shown in the background, and let it match the jacket in color. It can be made of silk, jersey, or transparent wool.

Suppose you have brown clothes you want to pep up. Choose a jacket and vest, or jacket and blouse, in green, in brique red, in beige, or in gray. If your winter color is black, then have the new details in flag blue, or green or red, or white or eggshell. If what you have to make over is patterned, let your jacket, blouse, vest or what-will-you be in one color of the pattern, or in a bright, harmonizing shade.

The tunic blouse sketched reaches below the hipline, and if your old skirt is too short you can lengthen it by putting a hip yoke of silk at the top. The blouse will cover it.

Making Over an Ensemble.

A makeover suggestion for the plain long coat and the matching one piece dress or skirt is shown in the second sketch. This pictured ensemble is one of the best Paris fashions, and it lends itself to the rejuvenation idea very well. A wrap around long coat can easily be transformed this way.

Cut the coat down to three-quarters length by lopping off a swathe around the bottom, and use this cut off piece to make the wide band collar. If you have enough you can take cuffs also from the cut off band. If not, don't worry.

Take the band collar and the coat sleeves to the embroiderers' shop and have machine made eyelet embroidery dots put into the lower sleeves to simulate cuffs, and all over the collar. This embroidery will give it real Paris springtime chic.

A leather belt around the waist will help, too. That's all for the coat.

To make a new dress to wear under the coat you need a new tunic of silk or satin, and the one shown will give the idea. Let the color contrast with that of the coat. The tunic should be

New Ideas in Furniture

—By Edith Weigle

Bentwood, Designed by G. Rohde, Furnishes Proof that Modern Styles May Be Both Conservative and Smart.

ONE of the most interesting displays at the recent show at the American Furniture Mart was that of a large eastern manufacturer of sunroom and outdoor furniture and of early American reproductions. Last year this company made chairs, tables, couches, etc., for the sunroom that were attractive but not outstanding. Now, however, due to the ideas of the modern designer, Gilbert Rohde, and to the entire restyling of their upholstery fabrics, an interesting metamorphosis has been brought about.

Mr. Rohde represents the conservative side of the movement in contemporary decoration. His work is characterized by simplicity, beauty of line, comfort, practicality and richness and variety of color. Nothing he does is startling or bizarre. A chair, table, or chaise longue of his design would fit into a room done in any period of informal type. And, while he does ensembles or groups of pieces, any one of the articles may be transferred from group to group without loss of harmony or may be used alone. Chairs of rattan and reed may also be combined with ones of bentwood due to similarity of line and of upholstery fabrics.

Beech and birch are the best woods for bentwood purposes. As seen in today's pictures, bentwood is a curved wood, the rounded contours giving grace to a chair not achieved by angular lines. This is because the wood is first rendered pliable by steam. Then it is bent on forms and clamped into position until dry, when it retains the desired curve.

The larger photograph shows a table and two chairs made of bentwood. The top of the table is natural colored African mahogany and the bentwood legs, forming three graceful parallel curves, are of beech. The warm, brown tones of the wood are continued in the upholstery fabric, which is a most interesting new pliable fibre cloth. The chair seats are plaid in beiges shading to dark brown, and the back of the larger chair is covered in the plain material in brown.

Notice the attractive little open shelved table at the left in this picture. It is one of those charming little pieces that has ever so many uses. It is made so that it fits perfectly into a corner. It also fits flat against the end of a sofa, or put against another table exactly its size and shape it helps form a square coffee or book table. Or it may be used to accompany a chair, as in the illustration, or it may be placed between two chairs, as in the second picture.

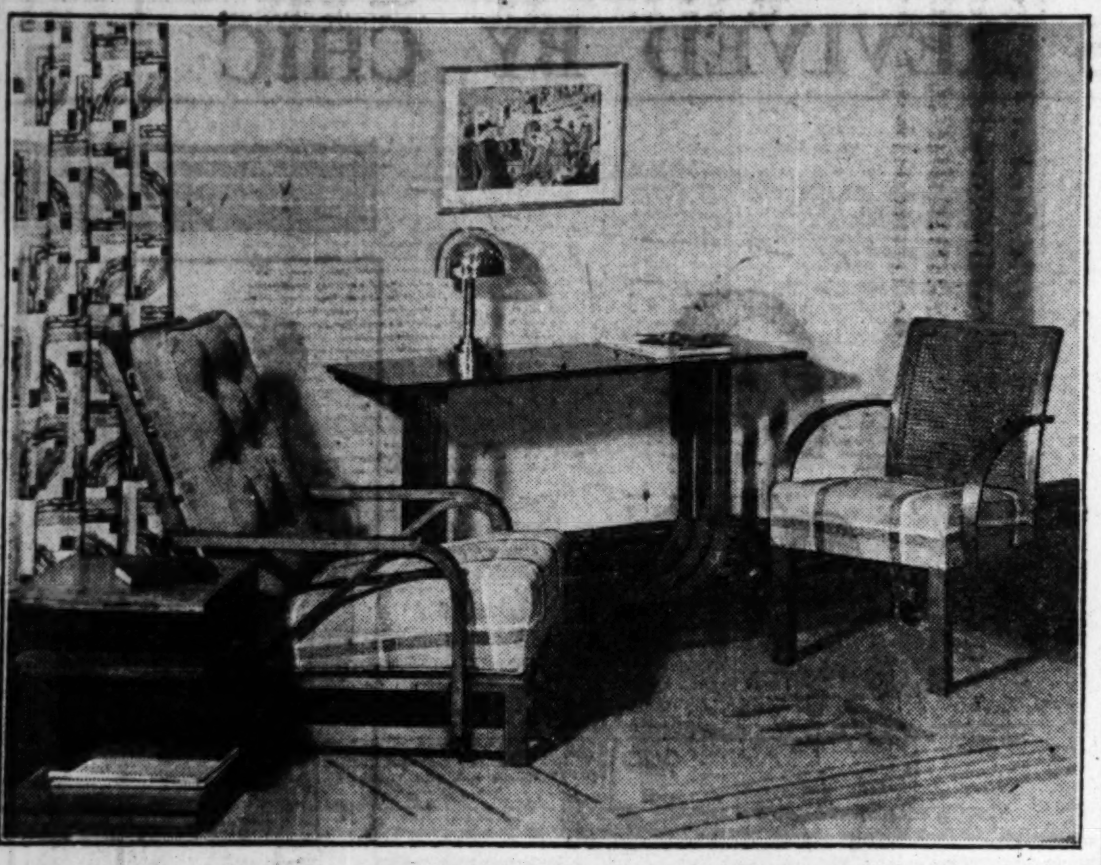
Here you see how well the bentwood and rattan pieces combine. Their upholstery fabrics make them kin, for both have large plaid seats and plain, solid color backs. And their similarity of line further adds to the harmony. I can truthfully say that this bentwood chair is one of the most comfortable imaginable, for I tried it out. Its comfort is not just a happen-stance, either, for scientific calculation went into the exact angle of the slant of the back of that chair and of all the chairs now made by this company.

Mr. Rohde says there is no excuse for an uncomfortable chair and proceeds to create pieces to prove his point. Even the small straight chairs of the writing desk variety he makes perfectly comfortable and extremely smart and colorful.

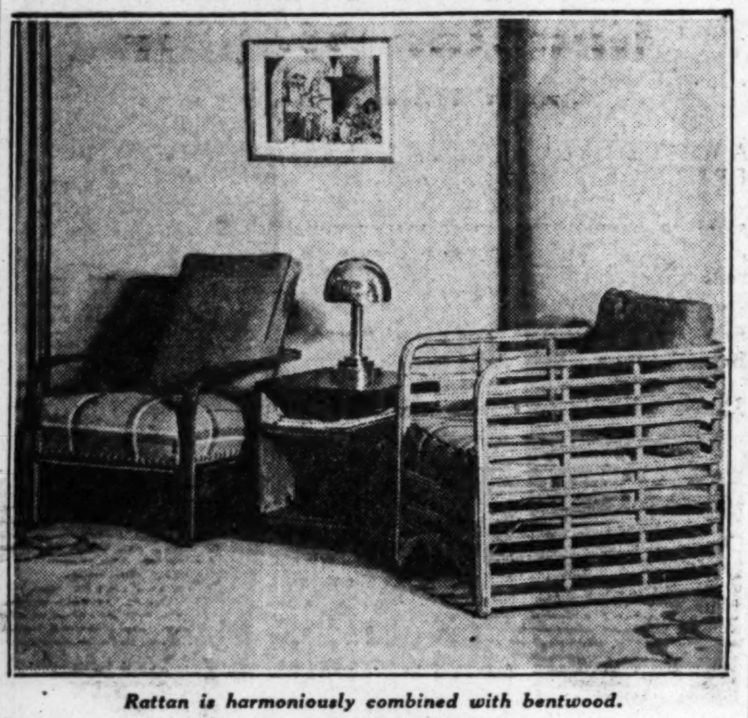
In stick reed and rattan [which is now dyed many gorgeous shades] he combines French gray with Chinese red fabric cushions; black with soft yellow; scarlet with a large plaid of gray, black and white; gray with dull blue suede cloth, and blue-green with canary yellow with a splashy flower design in colors. The last color combination was used on a perfectly enchanting chaise longue which comes in two pieces, chair and stool, the chair having the life saver or channel cushions which are so chic, just now.

This furniture [rattan, stick reed and bentwood] is ideal for hotels, offices, country clubs, sunrooms and porches, terraces, and for living rooms. More pictures of it will be shown in later articles.

Of course, this company sells through Chicago department and furniture stores and through other stores all over the country.



A living room group that stresses simplicity and achieves charm.



Rattan is harmoniously combined with bentwood.

MY PET ECONOMY

Would you care to pass on to some one else your pet economy? If so address Pet Economy, Chicago Tribune.

Home Made Weather Stripping.

A seasonable economy which my husband has evolved has been copied by several neighbors. Not being able to afford metal weather stripping, and not being satisfied with the felt weather stripping, he cut an old parlor rug into strips 4 inches wide. These were folded lengthwise toward the center and basted, making a compact strip 2 inches wide. My husband tacked these on the outside of the doorframes, where they make a neat, durable, inexpensive weather strip, past which not a breath of air can pass. S. R. S.

Keeps Berets Shapely.

Try to find utensils in your own home to serve the purpose of new ones on the market. Instead of purchasing a "beret stretcher" to bring your beret back to its original shape after washing it, take a plate 8½ or 9 inches in diameter and stretch your beret over it. When dry remove and you will find your beret has its original shape. Children's berets, of course, should be stretched over smaller plates. E. A. K.

Bridge by Radio

The foursome for the tenth of Milton C. Work's radio bridge games, broadcast Tuesday from station W-G-N, was made up of four famous women bridge stars: Mrs. Beryl S. Moncrieff, New Bedford, Mass.; Mrs. Edward Goldsmith, Danville, Ill.; Mrs. Theodosia Van Norden Emery, Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Oscar E. Busby, Dallas, Tex. They held the following cards:

C—A, Q, 5.

Mrs. Moncrieff, as dealer, south, opened the bidding with one no trump. Her hand totaled the usual figure of 19. Mrs. Goldsmith, west, passed. She would have had no justification for bidding a five card suit headed by the king, with no side support. Mrs. Emery, north, also passed. Her hand contained sufficient strength to bid two no trumps. But passing left her in position, in event of a minor bid by east, to bid two hearts if her partner did not overcall. However, Mrs. Busby, east, passed, and Mrs. Moncrieff, south, became declarer with her contract one no trump.

Finesses Diamonds.

Mrs. Goldsmith, west, opened the play by leading the 6 of spades. Mrs. Moncrieff, declarer, planning her campaign, saw by the rule of eleven that she had in her two hands all the spades higher than the 6 that were not in the hand of the leader. She therefore played the 8 from dummy; Mrs. Busby, east, played the deuce; and declarer was careful to win with the queen, not the 10, from the closed hand.

To trick two, declarer led her ace of hearts; west played the 9; dummy the trey; and east the deuce. Declarer continued with the 8 of hearts; west played the jack; dummy the queen; and east the 4. Declarer was then in position to finesse her diamonds. So from dummy she led the 7 of diamonds; east played the deuce; closed hand the queen; and west the 9. Declarer played the queen as a false card to withhold information from the adversaries; a successful finesse of the jack would have marked the queen in declarer's hand.

To trick five Mrs. Moncrieff led the 7 of hearts; west discarded the 4 of spades; dummy won the trick with the king of hearts, and east played the 10 of hearts. Declarer then led the 5 of diamonds from dummy; east played the 4; declarer the jack; west the 10. Declarer realized that her ace-8 of diamonds was a major tenace over the king-6 probably held by east, and that she needed another diamond lead from dummy; so it was a good thing that she had handled her hearts so as to give dummy three entries in that suit.

To trick seven declarer led the 5 of hearts, overtaking with dummy's 6; west discarded the trey of clubs and east the trey of spades. Declarer proceeded to lead dummy's trey of diamonds; east played the 6; declarer the 8, and west discarded the 6 of clubs. The lead of declarer's ace of diamonds then dropped east's king, west discarding the 7 of clubs and dummy the deuce of clubs.

Makes Grand Slam.

To trick ten declarer led the 10 of spades; west played the 7; dummy the jack [it was marked from the original lead that this finesse would win], and Mrs. Busby, east, played the 5. Because declarer had carefully played closed hand's queen of spades on the first trick, dummy was able at the eleventh trick to lead the ace of spades, giving closed hand a discard of the 5 of clubs. On this trick east discarded the 4 of clubs and west played the 9 of spades.

Declarer at this point had taken eleven tricks. To trick twelve she led the 9 of clubs from dummy. Mrs. Busby, east, played the 10, and declarer, trying for a grand slam, played the queen from the south hand. West played the jack. Of course, declarer's ace of clubs was good for the thirteenth trick, giving north and south 70 for tricks, 100 for grand slam, and 40 for aces. At progressive or duplicate, there would have been 125 added for game in one deal.

In analyzing the exhibition game, Mr. Work said: "The play of this hand illustrates the importance of planning a campaign by observing the possibilities and taking advantage of them. Had Mrs. Moncrieff not appreciated that she might need three diamond leads and one club lead from dummy [4 in all], she would not have realized the importance of creating three heart entries in the dummy hand. Of course it was obvious that she should win the first trick with the queen of spades. That gave her a sure spade finesse and an entry in the dummy hand when making it; whereas if she had won with the 10 and subsequently led the queen, she could not have taken that trick in the dummy if Mrs. Goldsmith had refused to cover with the king. That would have cut off an entry from dummy and given one less lead from that hand.

Hair Fiascos Have a Reason of Their Own

Operators and Dye Not Always to Blame.

velop unexpected symptoms of poisoning, such as swelling of the face or eyes, an inflammatory condition."

Hair Dye Test.

The following hair dye test is advised for a new patron: A small spot behind the ear is selected, cleansed with alcohol, the dye to be used is applied and let dry. Then it is covered with collodion and is let remain on for twenty-four hours. If no swelling or irritation of the skin appears, the hair dye can, as a rule, be used without danger. But exceptions to the rule are claimed.

The head should be examined to be sure that it is free from possible disease and that the skin of the scalp is intact. If the hair has been bleached or dyed previously, it calls for particular treatment.

If the hair has been previously dyed and is of solid color, it should not be dyed, even at the patron's request, a lighter shade. The same shade or a darker one is the only possiblity. If the hair, through the use of previous dyestuffs, has a patchy appearance and shows a mixture of colors, it is advisable to dye the hair a dark shade to cover the poor work done previously.

A shade lighter than the shade selected is also advisable as the hair becomes darker after the application.

Coarse hair resists dye substances more than fine textured hair. Where the hair resists the dye, hot oil treatments for a few days or some individual form of treatment may be necessary to prepare the hair for the ready reception of the dyestuff.

Two Classifications.

After a successful dyeing performance, the roots need to be retouched about once in six weeks. But this depends upon the new growth at the scalp.

There are two general classifications of dyestuffs—instantaneous dyes and progressive dyes—we are told. Instantaneous dyes are those substances used for coloring that act at once and produce the selected shade with one application. This is the class used in beauty parlors.

"Progessive dyes are those dyes that must be applied successively, sometimes for days, which by repeated application finally develop a desired shade, and in this class of hair-dyes are the well known 'hair color restorers' for home use," says the author of the manual.

Dyes are divided into vegetable and mineral dyes. The vegetable dyes are those of the henna type, indigo, and certain wood extracts, such as pyrogallol or pyrogallic acid. The mineral dyes make up a large class of dyestuffs and include such substances as salts of copper, silver, lead, iron. Lead dyes are granted to be the most harmful of the mineral dyes. There is danger of lead poisoning from their constant use. An aniline dye, a coal tar derivative, with the outrageous name, paraphenylenediamine, has received the most unfavorable publicity, its use being prohibited in some countries. The New York department of health forbids the sale of any hair dye containing it.

A Harmless Coloring Agent.

Pure Egyptian henna comes through with the best reputation as a harmless coloring agent, and can be used with advantage in coloring faded or drab hair where a reddish brown tint is desired. Its best results are obtained over naturally colored hair or over hair that has first been treated with peroxide of hydrogen. The lighter the shade of the hair, we are told, the better the result in henna shades.

The henna rinse is employed where only a reddish tint to natural coloring is desired. The henna is prepared in the form of tea by boiling henna leaves, about three tablespoonfuls in a pint of water. The mixture is allowed to boil until the color is of a dark, reddish brown, after which the mixture is strained and applied to the hair while warm. Prior to its application, the hair should be shampooed and rinsed with plain water. The henna rinse is applied several times, as is any rinse, and allowed to remain on the hair from three to five minutes.

Not all henna dyes are pure henna. "On the market," we read in the Beauty Specialists' Manual, "there are many so-called henna dyes, such as black henna, etc. These products contain henna, it is true, but in more or less quantity in combination with other substances, such as pyrogallic acid, copper salts, etc., and in many instances the henna is in such minute quantity that it has little or no action in the process of coloring."

A Word to Fathers

By Doris Blake

The Parent Who Is Cold and Distant to the Young Men Who Call on His Daughter Is Simply Driving Her Out of the House.

"FOR the benefit of fathers like mine, will you kindly write an article on the proper and helpful attitude of parents [especially fathers] when young men come to call?

"No matter who the young man is [proving that it is not a dislike of the individual] this particular group of fathers, of which mine is one, snub the caller by a gruff, short greeting, or none at all. This attitude is reserved for all eligible young men, while courtesy is accorded other guests. Naturally, this discourages my asking young men to call and I don't care to go out with those who don't want to call at my home. The result, as it now stands, is practically no association with young men of my age. M. J. H."

It looks as if the young writer of the above had written article enough in her letter. Any dad reading that letter must recognize exactly what his cold formality does to a young daughter entitled to a chance at romance. And if he had more than his specs on his eyes while reading he'd see certain things that are likely to happen as a result of his unfriendliness. Not the least of which is a nice young girl driven to surreptitious meetings on street corners, at movie houses, or at dance halls, the dangers of which are enough for any wide-awake parent in the year 1931 to be fully aware of.

"M. J. H." and her little group may not yet be guilty of the things suggested, but as sure as crocuses come up out of a frosty ground, youth will find a way to meet its own particular heart crises. You can't stem the urge to know boys, to want their company, no matter what unfriendly barrier is raised at the home door. The young women are simply following nature's bent: the parent opposing it. And when nature goes on a rampage it can kick up a terrific scene, as we have observed in destructions following in the wake of other phases of oppositions to its rules, as well as in those pertaining to mating.

A Strange Quirk.

What ornery quirk in an otherwise social enough nature inspires so many fathers to take the stand complained of by M. J. H.? It is one of the anomalies of parenthood that they so readily forget their own youth, forget the insatiable longings of youth for the opposite sex and forget, too, the justifiable resentment they may have felt at an earlier male parent. For it is not a characteristic of our particular day alone. Many an elder married woman today can relate a tale similar in outline to that disclosed by M. J. H.

A psychologist, no doubt, would have an explanation for the older man's resentment toward male youth with its cocksureness, its optimism, its vanity, its callowness, and its invasion of a territory over which the adult has been used to reign. But surely in light of latter day searchlighting of impulses, it is time that this father-suitor barrier were recognized for what it is and the young man was given the break that is his by right of his youth [and the girl's].

Or, not willing to recognize the weakness in his own soul, couldn't the modern day parent attack this matter in another way, say? Couldn't he see that no insurance on earth offers such protection for his daughter as that given by a kindly home-welcoming parent? The mere fact that there is a dad there in the background to whom a suitor is more answerable as a friend than as an enemy is vitally protective to the girl. The fact that a boy is welcomed into a household by the male head of the house puts him on his mettle, as it were. The boy automatically is made to feel responsible to the older man. The female parent rarely inspires the same responsibility.

Too, dad's judgment of boys should be better than mother's. It isn't always, of course, but that's because of the father prejudices so often recorded. But, given a dad with an open mind and a heart for youth, male and female, and you have a parent who can guide his girl along a pretty safe course.

To begin with, that sort of dad will have his girl's confidence. He can make criticisms without the bitter resentment that attends an attack on a person by one whose cold manner shuts him off from consideration. The mere fact that a suitor, unworthy though he may be, is attacked often glorifies him in a young woman's eyes. Heaven only knows how many marriages that should never have been perpetrated have been made over the objections of stern, unsympathetic parents. The objections only served to urge rebellious youth on.

Attitude Hard to Understand.

The utter blindness of the male parent is beyond comprehension. Men who have lived long enough to have marriageable daughters certainly have all their wisdom teeth cut. They are perfectly aware of what goes on in the world. They know the value to a girl of parental supervision during the years of opposite sex friendship forming. Yet, rather than face the issue, they withdraw into a shell of either cold blooded indifference or colder blooded opposition to every youth that shows an interest in their daughter or daughters.

Of course, we're speaking about a certain type of male parent. All fathers are not so, fortunately for the boys and girls. In fact, we find today a large element of fathers who are companions to their girls in every sense of the word. They dance with them, they play with them, they fool with them, and when the moment arrives for a serious word of advice the girls get it. They get it in a fatherly tone, not as an order coming from a tyrant. The harmony of relationship between father and daughter provides a respect for the father's judgment that no tyrannical order or prejudiced opposition ever can do. Least of all in an age when girls are free to come and go as they please and when, among their contemporaries, they hear exploited the doctrine of the right to live their own lives.

Within Hailing Distance.

A good dad and a wise one, in this day and age, does not further attempt to widen the breach recognized by all students of the subject as wide enough already between the younger and older generations. He keeps himself within hailing distance, at least. He is ready to give the young men who come calling a hand—and mighty glad he is that his fair offspring has such pride in him she wants to exhibit him. Grateful, too, he is that his home has sufficient attraction to lure youth away from roadhouses, dance halls, and other gathering places of the young independents. That, after all, is the supreme tribute to parenthood, and the wise dad knows it and thanks his lucky stars that he isn't listed among the Fathers Objectionable.

There's too much live fun, interest, rejuvenation to be found in the company of youth to make him ever want to be classified along with the old fogey objectors who "can't see any good" in our quite remarkable group of young persons of today.

Shake out of it, you stingy handed old daddies, before the girls walk out on you, leaving you and your silly old prejudices to brood alone! They're going to have their fun, anyway, as you had yours when you were young, and no formidable figure at the home door is going to stop them.

The Biggest Liar

Who was the biggest liar you ever knew, and what yarn did he tell? If you want to see him in print address Biggest Liar Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

An Old Settlers' Tale.

An old settler several years ago was in our neighboring grocery store where he related what I'd call one of the biggest stories I've ever heard. It ran like this.

"Once while I was working on the roof of a large building I suddenly lost my footing and started falling, which I was sure meant death. Well, sir, as I was just going over the edge, I drove my knife, which I had mind enough to open, with all my strength into the edge. There I hung until help could reach me."

Can you beat that man as the biggest liar? R. M. J.

FOUR candles! And each of them stands for a year of vigorous, hearty living. Blanche Guerin, of 4575 Oakenwald Ave., Chicago, is a typical Fig Syrup baby. Here's what here mother says:

"A friend recommended California Fig Syrup very highly. So when Blanche began to have so many colds, I got some. It opened her bowels promptly; made her rest better; and best of all, she has been free from colds for a long time, now.

"I have also used Fig Syrup with Blanche for upsets. It has kept her strong and vigorous. I recommend it as the children's laxative."

For fifty years, wise mothers have been secure in the knowledge that a child's headachy, bilious, feverish or fretful spells can be quickly and safely overcome by California Fig Syrup. Physicians recommend the soothing aid of this pure vegetable product to keep the bowels clear in colds or children's ailments; or whenever bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness or lack of appetite warn of constipation. California Fig Syrup helps tone and strengthen weak bowels—assists in building-up and energizing weak children.

All drugstores have the genuine. It always bears the name California.

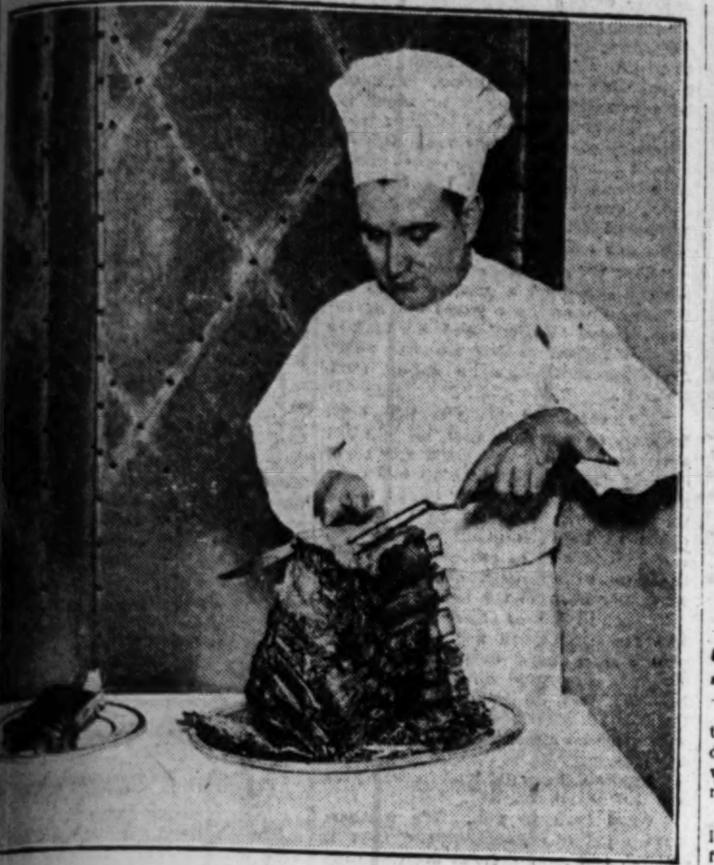
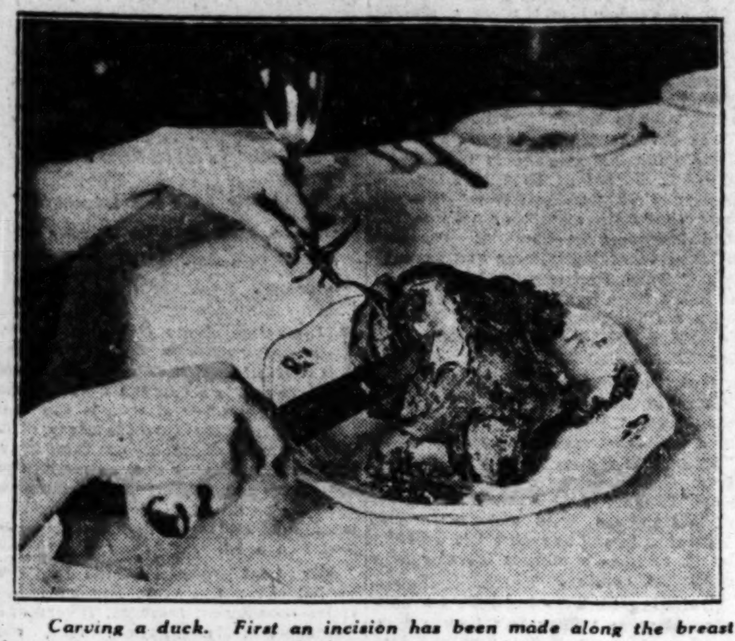
The Tribune Cook Book

By Meta Given.



Chef John Pertus of the Shoreland hotel carving a standing roast. Note that the chine bone has been removed to make the carving easy.



Carving a duck. First an incision has been made along the breast bone, the meat has been pulled away from the bone and the carver is ready to cut the solid piece at both ends and the bottom to release it.

Each Kind of Fowl Has Its Own Carving Rules; Correct Equiment Is Great Help.

WHILE the meat of the goose is not distributed on the carcass as it is on a turkey, the goose may be carved in the same manner that the turkey is. By following our directions for carving a turkey given in last Sunday's food column, we should be able to carve a goose satisfactorily and with dispatch.

All skillful carvers cut the breast meat of the turkey and goose alike, but they are not all of the same opinion about carving the legs. Some hold that it is impossible to carve the leg of the goose like that of a turkey. In the first place the legs of a goose are smaller and are far more difficult to remove from the body. The position of the legs on the body together with the deeply set thigh joints make it hard and tedious work for the average individual to disjoint the leg with ease. For him it is much easier to leave the legs on.

To carve the legs, start at the back of the goose above the thigh joint, cutting thin slices downward, parallel to the bone. With a little experience one can soon carve almost all of the meat neatly away from the leg bones.

Both leg and breast meat should be served to each person. The appearance of a serving of goose differs from one of turkey—all of the meat of the goose is dark.

A goose weighing twelve pounds, carved economically, will serve eight persons.

Carving Duck.

Roast duck is one of the most delicious of meats. And it is about one of the most expensive. It is a fowl that serves fewer people than any other bird of its size. A small duck weighing three and one-half or four pounds will serve only two or three people while a large one of five or six pounds will serve four. In hotels and in homes where attractive service is of first importance, the legs are never served as is. These are used in the making of salads or other left over dishes. In the average household, however, it is practical to carve and serve the legs. In any situation the breast is always carved in the same way. A medium sized carving knife is best—one with a six or seven inch blade.

First make a sharp incision on one side of the long flat perpendicular part of the breast bone, cutting through to the lowest part of the horizontal flat part of the bone. This incision in an average sized duck will be about seven or eight inches long. Insert the fork below the incision and pull the breast meat gently away from the bone, cutting the meat loose with the knife where ever it seems necessary. If the meat is sufficiently tender this is easily done. Now, when the entire breast bone is revealed, cut the breast meat loose from both ends and the lower side, lifting out the meat in one solid piece to the side of the platter. Remove the meat from the other side of the breast in the same way.

If the duck is to serve two people, one large piece of breast meat may be served on each plate. If four are to be served, cut each piece of breast meat once across the grain and place one piece on each plate.

Sever Legs with Care.

Since the duck's legs are farther back on the body than on any other fowl and the leg joints are deeply set in a bony depression, the legs are not so easily released as the legs of a turkey or chicken. In severing the legs from the body, first cut downward in a direction parallel to the body until the leg bone is encountered, then slant the edge of the knife in cutting until the thigh joint appears. Cut across the cartilage of the disclosed oval joint to separate the leg from the body. If the duck is large the meat from the leg may be removed in solid pieces by slicing down on one side of the thigh and drumstick bone, then on the other as it is from the turkey leg. If it is small the thigh may be separated from the drumstick and the two pieces served whole. Like the goose, the duck has no white meat.

In carving chicken the entire leg is removed from the body as it is from the turkey, the thighs are separated from the drumsticks and in a small chicken a thigh or drumstick is placed on each plate. The breast meat is sliced as is the breast of the turkey and slices of white meat are served with each thigh or drumstick. A small chicken serves four people equally well. If a large chicken or capon is served, the meat from the thighs and drumsticks should be carved as those of the turkey to serve each one uniformly.

Carving Prime Ribs of Beef.

Two kinds of rib roasts are served —standing rib roasts and rolled rib roasts. The first is the more desirable if flavor and juiciness are coveted qualities. The bone itself contributes much good flavor, and the tissues in a standing roast which have not been cut do not lose nearly so much flavor as the extensively cut surface of a rolled roast. If the bone and ligaments which hold the ribs together [the chine] are sawed off [saw a slice of the bone off the entire length of the roast, tie it securely back on the roast and remove after the roast is done] carving a rib roast is easily done. Some people prefer to be served a slice of rib roast with the bone left in and some prefer the top slice which is well seared.

Place the roast with the protruding ribs to the left of the carver. For a large roast use a knife with at least a nine inch blade. Insert the fork firmly near the end of the upper rib bone in the lean part. Beginning at the fat side on the right of the roast slice straight across the grain until the knife comes in contact with the bone. Then with the point of the knife cut the slice loose from the bone. Slip the knife under, resting the slice on the broad flat surface of the knife, and lift it on to the plate, being careful so as not to break it.

A rolled rib roast should have all the strings or skewers removed before placing it on the platter. Let the roast stand on end. Insert the fork obliquely into the left side of the roast just below the point where the first slice will be severed from the roast. As each slice is removed the fork will have to be lowered. Beginning at the right side of the roast carve the meat in neat thin slices across the grain as is described in the carving of the standing rib roast.

the same length as the coat, and that leaves very little skirt problem, as the sketch shows.

You can lengther the shortest skirt to proper proportions by a lining top, or you can cut off the top of a one piece dress and you have a skirt. You can give an old felt hat new life, too, by adding a half brim of new felt in the color to match your tunic blouse, like the one shown in the sketch.

How to Lengthen a Gown.

Have you a short, all too short, evening dress hanging unwanted in your closet? You can lengthen it by a Paris method that's practical and thrilling. It is shown in the second sketch, and consists of four inch bands of silk or velvet set in just below the waistline, making a new skirt top, and letting the hem down. Let these bands be in shades of your dress color, from dark to light, and you will find that they triple the charm of your frock.

They may be lace, if the frock you make over is satin, chiffon or crêpe de chine. The dress pictured is in pale blue chiffon with bands at the top of the skirt in velvet ranging from sapphire to palest blue. The color scheme is too pretty for words

A little inside wrap that makes an evening dress into a Sunday dress, and quadruples its services is a simple circular cape of satin, cut a bit longer in back, and with a belt in the same piece, fastened in front under a rhinestone buckle. The cape is held closely in front by two rhinestone buttons, and there is a flat tailored collar of satin. You could leave the collar off without detracting from the chic of the cape.

Such a little wrap for an up to date evening dress is charming, and you never can know 'til you have one how useful it is. No girl should be without one, and they are chic as chic.

A Major Entry.

Our third sketch sows one of the new spring tailored suits created by Paris. Look how the jacket has shrunk! Therein lies the possibility for revamping your winter suit that has been barging along under your fur coat. In the interest of fashion ruthlessly curtail your suit jacket to Eton size, and if it crossed over sufficiently in front by all means button it double breasted fashion, like the one in the sketch.

Such a jacket can be worn over a blouse, or without a blouse, if you have collar and cuffs of some white stuff like those sketched. If you want to lengthen your suit skirt you may add a hip yoke of plain stitched crêpe de chine, in the color of the skirt. Such yokes are fashionable.

The suit like this one is going to be a major entry in Paris spring fashions.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

tion; to carry enthusiasm and power and purpose of the Chicago conference back into the local churches in terms of definite steps to be taken in deepening the spiritual life of every Christian and in carrying on a more spiritually significant life and work."

The plan of the conference is to divide the whole body of delegates into small discussion groups under skilled leadership, to consider the implications of the world situation as they bear on the life of individual Christians and upon the church's life and work.

Answer to an Overture.

This Chicago conference is the outgrowth of an overture sent by several presbyteries to the Presbyterian general assembly. The overture was written by Dr. Benjamin M. Gemmill of Hartsville, Pa., and stated the "need for a new call to service" based on the realization that "everywhere men are longing for a deeper experience of Christ; the apparent low ideals and lack of enthusiasm for the spread of the teachings of Christ; the lack of an adequate number of students for the ministry and missionary service; and the absence of any great passion for Christ such as actuated the church in its most glorious days."

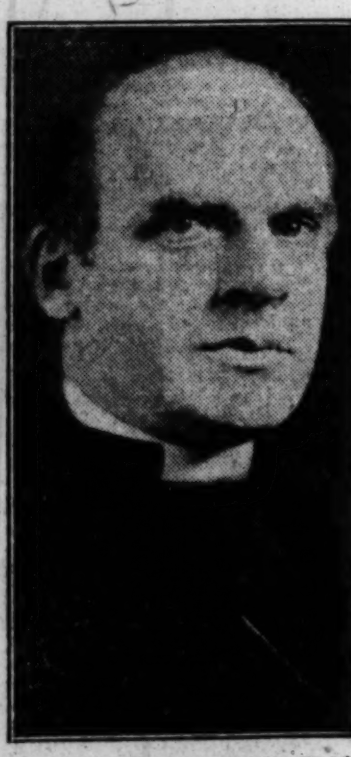
The overture, which was referred by the general assembly to the general council, urged that there be held in the great city centers of America such meetings as this initial Chicago conference, with the object of "considering how best to secure the deepening of the church's spiritual life and to lay the obligations to complete the task of winning the world for Christ in this day and generation, especially in view of the unprecedented opportunity now presented for giving the gospel to the whole unevangelized world in our lifetime."

Main Purpose.

The main purpose and underlying principles of such meetings, as stated in the overture, are as follows:

"The church faces the world's need and opportunities as never before, and yet the church is scarcely able to maintain what is already gained, and no new work or advancement has been undertaken for some time. The great purpose of such conventions will be to face squarely the world's need and to determine our share in supplying it, and, also, to determine how best to accomplish the task undertaken, and to deepen the spiritual life of each Christian, and to do all that in us lies to complete the task of evangelization of the world to reward Christ for his sufferings.

"The way to raise budgets, quotas, and money is not to talk about these, but to exalt the cause by giving the people an overmastering and overpowering task and vision of the world's desperate need. Then budgets will take care of themselves.



THE RT. REV. GEORGE CRAIG STEWART.
[Moffett Photo.]

Bishop Stewart will be enthroned the sixth bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago Tuesday morning at St. James cathedral, Cass and Huron streets. The Very Rev. Duncan H. Browne, dean of St. James, will be the officiant.

Episcopal clergy and laymen from all sections of the city and suburbs will gather this week for the ninety-fourth annual convention of the diocese of Chicago. A preconvention dinner is scheduled to be held tomorrow night at the Hotel Sherman under the auspices of the Church Club of Chicago.

Tuesday will see the enthronement of the Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, D. D., as bishop of Chicago at St. James' cathedral. The services of enthronement will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning. Business sessions of the convention will open immediately after the enthronement and continue through Wednesday. Thursday the annual convention of the woman's auxiliary of the diocese will be held at St. Paul's church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue.

Bishop Stewart and Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the governor's Chicago committee on unemployment relief, will be the principal speakers at the pre-convention dinner tomorrow night. John D. Allen, president of the Church club, will act as toastmaster. A reception to the bishop and convention delegates will precede the dinner.

The Very Rev. Duncan H. Browne, dean of St. James's cathedral, will be the officiant at the enthronement of Bishop Stewart. The Rev. William B. Stoskopf, rector of the Church of the Ascension, will be master of ceremonies. Others taking part in the service will include: The Very Rev. Frederick C. Grant, dean of the Western Theological seminary; the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Randall, diocesan secretary; the Rev. George H. Thomas, rector of St. Paul's church; the Rev. W. H. Ziegler, Elgin, and the Rev. T. De Witt Tanner, Joliet. All clergy of the local diocese, numbering approximately 150, will be in the procession, as will members of the Cathedral chapter of Chicago.

As part of the ceremony of enthronement, Bishop Stewart will be invested with cope and miter, symbolical of his office. The vestments to be presented to him were made in England and are the gift of Mrs. William G. Cylde of Pittsburgh, sister of Mrs Stewart. He also will be invested with the bishop's croizer or staff. It will be a silver staff which originally was presented to the late Bishop C. P. Anderson as memorial to his son, Patrick, who was killed in France during the war.

Bishop Stewart will deliver his first charge as bishop of Chicago at the opening business session of the convention on Tuesday. In it he is expected to deal with some the outstanding questions before the church and nation today, including the Lambeth conference action relating to birth control. The bishop also is expected to present in some detail his proposals for future work of the Episcopal church in Chicago. Included in this program will be a proposal for the appointment of several archdeacons for the local diocese, a plan which has not heretofore been followed in Chicago.

The question of giving the laity concurrent authority with the clergy in the matter of electing bishops is one of the leading matters of legislation to come before the convention. Last year's convention approved the proposal but it requires approval of another annual convention before the canons can be changed.

STOMACH ILLS

A Medical Opinion

"The ideal corrective for 'sour stomach' is calcium carbonate—a potential anti-acid, incapable of disturbing the normal action of the bowels and bladder, impossible of overdosage and perfectly safe to use."

—Your own doctor will confirm this quotation from noted medical authority.

A Powerful Anti-acid—yet Safe

Old-fashioned folks, not abreast with medical science, still take burning soda. Occasional doses may do no harm.

But Calcium Carbonate, in proper form, is the modern anti-acid: 2½ times as effective as soda, and is safe in its action and positive in its relief.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the ideal form of Calcium Carbonate combined with other valuable healing ingredients. Medical authorities commend Stuart's formula as the only kind for use with children and best for men and women.

Charming Frocks Suitable for School, Play, and Afternoon Wear May Be Quickly Fashioned at Home.

A CHARMING, wearable one piece slip-on frock is shown in pattern No. 2548. It isn't at all difficult to make, and should be most attractive when worn. The straight one piece upper part is lengthened by a circular flounce. The belt is adjustable and may be worn as best suits the wearer. If you are slight the higher waistline will be chic.

White plaited organdy is suggested as a finish for the neck and long sleeves, and this may be bought by the yard ready to put on.

Wool jersey, tweed mixtures, printed silk crepe, wool crepe, and rayon novelties lend themselves perfectly to this model.

The picture chart that comes with this pattern shows clearly how the parts are put together.

Bind the bottom of the dress with a narrow, bias binding of the dress material and hold the skirt towards you when sewing on. Three-quarters of an inch will be wide enough to cut this binding. After it has been sewed in place turn over the opposite edge of the binding and hem down by hand. Take care that the binding doesn't twist in hemming down, and take the stitches directly over the first sewing.

Finish the neck with the binding and face the sleeve edges. Then the organdy may be basted in place, and can easily be removed for laundering.

Pattern No. 2780 is for one of those darling bloomer frocks for small children. It is easily made and launders well, as it is a one piece dress without plaits or frills to be ironed in place. There are pin tucks at the center front and back to provide the necessary fullness to the skirt.

A rather deep, round yoke makes the upper part, and the skirt is sewed to its lower edge. This yoke is left open on both shoulders above a perforation on the front shoulder pattern. Narrow faced and extension hems are made, so that a good closing will result. Patch pockets will surely please any child, and this dress has two.

The sleeves are long and gathered into narrow bands at the wrists. The pattern provides for short sleeves, but at this time of year the long ones will probably be used.

The pattern directions show how the bloomers are put together. When inserting the elastic at the top be careful that it isn't too tight. Knee bands of the color used for the cuffs will be prettier than finishing with a hem and using elastic.

Linen, cotton broadcloth, gingham, pique, and wool challis are pretty and serviceable fabrics from which to choose.

The bolero frock made by pattern No. 2726 is an easy one to wear because of its smartness. It is exceptionally pretty in every detail and isn't a hard dress to make. An excellent pattern chart comes with the pattern, showing quite clearly each step in putting the various parts together. It is always wise to follow the layout of the pattern pieces on the material, for it will help you to avoid mistakes and should prove a saving of material.

The dress molds the bodice and skirt firmly through the hips and waist. And at either side circular sections come from the snug hip line into a smartly flaring hem. A pretty detail is seen in the sunburst effect of the becoming V neck line. The puffed sleeves with the deep cuffs are new and smart and no doubt will be preferred to the full length, plain sleeve.

The skirt at the bottom, for size 16, measures about 2¼ yards, which is just right for this type of frock.

Tête de negre brown Canton crêpe with a metallic banding for the bolero edge will be stunning, while for more dressy occasions choose crêpe satin or transparent velvet. Wool crêpe, flat crêpe, and feathweight tweed are smart for utility wear.

Russell Owen, a correspondent with Byrd at the south pole, tells in a current magazine article how tractable the then commander was in the antarctic about tackling such an onerous job as his own washing, and how he ignored, at mealtime, the point of precedence at table over which such a teapot tempest raged at Washington a while ago.

On Byrd's last visit here he contracted to autograph 1,000 copies of his book, "Little America," for one store, and worked there hour after hour on the job. Some one watching his intent scratching with the pen remarked that he resembled a small boy kept after school and made to write his name over and over for some infraction of rules.

For the last twenty years Cael O'Connor, deputy county controller, has been a walking reference and legal library for county commissioners and other officials, the sort at which one marvels "how one small head could carry all he knew." So few people realize that his nickname is a diminutive of Michael that he receives letters address to Gail, Cal, Gael, and even Kale O'Connor.

Down the home stretch this week come field and favorites in the competition to tie a permanent tag onto this column, which to date has utilized almost as many aliases as the Yellow Kid. Next Sunday, the date set as the limit for entering suggestions, we'll list the most popular titles, and let the final votes fall where they may. And the ensuing edition of squibs herein will huddle under the chosen banner.

Don't, by the way, overlook today's. It came to us from Waterloo, Ia., with several other entries authorized by Annette M. Lingelbach. Annette says she prefers "Lane of Laughter" [who's with her?], and also submits "American Bazaar" and "Tall Town Talk." Neat!

Seven league boots ought to be about right for a random roaming through other points represented in the week's helpful hints, for quite a few states were heard from, to say nothing of counties. Stepping out to Glen Ellyn, we find Neighbor Maude Mason offering "So It Seems;" "The Dipper" [like that], and "Ramblings;" J. Ritchie Graham [Scotch, ye ken], in Wilmette, produces "Spice Box"; Betty Lind of Kenilworth posts "Chit-Chat," and Dorothy Pulse, now of Highland Park, and Betty Boyd of Chicago share "Laugh Lines." Should be good.

From the dells of old Wisconsin—Green Bay, to be specific—Mrs. P. K. Williams nominates "Over the Teacups," while Laura McLeish of Rice Lake favors "Thoughts at Random." Iowa's batting average is swelled by Rose J. Gockel of Fort Madison, insisting that "Chinoiseries" is next best to "Chin Chin," or vice versa, and Margaret Bradley of old Des Moines, tendering "Facts and Fancy," and "Once Repeated." Willard, O., is heard from twice, Mrs. S. F. Miller, born a Chicagoan, favoring "Chicago in a Nut Shell," and Evangelene Miller "The Ticker."

Over in Michigan, Mrs. A. R. Christensen of Negaunee votes for "Talkettes" and "Newsies." Another Irishman [unaccountably modest] forwards "Quips and Quotes" [happy thought] from Gladstone, or supports "Seven Days' Leave." And Edith W. Hubbard of Kalamazoo asks whether "The Listening Post" appeals? We couldn't let it, because a famous Hoosier lady runs that column.

Swinging back to Indiana, we note such ideas as "They Say," from Mrs. Louise Nelp of Peru; "Believe Me You," by Gudon R. Guinnup at Marion; "Among Ourselves," from Mrs. A. L. Lager of Terre Haute, and "Radiations," from Miss Sallie Wagner in the same city; "Celebralites," or "Tiptopics" [any applause?] from Mrs. M. Ives of Delphi; "They Know," from M. E. Larimer of Goshen; "Chicago Echoes," from Mrs. Clarence Veirs, and "Nifty News," from Miss Annabelle Veirs of Rochester; "The Percolator" [peachy], from Emo Taft of Muncie, and the fancy, "Kathleen McLaughlin," from Mrs. G. S. Kenny of Greenwood.

Hopping back to home territory, here in Chicago, we discover Grace Roos Johnson and "Thistledown," or "Middle o' Things"; Helen F. Totis and "Chinning and Chatting"; Juliette Clara Cromwell and "Rosettes"; Mrs. Frederick J. Holdsworth and "Minute Men and Women"; Florence Rondeau and "Tattle Tales." And so forth.

Illinois, generally, produced such angles as "Trib-Utes," by M. Murphy of Danville; "Chit and Chat," by Dorothy Barger of Springfield, with "Potpourri," by Orlene Brobisch of the same; "Timely Talk" or "Prudent Prattle," by Mrs. J. N. Weiss at Dixon; "Peregrinations," by Mrs. F. M. Gleason at Elgin; "Whip Crackers," by J. H. Simpson of East St. Louis, and "Sunlit Spray," by B. B. Smiley at Gilson.

Happy Second Meeting.

Six years ago I spent a few months in a local California beach town. I attended the dances at the open air pavilion, but never danced without an introduction. This particular night I had just arrived and stood at the railing watching the dancers. Against the railing on the other side stood four young men, all quite attractive. One, in particular, attracted my attention. His personality was so striking, and he was so good looking, that I thought many unladylike things about conventions.

While I was registering these impressions one of the four young men asked for a dance. How I hated to refuse! But refuse I did. They left soon after, but I noticed that while they were there "the" young man asked no one to dance. He merely looked on, in an aloof manner.

Two years later found me employed in Los Angeles and a few months later a new comer joined the firm. His face was vaguely familiar, but I couldn't place him. It was only after we were married and on our honeymoon that we discovered that it was the "he" whom I had seen and admired that night at the beach.

He had noticed me, and had bet the young man who asked me to dance that I would refuse! It was a strange occurrence, and one over which we get many laughs, even now!

Fate Takes a Hand.

About ten years ago I made a visit to a small town in Canada, where my grandmother was buried. It was the first time I had been there since she had died years before. As I dearly loved my "granny" as a boy I stopped over in London and bought a red wreath to put on her grave. During the night in the town where the cemetery was located, a heavy snowfall occurred. Vehicles could not be moved, so my cousins and I walked out to the cemetery so that I could place the wreath on my grandmother's grave. The snow was so deep that they could not locate it, but in wandering around I espied one grave and headstone that was not covered. I walked over and looked at the headstone and it was hers. The only grave in the cemetery that was not covered with snow.

Can any one explain this coincidence?

Answer Child's Queries

—By Gladys Huntington Bevans—

Booklet Offered Will Be of Aid to Young and New Parents in Presenting Information to Their Children.

A booklet on "Sex Education" will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IN writing about children, trying, in daily articles for parents, to cover all aspects of child guidance, there is one thing the writer tends to lose sight of—and that is the fact that new readers are constantly coming to a department of this kind. They may be either new as readers of the entire newspaper—or simply new as mothers and fathers—new in their interest in children because they have just had a baby.

For that reason, these articles should cover the same subject many times—obedience, freedom, favoritism, punishment, imagination, rest, sex education, etc.

For a long time this last subject has not been mentioned in an article. Yet it is new to many young parents and is one of the most important subjects there is. Also it is one which gives parents some of their most worried or puzzled moments.

The answering of children's questions on life and its reproduction, the approach to sex instruction with the older boys and girls are things that must be dealt with wisely.

Three Groups of Parents.

There are, however, still adults who feel that the only wisdom lies in silence and evasion. Then there are others who are undecided—who are afraid to try matter-of-factness. And still others who are eager to start early with the practice of answering their children's questions, but who do not know how to go about it.

For those three groups of parents the most intelligent thing is to consider carefully the opinions of those who have been successful in educating their children in this direction.

The new revised edition of our Sex Education booklet is off the press as I write, and it may be of interest to those who are looking for suggestions to know a little of its contents. The aim of this pamphlet is to cover the problem over a period of years for parents; it is graded according to the needs of each age. The new booklet contains such references as:

Short reading for parents as to why sex education is wise.

How to answer their young children's questions, in an absolutely practical and interesting way.

What sort of information to give to girls and boys, also to older adolescent girls and boys.

A vocabulary of correct names for the various parts of the body.

An informal scientific approach for children of about nine.

These headings give a general idea only of the contents of the booklet, which has been most carefully compiled.

One Mother's Experience.

Aside from the sort of reading matter that is being written on sex education by experts, I am sure it will interest many mothers to look over my shoulder at a little of the correspondence I have on the subject. One mother writes:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I am much concerned in the welfare of my boys, and am easing this subject of sex along with their education. This can be accomplished only if no more importance is attached to it than there is to eating. When they are still small I don't believe any undue stress should be laid on those facts, but I believe every question put to us should be answered frankly. And these questions are asked.

"Last winter before 'our' baby was born I explained a great deal to my boy, who was three years old at the time, about 'babies,' and he took it all as a matter of fact and has never forgotten it though he rarely mentions it.

"He certainly idolizes his baby brother, so much so that he will not even stay at my mother's for three or four days as often as he has done before, because he has 'work' to do for the baby. Because he knows as much as he does about the baby, I sincerely believe he realizes how much there is to be done, and helps me whenever he is in the house.

"In an article of yours a few weeks ago you mentioned a young mother who is practically ostracized because she, too, explained all these facts to her boy and he in turn mentioned them to his playmates. These mothers who were so aghast are indeed moral cowards.

"Anyhow, I am anxious to read your Sex Education booklet.

"Good luck to you. We mothers need all the encouragement that is offered, and your articles are certainly invaluable.

"This ink-spattered page looks so bad, but if I have to rewrite this I don't know when it can be done, as I have postponed it so many times now [haven't you done this very thing yourself?] and I want this booklet before your supply is exhausted."

An Interesting Contrast.

In the same mail came this, which makes an interesting contrast with the first:

"I could not agree at all with your sympathy with the ostracized mother and your condemnation of her neighbors. I would certainly have been among them. If my 5 year old boy had come from play and said another child had talked of these natural things as they played I would have been most unwilling for them to play together.

"The books and pamphlets, of course, never take this into consideration—the after effects, I mean. And how can they? Some of them are spinsters and know little or less about real children. Some are mothers who have never known what their own children do when away."

There were other utterly unfounded statements made, each of which could be answered sanely and logically in several of the carefully written pamphlets mentioned in the references in the Sex Education booklet. The doctors and others who write these pamphlets are usually fathers and mothers who, like yourself, have had first hand experience which backs up their belief in sex education. In a bigoted community a wise mother may have a hard time—but it's worth the fight.

Two Additional Views.

The third letter shows quite a different attitude, that of a mother who is not going to let any grass grow under her feet:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: Long before our baby arrived I read your column. Baby is still tiny, seven months, but growing swiftly, and before we know it she will be walking. Then I feel the great problem of guiding her right is before us, and I don't want to be unprepared. To me life is beautiful, and my hope is that I can show it to her as such. I feel that I want to start in now to learn how to answer and to guide her and how to do the things best for her."

The fourth and last extract is from the mother of an older boy:

"I hope this is suitable for a fourteen year old boy. Do you advise giving it to him to read? I have one, but it does not go far enough into the spiritual side of life, only the material. I hope this one will meet my need."

I quote this because it presents exactly the objection to so much information that young people pick up. The approach is so often one sided. The naturalness and beauty and spiritual significance that should be tied up with the physical is often lacking in the information that young people gain from books, and other girls and boys, and adults, too. In compiling this simple sex education booklet an effort has been made to avoid this mistake, and to strike a balance which makes sex take its right and natural place in life.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

● You mothers—who find it hard to make youngsters take cod-liver oil—listen to this interesting news

"MY TWO little ones raise an awful fuss when I try to give them plain cod-liver oil. They hate it," Mrs. Alice Burgess told us when we called at her home at 28 Curtis Street, Bloomfield, N. J.

Then we asked Warren and Lucienne, her two lovely youngsters pictured above, to try Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil. They took a spoonful . . .

"Gee, it's good," said Warren.

"I like it," smiled Lucienne.

Pleasanter to take—
but that isn't all!

Pale, thin, run-down children—they need cod-liver oil. Give it to them the pleasantest way—give them Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion hasn't that strong "fishy" taste. It doesn't upset even delicate stomachs. It brings you purest, Norwegian cod-liver oil in its pleasantest form—a perfect emulsion. Easier to take—easier to digest.

Scott's Emulsion is rich in vitamin A, the disease-resisting vitamin. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin that prevents rickets. It also contains vital mineral elements that aid in forming sound bones and teeth. This gives Scott's Emulsion a special advantage for growing children, infants, nursing and expectant mothers. Get Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil at your druggist's. Watch cheeks grow rosy. See youngsters gain new weight and pep.

The Smartest Hats Worn at the Southern Resorts Continue to Show Off-the-Forehead Effects.

THIS blue felt is the material used for the attractive hat shown today to the readers of this column. The back is slashed and tucked, its fullness escaping at the edge to take care of the growing hair. An inset of yellow English belting ribbon is made along the crown edge.

The new movement in the hats to show at least one and one-half inches to two and one-half inches beyond the forehead still continues and indications are that the shallow line for the new season will be by no means lessened. This movement is particularly pronounced in models for southern resorts or early spring wear.

This season there is a tendency to have the trimming and lines introduce width at the sides, but arranged more from the back and behind the ears. In the brimmed type one side is usually longer and dips to one side, which generally is employed at the "bad" side of the face.

A model showing of the southern resort hats introduced a new treatment, that of leaving many of the felt hats unblocked. The new hat must have a careless, nonchalant unblocked appearance, and correspond and fit harmoniously with costumes which have lines of studied carelessness.

For the dressy type of hat the flat straws are again popular—namely panamalaque, ballibuntl, and baqu. Rough straws will register more in the sports group. Indications are that this will be a straw season—even stronger than last season. A number of felt hats are seen with straw facings. In fact, the natural coloring of the straws is more pronounced, but a point is being made of using two or even three contrasting colors for various costumes.

A Friend in Need

Sally Asks Your Aid for the Inhabitants of a Village Near Chicago, Who Are So Pitifully in Need of Food, Clothing, and Fuel.

SINCE the first cool days of last fall, when the need for heavy garments became apparent, we've been telling you about the poor families of the city who have been suffering because of unemployment, and we have appealed to you for any clothing you might be discarding. Now, from a village just west of Chicago, comes a letter telling of the suffering of its inhabitants and a lack of relief. The writer, a school teacher, wants TRIBUNE readers to give these people a thought in their charity. Here is the letter:

"Dear Miss Brown: This is an appeal straight from the heart. Can you help us out in X——, a village located just west of Chicago, which has had no help from any source?

"I do not know where to begin to tell you what is needed. The best answer would be 'everything'—clothing of all descriptions for both children and grown-ups, and food and fuel. Conditions here are pitiful.

"Just yesterday two children had to be taken to the hospital dying of starvation. A mother of one of my pupils—I teach school here—came into the classroom, scantily clad and bare footed, whimpering for food of any kind. She, as well as her four children, was starving.

"This is just an example of what the hard times have done in this locality. I am helping all I can and securing help from every available Good Samaritan, but still the demand is far greater than the supply.

"V. H."

If you can give a thought to this suffering community, or if you can lend the writer a helping hand, let me know about it. I shall be glad to have her get in touch with you.

Pathetic Case.

"I am writing in behalf of a young couple who have been married a year and since the second month of their marriage the husband has been out of work. Two months ago the wife gave birth to a premature baby. They have no money with which to buy milk or clothing for the baby and both the mother and her husband are walking the streets in hope of finding employment. A friend is taking care of the child but can do nothing more for them. Will you try to get them baby clothing and a buggy? A. L."

It's a bit discouraging for this young family to begin its existence under such adverse circumstances. I am sure the parents would be greatly relieved to have at least the baby taken care of.

Peel and slice thinly as many potatoes as are needed to serve a given number of people. Slice them into a buttered baking dish and between the layers sprinkle salt, pepper, a tiny bit of cayenne, and a green pepper coarsely chopped.

Sprinkle the last layer with grated cheese, and top with crumbs. Fill the dish about 1-3 of the way up with rich milk.

Wash the chops—either lamb or pork—in cold water, and roll in crumbs. Place them on top of the potatoes, season and bake in a moderate oven about an hour. When the chops are half done turn them over and add more milk, if necessary.

There are Ideals

By Adela Rogers St. Johns

Ellen Williams.

A Beautiful Face from the Screen Smiling at Randy, Millionaire Polo Player, Was Enough to Start Him on His Way to Hollywood, Bent on Transferring Romance to Reality.

RANDY WESTOVER had never cared for motion pictures. Until that momentous Saturday evening he hadn't seen twenty films in all his life.

It wasn't that he had any scruples, either artistic or moral, against the drama of the silversheet. Simply he had no time for them. What with polo and golf and big game hunting, Randolph Westover III. had his hands full.

When he wanted entertainment he chose the theater. Movies were unreliable. Better go to the Follies a fourth or even a fifth time than take a chance on being stuck with the sort of tripe he'd encountered on some of his rare visits to a cinema palace.

But fate decreed that on a Saturday night in May he should attend a performance of "The Love Magic." Fate—and Wilhelmina Westover, better known to Park avenue and Westchester county as Willie.

Willie, unlike her son, adored the movies. Good or bad, hot or cold, it didn't matter to Willie. Her boudoir was littered with fan-magazines. Its satin walls were hung with pictures autographed in white ink, "Sincerely yours, Diana Dankers," and other famous names. They cost Willie many a quarter, which, she remarked, was a better way to spend money than many of the Westovers had employed.

Had the secretaries who sent out fan pictures known that W. Westover, 917 Park avenue, was actually Mrs. Randolph Westover II., mother of the international polo star and herself a social leader of note, they would doubtless have sent an 11x14 photograph autographed in person. Which would have spoiled all Willie's fun.

There was a raw wind outside on that particular evening in May, a raw wind and a flurry of cold spring rain. Inside a wood fire blazed gayly on the hearth and the dark red curtains shut out the dark and cold.

Randy Westover, two days back from India, stretched his long legs and sighed luxuriously. It was rather decent being home again. New York was a washout, but he was intensely fond of Willie. A fire on a raw night, a mild highball beside his deep chair, the latest copy of The Spur at his elbow, and Willie's squat figure across from him. What more could a man ask?

Then, with a word, Willie shattered his content.

"Randy," said Willie, "let's go to the movies."

Her son looked at her with horror, with anguish, almost with condemnation.

"Aw, Willie," he said, "not the movies. Not on a night like this."

"If you can play polo," said Willie, giving him a stern look, "in snow, rain, and the Indian sun, and hunt elephants or whatever it is all over Africa, I guess you're strong enough to ring for Oscar and be driven down Park avenue a few blocks to a warm movie theater with upholstered seats."

"But," said Randy, "I don't like the movies."

"The blue blood of the Westovers needs a dash of red in it," said Willie. "You're getting effete, Randolph. Incidentally I wish you'd get married. My blood pressure is too high, or too low, or something, and I'd like to change my grandson's didies before I go. Your sister's so afraid of losing her figure she'll never have any. I gathered from your hasty departure for India, which is a loathsome country, that it's all off with the gal from Kansas with the extraordinary name. I thought she had you hooked. What happened?"

Randy grinned sheepishly. "It wasn't a very sporting proposition," he said.

Not for worlds would he have confessed to Willie that her only son and heir had all but been married for his money and entry in the social register. The truth about Flavia still burned his sensitive pride. If he'd been wiser he would doubtless have seen the plot from the beginning. Instead a talkative kid brother had revealed to him that Flavia was keeping a nice boy at home on the string while she adventured to New York in the hope of "doing better." Randy sometimes wondered what had happened to that kid brother when Flavia's mother discovered his indiscretion.

Nearly Caught

Randy had instantly conceived a passionate distaste for Flavia. One didn't do those things. So he went to India with his heart whole but his mind more than ever made up that unless he could find his ideal the name of Westover must die out of the annals of New York forever.

Idealists are supposed to wear long hair and write blank verse. Therefore few people suspected the hard riding, weather beaten, silent young polo player. But the fact remained. Polo kept him too busy to lose any sleep over the fact that he didn't seem to find the original of his lovely maiden. But she remained—slim, fragile, sweetly remote.

In the firelight he could almost see her face. The wide eyes under a clear, smooth brow. The slightly arched, patrician nose. The vivid mouth just slightly open over perfect teeth. A lady like a silvery new moon. He knew what he wanted.

Willie's voice broke in again upon his contented dreaming.

"You might take me to a movie," she said. "Corinth Deering is at the Capitol in 'The Love Magic.' I'm crazy to see it."

Despair manifested itself upon Randy Westover's lean young face.

"I suppose," he said, "you're one of those women who always get what they want. You've gone through your life trampling down everything to get your own way. You're a terrible woman. If you'd lived a few centuries ago you'd have been a czarina. All right. We'll go to the damn movies."

Thus Randolph Westover III. went protesting to his destiny.

For that night he saw Corinth Deering upon the screen and knew that his ideal was no impossible dream but an exquisite reality who lived in Hollywood.

Came the dawn and found Randy Westover still awake.

Men all over the world would testify that Randy Westover was a cool tomato—a very cool tomato. His nerves, they would aver who had played with and against him on the polo field, were made of the same steel as his wrist. The going never got tough enough to rattle Westy.

Yet he lay that morning in a quiver of excitement which would have shamed a novice. The mad tingle that had raced through him at sight of a face upon the screen had not subsided. If anything, it had grown worse with realization.

Before he rang for his breakfast he picked up a fan magazine he had stolen from Willie's room the night before and stared long and intently upon a full page rotogravure reproduction of Miss Corinth Deering.

It was true. There she was, his dream come to life. The eyes, he thought, must be gray. The soft hair swept back in big, loose waves and revealed delicate little ears. The languor of the little half-smile that parted her lips over the most perfect teeth he had ever seen set his heart pounding against his side.

Not a flaw, not a divergence. Flavia had been beautiful. There had been a young widow in Paris who had charm, and a girl in Florida who had thrilled him for one whole winter. But this was something different, something he had waited for and now was glad he had waited.

One Track Mind

If Randy was rated a cool tomato, he was also well known for the almost perfect sequence of decision and action. A one track mind and a mean determination characterized him both on and off the field.

Having reached the decision that Corinth Deering was the one woman created by the gods to fulfill his manhood, Randy contemplated ways and means.

He must, of course, go to Hollywood, and that at once. An aeroplane would be quickest. But once there, how did one meet so glorious a person? Of course he had heard tales of Hollywood. There were doubtless plenty of girls in the movie capital who would be easy enough to know.

Corinth Deering couldn't be one of them. He had known that, even before he read the article accompanying her picture. Naturally his lady was something of a mystery to the every-day world. In, but not of, Hollywood, the article said.

As for the sometimes potent factor that he was Randolph Westover III., she had money and prestige aplenty of her own.

In his shower Randy thought suddenly of Little Johnny Jones.

Little Johnny Jones weighed two hundred and twenty pounds, and was the third ranking polo played in the United States. Moreover, his paternal parent had invented some sort of an oil drill so that every time anybody pumped a barrel of oil out of the ground Little Johnny Jones got money. Nobody ever enjoyed money more. He poked his big blond head into every known form of excitement and had a swell time.

It came to Randy, as the cold water calmed his hot tension, that Little Johnny Jones had gone movie the last time the gang had been at Del Monte for the polo season. His big house had been full of pretty girls from Hollywood, properly chaperoned, of course. Later when they went down to Pasadena and played at Midwick, Little Johnny had given parties—glittering parties—for a tiny person named Jessie Jordon. Johnny said they sounded like a vaudeville team—Johnny Jones and Jessie Jordon. It had amused him hugely. Randy had a vague idea that she was somebody important on the screen.

Randy wished now that he had gone to the parties. But his married sister lived in Pasadena and she kept him busy. Any way, it might well prove that Little Johnny Jones knew Corinth Deering or knew somebody who did know her. At least he was Hollywoodian enough to tell Randy how one went about meeting so famous and exclusive a person.

Little Johnny Jones was still asleep when Randy arrived at his Long Island palace. But he awoke with a beaming smile and a jubilant interest in his visitor.

"Good old Randy off the deep end, eh?" he said, and roared with sympathetic laughter. "Thought you were immune, my boy."

"I thought I was, too," said Randy briefly. "Do you know HER?"

Little Johnny Jones waved a huge paw. "Sure. She's quite a pal of Jessie's. Well, maybe not a pal, because from what I gathered about this Deering dame"—Randy winced—"she's the original iceberg. But, of course, Jessie knows everybody. Now Jessie's in New York. I suggest that we take her to lunch and she'll steer you straight on the whole business. Swell little gal, Jessie."

Over a small table at the Colony, Jessie Jordon listened while Johnny explained all about the dilemma. Ordinarily Randy would have hated this delving into his private affairs. Now he was beyond that. His concentration rendered him impervious to anything except his desire. Only he did notice the oddly puzzled and slightly commiserate glance Jessie Jordon gave him. Probably thought he was a presumptuous ass. Probably everybody including the prince of Wales wanted to marry Corinth Deering. Randy set his jaw hard.

"I know Corinth," said Jessie. "She is beautiful, isn't she? I think she's the only real beauty on the screen. The rest of us," she grinned impudently, "are just types. I don't know that I blame you. I'll give you a note of introduction to her and her phone number. Her secretary's name is Williams—Ellen Williams. In Hollywood you get further if you know the secretaries. Maybe it's that way everywhere."

She busied herself a moment with her cigaret.

"Hollywood's a funny place," she said. "I wish you luck, Randy."

On to Hollywood

The next day Randolph Westover III. climbed aboard an aeroplane going west. In his pocket was the precious letter from Jessie Jordon introducing Mr. Randolph Westover to Miss Corinth Deering. Next to it was the picture he had carefully cut from the fan magazine. Next to that was another letter from Little Johnny Jones to a director named Callahan.

"A regular guy," said Little Johnny. "He's got elephantiasis of the sense of humor or he'd be the biggest director in pictures. He laughs in the wrong places. But he knows everybody."

Thus armed, Randolph Westover went upon his quest.

The hand which was steady as a steel crane when he crashed into a galloping mob of polo ponies shook as Randy picked up the telephone in his suite at the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles. He had landed just three hours before and his body still felt the hum and roll of the plane, but his mind was steady and determined.

All the way across the mountains and plains he had dreamed and planned. Love had come to him just as he would have had it come—all in one dazzling moment, all untouched by ordinary, everyday things. The giant wings of the plane were carrying him swiftly, swiftly, toward that beauty which made for him pure romance.

Now the moment of contact had come.

He called the number Jessie Jordon had given him and asked for Miss Williams.

A moment later a quiet, rather deep voice spoke to him. A friendly voice, he felt, even in that brief, "This is Miss Williams. To whom am I speaking?"

"This is Randolph Westover," he said. "I've just come on from New York and I have a letter of introduction to Miss Deering from Miss Jordon—Miss Jessie Jordon. I wonder if you could tell me when I might call and present it."

There was a little silence. Randy's heart turned over three times. Then the nice, friendly voice said, "O, yes, Mr. Westover. I think I saw you play polo at Midwick last year. Just a moment. Let me see."

His breath came short as he pictured her turning over the leaves of an engagement book.

"I'm not sure and of course I'll have to ask Miss Deering. But shall we say that you might come out Friday afternoon for tea? I'll call you back. Will you be in this afternoon?"

"I'll be in," said Randy.

He sent a box of roses to Miss Williams and a basket to Corinth Deering. A basket of early spring flowers, gay and delicate. They suited his thought of her.

When the telephone rang he jumped. Suppose she had said that he couldn't come? Suppose she didn't want to be bothered with unknown young men, even if they were famous polo players? What would he do then?

"Miss Deering says to come Friday at 5," said the friendly voice. "We live in Beverly Hills—at the head of Benedict canyon. Do you know where it is?"

"Yes, thank you," said Randolph Westover.

"And thank you for the flowers," said Miss Williams. "I've put the basket in Miss Deering's own sitting room. She'll love them. They're her favorites. Good-by."

Somehow that tided him over the two days of waiting. He made pictures of her, in a soft, blue negligee that had sleeves like wings, coming into a bright room and greeting the flowers with that soft, half smile.

He drove out, too, and looked at her house. In the sunset glow it was a fairy palace—a big, white place with little carved balconies, and stately hedges which shut her away from the passersby.

When the front door opened to him on Friday afternoon he decided that the inside of the house suited her exactly. The little drawing room where he waited was formal and delicate, in a French period. Beyond he could see vistas of long, dim halls, and brocaded curtains, and marble stairs.

It made him feel just a little awkward and earthy, just a little like a bull in a china shop.

The Elusive Star

Some one came in and he stood up, tense and throbbing.

But it wasn't his dream lady. It was a small, dark girl, with a quick, kind smile and a friendly poise.

"How do you do, Mr. Westover," she said. "I am Ellen Williams. Miss Deering hasn't come in yet. Will you sit down? I expect you'd like a highball, wouldn't you? It's very nice to meet you after seeing you play polo. I did enjoy those games with the Argentines. You would have won—with a little more teamwork."

Instantly she made him feel at home, feel less an idiot. She wasn't pretty, but her nice smile and her friendly voice seemed to warm the formal little room. Naturally Corinth Deering would have some one like that around her.

He said, "Yes, perhaps teamwork would have helped. We hadn't played together very much. But those Argentines are polo players. They have the most perfect seats in the world. And, if you'll pardon the word, they have more guts than anybody I ever played against."

"I noticed how high they rode off their saddles," said Ellen Williams. "It lets them hit from any angle without losing balance. I was brought up on a western saddle myself. Most California girls are. I've only learned to ride an English saddle—the boys used to call them postage stamps—since I came down here. If I had a son I'd let him ride bareback until he was 12."

She laughed at herself and he laughed with her.

"When he comes along," he said, "bring him around and let me give him his first lessons."

"I hope I can." Her face was very bright. "I've only got a nephew so far. I wonder if you mind—I took the lovely roses you sent me down to my sister. They haven't much and it's her first baby—only a week old. She was so thrilled with the flowers and they made the room look just heavenly. I told her you sent them, and her husband—he was quite an athlete in college—got such a kick out of it."

A butler came in with tea, and Randy took a highball instead.

"I'm so sorry Miss Deering is late," said Ellen Williams. "She had a lot of shopping to do for her next picture. I was sure she'd be back before this. She always takes such pains with her clothes for the screen."

"I expect a movie star keeps pretty busy," said Randy.

Afterwards he thought the girl must have sensed how much he wanted to talk about Corinth Deering, how sensitive he was to the joy of being in her home, seeing the things that her eyes rested upon daily. For she talked, quietly and sweetly, about Miss Deering.

"I've been with her for four years," she said.

"Do you live here with her?"

"When she needs me," said Ellen Williams. "But I keep a room at her home. I like to do that. We're a big family and it's fun. I love to be here, though. Only—home is home, you know. Miss Deering is—she's very beautiful, isn't she?"

Randolph Westover said fervently that she was unquestionably the most beautiful woman in the world.

The little secretary gave him a quick look. It made him think of Jessie Jordon that day at the Colony club.

"It must be wonderful to be as beautiful as she is," said Corinth Deering's secretary. "Do you know, I've never seen her when she wasn't beautiful? There are some stars out here who photograph like—like a million dollars, as my kid brothers say—but they disappoint you off the screen. Miss Deering is even more beautiful, I think."

When he suddenly realized that it was after 6 o'clock he got up to go. His disappointment was written plainly on his face. But for all that Ellen Williams thought he was the best looking man she had ever seen, so hard and well set up and clean of face. It occurred to her that they would make a remarkable couple—he and Corinth Deering.

The summer day wafted fragrance from the garden to them. "You play polo, don't you?" asked the beauty.

"I'm so sorry," she said, "and Miss Deering will feel so badly. Her time isn't ever her own. May I call you some time soon and we'll arrange it again?"

"O, yes," said Randy doggedly. "I'll be here. I expect I'll be here until I do meet her. I'm a determined bird, in my way."

Her smile was wistful. "I'm sure you are," she said. "I'll call you. Good-by, and thank you again for the flowers."

Second Chance

Three days later she did call.

"Miss Deering wondered if you'd care to come up Sunday for tennis," she said. "Not a party—just a few friends. If it's a nice day we'll have tennis and some swimming. So bring your bathing suit. Are you enjoying California?"

"Not yet," said Randy, "but I expect to."

As a matter of fact, he had hardly left his room. His sister, young Mrs. Herbert Roscoe Carnes had descended upon him, full of plans for his entertainment, all of which he had rejected with decision.

"Willie says you're in love with a movie star," said young Mrs. Carnes. "Are you really, Randy? It sounds too exciting. But you couldn't marry her, could you? I mean, I never knew any one who married a movie star. Herbie says they'd be too ornamental for home use. Do bring her out to the house, darling. I've heard movie people are sort of impressed by society and, heaven knows, whatever else he may be, Herbie is the last word socially. Maybe between your polo and Willie—does she know about Willie?—and Herbie, you might make quite a hit. Do come, angel."

"No," said Randy, "I'm busy."

"All right," said his sister. "Anyway, I think it's too romantic. Call me if I can do anything."

It was just as well he hadn't gone.

There Comes a Time

Ready to make his choice and settle down, he was charming—but not very respectable. And he found that his past had a way of keeping present plans in the future. . . . A romantic short story by Dorothy Black.

Next Sunday

Suppose he'd been out when Miss Williams telephoned. The very thought made him shudder.

On Sunday afternoon he arrived at Miss Deering's at 5 minutes after 2. The five minutes was a concession to what had once been his sense of humor.

The butler said, "You're to go out on the tennis court, Mr. Westover." And Randy made his way down little grass walks, bordered with flowers, to a court cut into a hill side and surrounded with tall, flowering trees.

He wondered how Corinth Deering would look in tennis costume. White, of course. But not severe white. Something feminine and soft. Then he opened a high wire door and found himself face to face with three people—none of them Corinth Deering.

One was a rather plain woman in a scarlet sweater. One was a young man whose face was vaguely familiar to him. The other was Ellen Williams. She had on a soft woolly dress of warm blue and a blue beret, and she looked very nice, though Randy didn't notice it.

Despair was written on her face as she looked at him.

"You'll think I'm a bird of ill omen," she said. "I'm just sick about it. I tried to reach you at the hotel by phone, but you'd left. Miss Deering was just called to the studio for some re-takes. She never works on Sunday, but they had a preview last night and found they had to shoot an extra scene today—the picture is behind schedule. So she had to go. Do you know Mr. and Mrs. Fordham?"

"I've seen you play polo," said Charlie Fordham. "That's a game I've always wished I had money enough—and time enough—to get into. Are you going up to Del Monte later?"

"I don't know," said Randy grimly. "It looks as though I might be here all summer."

He looked at Ellen Williams, and they laughed together.

"Anyway," she said, "you and Charlie can have a couple of sets of tennis. Maybe Miss Deering will be back."

"She won't," said Mrs. Fordham, "you know she won't. Not that it matters. Her tennis is filthy. I want to play myself."

"You and Mr. Fordham play," said Randy, "I'm not so hot myself. I really don't care."

"It's such a shame," said Ellen Williams, "your whole Sunday spoiled."

"Why don't you play, Ellen?" said Mrs. Fordham, swinging her racket eagerly. "You play a good game. Then we'd have doubles. Go get your clothes on."

"I don't know," said Ellen Williams. "Perhaps Miss Deering——"

"Fiddlesticks," said Mrs. Fordham. "Go and get your clothes. We'd love it. If Corinth lets people down like this she should be glad to have you help us out. I could have played tennis a lot of other places this afternoon."

"She couldn't really help it," said Ellen loyally. "All right, I'll hurry."

Let Down Again

Randy Westover moved to the end of the court and looked down the sweeping hillside, thick with dark, ragged shrubs. He felt sick and unhappy. The drop had been terrific this time. He wanted so to see her. The fire in him grew with each postponement. Things were breaking wrong, but he mustn't lose his nerve. The one woman who meant romance and beauty to a man was worth waiting for, worth suffering any sort of embarrassment and disappointment for.

Ellen Williams played a nice, steady game of tennis. His mind wasn't on the game and he failed her badly several times. But she only smiled and covered up for him, so that finally he was ashamed and put on a burst of speed that brought them victory, two sets out of three.

"Wasn't that grand?" said Ellen Williams, as they came off the court and sat down in the little pavilion. "I haven't played in months. Wasn't my partner splendid? I do love tennis."

"You love everything," said Mrs Fordham. "It's a gift. Well, I'm sorry about Corinth, but we had some real tennis in consequence. Good-by. See you again."

Afterwards Randy never quite figured how he happened to tell Ellen Williams all about himself, about his ideal, about Corinth Deering, and why he had flown to Hollywood in an aeroplane. But when he sat alone with her in the opalescent dusk he felt that he needed to tell her, that he needed her support, and that, after all, she was closer to his lady than any one else he could talk to.

"I think that's rather wonderful," said Ellen Williams. "I suppose every woman wants to be like that to some man—an ideal. It's like some old romance, some knight riding to see his lady love, isn't it? I like things like that."

Randy said: "I'm no schoolboy, you know. I've batted around a bit. But," somehow he knew this girl wouldn't think he was a fool, "but I guess all men want romance, underneath. I—want to get married. A man does, after thirty. I'd like a home—and kids. But above all—well, I'd sort of given up until I saw HER. Do you thing I'd—have a chance?"

"Of course," said Ellen Williams staunchly. "Why not? Any woman ought to be proud to have a man like you feel that way about her. You're," she laughed, "you're very eligible. Some day Miss Deering will want to retire. You can't go on being a screen beauty forever. O, I'd do anything to help you. Don't worry. I'm sure it will all come out all right. A thing like that should."

Over the Coffee Cups

Bill Callahan came over and took him to lunch the next day.

Over the coffee Randy mentioned his desire, casually, of course.

"You want to meet Corinth Deering?" said Callahan. "Why?"

"O," said Randy, "I like her looks. She's beautiful."

"I suppose she is," said Callahan. "I've known her so long I'd forgotten about that. I don't suppose—no, I guess you'd better meet her. I'll throw a little party for you at the Embassy Saturday night and ask her. How's that?"

"Swell," said Randy. "Will she come?"

"She always has," said Callahan cryptically.

That afternoon Randy telephoned Ellen Williams.

"O, that's splendid," said the warm voice. "I'm sure she'll go. I'll conspire with you, Mr. Westover. If anything else comes up I just won't tell her about it."

"You're a wonder," said Randy. "I wish there was something I could do for you. Couldn't you come down and have dinner with me some night? I like to talk to you."

He felt her hesitation. Then she said, "Yes, I'll come. And you can talk about——" he heard her laugh as she hung up.

Saturday afternoon he went out to Midwick and knocked the balls around. But he wasn't interested. The gang looked at him oddly. Had Randy Westover gone back as badly as that? The truth was that he'd gone to see "The Love Magic" again the night before. And Ellen Williams had brought him a big, beautiful picture of Corinth Deering. It stood on his table framed in jade and tormented him into a new fever of desire every time he looked at it.

While he dressed he said grimly, "Three times is the charm."

But Corinth Deering didn't come to Bill Callahan's party.

At 6 o'clock Randy got a wire. The minute he saw the yellow envelope he got a queer feeling. Of course it might be from Willie, who inquired and encouraged and berated daily over the wire. But somehow he knew it wasn't.

It was from Ellen Williams.

"Miss Deering can't go tonight," it said. "She has a terrible headache. Will you come up tomorrow? She'll be home all day."

Meet at Last

Randy was very close to saying, "To hell with her." Then he looked at the picture that stood on his table. He telephoned Ellen Williams. He forgot to thank her for her thoughtfulness in warning him of the evening's disaster. But he said he would be out tomorrow.

"Who is this young man?" said Corinth Deering.

"He's a great polo player," said Ellen Williams. "His people are really wonderful and he has lots of money. He's—very nice. Good looking, and young, and clean. And single. Perhaps—you'll like him."

Corinth Deering sighed. "Maybe," she said. "Ellen, you're sure Eddie hasn't telephoned this morning?"

"No," said Ellen Williams shortly. "He's gone to Agua Caliente with his wife."

"I know that," said Corinth Deering. "He might telephone anyway."

"He didn't," said Ellen Williams. "I wish you'd seen Randy Westover play polo. He's marvelous. In the internationals last year——"

"What are the internationals?" said Corinth Deering. "O, Ellen, there's a motorcycle boy. Maybe it's a wire from Eddie."

Miss Deering was at home and would be delighted to see him.

Randy Westover, very dark and stern with repressed emotion, walked again the narrow grass paths down into a terraced garden where white and purple wistaria trailed clouds of perfumed glory above an arbor.

Ellen Williams gave him a bright, quick smile.

But he didn't see her. He was looking at the girl who sat in a long wicker chair, her head thrown back against the silken cushions.

It seemed to him that nothing so exquisitely beautiful had ever before been created. No picture could do justice to the pale gold of her hair, the delicate ivory of her skin, the clear gray of her eyes. Under her orchid pajamas her slim body was like a carved jewel. There was something about her almost too perfect to be real.

He looked up and met Ellen Williams' gaze. In her eyes was a hot hunger that startled him. Then she was gone and he was alone with Corinth Deering, who was more beautiful, more wholly his ideal than he had imagined in his wildest dreams.

He said, "It's very kind of you to let me come."

Corinth Deering smiled. Her teeth were actually like pearls. "It's nice of you to want to come. I'm sorry I had to be so rude before. But—I'm a slave to my work."

He sat down. There was a little pause. The summer day wafted fragrance from the garden to them.

"You play polo, don't you?" said the beauty.

"A little," said Randy Westover.

"I don't know anything about polo," said Corinth Deering, patting her golden hair into place over each ear. "They say it's a lovely game."

"It's a good game," said Randy. "You'd like it."

"I'm sure I would," said Miss Deering. "I never have time for anything I want to do. I'm always working. You haven't any idea."

In the silence a bee hummed about the wistaria, making soft music.

"How is Jessie?" said Miss Deering.

"I—she was fine when I saw her," said Randy. "She's a peach."

"Yes," said Miss Deering, "Jessie's all right. But she doesn't take care of herself like she should. You know, in pictures, you just have to think about your looks. Jessie won't last much longer if she isn't careful. Did you see 'The Love Magic'?"

Randy was suddenly back with Willie in that crowded New York theater.

"Yes," he said, "that's where I first saw you. It was—great."

The girl stared at him. "You'd never seen one of my pictures before?" she said blankly.

"I've never been much of a picture fan," he said. "My mother is crazy about them. You converted me, much to her joy."

"Wait until you see my next one," she said. "We haven't a title yet. It's the best I've done. I was simply amazed at how well my voice records. But then, I worked so hard at it. Lessons every day—and I brought Mrs. Hardy out from New York—the old stage star, you know—and she's helped me some with my lines, though I don't think she knows as much as she's supposed to. Lots of times I've liked my own reading better. I think this picture will be my best. You know, when the talkies came lots of stars were worried. But I wasn't. Why should I be? I guess it's easier for me to learn to talk than it is for stage stars to be beautiful. I've always said that—and, after all, talkies or no talkies—we're still making motion pictures."

Suddenly Randy Westover was cold in the hot sunshine, cold and terribly lonesome, as he hadn't been lonesome since he was a little boy. His heart ached with cold and lonesomeness. He wanted to go away. He wanted to go back just one half hour to the time when he had never met Corinth Deering.

Finds a New Ideal

He had lost something—something precious. The emptiness of that loss appalled him. He wanted some one to comfort him for this loss which he couldn't yet, in his confusion, quite understand.

He stood up.

"It's been — Good-by," he said. "Thank you for letting me come. If you're ever in New York I hope—I'll look forward so much to seeing that next picture."

He stumbled on the little green path, the stone steps, as he went down the terrace under the murmuring trees. If he hadn't known it was impossible he would have thought he was crying. His eyes were hot and blind. His throat hurt.

At the bottom of the steps, in the hot sunshine, he saw Ellen Williams. She smiled, and then she saw his face and put her hand on his.

"Why—Randy—" she said.

He looked at her, and her hand tightened on his.

"You're going so soon," she said. "What happened? O, what is the matter?"

He shook his head like a fighter coming back from a knockout. He couldn't speak yet. He wanted to go, he wanted to get away, and yet he felt that he was leaving something here, something beautiful that he might never find again.

Could it be—he looked again at Ellen Williams' eyes. That hunger was still there, under the smile. It was Ellen Williams he didn't want to leave—the comfort and the kindliness of her. It was impossible to think of going away where he would never see that bright smile and hear that friendly voice.

Why, Ellen was like a warm fire on the hearth on a raw night in May.

Of course she wasn't his ideal. His ideal was golden of hair and patrician of face, and Ellen was just a brown haired little person that you could never call beautiful no matter how much you liked her.

And then, for the first time in his a home as this is one I visited on Long Island. The tastes of each member of the are evident in the happily sult. Many charming and suggestions are offered in room.

begin with, the entrance hall a friendly greeting. Walls ed and painted a warmly peach color. The floor is laid marbleized rubber tiles and is painted to simulate black The only pieces of furniture console table of rich mahog- and a pair of mahogany side with green and gold seats. a green and gold tôle flower on the table, and against the hangs a distinctive mirror. on each side of the mirror and sparklingly decorated al drops.

Four windows across one side of the draperies of heavy ribbed tally striped in several turquoise and peach. These straight to the floor, one at of the window group, and a wooden cornice across the to match the walls. Glass which soften the light are colored silk gauze.

grouping around the fire- is most inviting. At one side is a large, comfortable wing the kind a man always likes, in dull finished, copper material. Beside it there is table sufficiently large to smoking accessories, a tôle lamp parchment shade, and a few from the wing chair, at the side of the fireplace, is a grace- , covered with glazed chintz showing a flower design on a beige ground. A low coffee table stands in front of the love-seat, and at one end there is a reading lamp with a parchment shade bound in gold and black. A portrait in a dull gold frame hangs over the fireplace, and on the mantel shelf is a pair of antique brass candelabras, one at each side of an interesting black and gold lacquered box.

The color scheme here is turquoise and black.

On the opposite side of the room, facing the fireplace, is the sofa with down filled cushions, shown in today's illustration. This is upholstered in deep, dull turquoise silk rep, piped with copper color. Small tables, one at each end of the sofa, hold a pair of lamps in ivory crackled pottery, with perfectly plain parchment shades stained a pale green. Black glass smoking necessities and a black glass bowl filled with flowers are likewise placed on these tables.

Over the sofa is a set of hanging shelves in fine mahogany, holding a few books and colorful bits of pottery. An additional arm chair, standing in one corner near the sofa, is upholstered in black satin damask.

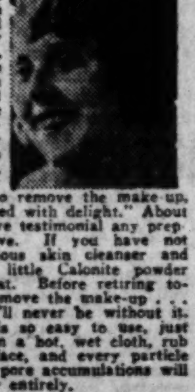
Completing the furnishings of this room is a mahogany secretary desk, accompanied by a Chippendale chair with a copper colored damask seat. A fine oriental rug, in soft, deep colors, gives the final note of luxury.

Since the entrance hall separates the dining room from the living room, an entirely different color scheme has been used here. Walls are paneled and painted gold color, which lends a sunny aspect to the room in spite of its northern exposure. Glass curtains of gold colored silk gauze further the effect of sunlight. Draperies of deep, ivory taffeta, hanging to the floor, are caught together at the top and tied back with gold cords.

Above the dark mahogany buffet which stands at one end of the room is a mirror with a decorative floral painting at each end. An amethyst glass bowl and candlesticks with ivory candles are placed on top of the buffet. The serving and dining tables and chairs are of dark mahogany. Old ivory leather upholstery on the chair seats contrasts pleasingly with the dark wood. To give depth to the room the floor is covered with a plum colored rug.

Last of the rooms on the first floor of this delightful little home is the kitchen, which is gayly decorated. The color scheme is yellow, orange, and green, with accents of black.

Makes Your Face



"Just Tingle with Delight." Thousands have used Calonite powder . . . still use it regularly every night . . . to cleanse the pores of the skin of the dust and dirt and even the make-up accumulated during the day. One famous actress said. "After using your Calonite powder to remove the make-up, my face just tingled with delight." About the most expressive testimonial any preparation could have. If you have not tried this marvelous skin cleanser and freshener, get a little Calonite powder from your druggist. Before retiring tonight use it to remove the make-up . . . we'll venture you'll never be without it. Calonite powder is so easy to use, just sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub gently over the face, and every particle of dust, dirt and pore accumulations will be dissolved away entirely.

This new form of Calonite is put up for scalp and hair troubles.
If you have dandruff, dry or itching scalp, try liquid Calonite tonight. You will be delighted with the wonderful improvement in your scalp and hair.

DREAMS COME TRUE?

Have you ever had a dream which later came true? If you care to see it in print address "Dreams," Chicago Tribune.

Foretold Good Fortune.

I dreamed that my best friend was riding in a roadster with his old sweetheart and that I was in the rumble seat with some other dear friend.

The next morning I was going to tell him all about it, but his family told me he had entered a marathon contest. When I went to see him after he'd been dancing around for a month, he was as happy and strong as ever. He told me his old sweetheart came to see him and told him that if he won she would accept him.

Talk about dreams! He did win—cash and that same roadster I have been dreaming about. And as we were riding in the dream, so we rode on his honeymoon to a summer resort.

Lucky Dream Saved Money.

My mother and I had bought a small house on the outskirts of town. When we tried the furnace we found that it smoked terribly. We concluded we had been cheated on the heating plant and would have to put in a new firepot, at least, which meant an additional expense that we could hardly stand. It worried mother so, and she talked about it constantly.

One night I dreamed I started the furnace only to have it go out time after time. Finally I decided to take everything out of the firepot and clean out the ashes. I did so, and rekindled the fire. It roared up the chimney and belched from the front door in a spurt of flame that woke me up!

I told my mother the dream and we both went down to clean out the furnace. In the grate we found about fifty pounds of wet rags and newspapers that had been used by the charwomen to clean floors and woodwork and windows before we moved in! There was nothing the matter with the furnace. It works fine!

Acted Out Her Dream.

I had a vivid dream one night of a bad auto accident. I told my family of it early the next morning and mentioned it several times during the day.

Late that afternoon we heard of an accident near our town. We drove hurriedly to the scene of the accident, and I began to pick up parts of the wrecked car strewn on the ground. Not until I had picked up a piece of paper and had begun reading it did I again think of the dream.

I quickly threw the paper away, looked up and saw the same three men standing beside me whom I had seen in my dream as I had thrown a crushed paper away. Chills ran through me as I recalled vividly that every move I had made in my dream was being acted out. Mrs. G. E. B.

Beginning of Good Luck.

For three nights I dreamed of coming home from school down a street I never used. I passed a small real estate office, noticing a beautiful automobile standing at the curb. As I turned my head to see the owner in the office I saw a man run out towards me.

A week later I came down that street to deliver a book. When I got in front of the real estate office it happened as in my dream. The owner of the car said, "Aren't you Mr. —'s son? Where is he now?"

I told him my father was dead and he said, "I'm sorry. Here's $25 I owed him and my card. Come to see me."

I didn't know which was the dream.

STOP BOBBY'S COUGH

Before It Weakens Him to the Danger Point!

Never take a child's cough lightly. You can't tell where it will end. Many a serious sickness has started with "just a cough." For a cough is not only distressing, but weakening as well. At the first sign of a cough or chest soreness in old or young, always give good, dependable old "Piso's for Coughs."

Piso's does the five things necessary to stop a cough and repair the damage done. It checks the cough spasm, loosens the mucus, opens the air passages, soothes the inflamed tissues, and at the same time has a tonic value that tends to build up what the cough tears down. Only Piso's supplies these five vital effects and it contains no opiates and does not upset the stomach. Safe to give even to babies. All druggists sell Piso's in 35c and 60c sizes. Be sure you ask for "Piso's for Coughs."

The SIGN of the NARCISSUS

by HENRY C
ROWLAND

The Story So Far:

Narcissa Vandersee's father is a wealthy contractor with an estate at Peekskill on the Hudson. She notices a plane flying twice daily over the estate, and learns that the pilot is John Flint, Princeton graduate, who runs an air taxi for Tammany politicians between Manhattan and Albany. She has the gardener design an enormous narcissus. The pilot sees the flower and comes down to pay his respects. He tells Narcissa he is planning to start a tourist air service between Miami and the Bahamas. On her twenty-first birthday Narcissa takes her father's old yacht for a trip to the Bahamas, with Capt. Hank Broek as navigator and Greta Tietjens as companion-secretary. There she makes a garden that from the air looks like a huge bouquet. In flying over Narcissa's island John is disturbed by seeing no sign of her or her party. Fearful of tragedy, he plans a scouting trip.

INSTALLMENT V.

To the Rescue.

NARCISSA VANDERSEE was by nature of those who look always ahead to the next mark in sight, like a trained mountain climber. The real artist is apt to have that sort of "Excelsior" motif, admirable but not always sensible. When she had reached her mark then Narcissa might look back with a certain sense of satisfaction at the distance traversed.

Capt. Christopher Columbus was probably this sort of person. The chances are he would never have looked astern but for the fact that he was a sailor and would be keeping a weather eye on a possible squall to overhaul him to the cost of his gear.

Narcissa also was a sailor by experience and training, but on this day she was pure dreamer. And her dream was not entirely of her accomplished task. When she set out in the outboard dinghy she was thinking more of John Flint and what his impression of her work might be as seen from the sky. At any other time she would have been aware that the brightness of the day had a false note like the smile of a false friend, and she would have remembered that she was not in her home waters. Though in all facts squalls strike down quickly enough over the Catskills on to the Hudson. That is why the Dutch word for "devil" enters so frequently into certain localities of that stately but temperamental stream.

But here there were no mountains behind which a black squall can ambush itself. Sometimes these seem to generate spontaneously, like some explosive compound, and it was not until she was nearer to her objective than to Miraflores cay that Narcissa looked around and became immediately aware that something was going to break and very soon.

The horizon astern had darkened and there were ominous outlines through the thickened haze which at first had been a little dark ahead, but not forbiddingly so. It now appeared to have shifted its focus of menace.

Narcissa was sailor enough to see that she was in for it. It seemed to her also that her chance of shelter was much better if she made for the island ahead than if she were to put about and try for Miraflores cay.

It was impossible to say how long this threatened squall might last. She might even be obliged to spend the night on the little desert island. But this was preferable to falling between two stones, as one might say.

She could always land and upship the portable engine and she might be able to haul the light cedar dinghy up clear of the wash.

Therefore she held on, but had not gone much further when a fickle puff of wind struck down and ruffled the surface of the water in such a way that at the angle in which the light struck it she could not see the bottom. It was trying to look through a window pane into a room that is sufficiently well lighted, but where the reflection in the glass is such as to baffle one's vision. She knew from its color tone that the water was shoaling, but her first knowledge that it was thickly studded with coral heads was when there came a sickening crunch and clatter and jar, and the engine stopped, stalled by the jamming of the bent propeller.

Even worse, the water began to pour in through the started seams. Narcissa might have managed to plug a hole knocked in the bottom of the boat, but the shorn rivet heads and those that had been split out of the margin of its lap-strake construction had opened it fore and aft, so that there was nothing she could do.

Narcissa was by this time within a mile and a half of the island and if the trend of the wind had been directly on it she might have clung to the swamped dinghy and been washed in close enough to get ashore.

But the squall that presently bore down upon her was from a quarter that drove her clear of it and she soon found that she must decide between two courses of action, neither of them holding out much hope of salvation. She would have to abandon the dinghy and swim for the island or else cling to it on the off chance of being picked up.

The Squall Breaks

The boat was filling rapidly. To give it greater buoyancy Narcissa released the clamps on the stern transom and was about to let the engine go overboard when it occurred to her it might serve as an anchor. The little grapnel with which the dinghy was equipped had been lost some days before. There was a length of light line, nine thread manilla. Narcissa secured this to the engine, then let the dead weight of metal go to the bottom which was not deep, two fathoms, perhaps.

Thus anchored, the swamped dinghy swung head to wind as the squall broke with the violence of such. But Narcissa hoped that it would not last long and that she would be able to cling there until the water quieted enough for her to swim to the island, which was at a distance well within her scope. Such shoal waters lash into foam very quickly, especially if the tide current turns against the wind.

Then suddenly Narcissa discovered that the little shallop to which she clung had gone adrift and was being carried out past the end of the islet. The light anchor line had been cut over the rim of a coral ledge. The boat itself was beamy, with timber enough in its construction to float a person awash, like any other mass of wooden wreckage, and it was equipped with kapok cushions such as are accepted by the inspector of small power craft traffic as life preservers. Narcissa secured two of these to herself in such a way as to serve for her support. The immediate danger to a person less accustomed to surf and other bathing would have been the flying spray flung over the boat awash, but Narcissa found no difficulty in getting her breath. Her one hope was that the squall might blow over before she was carried too far away to reach the island.

Its force did abate presently, and the air cleared enough for her to see for some considerable distance. But evidently she was in a strong tideway, with the trend of the wind, for she caught a glimpse of a low hummock and the vague outline of the island's end before it dissolved into the thick surface haze of wind and spindrift.

Even Narcissa's high courage was forced to accept the fact that her situation was desperate to the point of hopelessness. Even if she were to abandon the swamped boat and buoyed by the cushions should try to make the island, the effort must prove futile. Her only chance, she realized, was to cling to the boat as long as her strength lasted, in the remote possibility that some passing craft, fisherman or sponger might providentially come close enough to sight her.

The wind dropped as suddenly as it had rushed down, and the air cleared. The waves, from cresting spitefully, began to bob about in aimless fashion, then to flatten, as happens in such shoal water. The sun, fiery and dazzling, sent crimson rays almost horizontal across the water to brush its surface with brilliant color. A huge cloud that was snowy and rose and saffron formed itself in the head of a great caricature like a mocking ogre with a hooked nose.

Narcissa had been blessed with a religious sense that was of a simple childish sort, and this now supported her. She had need of it to keep from utter despair, adrift in that wide and empty expanse of soothing colorful sea. In a stricken way she was even conscious of its serene regardless beauty, and it was not cold. A strange way to perish, she reflected, with none of those physical torments the mind associates with the bodily dissolution of such a fate. It was like being melted gently into the infinite, with no pangs other than the numb fatigue that was now stealing over her. She lay stretched out in the tepid water within the confines of the boat, like a tired person in a bath. When the sun should have set she might compose her mind for sleep.

She thought of John Flint and of her father, then of Capt. Broek. For some reason the anguish of that hearty sailor was the most distressing reflection. To Flint her loss would be like the conclusion of a bright dream, and to her father it would be the inevitable result of a self-engendered folly that he had so long deplored, and to avert which his arguments had been unavailing. But to Capt. Hank it would be like a breach of loving vigilance that had extended over a lifetime guardianship. His self-reproach would be of that heartrending sort that disregards the fact that one is actually not to blame.

Exhausted

The red sun slipped down until its lower rim kissed the clean edge of the horizon, a phenomenon less frequent than landsfolk suppose. Nearly always there is a hidden bank of vapor close to the sea's edge. Narcissa watched it dreamily, wondering if she were destined to see that bright orb again. She had only a confused idea of how long a healthy person in her position might be expected to survive. It seemed to her now that she had been very tired for a long time, and that after all physical death was no more than a completion of fatigue.

Then, as the sun sank lower, she discovered what appeared to be a flaw in its ruddy hemisphere. A dark fleck was visible against it. Narcissa roused herself to examine this curious blemish more attentively. She had never heard of the sun's presenting a spot of this sort. The only rational cause must be an intervening body, something between the sinking disk and herself.

It seemed to her then that even as the sun slid lower this singular blot on its brightness increased in size, and that it moved a little to the side. The actual horizon of a swimmer is very close, scarcely more than a mile away, so that the object Narcissa now studied was not far from her. She saw then that it was a boat, and a moment later that it was heading directly for her. She could distinguish the white bow-wave and the oily undulation at either side.

Narcissa had at no period of her misadventure been conscious of any great anguish of despair. It is probable that her high heart had merely accepted the dispensation of what sane reason warned her must be the inevitable end of her earthly tenantry, and she had composed her soul for that event. This would seem to speak poorly for Narcissa's faith in prayer, but actually she had prayed for courage rather than for rescue, and certainly that prayer had been answered.

So that it may have been as much the reaction of wonder as the shock of this snatching from a briny tomb that now overwhelmed her, and she was physically exhausted from the struggle for breath while the squall lasted. As the power boat sped up close aboard, then went into neutral, reversed and stopped Narcissa's bright fair head sank down on a cushion that lay on a thwart. Consciousness left her. She might actually have drowned but for the swift action of a young man. He grabbed up a line and splashed overboard like a retriever, heeled the dingey and slid Narcissa out of it, hauled taut his line and caught a turn under her arms so that her face was clear of the water. Hand over hand he hauled himself aboard, then reached down and managed by tremendous effort to drag the unconscious girl up over the side.

The sun was quenched in the sea. A little night breeze, cool to the border of chill, fanned out of the north. A star or two was pricked out against the dying blue of the sky. Narcissa's rescuer was oblivious to these requiem services of the day. His face was flooded with awe and wonder as it hung over Narcissa's colorless blonde beauty. Even in this state of suspended animation her features had a soft allure that was more like the restful relaxation of light sleep. The long, delicate eyebrows, much darker than her hair; the gentle upward childish curve of her nose and wide, serene mouth saved her loveliness from being cold, and from the toy prettiness of the manikin or doll.

The instrument selected to catch and hold her as she was slipping off to a plane of still one more dimension, the fourth, continued to stare at her with a sort of disbelief. His senses had tricked him before, though recently they had become reliable. But now it seemed for a moment as if his doubts had returned. One could scarcely wonder that a voluntary hermit who had gone into a sea wilderness and remained there to fight a solitary battle for his sanity should now doubt it on thus finding a lovely girl floating like a water lily on the surface of that desolation.

He decided then suddenly that this was not glamour, but actuality, and set about to bring back life and warmth and consciousness, in which he was partially successful. Narcissa gave symptoms of restored vitality, but she did not rouse to full consciousness.

The Vigil Wears On

In a sense of security that was not detailed she passed with no more rousing than to change her position a little from the collapse of exhaustion to a gentle natural sleep. Nature had required some such extreme measure as Narcissa had been suffering from, a sort of nervous insomnia, as her work neared completion. She had thought too much about it and there had not been enough other distraction on the narrow confines of the little island. The spasm of dread lest it all prove a farce, a silly wasted effort that had assailed her on landing that first evening, to be dispelled by the arrival of John Flint, had returned again. But now it was worse, because she had worked so hard and long, and it was on that account that she had felt herself unable to endure the suspense of uncertainty about the success of her effort for another day.

Sensing finally that she was out of danger of collapse, her rescuer dragged a mattress from one of the two berths in the cabin of his little craft and, placing it on the flooring of the cockpit, laid Narcissa on it without completely rousing her, then spread a blanket over her. He started the engine, a smoothly running modern one, glanced at the compass and proceeded on his course.

Curiously enough, it seemed to him now that his own physical and mental disturbance was no longer of the least importance. He had previously lived in dread of the result of over-fatigue on his nervous equilibrium. The necessity of the all night run had seemed the lesser of two evils, that of breaking the routine or regimen that had recently made it possible for him to rest normally without artificial aid and the confusion of mind engendered by human activities close about him. Weeks before he had made his choice between what promised to be a long course in a psychopathic institution and the conduct of his own kill or cure treatment by solitude and what must be to a very ill man hardship.

At first it had seemed about an even chance, and then little by little he had felt that he was gaining ground, working slowly to windward, back to health and sanity. Then with the return of the ability to sleep, even for brief intervals, his intellectual faculties began to clear, he found himself able to think more collectedly and logically. The dreadful crises of mental incoherence with their terrors of utter dissolution, more fearful than mere physical death, became less frequent.

So now the long night's vigil, of which he had been afraid, wore on, and no fears made themselves manifest. It seemed as if the close presence of this sleeping girl held them in abeyance, as if some aura that enveloped her included himself in its atmosphere of peace and fended off the devils that had previously invaded him as the result of overwork and worry and strong drink. It seemed to this previously demon ridden young man with the face of a dark angel and the false physical energy of a madman that he had plucked some sort of benign solace from the sea. It would not have surprised him to see a rosy nimbus or pale halo shimmering about the lovely person of this sleeping girl.

Narcissa scarcely stirred through the night. Her breathing was soft and regular. The sea was absolutely still, a dark mirror on which burned the bright lanterns of the low stars. The man at the wheel of the boat, that was a cabined sloop auxiliary of a little over thirty feet, scarcely noticed the flight of time. His course was due north, and to save his eyes the fatigue of staring at the binnacle he kept Polaris, low in the sky, occulted by the mast. It peeped out at him on either side, a game of peekaboo. The dawn, he felt assured, would make visible his destination.

The stars' reflections faded in the sea, then paled in the sky. First the zenith lightened, and then a broad zone of delicate rose widened over the horizon in the east. This became rapidly brighter. The North star had disappeared on its small orbit. Narcissa stirred, sighed, then awoke and sat suddenly upright. She rubbed her eyes, brushed back her hair, then stared bewildered at the young man who was smiling at her from the wheel.

"What—where—how did I get here?" she asked confusedly.

"Your boat was swamped in the squall. I picked you up."

She stared at him puzzled. "I don't seem to remember . . . who are you? Where did you come from?"

"My name is Langdon Stelle. I'm a musical composer, or was trying to be one. Orchestration, mostly."

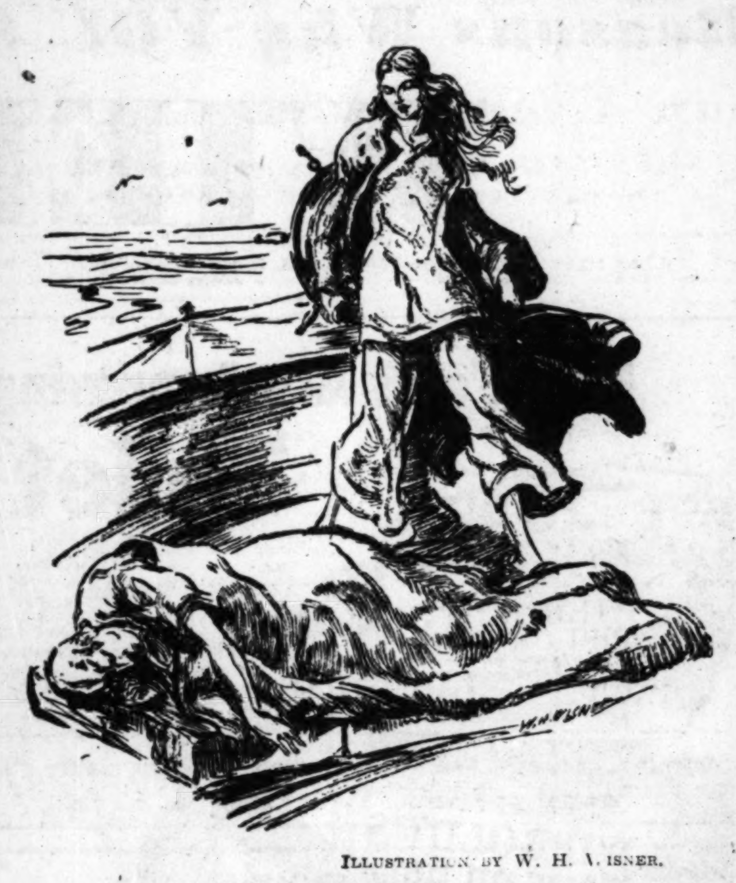

ILLUSTRATION BY W. H. WISNER.

She stood for a moment looking down at him.

"But what are you doing here?"

"I had a breakdown, a nervous crash. Domestic worry and overwork . . . and other things. They wanted to lock me up in a retreat, but I slipped away and came down here and got a boat and made a camp on an island. Tell me about yourself."

"I'm Narcissa Vandersee . . ." She saw that the name was unknown to him. "I went out yesterday in our yacht's dingey and got blown away and swamped in that squall . . . what's the matter . . . are you ill?" Her voice rose in alarm. His face had gone suddenly white, ghastly under its tan. His eyes looked vague and he lurched forward.

"Just . . . a little faint. Tired . . . perhaps . . . not quite strong yet." He pitched against the wheel. The fatigue of his long night's vigil had suddenly asserted itself.

Narcissa sprang up. "Lie down here. I'll steer the boat." She took hold of his arm and noticed for the first time that his clothes hung on him soddenly.

"No wonder you're all in. Why didn't you change after that squall?"

"It wasn't the squall," he mumbled. "Had to go overboard to get a line round you so as to haul you out."

"You did?" She stared at him. "And you've been steering the boat all night in your wet clothes? Why didn't you change?"

He answered feebly. "I didn't notice. I didn't think about it. That's been part of my trouble. I forget to do things."

Dark Shadows

She looked at him keenly, noticed the dark shadows under his eyes and the pinched expression of his lean face.

"When did you last eat?"

"I don't remember. Sometimes I forget about that, too."

His whole body seemed to wilt. Narcissa dragged him from the wheel and lowered him on to the long pallet on the deck of the cockpit from which she had just risen. A sort of ague seized him, fine tremors that ran throughout his limbs and body. She drew the blanket over him.

"Have you any spirits aboard?"

"God forbid"—his teeth chattered—"that's one thing I've stuck to and, believe me, it has not been easy."

A tremendous pity swept through Narcissa. If he had explained in detail all that he had been through and suffered and the valiant struggle he had made she could scarcely have grasped his condition more thoroughly.

Here evidently was a young man who had been fighting a forlorn hope, who had determined to fight it out on that line if in the end he fell beaten unto death but not vanquished, destroyed in body but triumphant in soul.

She stood for a moment looking down at him, concentrating her thought. His eyes closed. She scarcely knew whether he was alive or dead. Then for the first time she became aware of her own attire, that she was not wearing the dress in which she had been swamped and struck adrift, but a soft woolen bathrobe over silk pajamas. She realized with a curious lack of any shock that her rescuer must have stripped off her soaking clothes and rubbed her body dry and drawn on to her fresh dry clothing of his own, and spread the light blanket over her.

Perhaps if it had not been that he was now himself in a state of collapse Narcissa might have felt a surge of dismay. The sort of consternation any girl might experience at the thought of such intimate first aid on being hauled out of the sea unconscious.

But for some reason, based probably on sheer common sense, this detail claimed no more than a brief passing thought. It struck on her with no more importance than might the idea of her physical disposition to the woman victim of an accident when awaking to find herself restored to strength and consciousness in the bed of a hospital.

And then immediately whatever revulsion of feeling might have lingered at being thus was swept aside by the obvious and immediate necessity at performing like service for her stricken rescuer. It was apparent to Narcissa that here was a thread of life drawn very tense and fine, and that prompt measures must be taken to prevent its snapping. In fact, she was not at all certain that it had not already parted.

She reached for the control, slowed the engine and threw it out of gear, then set immediately to work with the offices so urgently required to bring back, if possible, warmth and animation to her chilled, exhausted rescuer. Any reluctance she might have felt about these efforts was saved her by the fact that he was evidently unconscious of them.

He appeared presently to revive a little, enough to mutter feebly:

"The cay must be right ahead. I wanted to get there before the weather changed or it started to blow from ahead."

Returned Strength

The sun was rising, not clear, but brightly enough through the low stratum of thinned cloud. Narcissa looked ahead and saw a small pale blue excrescence on the horizon. It gave a first impression of being far away, but by this time her experience had taught her that a low cay could present such an appearance and yet be close, not more than a few miles distant. She stepped to the wheel controls, threw the engine in gear, and the boat resumed its way. Finding then that it ran fairly true so that she could leave the wheel for a few moments with no great alteration of course, Narcissa stepped into the cabin, where, amidst sundry boxes and baskets of stores, she found a crate of oranges. She quickly squeezed out a cup of orange juice and held it to the lips of the prostrate man. He drank thirstily.

Narcissa took a cup of it herself with a hardtack and resumed her steering. Strength was flowing rapidly back into her. The boat ran smoothly over the still sea. The little island ahead increased its height and dimensions with a speed that proved it to be not far distant. Glancing from time to time at what had now become her patient, Narcissa was relieved to see that the tremors had ceased and that his breathing was deep and even. He appeared to be asleep.

Her feeling for him had now become one of sympathy and liking, with a comradeship that was singularly free of any constraint. It was rather as if she had been required by circumstance to take care of a stricken boy. She had a sense of seniority, far greater experience, and capability. It was the first time in her life that Narcissa's deep latent fund of maternal instinct had ever been requisitioned. Her father's tremendous self-sufficiency had never roused it, nor was there anything to stir it so far in the absolute assurance of John Flint.

But here now destiny appeared to have thrown her in close intimate contact with one of those natures in which manliness and courage and a chivalric unselfishness are combined with a sort of childish helplessness. Narcissa felt intuitively that as long as this association lasted she herself would be the dominating personality and that this young musician would be not only content but glad to do her bidding. She sensed a temperament that was willful, yet yielding and docile to direction. His nature was the sort that might be violent to the point of fury if outraged or crossed. And yet Narcissa knew that so far as concerned herself there was absolutely nothing to fear from him.

She had already noticed that Langdon Stelle had rather more than mere culture and delicacy. There was an elegance about him, as if he'd grown up in luxury and a sheltered atmosphere. This cruising boat of his appeared to be a local one that he'd bought for practical use. But Narcissa's glimpse into the cabin had shown her some valises of costly make and sporting accessories purchased evidently in expensive sports shops, and his clothes were from the best tailors. The dressing gown he had put on her was a very light, fine vicuna with a monogram on the breast pocket.

Here, Narcissa surmised, was a boy of birth, and breeding, and wealth who had studied music seriously, too seriously, perhaps, and then had some sort of a family quarrel and got to drinking and brooding, far worse than drinking and carousing, and finally suffered a nervous crash of a very serious sort. His family probably wanted to commit him to a sanatorium, but he had evaded this and slipped down here to the Bahamas, where, no doubt, he had cruised at some time or other, and arranged himself some sort of camp where he had decided to weather out his brain storm or go under. He would probably have a bungalow and two or three servants, Bahama blacks or caymen of some sort. She could not conceive a young man of this evidently helpless, sheltered kind getting on at all without attendants. The fact of his sailing alone to wherever he had been after supplies was not much of an achievement for a young yachtsman of any experience.

Kill or Cure

As they now approached the cay ahead Narcissa saw that it was even smaller and lower and in all ways less habitable than her own. On the south side that presented were low cliffs of coral and lava mixture that seemed to be honeycombed with caves and fissures, and at their foot a stretch of white gleaming beach. Back from them ran a plateau that sloped up gently, a dull green of rank semi-tropic growth. There were some small white creatures moving about, sheep or goats, Narcissa thought, and as they drew in closer the shrill crowing of a rooster reached her, as if in welcome. She could see no building of any sort nor even a landing place, but as she drew nearer, cautiously slowing down, she discovered what appeared to be a sort of natural slip eroded in the cliffs that pierced them at an angle and not much wider than the boat itself. If it were deep enough and turned a little it should be an ideal shelter.

The boat was equipped with a Klaxon horn and Narcissa sounded this vigorously. Nobody appeared, but Langdon Stelle roused and raised his head, staring at her bewildered:

"Why that?" he asked petulantly.

"To wake up your servants."

"Servants? I've got no servants."

Narcissa stared at him in dismay and disbelief. "You don't mean to say you are living on this patch of rock and scrub entirely alone?"

He nodded. "Yes. I'm just a squatter. I've been living here a hermit for three months."

Narcissa felt suddenly weak. She had hoped to land him, see him properly tended, then get somebody to take her back to Miraflores cay. There were some rolled charts slung from the carlines of the cabin roof, and she was sailor enough to be able to lay a course back to Miraflores cay.

She said sharply: "Whatever possessed you in your state of health to do a thing like this?"

"It was a case of kill or cure. I didn't care much which, when my wife left me."

Narcissa stopped the boat and let it drift. The water was shoaling rapidly. "Your wife?"

"Yes. We'd been married a little over a year. When I got all adrift she couldn't stand it."

"How adrift?"

"O, sick and nervous and bordering on D. T.s. They said I was crazy and wanted to lock me up. I beat it down here. They don't know where I am."

"It's a wonder you are still alive."

"I couldn't sleep. And noise and people drove me wild. I wanted solitude."

"Has it helped you until now?" she asked.

"O, yes. I'm better. This Robinson Crusoe stuff was the right sort of cure. But I'm not yet very strong and this trip has been too much for me."

"Where do you keep the boat?" Narcissa asked. There seemed nothing now but to make the best of it for the moment until he should be strong enough to sail back with her to Miraflores cay, where she might keep him for a while until his cure was more complete.

He managed with some effort to scramble up and back to the wheel. "There's a little cove just big enough for her to lie, and barely enough water to float her. I'll take her in."

Narcissa abandoned the wheel reluctantly. It seemed to her that he was very weak and giddy and might bungle it. But he appeared to rally with an effort and started ahead.

Bitter Humor

A long low ground swell was lifting the boat, then lowering it dangerously close to the coral studded bottom. And then precisely what Narcissa feared actually occurred. It was necessary to swing sharply at the entrance, and Langdon was a little too slow in executing this maneuver. The boat sheered in close to a jutting reef, got out of the narrow channel. Before Narcissa could herself take any action a swell raised them, then let them suddenly down. There came from underneath a rending crunch. The boat's way checked suddenly. Her nearly flat bottom had come down on a sharp spike of the lava coral rock and it had, as Narcissa knew immediately, pierced the planking.

"There," she cried. "Now you have done it."

The next swell lifted them, but failed to carry them clear. Again the boat came down with another rending, sickening crunch. Langdon reversed his engine and gave it full gas. The propeller churned vigorously, but before the boat could back away she struck again.

They slewed in closer against the serrated reef from which the backwash splashed up over the deck. Narcissa looked below. The water was already over the cabin flooring. It was plain enough to her that they were hopelessly wrecked. In no danger, as at the most the boat could not sink for more than a couple of feet before fetching up on the ragged bottom.

But as a means of escape from that wretched little cay, it seemed to be done for.

Langdon said wearily: "Well, I have made a mess of it. I should have anchored off."

The boat was filling fast, merely wallowing and crunching, increasing the damage, though this no longer mattered. Narcissa began to haul the stores out into the cockpit and then to pile them up onto the deck. There was a flat bottomed skiff lying capsized and secured by a lashing on one side. It was lightly built and Narcissa managed with no great difficulty to clear it and flop it over into the water.

"This boat is done for," she said. "The best we can do is to save the stuff. First I'll get you ashore."

Langdon appeared to have wilted again and his shivering returned. Narcissa got him into the skiff, then shoved off and poled into the narrow opening which expanded into a tiny cove with a sandy floor. She helped him ashore when he stretched out on the sand. There came a sort of bleating from overhead and Narcissa looked up to see a white nanny goat looking down at them while a young kid gamboled about her.

"Does anybody ever come h

He shook his head. "There's

There Are Ideals

By Adela Rogers St. Johns

life, Randy Westover was overcome with shame. What was an ideal, anyway? Golden hair and a lovely body? Something physical; something for the eyes alone?

This Ellen was a girl who felt and understood, who loved things and people, whose eyes were hungry for love and beauty. A girl who wanted sons who would some day learn to play polo, and who would bear those sons with courage and joy. A girl who would make such a home as Willie had made for his father and live in it every day, in good times and bad, with hand and heart ready to serve. It occurred to him that Willie could never have been beautiful.

All the time he had been yearning after some cold and distant splendor it had been Ellen who warmed and comforted him.

Looking down at her he felt suddenly that she was too beautiful, too precious, to leave.

"Ellen——" he said.

"Are you going away now?" she said.

Randy shook his head. "No," he said. "I think I'll stick around a while. And when I go I'm going to take you with me."

Ellen Williams gave him a steady look. "That's just because you're hurt—and disappointed," she said.

Talking Over 'Scarlet Sister Mary' Reviews

Ethel Barrymore's Fate in Blackface Role.

By Charles Collins.

THE most interesting play of a week that contained four premières was the one I didn't see. This column of Sabbath meditation would be dedicated to it but for the fact that I have no first hand knowledge of the subject. Overthrown for a few days and nights by a sharp onslaught of that horseman of the Apocalypse familiarly known as Flu, down but not out, I missed Ethel Barrymore in "Scarlet Sister Mary"; and although people have been telling me that I was lucky, I yearn for a glimpse of this much discussed opus. I am curious to know why dramatic critics fly into red rages over it.

Miss Barrymore's adventure into Negro character appears to be the chief historical event of the theatrical season, so far as public clamor is concerned. "Scarlet Sister Mary" is the most written about play of the year—written about with groans, jeers and petulant expressions of total discontent; and Si-Maye, its heroine, as acted by Miss Barrymore, has become famous as a martyr. The journalists of the theater, in New York and Chicago, have dropped their stilettos and taken up bludgeons in order to deal with the topic. To hear the critics roaring and thundering and gnashing their teeth, one would think that another "Abie's Irish Rose" had come into the world.

All of which is doubtless painful to Miss Barrymore's artistic soul, but is beneficial to her box office. All of which persuades me that no matter how bad a play "Scarlet Sister Mary" may be, it is the most celebrated affair of the season. It interests me so much, in contemplation, that I might do well to continue my lack of familiarity with the facts in the case. Unseen, "Scarlet Sister Mary" enchants me. It assumes a mythological value in my imagination; it is the Medusa's head that has aroused my colleagues into fantastic gibberings.

Not Authentic!

The first count in the withering indictment of "Scarlet Sister Mary" is that its Negroes are acted by white folks. This is regarded as treason to the cause of Negrophilia in literature and the drama. American intellectuals and esthetes have become extremely uppity, not to say snooty, on this point ever since the black wave of Africana swept over the country. That is to say, since "Shuffle Along," since the discovery of Harlem, the rise of Van Vechtenism, the popularity of black and tan cabarets, and the staging of "The Green Pastures." We demand complete authenticity nowadays in all representations of Negro life and manners.

And so Ethel Barrymore in "blackface" is Barrymore out of her element; and Ethel Barrymore as Si-Maye of Julia Peterkin's story is a case of defiant disregard of the national hobby. The theatrical reviewers seem to be asking in chorus: How dare she when there are so many real colored gals hoping to become actresses?

This point of view has been tossed about so freely that I feel like giving it a battle. In the first place, I will offer a reward—my large collection of pot-bellied African idols and images, highly esteemed as household decorations by modernists—to any one who will name a colored actress competent to play the heroine of "Scarlet Sister Mary." With this gesture I enter the lists of controversy: Don Quixote comes riding boldly to the defense of Lady Ethel.

Concerning Gullahs.

And then, since we have become so pernickety and demanding about our Negro acting, let me point out the fact that the characters in "Scarlet Sister Mary" are a special breed or species of American Negroes called Gullahs. They are definitely race marked; their dialect and ways are peculiar to themselves. So if you insist that "Scarlet Sister Mary" should have an all Negro cast, I will say:

"Very well, since you are so particular; but let the players be of racial background, neither Guinea coast darkies, nor Dinkas, nor Dahomeyans, nor Nigerians nor Sengalese; but pure South Carolina tidewater Gullahs. Please go out and find me a cast of genuine Gullah players for 'Scarlet Sister Mary.' And if you can't tell a Gullah from a Dinka or from any other Afro-American, be good enough to stop picking on Ethel."

It has been said, resentfully, that Miss Barrymore's dialect as Si-Maye sounds like Choctaw. But I will offer another handsome prize—my portfolio of fifty-seven varieties of the words to "Frankie and Johnnie"—to any dramatic critic who can speak three words of Choctaw in order to illustrate the meaning of this comparison. Furthermore, I will submit a specimen of the Gullah dialect for use in this controversy. Here goes; get a load of this:

"No shu shu! Ef 'e duh dey, de dee duh no dey-dey; ef e' no dey, de dee duh dey-dey."

Which means, "No, sir, if you go there, the deer will not go there; if you don't go, the deer will."

And if Miss Barrymore sounds as unintelligible as that in "Scarlet Sister Mary," she is speaking authentic Gullah and the cohorts of Negrophilia should bow down and worship her as a great artist.

To the Rescue!

Here comes another champion galloping up to the rescue of Dame Barrymore in her hour of distress—none other than doughty Sir Heywood de Broun. Writing his "It Seems to Me" column in the New York Telegram with the Barrymore colors on his fountain pen, the peerless Broun, who slays a dragon every day before breakfast, says:

"For good or ill, Ethel Barrymore has very largely avoided the easiest way. I think she could play safe practically every season by finding herself a light, sophisticated and

Old Theater Tradition Is Found Foolish

'Play Must Go On' Results in Poor Performance.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—One of the sillier, though more stirring, traditions of the theater is that one which Leslie Howard shattered briefly in Chicago, a few weeks back, when he stepped before the curtain and told an audience gathered to see "Berkeley Square" that the show could not go on because he had a severe attack of laryngitis and could do neither himself nor the play justice.

Plays have been ruined and actors and audiences alike made miserable because of that tradition. And back of it, usually, you will find that the show must go on only because if it does not the management will be obliged to refund the price of the seats to the audience, or give an extra performance to make up for the one missed. Greed is as devastating an influence in the arts as it is in commerce.

One night last week I dropped in to see Joseph Schildkraut in a revival of Schnitzler's "Anatol," which I had missed at its opening. It was a dull, uninspired performance on Mr. Schildkraut's part, but this I attributed to the fact that he is not, in my estimation, an actor of either sufficient charm or buoyancy to give "Anatol" all it demands. Even the blessed John Barrymore was none too good at it, eighteen years ago, when he was at his youthful best.

Play Interrupted.

During the last scene Mr. Schildkraut, white and flurried, walked suddenly off the stage and gave an order. The curtains were lowered and, after a minute's lapse, a stage manager appeared ominously between them to announce that Mr. Schildkraut had suffered a heart attack and would we wait a moment?

Now, heart attacks may mean anything these days from fainting fits to sudden death. The silence was heavy, but not too heavy. "Heart attack?" whispered the man back of me. "He's been having those all evening." And his lady giggled at this reference to the recent stage activities of the amorous Viennese.

Another five minutes and the curtains were raised. The episode was taken up at the point of Mr. Schildkraut's entrance and successfully played out. After the performance, being still something of a newspaper man, I sought out the management to ask the cause of the star's collapse and how was the heart doing at present? Would it be necessary to bring the engagement to a close, or what were the chances of a postponement?

No Reason for Measures.

Bela Blau, an engaging young man, come recently into the production end of the theater, told me that Mr. Schildkraut had been suffering from laryngitis since the opening night; that stimulating medicines given him by his physician to keep him going had started his heart racing, and that it was the effect of this palpitation that had caused the momentary halting of the play.

Next day Mr. Schildkraut gave two performances, and is reported as fully recovered from the throat trouble, if not from the play, at this writing. The point I wish to make, referring to the tradition that the show must go on, is that there is no reasonable excuse why this particular show should have gone on that opening night.

The star was unfit to play. Walter

Public Shows an Increasing Enthusiasm for the Dance; World Notables Acclaimed

By Edward Moore.

IT has been coming along quietly, with less flourish of trumpets than such things usually take unto themselves, but there has been more dancing this year than for a dozen years back. Not since the lovely Pavlowa, never to be seen again, was in the height of her popularity in America have people turned with more interest to the art of bodily rhythms and the flexible pictures of posture and the dance.

This is a development that has been wished for, sometimes, greatly daring, even predicted by this department for a number of seasons back. Possibly it was the beckoning finger of hope rather than any more tangible evidence that caused the predictions, but at any rate they would seem to be on the way of realization.

Surveying the Program.

Just to look at what has already happened this season makes a pretty fair showing. There was La Argentina, no newcomer, to be sure, but filling halls time after time with her brilliant if somewhat limited means of expression. There were Kreutzberg and Georgi, eye filling wonders of technical development, and, better than this, pointing the way to what the German dance art is seeking to accomplish. There was Mary Wigman, who can claim with some justice to have originated, crystallized that same German art. There was Angna Enters with her American art, an art that includes as one of its elements deft, witty, and sometimes malicious caricature. And now comes Ruth Page, to appear at the Playhouse this afternoon in a program of her own and with the assistance of Jacques Cartier.

One can add a few more items to this. The ballet squad of the Civic Opera company did its bit a number of times during the season, not only with the accompanying ballets of a number of operas but with a dance scene of its own, Manuel de Falla's work which came out in the Gallicized version as "L'Amour Sorcier," which neither in title nor performance was quite what de Falla would seem to have had in mind, but which was, at least, an earnest and sincere attempt to present dancing to the Chicago public. And among the futures is listed "The Story of the Soldier," Igor Stravinsky's piece, which is to be done soon and in which Miss Page and Mr. Cartier will also take leading parts.

Career Began in London.

Concerning Mr. Cartier there is quite a bit of advance information. He began his career in one of the Cochran revues in London, "League of Notions," seven years ago. John Barrymore brought him to America to do the pantomime part of the Player King in "Hamlet." From there he moved to Ethel Barrymore's "Romeo and Juliet," filling in odd times with two Ziegfeld Follies, John Murray Anderson's Greenwich Village Follies, the Paris Folies Bergeres, and the like.

Then he took sixteen months off to study the dance art of the Hopi Indians in Arizona. He was adopted into the tribe, a fate which few having to do with American Indians seem to escape, and believe it or not, was given the name of "Eagle-who-skims-over-the-world." Since then he has indulged in musical shows in New York and pictures in Hollywood. He was born in Johannesburg, Transvaal, South Africa, April 20, 1904, and spent much of his early life in Japan, China, India, and South Africa.

Reports on Operatic Season.

The Chicago Civic Opera company has been adding up figures having to do with the season just closed at the Civic Opera house. Quite the most interesting of these came directly from Mr. Insull. His statement was to the effect that the financial returns of the performances here showed an average per performance of between $300 and $400 better than the final season at the Auditorium two years ago, which at that time was the best in the history of the company.

This is probably not a showing equal to that of the 1929-30 season, the first one in the new Civic Opera house, but it is interesting. It is worth more than all the wagging of wise heads over how the opera company was going down, or how the position of the opera house was fatal to the success of the company. I even heard it told, in all earnestness, how inside of two years there would be no opera company and how the Civic Opera company would become a movie house.

No one can safely predict the future in opera. But there is reason to believe that Mr. Insull has other ideas. For the present it will undoubtedly be wiser to accept his.

The rest of the company's figures have to do with singers and performances. There were fourteen new members of the company, there were four additions to the répertoire. Hamilton Forrest's "Camille" received its first performance on any stage. Ernest Moret's "Lorenzaccio" was given its first American hearing. The other two were German, Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" and Smetana's "The Bartered Bride."

Thirty-One Operas Given.

Thirty-one different operas were given during the season. Fifteen were in Italian, eight each in German and French. "Die Meistersinger" and "Camille" lead in number of performances, receiving five each. "The Jewels of the Madonna," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci," "A Masked Ball," "Otello," "Lohengrin," "Tannhaeuser," "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," and "La Navarraise" were given four each. The others trailed with three, two, and one.

The ballet, "L'Amour Sorcier," already mentioned, was presented three times. There was a gala performance of scenes from "Pagliacci," "Lucia di Lammermour," "L'Amore dei Tre Re," and "Die Meistersinger," and there were special Sunday night performances for industrial concerns of "Camille," "Cavaleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci," "The Jewels of the Madonna," "Manon," "Don Giovanni," and two of "Lohengrin." In all there were eighty-seven performances during a season of thirteen weeks.

Music Notes.

With two symphonies and three symphonic poems, Dr. Stock's program for Friday afternoon and Saturday evening would seem to deserve the term symphonic with some degree of accuracy. The symphonies will be Mozart's D major and Miaskowsky's tenth, the latter a first performance in Chicago. Up to date this young Russian, the most interesting of the soviet composers, has been given hearings of his fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth.

One of the symphonic poems will also be a novelty. It is Louis Gruenberg's "The Enchanted Isle," announced for performance earlier in the season but postponed. The others are Rabaud's "La Procession Nocturne," and Liszt's "Tasso; Lamento e Trionfo."

A feature of the Chicago and Waukegan Civic Choral society concert at the Studebaker this afternoon will be a performance of Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer's opera, "Frithiof," in concert form. Ambrose Wyrick will conduct, and Homer Lovejoy Overman, Harold W. Simmonds, Vernon

Critic Selects Half Dozen from Month's Films

Only One 4 Star Picture, but Lots of 3 Stars.

JANUARY'S SIX BEST PHOTOPLAYS.

OUTWARD BOUND [4 stars].
FREEDOM [3 stars].
THE CRIMINAL CODE [3 stars].
THE BLUE ANGEL [3 stars].
RESURRECTION [3 stars].
THE GANG BUSTER [3 stars].

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

I had an awfully hard time picking the above "six bests," and wished you were here to help me make the selection. January had only ONE four star photoplay, you see, and a perfect RAFT of three shiners. So I sighed and prayed and did the best I could!

"OUTWARD BOUND," we thought, "a strange and gripping picture, filmed from a play that made a sensation a number of years ago . . . produced by the man who directed it before and provides a thrilling experience for even the most accustomed movie fan . . . a fine piece of work, sensitively, imaginatively and sanely produced . . . beautifully acted by a perfectly chosen cast, headed by Leslie Howard . . . a rarely affecting masterpiece. . . ."

"FREEDOM" was a silent film—an historical pantomime, recording highlights in the life of Martin Luther, 16th century revolutionist against papal procedure of that era and founder of the Lutheran church. I thought the acting excellent, the direction "highly intelligent;" the photography fine, with plunges into the unusual; sets, scenery and costumes "interesting, atmospheric and probably authentic"; subtitles "informative and tactful," and the film as a whole "a thoughtfully executed piece of work—a screen biography presented with honesty and without bigotry."

"THE CRIMINAL CODE." Well, said the original review: "If you care to step out of the sunshine and into the lives of men who are known by numbers instead of names, and pay—rightfully or wrongfully—for alleged transgressions of the law, see 'The Criminal Code.' . . . a fine film of its kind, acted to the nines by an expert cast, headed by Walter Huston . . . this movie will go down in cinema history as a searching, bitterly informative chronicle of prisons, the men in them, and the men and laws that govern them. . . . The film is electric with tense moments. The observer feels from start to finish as might a visitor atop Vesuvius at a moment set for eruption."

"THE BLUE ANGEL" brought Emil Jannings back to our screens. Seddi—"Pollyana was right! There really IS always something to be glad about!" To quote further: "While the picture boasts of a fine supporting cast and is splendidly directed, it wouldn't be especially notable without the great Jannings, and, in a lesser degree, Marlene Dietrich. The film is prolix in places and much of the dialogue is guttural and unsatisfactory. But the faults of 'The Blue Angel' are not what you remember. . . . There's a tear behind every smile that Emil Jannings evokes. In his most grotesque moments—Pagliacci is pitiful . . . he has you by the throat from start till final exit. . . . Marlene Dietrich gives a canny performance as the heart wrecking heroine . . . all other types are adeptly portrayed and sets, sound, lighting and photography are to be commended."

"RESURRECTION" is Tolstoy's famous story done as an altalker—"and a splendid one . . . You're going to be surprised at the emotional power displayed by Lupe Velez, the little Mexican spitfire . . . John Boles as Prince Dimitri is magnificent. . . . Mr. Boles sings a couple of songs thrillingly. He and Miss Velez make a great team and they have had the best of direction. . . . The production is gorgeously costumed, finely staged and atmospheric. Supporting players were cannily chosen. Excellent photography and lines, poignant and well delivered, combine to make 'Resurrection' a film that should be witnessed by lovers of good cinema fare."

* *

"THE GANG BUSTER," with Jack Oakie was a LOT of fun! We exulted: "The boy friend has 'come back'—as we like him. . . . After the gone sensation, experienced after Mr. Oakie's last pictures, due to the fact that all

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

WILMETTE has discovered a child artist in its midst in the person of June Margaret Sorsen, seventh grader in Howard school. June Margaret's illustrations for children's books have been so well thought of that they are now on exhibit in the Wilmette Public library. There are some twelve of them there, done without aid from her elders, which are said by art critics to show a great future for June Margaret.

First signs of spring for our town this year are not the Oak Park robin, but the premature marble controversy started in Uptown Chicago. Marvin Cohen, 828 Lawrence avenue, and Ross Cardwell, 4459 Clifton avenue, kid cops of Stewart school, have already shown their proficiency with mibs, glassies and agates to such an extent that they can find no takers.

But Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Schram, 2300 Farwell avenue, have hurried to Santa Barbara, Cal., to escape the onslaught of spring in Chicago.

OLD Belgian brick, laid in design and handmade English tile, a carved oaken door, immortalizing the various trades and interior walls finished by the owner himself are chief claims to fame for the new residence of the A. C. Rindskopfs at 2744 Blackhawk road in Indian Hills estates. The house is all hand made in the old time manner and is a subject for several magazine articles. Mr. and Mrs. Rindskopfs and their two sons, Richard and Billy, will move into the new home shortly from 19 East Pearson street, Chicago.

We are glad to report that William R. Stiles, 816 Galt avenue, is recuperating from an ilness that took him to a Topeka hospital.

* *

A bronze plate bearing the names of President Earl E. Orner and the village trustees of Wilmette will be affixed to the new Wilmette garbage incinerator.

SEEKING the ancestors of the American Negroes is the purpose of an expedition to South Africa undertaken by Dr. Melville J. Herskovits, associate professor of anthropology at Northwestern university, and Mrs. Herskovits. The Herskovits sailed from New York last week, but before their departure were busy at the Evanston police station getting everything but finger printed to satisfy the requirements of the French government in one section of Africa they intend to visit.

If early influences mean anything La Verne Helen Leech, who has now reached the mature age of four months, ought to be startling Hollywood 17 or 18 years from now. La Verne's papa, Dr. Vernon M. Leech, 7511 Parkhurst avenue, has taken movies of the youngster since she was 5 weeks old.

* *

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Russell of 6433 North Washtenaw avenue left last week for two weeks on the Florida sands and in the Cuban oases. John will be remembered as the genial but dignified commander of the North Town Legion post.

ROBBED BY MAN HE'D BEFRIENDED FOR SIX WEEKS

Roy Costigan's faith in humanity, if not shattered, is sadly shaken these days. For the last six weeks Mr. Costigan had befriended a man known as Howard Richardson, giving him food and lodging. Then a few nights ago Donald Holmes, 16, who is a delivery boy in Mr. Costigan's meat market at 4246 Broadway, was held up at Malden and Sunnyside avenues while on his way to the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank and forced to hand over $216 and three $5 checks to an armed man whom he says he recognized as Richardson.

Howard Street Vigilantes to Fight Hoodlums

Demand Co-operation of Landlords.

HOWARD street now has its own Secret Six. At a meeting held Thursday night, a vigilantes committee of Rogers Park citizens was formed. How many members have been selected to serve on the committee, the identity of the members, and the meeting place were withheld from publication, and all future meetings are to be surrounded with similar mystery, according to THE TRIBUNE's informant.

This informant, who is one of the leaders of the movement, explained the plan in detail without divulging any names.

"The reason for our secrecy," Mr. X. explained, "is not so much to mystify as it is to avoid embarrassment for our members. If all the men and women who are founding this campaign were known, they would come in for a lot of good natured razzing from their friends and neighbors. This razzing, while meant harmlessly, would gradually get on their nerves, and might break up the drive."

Too Few Police: Harding.

The formation of the vigilantes' committee came as an aftermath to a recent public massmeeting held at the Gale school, after two gang shootings had taken place in Rogers Park. At the massmeeting, Capt. Patrick Harding of the Rogers Park police station told the citizens that only eight policemen were on duty in the district at the time of the latest shooting, in which more than 100 machine gun bullets were sprayed along Howard street near Clark street. He declared that he could have caught the invading gunmen had his force been manned to its full strength.

THE TRIBUNE's informant explained why no organization was made at the massmeeting.

"We were greatly disappointed at the attitude of some people who came to the meeting in order to exploit political aims," Mr. X. said. "We saw that we could get nowhere by going about this thing haphazard and letting just anybody in on it."

The committee intends to work in several ways. One of its first moves will be to agitate through official channels for more police protection. Another method of ridding Rogers Park of its hoodlums, which Mr. X. declared are few, will depend on information to be furnished by the private citizens of the district. Each member of the committee will make contacts with certain persons in each neighborhood of Rogers Park, so that the district will be dotted with informants to the committee. The informants will not know who else is on the committee, nor who the other informants are, but will report to the member who first approached them.

Pressure on Landlords.

Information thus gleaned will be sifted, and turned over to the police if it appears authentic. The police have promised full coöperation, according to Mr. X.

The vigilantes will not stop there, however. When informed of the presence of persons who are known to have gang connections, but are not wanted for any crime at present, the vigilantes will approach the landlord from whom the undesirable resident rents, and make known to him the wish of the Rogers Park community that such undesirables be got out of the district as soon as possible. Pressure of various kinds, which may legally be applied, will be brought to bear in enforcing the committee's wish whenever the landlord appears reluctant to get rid of his hoodlum tenants. The same process will be used in ridding the territory of beer flats or vice dens wherever such are known to exist.

"The citizens out here built up the territory for the use of the respectable element," asserted Mr. X. "We had not realized that the hoodlums were creeping in on us until these shootings occurred. Henceforth, it is to be war between us and the hoodlums. Our motto, as far as concerns them, will be 'Keep moving!'"

KIWANIS CLUBS TO HOLD SESSION IN LAKE FOREST

A divisional dinner and conference will be held by Division I of the Illinois-eastern Iowa district of Kiwanis International at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Deerpath inn, Lake Forest. The dinner is for all Kiwanis committee chairmen of clubs in the division.

Round table conferences will be led, as follows: Attendance, Edward Bell, Evanston; business standards, Ernest A. Peterson, Lake Forest; classification, William Doyle, Rogers Park; finance, Gilbert Buhmann, Lake View; good will and grievance, Gus Karrer, North Town; house, Gustave C. Callerman, North Central; interclub relations, William C. VOICE of the NORTH SIDE

North Side's Front Yard to Be Enlarged and Further Beautified

A study of recently published plans of the Lincoln park board and the Chicago plan commission for the future development of Lincoln park along the lake front from Ohio street to Devon avenue gives vision of esplanades, harbors, new double drives, and additional bathing beaches that will further enhance the shore line's beauty and usefulness. The north side is fortunate in having such a front yard, present and in prospect.

In her novel, "Years of Grace," Margaret Ayer Barnes spoke of Lake Shore drive as "A lovely street, edging that great, empty plain of blue and sparkling water. One of the loveliest city streets in the world. If it were in Paris, you would cross the ocean to see it. If it were in London, you would have heard of it all your life. If it were in Venice, the walls of the world's art galleries would be hung with oils and water color and etchings of its felicities of tint and line. But here, in Chicago, no one paid much attention to it. . . ."

Chicago does pay attention to it but, through familiarity, a people are somewhat inclined to take the charms of everyday experience for granted. Perhaps it is because the boasts of certain other sections of the country have become boring. Chicago, however, could dwell in appreciation of its inland seashore line to good advantage and still have a long distance to go before catching up with competitors in making the most of scenic beauties.

Nature has been kind to the north side. Fate and foresight have prevented faulty development from reaching a stage beyond rectification. And the north side is fortunate that, at this period, city planners are fully alert to the district's greater possibilities.

"EARNEST THINGS IN LIFE."

Olice Winter, principal of Lake View High school, has congratulated THE TRIBUNE for sponsoring home economics expositions, which, he explains, take account of "the earnest things in life."

In these expositions, band playing and applause have accompanied demonstrations in homemaking. Cheers have gone to the makers of gowns, the bakers of bread, and those who have shown ability in that industry which is said to consume almost 80 per cent of the family budget. Enthusiasm has been diverted to an arena where the show has taken the most practical of turns. Future historians, looking back to the winter of 1930-'31, perhaps will be justified in jotting down the episode as an expression of the times.

The fact that "the earnest things of life" are attracting attention, generally, and that this earnestness is being reflected in the schoolroom well may be considered an advantage by those who now happen to be in the classrooms. Except for fleeting spells, the school graduate is obliged to face a world in which achievement is the result of sincere effort. Stock market playing, faro games, hokus pokus, and twist of the wrist methods as an easy approach to life's prizes have their occasional vogue, but there has come a new realization that the laws of the universe remain unbending.

It is a mistaken idea, however, to suppose that the home economics expositions were without the thrills and humor that go with any competition. They gave ample proof that to be earnest life need not be dull. Sympathy goes to the generation preparing for life at a time when so many false notions of how to get along were having their inning.

MEETING THE NEIGHBORS.

In planning a community party to promote better acquaintance among the residents of the neighborhood, the West Rogers Park Improvement association promises one of those delightful adventures which do not require long travel.

It may be taken for granted that folk who move into the same neighborhood have tastes in common to begin with, and certainly those who reside side by side have mutual interests. Complaint is often made in the great city that the next door neighbor remains a stranger. This is less true in many Chicago communities than is generally supposed, but there is still room for the greater enrichment of lives through occasions given over to the idea of strengthening the bonds of friendship.

Those who neglect the opportunities for friendships close at hand, with the thought that they may be formed later on in life or in some other environment or when more leisure permits are apt to reach the end of the road with the realization that the time to have enjoyed fellowship was when it was offered along the way. "We should not," said Stevenson, "compliment a hungry man who should refuse a whole dinner and reserve all his appetite for the dessert, before he knew whether there was to be any dessert or not."

Chicago pioneers, in reminiscing of their old neighborhoods, dwell on the friendships and social get-togethers that are the gold of their memories. Modern neighborhoods may be busier than those the early settlers recall, but this need not cause a sacrifice of an acquaintance with those who make their home next door.

MILES BECOMES MINUTES.

The Chicago automobile show, in bringing out the progress made by the industry in the last 30 years, also provides a reminder for the suburban dweller of what has taken place in his status. Instead of speaking of the distance between his home and the loop in terms of long miles, now, due the motor car, he reckons in brief moments.

Once the subject of commiseration due to the price paid for his rural leanings, the suburbanite now finds himself in possession of both city and country advantages.

The old timer, however, is wise enough to credit something besides invention of the automobile for banishing his isolation. Cement, as well as cars, has been necessary to completely change the map of Chicagoland.

Kenilworth Club to Hold Valentine Dance Friday

A Valentine dinner dance will be held at the Kenilworth club next Friday evening. Mrs. Leon T. Ellis and Mrs. Harold O. Barnes will be hostesses. On Friday George B. Dryden and his son, Eastman, showed members of the club their African pictures.

EVERY WARD ON NORTH SIDE SEES BITTER CONTEST

Withdrawals Expected to Cut Down Field.

Eager to cut down the unwieldy field in the north side's aldermanic race, the leading candidates last week unloosed attacks against their opposition that brought about withdrawals of several and haled half of the others before the board of election commissioners to answer protests to their nominations.

The outcome probably will see widespread withdrawals by the time the deadline for quitting the race is reached on Wednesday, leaving only three or four candidates in most of the wards to carry on the final and perhaps furious three weeks of campaigning. However, due to the great number of protests before the election board, it is probable that some of the candidates will go into the election with the validity of their candidacies uncertain, the commission doubting that it can hear all the objections by election day, Feb. 24.

Bitter Fights in Every Ward.

Bitter fights are progressing in every one of the north side wards with anti-Thompsonism holding first place in the list of issues.

Ald. Curtis F. Mellin is particularly under fire in the 50th ward campaign, the opposition accusing him of an attempt to conceal his administration connections by means of two campaign headquarters, in one of which he presents an independent front and going along with Thompson in the other, by distributing Thompson's literature and using administration patronage.

Ald. Mellin was censored by the Municipal Voters' league for aiding Thompson in organizing the present city council, and the league said the ward should have a "more able and vigorous representative."

James R. Quinn, an attorney, indorsed by the 50th ward Democrats, heads the opposition to Mellin and is waging an intense campaign to unseat the alderman.

Fight on Feigenbutz.

The chief issue in the 45th ward also is Thompsonism, Ald. William H. Feigenbutz, seeking reëlection, being attacked for his alliance with the administration. He countered by filing protests against five of his opponents. Two others, George W. Schmidt and H. L. Mattson, have withdrawn. Feigenbutz was described as a "willing yes man for the administration" by the voters' league.

The fight in the 49th ward has narrowed down to a struggle largely between Ald. George A. Williston, a Deneen man, and William McKinley, former speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, who has the indorsement of the ward Democrats. The administration forces in the ward are supporting Daniel O'Connell, secretary of Building Commissioner Chris Paschen.

A realignment of forces took place in the 47th ward last week, it was reported, the administration switching its support from Charles Sachs, an automobile salesman, to M. J. Schmidt, an automobile dealer who previously had been indorsed by the Democrats. The administration originally had planned to support Ald. John J. Hoellen, but when he announced he would support Judge John H. Lyle for mayor Thompson withdrew his patronage and turned it over to Frank Mesce, former real estate expert, who then was supporting Sachs.

Massen Is Praised.

In the 48th ward Ald. John H. Massen occupies the most strategic position of all the north side aldermen seeking reëlection. Described as one of the most valuable members of the council, his opposition has found it difficult to weaken his support in the ward, although the administration is supporting Maurice Leavitt, a hotel man, and it is understood that Massen's opposition is prepared to spend several thousands in the attempt to keep him from going back to the council.

An assault against Ald. Albert E. Loescher has been launched in the 44th ward, based on his "lack of aggressiveness." The 44th ward Jeffersonian club, supporting George W. Kasper, a wholesale merchant, issued a statement last week assailing Loescher for the "deplorable conditions in the 44th ward." Kasper's candidacy has been indorsed by Col. A. A. Sprague, Mrs. Amelia Sears, county commissioner; Mrs. Helen Levy, Thomas J. Webb, and other residents of the ward.

Republicans for Riemenschneider.

The 44th ward Republican forces, headed by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, are behind the candidacy of Albert L. Riemenschneider, former president of the Cook County Real Estate board.

James B. Waller, wealthy real estate broker and community welfare worker, leads the field in the 43d ward race for the council seat Ald. Arthur F. Albert has surrendered to make the race for the Republican mayoralty nomination. Waller has been given virtually all the Republican organization support in the ward except that of the Thompson group which is backing Charles G. Burmeister, undertaker and ward committeeman. The 43d Democrats, headed by Rudolph L. Schapp, newly appointed chief clerk of the board of assessors, are behind the candidacy of Mathias W. Wagner, a deputy in the county clerk's office.

Crowe Finds Opposition.

Ald. Dorsey R. Crowe, in the 42d ward, is undergoing a hard campaign, a group of business leaders in the ward supporting Thomas Daniel Collins, wealthy hotel man, against him. Mr. Collins has been active this winter in welfare and relief work in the ward, having organized a group of north side hotel owners for the purpose of distributing food supplies among the homeless and hungry. He has been active in other civic work, particularly in connection with taxation. Crowe was censored by the voters' league for voting for Thompson's organization of the last council, but gave him credit for opposing the administration's effort to overload the budget.

Opponents of Ald. Joseph C. Ross for reëlection in the 40th ward are getting behind the candidacy of Samuel L. Freedman, a young attorney, who has attacked Ross as an "administration man," under the campaign leadership of John McKeone, ward committeeman who deserted the Deneen organization to go with Thompson and in return was appointed to the zoning board of appeals.

Platform Is Anti-Thompson.

Freedman has practiced law in Chicago since 1917, and has resided in the 40th ward for the last nine years, taking part in community activities. His platform calls for the abolition of Thompsonism and more improvements for the ward.

Candidates who have recently withdrawn from the north side race are Charles V. Pagano and John R. Walker, 43d ward; Weir H. Traver and Robert E. Lowry, 46th.

SNOWSTORM PAINTS MASTERPIECE

HARRY W. SOLOMON.

From messenger boy, at $3 a week, to president of the Transcontinental Hotels, Inc., a combine formed to operate a string of hotel properties throughout the United States, is the story of Harry W. Solomon, 832 Argyle street.

Mr. Solomon started to work as messenger boy 18 years ago, and has just been elected president of the hotel organization, at the age of 36. He is married and has two children. Among the hotels which the corporation will direct in Chicago are the Belmont, the Sovereign, and the Southmoor. Other properties include the Whittier and Belcrest in Detroit, the Auditorium hotel in Cleveland, the Melrose Court in Dallas, and hotels in various other cities.

As vice president in charge of property management for the Straus organiaztion, Mr. Solomon has jurisdiction over a number of skyscrapers throughout the country.

8 LIBRARY BOOKS A YEAR, AVERAGE OF EVANSTONIANS

Exceeding by 60,320 any previous record made during its 57 years of existence the Evanston Public library in its annual report, made public this week, showed a home circulation of 552,264 volumes during 1930.

The rate per capita, according to the report, is 8.7 books, and in addition a large increase was shown in the use of the reading room, due to unemployment conditions.

"Thus the library," according to C. M. Cartwright, president of the Library association, "has been one of the chief tax supported agencies in helping to maintain morale during the period of financial stress."

In adult reading fiction far outstripped nonfiction in popularity. Adults drew 122,247 volumes of fiction from the central branch, taking out at the same time 83,242 nonfiction volumes. However, the balance was kept in children's reading. From the central branch they withdrew 22,214 nonfiction and 21,602 fiction volumes.

C. M. Cartwright is president of the Library association. Other officers are: Mrs. Arne Oldberg, vice president, and Miss Ida Faye Wright, librarian and secretary. On the board of directors are Theodore W. Koch, William F. Leggett, Frederick W. Nichols, R. D. Shanesy, Mrs. George H. Tomlinson, and A. C. Wild.

BUSINESS MEN OF NORTH TOWN ARE ORGANIZED

North Town has organized a business men's association to advance the interests and care for the community needs of the neighborhood bounded by Peterson road and Touhy, Ridge and Kedzie avenues.

At a meeting last Tuesday night in the Prudential Realty company hall, Myron H. Rusnak was elected president of the association; Arthur Rance and Ray Powers, vice presidents; Bernie Pettitt, secretary, and A. Prindiville, treasurer.

One of the first objectives of the group is to hold a spring carnival at the time of the opening of the new Nortown theater early in April. The Nortown, now nearing completion, was so named by Publix-Balaban and Katz at the request of the community merchants. The North Town Business Men's association now intends to make the theater opening a gala community occasion.

The North Town association has started off with seventy members. Meetings will be held once a month.

PUSH CAMPAIGN FOR WIDENING OF LINCOLN BRIDGE

Other Plans Listed by Association.

The widening of the Lincoln avenue bridge across the north shore sanitary canal, the installation of a feeder bus line on Peterson avenue from the city limits to Ridge boulevard and thence to the elevated lines, and the establishment of an elementary school on Bryn Mawr avenue in Arcadia terrace, are to be the major projects of the Arcadia Terrace Improvement and Protective association during the coming year. This was announced by James N. Kerans, recently reëlected president of the association to serve a third term.

Widening of other bridges over the canal will also be requested of the sanitary district board, Mr. Kearns added.

"Peterson avenue, as widened, and Bryn Mawr avenue at its present width, are narrowed at the approaches to those respective bridges," he said.

Urges Bridge Widening.

"These bridges, therefore, should be widened. Of primary importance, however, is the widening of the Lincoln avenue bridge, to make effective the recent widening of Lincoln avenue north of Catalpa avenue, for which this association worked. The widening has been completed as far as Peterson avenue, and will be pushed farther north next year. The street car extension on Lincoln avenue, opened to Mozart street recently, will also be pushed northward in the spring. The bridge widening should be coördinated with these projects."

Mr. Kearns reported that considerable agitation for the establishment of an elementary school in Arcadia terrace has been brought to the attention of the association, and said that members of the group would support the project actively during the coming year.

Continue Regular Work.

"Regular activities of the organization, such as snow plowing, will be continued as in previous years," Mr. Kearns promised. "The expense of the work is heavy, but we do not intend to let the current depression hinder us in it."

Other newly elected officers of the association are: Vice president, William Kruse; secretary, Charles Letsche Jr.; financial secretary, Melchiar Adrean, and treasurer, George Overbeck.

BUDD MEMORIAL HOME OPENED TO HELP DESTITUTE

Opening of the Katharine Kreigh Budd Memorial home near Libertyville as an emergency relief home for destitute children and families, was announced recently by the Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, bishop of Chicago and president of the board of trustees of the institution.

More than fifty children already have been accepted for the home and Mrs. Helen Nixon, assistant superintendent of the Walter Scott Home for Crippled Children in New York, has been employed as superintendent.

The home will be kept open until May as an emergency relief proposition. Funds for the present operation are being provided from endowments of the Katharine Kreigh Budd Memorial corporation, which was established several years ago by Britton I. Budd, president of the North Shore lines, as a memorial to his wife. The institution includes a large farm and a number of buildings which were erected as a summer place for the children of St. Mary's home, 2822 West Jackson boulevard, under the direction of the Sisters of St. Mary of the Episcopal church.

SNAP SNOW PICTURES AND FIRESIDE SCENES FOR TRIBUNE PRIZES

Winter is presenting the amateur photographer with hundreds of new suggestions for pictures these days. Familiar objects take on a fresh aspect under a garment of snow and ice. Winter sports and cozy fireside games offer a variant to the all year round recreations.

What more inspiring subject for the camera's eye than Jack essaying his first journey around the home pond on a pair of skates Santa Claus brought him! Or the whole family helping build the snow man before the freeze sets in, or making fudge and popping corn over the fire!

Take advantage of the cold weather while it lasts, snap a few of the dozens of pictures taking form around you every day, and send your photos in to Photo Contest, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. The editor of the Metropolitan section will award prizes of $5, $3 and $2 for the three best pictures submitted every week by amateur photographers on each side of the city and its suburbs.

The name and address of the person submitting the picture should be printed clearly on the back of each entry with the full name and address of each person appearing in the picture.

The editor's awards will be final. Please do not request that pictures be returned.

TEMPLE PLAYERS PICK CAST FOR DRAMA ON FEB. 8

"That Ferguson Family," a three act comedy, is to be presented by the Temple Centers players of Temple Beth Israel on Feb. 8 at the community center, Bernard and Ainslie streets.

The cast for the play, which was announced last week by Mrs. Walter Ginsberg, president of the temple sisterhood, includes Miss Rosella Levine, Erwin Fensin, Miss Florence Mintz, Louis L. Dechowitz, Ralph D. Crofton, Miss Josephine V. Spiegel, Samuel V. Griffin, Miss Mabel Rigler, Laurence Cooper and Miss Edith Goldblatt.

The play is being sponsored by the sisterhood, and is directed by Morton Reisman. Irving Dickter is president of the temple center.

$150,000 LOPPED OFF EVANSTON'S NEXT TAX BILLS

$1,563,000 Budget Shows Small Decrease.

Evanstonians will be saved $150,000 on their current tax bills—the 1929 levy—through an ordinance introduced by Ald. Peter N. Jans [5th] and passed at the city council meeting Monday night. The ordinance calls for a request to the county clerk to take that amount off the levy to be charged against the corporate fund and the street and the street and bridges budget. The saving will amount to 4 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation.

The saving follows an appeal from the property owners division of the Evanston Real Estate board and an examination of levies, returns and budgets by Ald. Jans, who heads the council finance committee. It is particularly notable as the first reduction in taxes Evanston has had.

$2,125,000 in Treasury.

Ald. Jans pointed out that the taxes actually received on the 1928 levy amounted to $840,138, which, with other revenues, brought the total monies for running the city up to $2,125,840.

The 1929 expenditures from this sum were $1,979,531, leaving a surplus of $146,308. In addition, the 1928 levy was set at $1,106,133 and the 1929 levy at $1,318,133, an increase of $98,494 when 12 per cent is deducted for probable bad collections, protests and court actions.

Since this gives the city a probable $244,802 more money than needed to pay its expenses, a $150,000 decrease could be voted and still leave the city a safe margin to protect holders of tax anticipation warrants.

In all probability, Ald. Jans stated, another $40,000 will be added to the surplus by further collections on the 1928 levy.

Evanston was treated to an additional pleasant shock to add to its first experience in having its taxes reduced when Ald. Jans announced the completion of the budget and introduced it at the council meeting instead of letting it go on to March.

Budget Reduced $6,000.

A reduction of about $6,000 was shown in the budget in its present form. The total is $1,563,534.57. Some departments, notably the police department, received substantial budget increases, which were taken care of by corresponding decreases in other departments. The police department will get $297,000 this year as against $250,000 last year. The increase takes care of traffic improvements transferred from the street department and other minor expenses.

Another department to receive an increase is the library, which will have $118,000 this year as against $110,000 last year.

For the first time, also, the budget and financial statement will be published and will be open to inspection by any interested person.

The council refused to authorize payment of expenses for Mayor Bartlett and department heads to attend the legislative conference sponsored by the Illinois Municipal league at Springfield, Feb. 11. After the adverse vote of 12 to 2, Mayor Bartlett pointed out that the three way division of the gasoline tax was to be discussed. He said that if the legislation was passed, $275,000 would be returned to Evanston for paving.

SCHOOL LEADERS DECLARE HOME ART SHOWS BIG SUCCESS

School officials throughout the city yesterday pronounced the series of home economics expositions sponsored the last fortnight by the board of education in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE an unqualified success. The west side demonstration Monday evening at Harrison Technical High school, attended by more than 1,800 parents and friends, climaxed the group of five sectional exhibits.

"Never before has the general public been treated to such a comprehensive cross section of the household arts course as taught in the public school system," declared Miss Frances L. Swain. Miss Swain is director of home economics in the Chicago schools and, with Miss Dora E. Wells, principal of Lucy Flower Technical High school, took the lead in planning the details of the expositions.

"Every one of the demonstrations was delightfully entertaining as well as informative and caused more than one parent to marvel at the practical and up to the minute instruction his children are receiving in our schools," she continued.

Miss Swain will present a plan for making a similar series of expositions an annual event to the board of education for consideration. There is a possibility that other departments of the public school system may be taken as subjects for demonstration during succeeding years. THE TRIBUNE would continue as joint sponsor of the exhibitions with the board of education.

MOST PROMISING SENIORS NAMED BY HIGH SCHOOLS

3 North Side Girls Lead in Scholarship.

Youth must be served, saith an old adage. Some of youth will serve, and be served, better than the rest, adds experience. These two axioms are illustrated by the group of outstanding graduates, chosen from the midyear classes of five north side high schools as the most promising members of their respective graduating groups. The students were chosen by the principals or by faculty committees in their schools, for recognition by THE TRIBUNE. They were chosen for scholarship, but not scholarship alone. Leadership was taken as a criterion, as well as the ability to absorb book learning.

Over at Lane Technical High school, Robert Eric Esbensen has been plugging away for four years, with the result that he led his class in scholarship on Thursday night when commencement exercises were held in Medinah temple.

He was a student in the four year architectural course, and won all four scholarships. Besides that, he was secretary of the Arch club, a four year member of Lane's orchestra champs and band, a member of the Honor society for two years, winner of five literary "L's," winner of three championship shields, and a member of the Architectural honor group since 1928.

Four Awards to Miletzky.

Second in scholastic standing was Jack W. Miletzky, who won bronze, silver, gold, and fob awards for scholarship. He was a member of the skating team in 1928, National Honor society, Mask and Shears dramatic group, relay and basketball teams, the student council, the Chemistry club, and the Cap and Gown committee. He won one literary and three athletic "L's" and took part in "Who Wouldn't Be Crazy?" Lane dramatic production. Jack also managed last year's baseball team.

Bruno J. Petraitis also won bronze, silver, gold, and fob scholarship awards. He belonged to the National Honor society, was a member of the student council in 1927 and 1928, and has been a member of the band, the orchestra, the theater orchestra, the Orchestra Champs, and the All-City High School orchestra for three years. He was a first lieutenant of the band, winner of six literary "L's" and chairman of the senior gift committee.

Girl Tops Waller Class.

Principal John E. Adams of Waller High school chose four students for THE TRIBUNE'S recognition. Miss Helen Schwartz is the winner of the high scholarship honors of the Waller midyear class. She was also the senior class secretary, president of the girls' glee club, secretary of the Fencing club, and vice president of the Big Sisters organization. She has also taken part in school dramatics, and had the rôle of the queen in "The Fatal Quest." She was a member of the student council, the Debating club, the Booklovers' club, the athletic association, the junior-senior dancing committee, and the honor roll.

Another Wallerite is Wilbert J. J. Wahler, the president of the graduating class. Wilbert was also president of Die Thalia, a member of the debating club, student council member, honor student, president of the Anglers' club, a member of the 1927 gym team, a member of the Booklovers' club, and an athletic association salesman. He took part in "Das Dumme Komtesschen," annual German club play, and in "Auto 1880."

Not All Athletes Dumb.

Robert Cairns is another refutation of the theory that all athletes are dumb. He was a member of the football, basketball, interclass baseball, and track teams, and the winner of several "W's." His other honors include chairmanship of the annual committee, editorship of the Yellow and Blue, vice presidency of the Boys' Glee club, vice presidency of the vocational class of 1928, office of fire marshal, and membership in the student council, the athletic association, and the Royal Order of Turtles. He was head salesman of the Yellow and Blue and the athletic association, a debater, and had a part in "The Belle of Bagdad," student operetta.

Alvin W. Stern was president of the student council, president of the debating club, editor of the school magazine, circulation manager and associate editor of the Yellow and Blue, captain of the debating team, honor student, a member of the booklovers' club, a member of the tennis team, a member of the athletic association, and a "W" man. He also took part in inter-room baseball and basketball, and played the part of Plesidippus in "Ex Mari," the Latin club play.

Roosevelt President Ranks Highest.

Roosevelt High school contributes William Horn, who ranked number one for scholarship in its graduating class. He was president of the class last year and was also president of both the junior and senior clubs of the Hi-Y. He was chairman of the ticket committee of the student council, and a member of the dean's council.

Another Rooseveltian is Miss Bernadine Schmidt, who ranked second in the class, having completed her work in seven semesters instead of eight. She has also been a member of the orchestra and the hall guard staff. Her ambition is to win a prize scholarship at the University of Chicago.

Jack Light, also ranking in the upper 8 per cent in scholarship, was twice president of the student council. He was Roosevelt's representative in the Junior City club of which he is vice president, and a member of the J. Y. L., the history club, the debate club, and the room editors' association. He participated in swimming and room baseball.

Girl Is Lake View Valedictorian.

Miss Marion Donner was valedictorian and vice president of the Lake View graduates. Last year she was editor of the Lake re-View and a member of the student commission. She was also president of the honor society.

Robert McManmon resigned his captaincy of the football team to become president of the Lake View seniors. He has numerous athletic awards, and was a member of the honor society.

Prominent in Lake View music and dramatics was Miss Lorraine Gaggin, who was also one of the two graduation speakers elected by the class. Miss Gaggin played the part of Alan-a-Dale in the opera "Robin Hood," and portrayed one of the leading parts in the senior drama.

Charles David was the other class choice for graduation speaker. He was a member of the football team, sports editor of the Lake re-View, a member of the honor society, a member of the prom committee, and a member of the student commission.

Miss Wiedeman First at Senn.

Miss Martha Wiedeman stood highest on the scholarship list of the Senn High school graduates. Miss Wiedeman was president of the Senn Girls' Athletic association, 2A and 3B room president, a member of the Fire Eaters, the honor society, and the German club. She participated also in intramural sports.

Second on the Senn senior scholarship list was Marvin Glick. Glick was on the all school council during his freshman and sophomore years, and more recently has served as room vice president, cadet lieutenant in the band, and a member of the prom committee. He was also a member of the honor society.

Miss Mary Riordan ranked third in scholarship and was a member of the council during her sophomore year, the glee club, the honor society, the Fire Eaters, the dean's round table, the Senn Girls' Athletic association, and the history club.

A member of the all school council, Louis Nettelhorst ranked fourth in scholarship. He has been 2B and 4A room vice president, Forum salesman, Senn News salesman, a member of the glee club, the honor society, the Fire Eaters, the Latin club, the music club, and the Pythagorean society.

SCHOOL PLANNED FOR EVANSTON'S WOMEN DRIVERS

Plans were started Wednesday for Evanston's women's drivers school at a meeting attended by Franklin M. Kreml, head of the accident prevention bureau, Herman Sporer and Mrs. Guy M. Pelton of the Evanston safety council, and Chief of Police William O. Freeman.

Arrangements are to be made for an enrollment of between 500 and 1,000 women for a course which will include lectures on traffic laws and safety as well as practical driving experience. Eighty-five women have sent applications for enrollment. The course is to begin April 1 and will continue until June 1, when road tests and written tests will be given and diplomas awarded to those passing the requirements.

Five committees of women will be selected shortly to assist in working out the arrangements, and a large staff of teachers is planned. The course will be given free unless projected expenses mount too high.

"The course," Mr. Kreml stated, "will be modeled after that which has been conducted successfully in St. Louis for the last seven years."

The bureau is elated over the provisions in the budget for its suggested traffic improvements and a clerk assistant for the records of the office.

Records show that since the first of the year seven out of seven hit-and-run drivers have been apprehended with four convictions, one dismissal, and two cases pending in court.

Special services this morning and evening at the Albany Park Presbyterian church, St. Louis and Ainslie streets, will conclude the tenth anniversary observance of the church, which began last Tuesday. Dr. Alfred S. Nickless, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, Detroit, and a former pastor of the Albany Park church, will deliver the sermon this morning.

Dr. Harold Francis Branch, now pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Chicago Heights, will speak at the service this evening. Dr. Branch is also a former pastor of the Albany Park church.

Dr. George L. Robinson of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, spoke at the anniversary dinner Thursday evening, and many of the former pastors and members of the church attended. The Rev. Robert L. King is the pastor.

GLENCOE RECTOR

The Rev. Richard C. Talbot Jr.

Election of the Rev. Richard Colgate Talbot Jr. of Dixon as rector of St. Elizabeth's Episcopal church, Glencoe, was announced last week by Curtis B. Camp, senior warden of the parish. Mr. Talbot will succeed the Rev. John K. Coolidge who a few days ago left for Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The Rev. Mr. Talbot will assume his new duties next month. For the last two years he has been rector of St. Luke's church of Dixon.

MARRIAGE FIRST TOPIC OF FORUM FOR YOUNG FOLK

Evanstonians to Study Freedom of Sexes.

The opening meeting of the Young People's Community forum of the Evanston Y. M. C. A. was held Monday night in the Central "Y" building. Plans and topics for discussion for the next three months have been outlined and announced by the group.

On the general subject of "Modern Trends in the Art of Living" five sessions will be held. Freedom among the sexes was the first topic considered at the opening meeting. Mental and physical examinations before marriage; consideration of families and relatives before marriage; making sure of compatibility; companionate and trial marriages; working after marriage, the single standard and birth control will be discussed at meetings of the near future.

Dr. Mann Leads Discussions.

Dr. Albert Mann led the discussion Monday and will continue as discussion leader for the first five or six sessions of the group covering the first general discussion group.

Modern social problems will be the second general topic, with manners and social customs, public dance halls, and co-educational activities as session topics. Russia and Italy will be considered at two meetings and the world's great religions, science and religion, the question of having a purpose in life, and the revolt, if any, of young people against religion will round out the list.

Group Meets Each Monday.

The group meets each Monday for dinner at 6:30 o'clock with the discussion period opening at 7:30.

Roy Hopko has been elected temporary president and Miss Margaret Toppson temporary secretary. Norman J. Weston, director of physical education, is sponsor for the group which has limited itself to persons between 18 and 35 years old, married or unmarried. Topics for discussion was selected by vote.

NORTH TOWNERS SEEK 8 GRADES AT STONE SCHOOL

Booster Meeting to Be Held Tuesday.

The establishment of eight grades at the Stone elementary school, 6239 Leavitt street, instead of six as at present, was strongly urged at a recent meeting of the North Town Improvement association, held at the Prudential Realty building, 2345 Devon avenue. Another meeting, to which are invited all parents of school children living within the district bounded by Western, Peterson, Devon avenues, and Ridge boulevard, will be held on Tuesday evening at the Prudential building.

Several of the parents, who were present at the first meeting, declared that eight grades at the Stone school are an imperative need, and further declared themselves in favor of a junior high school, to be placed as near as possible to the middle of the territory.

Flamm Plans Campaign.

Mrs. A. Johnson, one of the parents, reported that the children who graduate from the Stone school must take two street cars to reach Sullivan Junior High school. She advocated, as a temporary relief measure, the establishment of seventh and eighth grades in four rooms of the Stone school which are now vacant. Irving H. Flamm, president of the association, said that a campaign for the extra grades, and later, a junior high school, would be instituted provided a majority of the parents so desire.

A motion was passed by the association, to appeal to Gov. Emmerson against the recent purchase of a small park site from the Chicago Town and Tennis club, Granville and Ravenswood avenues. The association is requesting the governor to see if a change of site cannot be effected.

Seek Rosehill Plot.

Herbert Braun, past president, asserted that the proposed site for which the purchase has been closed will mainly benefit people east of the North Western railroad tracks. The association has urged the condemnation of Rosehill cemetery property at Leavitt street and Granville avenue as being of more service to the people west of the railroad tracks.

Agitation for another park, near St. Henry's and the Stone school, will be started by the association. Ald. Curtis F. Mellin [50th] brought forth a plan whereby several baby parks, not necessarily 10 acre tracts, would be established. The smaller parks, he explained, would be easier to acquire land for, and would spread out the park benefits further than the 10 acre parks.

2,000 SIGN PLEA FOR LAKE VIEW EVENING SCHOOL

More than 2,000 names have been signed to a petition which soon will be presented to William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, requesting the establishment of an accredited evening high school at Lake View High school.

This was announced by Felix Coune of the Lake View Community council, who reported that he is being assisted in the campaign by the Blaine and Lake View Parent-Teacher associations, Ald. John J. Hoellen [47th], and Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [44th], as well as numerous other individuals, clubs, and organizations in the district.

Stress Transportation Aids.

The petition points to transportation facilities which make Lake View High school readily accessible to most north and northwest side residents, including "street car service on Irving Park boulevard, Southport, and Ashland avenues, and Clark street; the Ravenswood elevated line, and auto parking facilities."

It further states: "Lake View has a present evening high school enrollment of 1,800, and an average attendance of about 1,200. There are many requests for the completion of courses leading to a diploma, and there is no accredited evening high school in the immediate north side."

Mr. Coune expressed alarm at rumors that the board of education contemplates establishing an accredited evening high scool at Senn High school rather than at Lake View.

"May Choose Lake View."

District Supt. Arthur G. Deaver, in answer to an inquiry concerning the possibility of Lake View High school's evening classes being chosen for accrediting, replied: "Dr. Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent, has allowed himself to be quoted in the press as having said that three schools, one on the north side, one on the west side, and one on south side, will be accredited before next year. That would seem to indicate that the board of education has sufficient funds to make this possible. Since Lake View is a centrally located north side high school, it stands a chance of being one of those chosen."

Teachers in an accredited school, Mr. Deaver explained, must measure up to the same standards as those teaching the same subjects in a day school, and the credits thus obtained are acceptable for entrance in any college or university.

The total number of graduates this year was slightly larger than last year's total. Three of the schools hel dtheir exercises at auditoriums other than their own because of insufficient seating space in their own auditoriums.

IT WON'T COST YOU A SINGLE PENNY

Decide now whether or not your business, too, can make more money!

On Sunday, February 8, 1931, the Metropolitan Section of the Chicago Tribune will be four years old.

On this date there will be a number of business men (and women) of Chicago and suburbs who will be able to look back to a time during these four years when they first began to make use of a selling method which today they regard as part and parcel of their business.

New Sales Weapon

They will remember the details surrounding the placing of their first advertisement in the Metropolitan Section. They will remember the doubts they had—how they hesitated to try out the new sales weapon that the Tribune offered to them.

They will remember how they waited to see what would happen—how they wondered whether Tribune advertising was going to pay out any better than the other forms of advertising which they had tried.

What they will remember most is what DID happen.

Bigger Profits

They will remember how their sales registered the impetus of Sunday Tribune selling power—the new customers who began to give their trade—the quickened turnover of their stocks—the increased sales totals—the bigger profits.

Elsewhere in this space are some excerpts from letters which some of these Metropolitan Section advertisers have written to the Tribune.

Read what these advertisers say about Metropolitan Section advertising. Then ask yourself how much longer you want to wait before getting the complete facts—without obligation to you—about this profit-making method for increasing sales and boosting profits.

Decide now. Call Superior 0100 tomorrow—Metropolitan advertising!

Chicago Sunday Tribune
WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER
Metropolitan Section

What Advertisers Say!

DEPARTMENT STORE

. . . As you know, we have now been represented in this section consistently since its origin. Because of the size and intensity of its circulation, we believe it is an ideal medium not only for reaching our present customers but also for attracting many new people to the store and neighborhood. . . .

Joseph D. Madigan
Vice-President,
Madigan Brothers.

CANDY

. . . The candy business is always good at holiday time, but this Christmas it was better than we had ever known it to be, and we are convinced that our Sunday Tribune advertising is largely responsible. . . . With the Metropolitan Section, we are able to reach just the people we want, at a cost that makes our ads pay for themselves as they run. . . .

Julia C. Steven
President,
Mrs. Julia C. Steven, Inc.

CLEANING & DYEING

. . . We can truthfully say that our advertising in the Metropolitan Section of the Sunday Tribune has increased our business at least 50%, and in addition has expanded our sales territory to include many neighboring towns. . . .

Proprietor,
Woodlawn Cleaners and Dyers.

RADIO

. . . Needless to say, we have found the Metropolitan Section of the Sunday Tribune a great advertising medium. Before you started it the big merchant had a great advantage over the small retailer in the outlying districts—but now we feel that through this section of your paper we have just as good a chance to compete as the larger concern. We traced a sales increase of 119% to this section. . .

Proprietor,
Boller Piano Company.

BANKING

. . . The recent half-page advertisement of the Citizens State Bank of Chicago, in the Metropolitan Section of the Sunday Tribune, was somewhat of a departure in bank advertising—particularly the advertising of an outlying bank. . . . This advertising . . . met our expectation in every way and was so wholly satisfactory in results that we are committed in considerable measure to this method in placing future newspaper advertising. . .

Vice President,
Citizens State Bank of Chicago.

FURS

. . . Our August Fur Sale was greater by 25% this year than the year before, and total sales compared with the same period of 1929 are 20% ahead of last year. Taking into consideration that the price of furs has dropped considerably, making the unit of sale much lower, we believe this to be an unusual record. . . .

J. Einhorn
Proprietor,
J. Einhorn, Furrier.

MILLINERY

. . . The largest number of customers this business had under the original owner was slightly over three thousand. So far this year, in spite of the poorer business conditions, the Tribune has brought me more than 2,400 new customers. Of this number, all but about 400 have come back to make at least a second purchase. Some have come back as many as five and six times. . . .

Proprietor,
C. A. Loewen, Millinery.

MISS PETERSON, ZION STAGE STAR, TO BE IN TALKIE

Miss Dorothy M. Peterson, for years a resident of Zion, Ill., and a graduate in 1918 of Zion Preparatory college, is making her first appearance in the talkies. She will be seen in the new Warner Brothers production, "Mother's Cry," in the early future.

Zion's movie star lived with her parents in Sharon park, and her father was for a time street commissioner of the city. Later she entered the Columbia College of Expression in Chicago. At the close of her studies there she became connected with chautauqua circles, later becoming manager of a circuit in the east. During her school days Miss Peterson was awarded a gold medal in a W. C. T. U. contest held in Waukegan. She was often on programs given in Shiloh tabernacle, Zion.

For several years past Zion's star was on the stage, performing largely on Broadway. Her most successful rôle, according to the critics, was that of leading woman in "Dracula," in which Miss Peterson took part in Chicago.

"The Silver Cord" Is Bill of the Uptown Players

"The Silver Cord," a comedy drama, will be given by the Uptown players on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights in their little theater, 941 Lawrence avenue. Mrs. George B. Schulten, president of the players, will take the part of the mother who does not want her sons to marry.

Department meetings scheduled for the week at headquarters of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs are as follows: Tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., first district board of directors; Tuesday at 10:30 a. m., press and publicity committees, with talks by Mrs. James M. Massie on "How to Edit a Bulletin"; Mrs. John B. McEwan on "Importance of a Bulletin," and Mrs. Bertha Powles on "Why a State Bulletin?" Wednesday at 10:15 a. m., literature and library extension, with Mrs. Mabel Oppenheim as the speaker; Thursday at 10:30 a. m., second district board of directors; Friday at 10 a. m., music department, and at 10:30, ninth district board.

The Illinois League of Women Voters will hold an all day conference on public welfare on Tuesday from 10 until 3 o'clock at the Harriet McCormick Memorial Y. W. C. A. Chairmen from the 60 local leagues in the state will attend. Mrs. Alfred D. Kohn, chairman of public welfare, will preside. Topics to be discussed will include "Child Welfare Legislation of 1931," "The State School Distributive Fund and the Larger School Unit," "Employment Offices in Illinois," "The Eight Hour Day Bill," and "To Be or Not to Be a Downtown Group on the Regulation of Public Utilities."

Another general conference of the League of Women Voters will be on Friday from 10:30 to 3 o'clock at the league headquarters, when local chairmen of the efficiency in government department from all over the state will confer on legislative measures of special interest to this department. Mrs. Gerald Leuck, chairman, will be in charge. The chief item for discussion will be the bill which has been introduced in the Illinois general assembly providing for the Massachusetts or office group type of ballot. After luncheon the 25 chairmen of the Cook county leagues will meet with Mrs. Walter J. Evans, chairman of efficiency in government for Cook county, to discuss the consolidation of taxing bodies in Cook county.

Le Salon Francais of the Chicago Woman's club will have as special luncheon guests tomorrow Cyrille Vermeren, consul general of Belgium; Henri Bougearel, vice consul of France, and Mme. Bougearel; Mme. Gilbert Boursier and Mme. Helen Mézières of the International theater. The lecture at 2 will be given by M. Fortunat Strowski, professor at the University of Paris. Dr. George Pierce Baker, director of the Yale university theater, is to be the speaker at the club's Wednesday program at 2 p. m. His subject will be "The Drama as a Social Force." The second concert of the series being presented at the club by the Chicago String quartet will take place on Thursday at 8 p. m.

Following the meeting of the board of managers of the Woman's City club tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. there will be a club program. Miss Marian H. Gheen will talk at 2 o'clock on "How the Old Order in Interior Decoration Combines with the New." Mrs. Royal W. Irwin, chairman of the civic arts committee, is in charge. The sanitary district committee will meet with its chairman, Mrs. Edward E. Waful, on Tuesday at 3 o'clock. Both the animal protection and adult education committees will hold self-service luncheons on Wednesday at 12 o'clock. They will follow the class in home hygiene and care of the sick at 10:30 a. m. "FRA DIAVOLO" TO BE GIVEN ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Opera and Concert Stars to Take Part.

The W-G-N players and stars of the opera and concert stage will present a dramatization by Jean Conover of Auber's comic opera, "Fra Diavalo," from 7 to 8 o'clock tonight over W-G-N. The soloists will be Mary Fabian, soprano; Enrico Clausi, tenor; Sylvia Loder Stone, mezzo-soprano, and Raymond Koch, baritone.

EDNA WALLACE HOPPER.
[Strauss-Peyton Photo.]

DOROTHY LULL.

The story about Zerlina and a soldier suitor, Lorenzo, and Marquis San Marco [Fra Diavalo, the bandit] will be told by word and song.

Emerson Abernethy, baritone, who studied three years in Milan, Italy, receiving instructions under the personal guidance of Maestro Sabatini, John McCormack's teacher, will be the star of the Musical Melange of W-G-N from 5:45 to 6:30 p. m. today.

Trixie Friganza in Show.

Those who enjoy the theater should tune in on the vaudeville theater half-hour over W-G-N this morning from 11:30 to 12, when Trixie Friganza, talking picture star, will head the radio program. Assisting her will be Milton Berle, song and dance juvenile, who will act as master of ceremonies, and Dorothy Lull, formerly featured in Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

Compositions by Leo Kopp, formerly conductor of the Koenigsberg Opera house in Germany, will be heard from 5 to 5:30 p. m. today over W-G-N. With Mr. Kopp, who will be at the piano, will be Esther Bowker, soprano; Phil Kaufmann, viola; Michael Wilkomirski, first violin; Sam Nafshun, second violin; Olda Jirousek, cello, and George Soellers, flute.

A Dramatic Composition.

A dramatic composition, "The Storm King," the music of which is by Max Bendix, internationally known orchestra and band director, with words by Edward Locke, will be presented by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, with Mr. Bendix conducting, from 5:30 to 5:45 o'clock this afternoon. Robert Ball, dramatic baritone, will assist the orchestra.

Tom, Dick and Harry, vocal trio, have launched a new program, heard each morning from 10 to 10:15 o'clock except Friday and Sunday, over W-G-N. Their title song is "Three Happy Sleuths Are We." Carl Hoefel, arranger, is at the piano.

A broadcast from the W-G-N studio by Edna Wallace Hopper between 6:30 and 6:45 Thursday evening has been announced. Miss Hopper, who is heard from W-G-N through the NBC network on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, will broadcast this additional time in order that working girls may listen in. The actress, who has kept her beauty despite her years, will talk on "Beauty Hints."

AIDA DONINELLI, CEHANOVSKY ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Two of the youngest and most brilliant stars of the Metropolitan Opera company, Aida Doninelli, soprano, and George Cehanovsky, baritone, will be featured on the program with the concert orchestra, directed by Josef Pasternack, from 8:15 to 9:15 through W-G-N, The Tribune station on the Drake hotel, and NBC.

Miss Doninelli, a native of Guatemala, of Italian parents, was educated and received her early musical training in Chicago, where her family has lived since she was a child. George Cehanovsky, the young Russian baritone who has been singing leading opera rôles for the Metropolitan five years, has the distinction of having learned to be an opera singer at his mother's knee.

Bizet's "Carmen" will provide both artists with their introductory numbers tonight. Mme. Doninelli will sing the aria composed for Micaela, "Nothing Shall Deter Me," which critics acclaim is one of the most exquisite compositions of Bizet for the voice. Cehanovsky will be heard in the famous "Toreador" song.

ROBERT E. JOHNSON, SHOE CLERK, HEARD AS SOLOIST ON W-G-N

If you run across a shoe clerk in Chicago and he hums an operatic air as he slips on a slipper, mark him right there as Robert E. Johnson, the tenor soloist heard from 11:15 to 12 each Thursday morning during the everybody's hour from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel.

ROBT E. JOHNSON.

Mr. Johnson hails from Minneapolis, Minn., where he has sung with the Municipal Park Board band. Although of Swedish descent, Mr. Johnson is at his best on Irish songs, and his programs are replete with popular and classical numbers.

He has been soloist at the Woodlawn Methodist church in Chicago.

IMPROVEMENTS NOTED ON 9,000 MILE RADIO TOUR

Supervisor Back from 4 Months' Trip.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Radio broadcasting made decided improvements in the United States in both the technical and the entertainment fields last year, according to Arthur Batcheller, traveling supervisor of the radio division of the department of commerce, who has just returned from a four months' tour covering more than 9,000 miles over the country.

Chicago, Denver, Seattle, Grand Island, Neb.; Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Dallas, Fort Worth, New Orleans, and Atlanta were among the larger cities included in Mr. Batcheller's itinerary.

Because of increased carrier stability, frequency adherence, and program improvement radio broadcasting in the United States was never in a better condition, Mr. Batcheller said, in spite of the fact that it is considered by the trade the same condition prevails today as in the past—that is, there are too many broadcasting stations being operated in the United States.

Stations Are More Stable.

By carrier stability he pointed out that he meant that the carrier emissions of broadcasting stations are becoming more and more stable and not subject to the many fluctuations and deviations that were present in the past. There has also been a marked improvement in station frequency adherence. Frequency adherence and carrier stability are vital elements to an orderly system in broadcasting.

Static and other natural electrical disturbances continue to be a source of serious trouble, whereas great improvement has been made by scientific investigators in lessening extraneous and parasitic disturbances originating in industrial electrical systems and apparatus associated therewith.

Largely because of the vigilant service rendered by the commerce department's radio division in regulating broadcasting stations the listener in is getting less and less interference in his programs, Mr. Batcheller said.

Overlapping side bands or cross talks, carrier interaction or beat notes become a serious matter when broadcasting stations deviate their assigned frequency. The commerce department's radio division checks these stations with the aid of its inspectors and monitoring apparatus located in Boston, New York, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Ore.; Detroit, Chicago, and the parent station of them all, the constant frequency monitoring station at Grand Island, Neb.

Check from Mobile Labortories.

A feature of the checking system also includes the use of mobile laboratories installed in specially constructed automobiles equipped with scientific instruments which are for the purpose of traveling to all points in the various districts in order to measure the character, quality, and power of the signals emanating from the various broadcasting stations. These observations are made without actually going into the broadcasting station itself. These automobiles are also equipped with apparatus for locating stations operating without license and for numerous other technical duties which the radio inspectors of the commerce department are called upon to perform.

GLADYS RICE AND JAMES MELTON WILL BE HEARD

Miss Gladys Rice, soprano, and James Melton, radio favorites, will sing several of their hit numbers through W-G-N and NBC at 7:30 Wednesday evening.

Under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret, the concert orchestra will play a rhythmic arrangement of "Bolero," by Mr. Shilkret and Mr. Salinger. It is being played for radio listeners for the first time. Miss Rice and Melton will sing "Something to Remember You By," from "Three's a Crowd," by Dietz-Schwartz. Miss Rice will also sing "Love Everlasting," by Friml, and Mr. Melton will sing "The White Dove," from "The Rogue Song."

QUIN RYAN BACK IN OLD JOB AS W-G-N MANAGER

Succeeds Henry Selinger in Position.

Quin Ryan, feature announcer and former manager of W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune radio station is back at his old job of station manager. He succeeds Henry Selinger, who is to take a new post with Lord, Thomas & Logan, advertising agency.

On Thursday night the men of W-G-N gave a dinner for the two managers in the Tower room of the Drake hotel. On the program were Lawrence Salerno, baritone; Walter Pontius, tenor; Mark Love, basso; Allen Grant, pianist; Tom, Dick, and Harry, and Herr Louis and the Weasel.

A Graduate of N. U.

Mr. Ryan is a native Chicagoan, the son of the late Judge Joseph E. Ryan. He attended Northwestern university, where he was graduated in 1920. While a freshman in college he became a reporter for The Chicago Tribune and subsequently football writer, house organ editor, advertising writer, and column contributor. In 1922 he was invited by a chain of local theaters to write a weekly radio show and when station W-G-N was inaugurated in 1924 he came back to The Tribune.

In 1925 he became director of the station, but later retired to undertake his feature work which has given him, probably, more varied broadcasts than any other radio personality. He organized one of radio's most popular features, the reading of The Tribune comic section to millions of children every Sunday noon and his nightly Punch and Judy show.

Creator of W-G-N Features.

Mr. Selinger, the retiring manager, also was director of the Drake concert ensemble, one of the oldest of local radio features. He formerly played first violin in the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Many of W-G-N's features which since have become nationally popular, were developed under his direction.

FAN IN HAWAII PRAISES W-G-N RADIO PROGRAMS

Letters from Hawaii and New Zealand as well as from 47 of the 48 states have been received by W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune radio station. The prize letter received recently is one from Hilo, Hawaii, a distance of 4,132 air line miles from Chicago. The letter, written on Jan. 13, follows:

"Broadcast Station W-G-N,

"Mahalo nui [many thanks] for your very entertaining program of Jan. 12, 1931, from 7 to 8 p. m. [Hawaiian standard time]. I also want to take this opportunity to commend the orchestra for their very pleasing selection 'The Gigolo.'

"Although we are many thousands of miles from Chicago and your programs have to travel over many miles of land, mountains, and then over 2,200 miles of water, the reception here is very loud and clear.

"An acknowledgement from you confirming the receipt of your program would be deeply appreciated, as I am making a collection of confirmations from distant stations. So far I have not had the opportunity of receiving one from you.

Inclosed you will find one of our 'applause cards.' Aloha nui,

"Goldie Charlock."

The applause card contains sketches of the Hawaiian islands, a drawing of station PELE, called Gawaii's super volcano, and a cablegram of Kilauea crater near Hilo.

GLENN FRANK TO BE HEARD OVER W-G-N TUESDAY

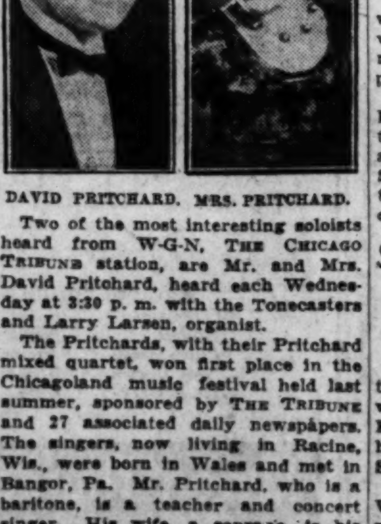
Glen Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, will be heard over W-G-N at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening as one of the speakers on the program sponsored by the Chicago Dental society during its 67th annual convention, which is being held this week. "A Guess at the American Future" will be the subject of his talk.

Others who are to speak through The Tribune station the first part of the week during the noon broadcast are: Dr. C. E. Rudolph, Minneapolis, who will be heard tomorrow; Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, on Tuesday, and Dr. De Los Hill, Atlanta, Ga., Wednesday.

England Leads Europe.

The United Kingdom is one of the leading countries of the world in radio developments. The number of licensed sets in service total 2,515,608. Receiving licenses are issued to all applicants and cost 10 shillings [$2.43] a year.

Singers on W-G-N



DAVID PRITCHARD. MRS. PRITCHARD.

Two of the most interesting soloists heard from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station, are Mr. and Mrs. David Pritchard, heard each Wednesday at 3:30 p. m. with the Tonecasters and Larry Larsen, organist.

The Pritchards, with their Pritchard mixed quartet, won first place in the Chicagoland music festival held last summer, sponsored by The Tribune and 27 associated daily newspapers. The singers, now living in Racine, Wis., were born in Wales and met in Bangor, Pa. Mr. Pritchard, who is a baritone, is a teacher and concert singer. His wife, a soprano, is his studio accompanist.

Theater Parties to Present Stars

Beginning Tuesday afternoon and on each succeeding Friday and Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 4:15 o'clock W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station, will present a W-G-N Theater Party. The speakers and entertainers will be stars appearing in current plays in the loop.

On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Fiske, now starring in "Ladies of the Jury" at the Blackstone theater, will be the speaker, and on Friday Leslie Banks, who is starring in "The Man in Possession" at the Selwyn, will be heard.

LEGION POSTS PLAN PARTIES AND DINNERS

Poorman to Be Guest at Winnetka Tomorrow

Niles Township post of the American Legion will hold a Valentine dance and party Saturday evening at Dilg's auditorium in Morton Grove. All Legionnaires are invited.

Other seventh district activities include a dinner to be given at 7 o'clock tomorrow night by Winnetka post in compliment to Arthur Poorman, state commander. The dinner will be held at the Community house in Winnetka. Ed Haase is chairman of the committee in charge.

For Wednesday night, North Town post has arranged a community program to consist of entertainment with Winfield H. Caslow as the speaker of the evening.

A Valentine party will be given by North Town post Saturday night, Feb. 14, at the dugout, 2354 Devon avenue. There will be cards and dancing, and a buffet supper will be served.

Robert Schmidt, tenor, will be heard in a group of ballads at a meeting of Lincoln Square post at the dugout, 4311 Lincoln avenue, on Friday night, Feb. 13. Mr. Schmidt will be accompanied at the piano by Ray Weber. A Filipino string duo will play native and American selections. Commander A. F. Monroe announces that the post has practically reached the 100 per cent mark in paid up membership for 1931, and predicts the roll will show 151 by the end of his administration.

Legionnaires of the north side are invited to attend the third camel dance of Lincoln Square post to be held Saturday night at Huntinghouse club, 4616 Clark street. George Faber, vice chairman of the dance committee, says the sale of tickets indicates a record attendance. The auxiliary unit of Lincoln Square post will receive the women of the sixth district on Feb. 4 at the dugout, 4311 Lincoln avenue. Mrs. Mina Law, president of the unit, will be acting hostess.

Announcement is made that Harold A. Taylor post, No. 47, under the leadership of its new commander, Andrew J. Cress, and Walter Ernest, membership chairman, is out to keep the lead as the largest post in the sixth district.

Advertising Men's post, No. 38, will be addressed at its meeting tomorrow noon by Dr. F. C. Chang, dean of Nan Kai university, China. His topic will be "The Present Situation in China and Its Meaning." Dr. Chang at present is lecturing at the University of Chicago on Chinese art, poetry, personalities, and political and economic affairs of his country.

At the Tuesday night meeting of Peoples Gas post, No. 336, Charles N. Wheeler, assistant to the president of the Illinois Power and Light company, related his experiences as a Tribune war scribe in Belgium during the world war. Roy Moffitt discussed the state program on Legion activities in Americanism. Bernard J. Mullaney vice president of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, made a short address.

Jane A. Delano "axillary," one of the most unusual of Legion organizations, has entered its second year with Nate T. Feldt as president; Jake Stahl, secretary; A. C. Sperling, sergeant-at-arms; Bill Wilson, chaplain; "Hank" Watson, membership, and "Ron" Cameron, publicity. The axillary is an outgrowth of a desire of Legion members to help the war nurses. A large membership to the axillary is desired and those interested in joining are asked to get in touch with Nate Feldt, 712 South Federal street; Jake Stahl, 8232 Vernon avenue, or Hank Watson, 8140 Merrill avenue.

Fred Busbey, chairman of the speakers bureau of the American Legion of the Illinois, will be the principal speaker at the second meeting of the Eighth district, American Legion auxiliary, Wednesday, at Holy Family hall, North Chicago. All Lake county Legionnaires are invited to attend.

Officers of the district and guests will attend a dinner given by the Sharvin unit of the auxiliary preceding the meeting. Mrs. Alice D. Hotchkiss is president of that unit.

Officers of the district are: Mrs. Harry M. Brown of Lake Forest, district director; Mrs. Grace B. Tibbals, alternate director; Mrs. Nora T. McShane of Waukegan, secretary and treasurer, and Miss Elizabeth Webb of Antioch, chaplain.

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB TO HEAR BISHOP FREEMAN

Bishop James E. Freeman of National cathedral, Washington, D. C., will speak before the Chicago Sunday Evening club tonight at Orchestra hall. His topic is to be "Sources of Supply."

An informal Bible talk by Clifford W. Barnes will open the services which will be broadcast through station WMAQ beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Child Radio Star

ANTONIA GILLMAN.

Playing important roles in two of W-G-N's regular features is 7 year old Antonia Gillman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Gillman, 2501 Farwell avenue. Antonia is in the second grade at St. Jerome's school, 1700 Morse avenue.

This last week she took the part of Dolly Summers, the little girl who has been missing in "Little Orphan Annie," and she also has the role of Tony in the W-G-N morning feature, "Painted Dreams."

TRAVELER AND AUTHOR TO TALK OVER W-G-N ON CHINESE THEATER

Kenneth Eagleton Foster, authority on Chinese drama, world traveler, lecturer, artist and writer, now director of the stage art and design department of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, will speak over W-G-N on "The Chinese Theater" during the Bookworm period from 5 to 5:30 oclock tomorrow afternoon.

KENNETH E. FOSTER.

On Tuesday afternoon during the Bookworm period, Clifton Utley, editor of Foreign Notes will speak on "Going through the Universe in 30 Minutes."

Neighborhood Theaters

Since seeing "The Princess and the Plumber," which opened Friday at the Granada theater, we wish our father had decided to be a plumber instead of just a lawyer. Then, maybe, we'd have had a chance to meet a real live princess, just as Charlie Peters [Charles Farrell] does in the picture. Especially a princess like Maureen O'Sullivan, who does a neat job of princessing.

This film, which was given three stars by Mae Tinée, is good, clean fun. You can take the whole family to see it. The plot is light, depending on the complications which arise when Charlie, a plumbing engineer, is sent by his father, a plumbing equipment magnate, to inspect a new heating plant installed in the palace. Kings, it is to be presumed, also observe Saturday nights.

Anyhow, Charlie meets the princess, and they promptly become gaga. Naturally, that leads to international and social complications. There is a light vein of satire in the piece, but no sarcasm. The satire, if we didn't imagine it, lies in the treatment of the European characters. We recommend H. B. Warner's portrayal of Prince Conrad XXI., or, as the subtitle reading woman who sat next to us said, "Prince Conrad, the double crosseye."

Winnie Lightner at Biograph.

"The Life of the Party," which opens at the Biograph theater today for a three day run, is a merry mix-up featuring Winnie Lightner and Charles Butterworth. Mae Tinée gave it three stars. Irene Delroy plays the part of a good girl who is goaded into gold digging and does some fancy fainting that would arouse the envy of a Phil Scott. Winnie is riotous as ever, and pulls many a chuckle out of the audience with her hard-boiled observations. Charlie Butterworth, as Col. Joy, the owner of a superstitious race horse, is droll. His matter-of-factness about anything that a person may care to mention is unceasingly a surprise. The trigger that set the audience to yelling "Yooohooo," however, was the performance of Charles Judels as M. Le Maire, a temperamental and ridiculous little dress shop owner.

On the same bill is "The Dancers," a two starred picture featuring Lois Moran, which is also at the Broadway Strand theater today with five vaudeville acts. This piece deals with society among the lumberjacks and in dance halls, as well as among m'lords and ladies of English aristocracy.

New House to Be Nortown.

The B. & K. theater being erected at Devon and Western avenues is to be called the Nortown, in deference to the wishes of the North Town Kiwanis club, North Town Legion post, and other organizations which wish to preserve the name North Town in as many businesses and institutions as possible. This is the first time the theater organization has consulted the wishes of a community in naming its theaters.

"Passion Flower" at Norshore.

Norshore fans will be treated to "Passion Flower" tomorrow and Tuesday. The picture was given two stars by Mae Tinée. Kay Johnson and Kay Frances take the roles of two rivals for the love of a liveried chauffeur, Charles Bickford, in "Passion Flower," an adaptation of the Kathleen Norris story.

American School of Air Lists Week's Programs

The American School of the Air will broadcast the following programs through the Columbia Broadcasting system at 2:30 each afternoon of this school week: Monday, "Morse and the Telegraph"; Tuesday, "The Boy Mozart"; Wednesday, "Silas Marner"; Thursday, "Art Songs of Russia," and Friday, "Vocational Guidance and Current Events."

VERNE BUCK PREFERS "SWEET MUSIC"; GIVES STRINGS THE LEAD

Verne Buck, director of the Drake hotel orchestra, heard each night except Sunday from W-G-N, is pioneering in a new orchestra combination with especial emphasis on stringed instruments.

Mr. Buck emphasizes what he calls "sweet music" and in order to keep it that way he has eliminated much brass and he prides himself on the fact that there is only one brass instrument in the organization, but a lot of fiddles and saxophones.

The personnel of his band and their home towns are:

Norman Sherr, piano, Waupaca, Wis.
Ray Ennis, drummer, Springfield, Ill.
George Physter, string bass, Las Vegas, Nev.
Hal White, guitar, crooner, Montreal.
Don Avelair, violin, Guadalajara, Mexico.
Ray Blewett, saxophone, flute, clarinet, and fiddle, Duluth, Minn.
Thal Taylor, arranger, saxophone, Petersburg, Ill.
John Camaron, saxophone, baritone soloist, Winnipeg.
Howard Davis, cornet and melophone, Muncie, Ind.
Eddie Copeland, saxophone, Duluth, Minn.

Davis formerly was with Roxy's Gang in New York, and Copeland traveled the country for many years with Sousa's band.

Mr. Talkie Steps Into Library, Opera Business

Furnishes Entertainment for Home Use.

By Tom Pettey.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The laboratory men have found a new job for Mr. Talkie. He is going into the library and opera business, among other things, and he is going to do his part in the home toward entertaining the family on long winter evenings. Meet Mr. Talkie divorced from the pictures. Take a peep at him standing in the fireplace corner, or snug in the spare side of the radio cabinet. He will be an old friend in the drawing room before another year.

There is a contraption in an electric company's laboratory about the size of a tin cracker box. There is a light at one end and several simple revolving spools in the middle. On top is a spool of film. The cracker box is connected to a loud speaker. The film resembles ordinary talkie celluloid except that the picture images are missing and instead of one sound track there are from twelve to sixteen.

Your Own Entertainment.

The sound tracks are continuous, one connecting with the other like a circle that gradually grows larger. The film is threaded through the machine, its two ends clipped together, the light is turned on, and here's what happens:

You hear the full score of an opera or as much as you want to; you may listen to the reading of a complete novel, or any other type of book; you may hear a lecture, the speech of a President, or that two hour address you delivered, yourself.

The opera, the book, or the lecture that lasts for two hours or more is recorded forever on a spool of celluloid about the size of a saucer. The same amount of talking, if recorded on an ordinary wax record, would call for a disc so large it would fill one corner of the room.

Another feature of the "recording film" is that it is almost impossible to distinguish between the original reader or singer and the reproduction. When ready for commercial use it will be as cheap or cheaper than the wax record method or recording.

A glimpse into the future, and a future not so far away, brings to view a great library to which one may go and rent a "film book," "film opera," or almost any kind of oral or type production. Then back to the fireside and easy chair.

There is no strain on the eye; the ear does all the work. It will be like having some one read to you whenever you wish, and if you want to entertain an opera loving guest you can give him the whole works instead of a couple of songs or choruses. The latest mystery thrillers can be "read" to an entire hospital full of patients at the same time; shut-ins need not miss their music, nor almost anything else, for that matter.

Old Favorites Back Again.

The making over of old motion pictures is becoming an entertainment menace. This business of making the old silents into brand new talkies is widening in scope until familiar pictures of a decade ago are in evidence everywhere. I would not be surprised to see some enterprising producer buy the old Charlie Chaplin silent comedies from that arch foe of the talkies and, with some other comedian, remake them nearer to the present day desire. It's an idea, anyhow.

Writing, as we were, of made over talkies brings to mind Tolstoi's "Resurrection," in which Blanche Walsh was seen both on the stage and screen years ago. About three years ago "Resurrection" provided a silent picture for Dolores Del Rio. Now the same old "Resurrection" has bobbed up at Roxy's with most of the music taken out of it and the text pretty much kicked about from the original novel. Well, "Resurrection" is a fitting title.

Then there is "Going Wild" at the Warner theater. The program states "Going Wild" was adapted to the screen from an original story by Humphrey Pearson, but the picture itself says the story is based on James Montgomery's "The Aviator." That being the case, this is the history of the piece: It was a stage comedy ten years ago. Then it grew into a musical comedy called "Going Up," and about a year ago there was a movie called "The Aviator," which was credited to the same Mr. Montgomery's yarn. There is some good trick flying in "Going Wild," however, that could not possibly have been in its earlier existences.

Let's go down Broadway a piece. There is a picture called "Ex-Flame," but do not let it fool you—it's "East Lynne" come back to town. Of course it has been modernized, right bang up to date, but it still retains the old pathetic appeal and flavors.

Gangster's Widow Protests.

The Pathé talking picture "Big Money," and one of the current gangster crop, crashed right into news page publicity the other day. Mrs. Mary Uale, widow of Frankie Uale, known to gangdom as Frankie Yale, who came to a violent death in Brooklyn a couple of years ago, announced she was going to talk it over with her lawyer about her husband's name being used in the film.

The talkie has the line, "I'll get you like they got Frankie Yale!"

Mrs. Uale, according to "roundabout" reports, went to a neighborhood movie in Brooklyn and was shocked to hear such mention of her husband. The same "round about" report has it that the widow is going to sue somebody.

Mrs. Uale confided her troubles to a reporter caller as follows:

"We Italian people we ashamed, you know. The children do not know anything about such things, that their father was such a kind of man. I tell them he was a good man—then comes this picture talk. Maybe my lawyer can tell me what I should do."

That big western, "Cimarron," brought a group of Hollywood stars to town for the premier. They slipped down to Washington to look at congress, but got back in time for the opening. The stars attending were Richard Dix, Estelle Taylor, Wesley Ruggles, and William Le Baron. The heroine in the picture version of Edna Ferber's novel, Irene Dunne, did not come east for the first showing.

NEW BARRYMORE

ETHEL BARRYMORE COLT.

SHE plays the role of Seraphine in "Scarlet Sister Mary," in which her mother has the title role, at the Harris. She is the most interesting stage debutante of the season, for she represents the ninth generation in the theatrical pedigree of the famous Drew-Barrymore family.

Mozart Quintet Fine Addition to Disk Library

Chamber Music Given Excellent Recording.

By Edward Moore.
[Tribune Music Critic.]

IN ONE form of music the needle and disk reproductions are quite likely to come through with a high score. That is chamber music. For that reason Columbia, issuing a volume of the Mozart Quintet in G minor, is entitled to a unanimous vote of thanks for a fine addition to the record library.

This is the fourth of Mozart's five quintets, falling under the special Mozartean publication number of Koechel 516. It is played by the Lener string quartet (Lener, Smilovitz, Roth, and Hartman), who made some splendid personal appearances in Chicago this season. For this composition they take to themselves a fifth artist, L. D'Olliviera, who plays the second viola part. In the Columbia listing it is Masterworks set No. 150.

A good deal, one believes a little too much, has been made in the accompanying booklet of the mood of "spiritual anguish" as crystallized by Mozart in this work. The trouble is that Mozart was not in the habit of writing himself up in that way. Neither was any other composer of his time. He was no Tschaikowsky. His music ranges from gay to plaintive, and the present quintet contains both moods. With unerring good taste, however, it is always music. So, instead of trying to interpret the quintet in terms of the composer's soul state, one comes out better by considering the melodic and harmonic imaginings that occurred to him at the time.

Mozart at His Best.

With these one cannot pick the slightest quarrel. They are Mozart at his finest—mellow, flexible, charming—and the addition of the second viola gives the score a little more firmness and richness than is possible with only four strings. That it is done with five and not four makes it a little less frequent in concert hearing and consequently adds to its value as a piece to own. As a matter of technical recording, it rates a high score.

Victor (Red Seal 9735, 9736, and 9737) obliges with "The Tragedy of Salome," by Florent Schmitt. Here is a case of a promising musician who never quite fulfilled his promise. Schmitt ranked twenty years ago as one of the white hopes of modernism and never seemed to get beyond that point. It is possible that his "Salome," composed as a ballet, was wiped out by Richard Strauss' more fleshly opera of the same name, though it is hard to escape the opinion that ideas about the opera are based more upon Oscar Wilde's libretto than Strauss' music.

At any rate, it would seem that the Schmitt score as presented by Victor is quite as good music, and in places even better. The prelude sets the "atmosphere" of the piece with great success, the "Voice from the Abyss" is highly dramatic, the "Enchantments on the Sea" are more good dramatic music, and the three dances, of the pearls, of the lightnings, and of fear, are rather better than what Strauss evolved with his "Dance of the Seven Veils." The set is excellently recorded by a European symphony orchestra under the direction of Piero Coppola.

Popular Selections.

In lighter vein:

The Durium hit-of-the-week record is No. 1120, "Cheerful Little Earful," played by the Vincent Lopez orchestra.

Brunswick vocal:

4972—"He's Not Worthy Your Tears" and "My Man from Caroline," by Marion Harris.

4949 — "My Baby Just Cares for Me" and "You're Simply Delish," by Frank Marvin.

4959—"Wasting My Love on You" and "Three Little Words," by Nick Lucas, "the crooning troubadour."

Brunswick instrumental:

4856—"Kalima Waltz" and "Kohala March," Hawaiian instrumental by Palakiko and Paaluhi.

Columbia race records:

14569-D—"Hot Springs Blues" and "Lookin' for My Man Blues," by Bessie Smith.

14567-D—"Yodel" and "Way Back Home," by the Birmingham quartet.

Rosa Ponselle Scores in Test Role of Opera

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Rosa Ponselle has passed the "supreme test" on the same stage where she jumped from vaudeville to grand opera twelve years ago.

She has added the rôle of Vicletta in "La Traviata" to her répertoire at the Metropolitan opera. This Verdi work always has been considered by critics as the acid test for coloratura sopranos. She sang the part for the first time last summer at Covent Garden, London.

It was in 1918 that Miss Ponselle, then singing in vaudevile with her sister, Carmela, attracted the attention of opera producers. They brought her to the Metropolitan to sing opposite Caruso in "La Forza del Destino." After that debut she was a star.

Sensational Versatility.

Her versatility was considered sensational and several works were produced for her, including "Gioconda," "L'Africans," "La Vestale," "Don Giovanni," and "Norma."

She sang the difficult part in "Norma" in 1927, the first time it had been produced in New York in thirty-six years.

One critic said she is the only one who is carrying on the traditions "of the bel canto school of singing when a soprano could sing any rôle written for a soprano, be it lyric, dramatic, or coloratura."

She is of Italian lineage, although she was born in Meriden, Conn. She has a slight scar on her forehead, where she was struck by a golf ball.

Sings on Short Notice.

Once she abandoned her own birthday party to sing an operatic rôle on thirty minutes' notice. Florence Easton was supposed to lead in Verdi's "Requiem Mass," but became ill at the last moment. Miss Ponselle was rushed to the opera house and arrived just as the curtain was ready to go up.

Another time, in 1928, her friends gave her a birthday party. The cake was decorated with thirty candles. When Miss Ponselle walked in she added another, saying that she really was 31 years old.

Her favorite sports are golfing and swimming. She spends her vacations in the south of France and in Italy.

She is to appear there about Easter in a new play. Mr. Banks will take ship soon after; he, too, is to appear in London in the spring in a new play called "The Mulberry Bush." But he is to return to the United States in the autumn.

'Trader Horn' Film Big Hit in Hollywood

Jungle Adventures Thrill Audience of Notables.

By Rosalind Shaffer.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—"Trader Horn," the biggest thrill of all talking pictures, opened recently at Grauman's Chinese theater to a most brilliant audience, which received this pictured account of the genial African trader's adventures with unreserved applause. White kid gloved hands beat together in applause that dislodged many an orchid and gardenia, roused to unusual enthusiasm over the beauty, horror and realism of this portrayal.

There were not too many actors in the picture. The animals with all their blood curdling cries of attack and death, and the native drums and choruses with their mesmerizing repetition of the same simple rhythm and phrase, were so powerful emotionally that the Hollywood audience in silks, furs and velvets went native and howled and pounded its applause, sometimes drowning the sounds and speech of this amazing film.

Real Dangers Encountered.

Hollywood can afford to be proud after the accomplishments represented in the production of "Trader Horn." The physical dangers and difficulties of that long location trip into deepest Africa have been told many times; but the seeing of the film revives the realization of the dangers encountered.

The scene in which Harry Carey, as Trader Horn, and Duncan Renaldo as Peru, and the black man club away four lions from a gazelle they desire for food is no camera trick. Crocodiles offered many dangers not shown on the film, at all, for in many instances unforseen accidents brought about thrilling scenes when no cameras were at hand. The night the lagoon full of alligators broke loose in the dark and the guards could not see their charges is still talked of by members of the company.

The cast of the picture is unique for one of its importance in film history for the two young leads are both unknowns, Duncan Renaldo as Peru and Edwina Booth as the girl. Harry Carey, known to film audiences, is perfect in the rôle of Horn.

The unfortunate affair revealed after the young people returned from Africa when the unknown husband of Miss Booth and the unknown wife of Renaldo made their dissatisfaction over the situation between Miss Booth and Renaldo a court matter can be understood easily when one sees the film. The dangers the young people encountered daily, the privations and the loneliness during the many months they were absent from civilization become obvious to the audience of the film.

Cast Makes Bow.

Following the showing of the picture, the cast was introduced from the stage by Wallace Beery. Edwina Booth, who seemingly was hypnotized by her rush to celebrity overnight, moved onto the stage as in a dream, white lace gown and white ermine coat contrasting with her golden hair. She bowed, and after a few halting words, moved off the stage like an automaton.

Harry Carey spoke briefly. Duncan Renaldo, limping, with a cane in his hand, took a bow. Two stalwart blacks, brought from Africa to complete studio shots in the film, appeared on the stage clad only in loin cloths and shoes and spoke to the audience in their native tongues. Beery, explaining, said, "He says: 'Trader Horn is a good picture, and so is 'Min and Bill.'" [This latter referring to Beery's recent hit.]

Galaxy of Lovely Gowns.

The opening, one of the big events of the year, was most important, socially and satorically. Constance Bennett, in white crêpe with sequins, wore a dyed ermine wrap; Mrs. Charles Bickford, beige lace and beige dyed ermine; Charlotte Greenwood, a gold brocaded gown with green velvet wrap banded in mink and quite long; Carmel Myers, black net sewn with gold sequins and gold short jacket; Joan Crawford, white satin closely fitting gown with a train, and panne velvet wrap of white with silver fox border; Bebe Daniels, white velvet ensemble with orchid corsage; Louise Fazenda, dull gold gown with gold brocaded wrap; Jean Harlow, white satin gown with white satin slippers trimmed in black velvet bandings and black velvet capelet.

Southern Accents.

Dear Miss Tinée: S. H. B., the southern girl that criticized the dialect used in "Dixiana" and other southern plays, evidently did not come from way down south but more likely is from West Virginia. West Virginians have more of an eastern accent and do not used the "you-all" or drop their r's.

My husband was a southerner and I spent many weeks in Alabama and I have had people from different parts of the south visit me, people of refinement and culture, and they all use the "you-all" and "I reckon," and drop their r's. How I love to hear their musical drawl.

I did not see "Dixiana," but from what I have been told about it I should judge some of the characters never coarse. It is hard to find any never coase. It is hard to find any one more polite than an old southern darky, but it is ridiculous for S. H. B to make the statement that even the colored people of the south do not use "you-all" and "I reckon."

Talking Over 'Scarlet Sister Mary' Reviews

Ethel Barrymore's Fate in Blackface Role.

By Charles Collins.

witty comedy of the drawing room type. It would be no trouble for her to rest upon a marshmallow following. This she has not done. To my mind Miss Barrymore's performance of 'Scarlet Sister Mary' had certain moments of high achievement.

"And let this, too, be marked to her credit: At a time when actors and producers have practically allowed the road to go over to the films by default, Miss Barrymore has turned trouper. If the stage does survive beyond the borders of Manhattan it will linger on largely on account of the courage of Ethel Barrymore in venturing into territory lately become a wilderness for the spoken play. I am aware of the fact that in these outposts much money has flowed into the Barrymore coffers. But she took the risk, and very few other players of her standing, or thereabouts, have been willing to try.

"It is easier to play with sure fire. I think that any energetic and experimental artist has a right to be proud of failures. It seems to me that Miss Barrymore has made her selections largely upon the question of what she wanted to do. She has not compromised or endeavored to meet popular taste seven-eighths of the way. And so I think she is deserving of a long cheer and a very public one. She has known what she wanted, and she has gone ahead to do it."

New in Chicago

"SOUR GRAPES," a new comedy by Vincent Lawrence, will have a premiere at the Adelphi theater tonight with Eugene O'Brien and Edna Hibbard as its co-stars. Mr. O'Brien is now returning to the stage after a successful career in the films. Miss Hibbard had the leading rôle in "Sisters of the Chorus" here last summer. The author of "Sour Grapes" is best known from the success of his "Two Fellows and a Girl," about ten years back.

"Cherries Are Ripe" begins an engagement at the Erlanger theater tomorrow night with Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque, well known personages of the films, as its co-stars. This play is a comedy by John Emerson and Anita Loos of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," etc. Others in the cast are Richie Ling, Gavin Muir, Janet Fox-Lee, Bert Wittly, Julie Chandler, and Juan Varro.

Oldest Actor?

"THE STUDENT PRINCE," now in revival at the Majestic theater, New York, has in its cast an actor who is believed to be the oldest player active on the American stage. He is Adolph Link, who has the part he played in the original cast when the piece was produced in 1924. He is 79 years old, and considers De Wolf Hopper, who is only 72, a mere babe in arms.

Mr. Link, a Hungarian by birth, made his stage début in Budapest in 1861 when he was ten years old, and has been an actor ever since—a matter of almost seventy years. In point of actual service he believes himself to be the oldest actor in the world. He came to this country in 1881 to play in German at the Irving Place theater, New York.

Home Town Boy.

Maurice Browne is now operating a Little theater in London and has 3,000 subscribers. His mid-winter productions will be "Betrayal," by Leonid Andreieff, author of "He Who Got Slapped," and "Happy and Glorious," by Wilfred Walter. The latter is a leading member of the Stratford-upon-Avon Shakespeare company.

ISABEL JEANS.

SHE appears in "The Man in Possession," at the Selwyn theater, as co-star with Leslie Banks. She comes from London with a reputation for beauty and talent. This is her first season on the American stage.

Show Business Better in East; Plans of Guild

Schnitzler's 'Lonely Way' Follows 'Elizabeth.'

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The Theater Guild will remove "Elizabeth the Queen" from the Martin Beck five weeks hence, not because business is falling off but because the subscribers in other cities must be taken care of. The tour will begin in Boston March 9. For "Elizabeth's" successor, the guild will stage Arthur Schnitzler's "The Lonely Day," with Tom Powers, Glenn Anders, Violet Kemble Cooper and Joanna Roos in the cast.

Theatrical trade along Broadway seems to be improving. Let the business cycle experts make note of the fact. For example, "Five Star Final" is doing so well that Manager Woods has lifted the tariff from $3.00 to $3.85. And Noel Coward's "Private Lives," with the author and Gertrude Lawrence as stars, is the sort of thing that is called a "smash hit" by the boys who dawdle along the curbing of the Lighted Lane.

It seems as if Broadway will celebrate seven premieres, or more, a week hence. Among the listings are Katherine Cornell in her new play about Elizabeth Barrett Browning and spouse; "America's Sweetheart," a big musical show of which much is expected; "Dr. X," which is said to be extremely mysterious; "The Gay Nineties," and "Gemini."

David Belasco has turned the corner of his illness and is definitely on the mend. So much so that he is talking about celebrating his seventy-eighth birthday next July with a new production. His "It's a Wise Child" will close its career in Boston next Saturday after eighty weeks in New York and on the road.

Helen Morgan is appearing at the Palace this week, and will enjoy a little vaudeville tour while she is thinking about another part as good as the heroine of "Sweet Adeline." It is likely that she will go to work for Mr. Ziegfeld in the fall . . . Gino Malo, who succeeded Lily Damita in "Sons O' Guns" and made a favorable impression, is a possibility for a new musical comedy called "Making Mary," which is now in rehearsal.

If any one is curious about what happens to stage settings after their immediate usefulness has ended, listen to this: The impressive glimpse of the Acropolis of Athens designed by Norman Bel-Geddes for "Lysistrata" was recently carted off to a Long Island dumping ground and burned. Manager Sparkes couldn't give it away, and had to pay $10 a load [six loads] for its cartage to the funeral pyre.

Bartlett Cormack's dramatization of Somerset Maugham's story, "The Painted Veil," was not admired by the novelist, and so it will go into the discard. Mr. Maugham says he will do the job himself. . . . Having found "Purity" lacking as a vehicle for her stellar reputation, Florence Reed will return to her rôle of Mother Goddam in "The Shanghai Gesture." She will begin a tour of the Pacific coast cities on Feb. 15. Seattle is her starting point.

Via London arrives the news that the Abbey theater of Dublin will come to this country early next fall for a six months' tour. This will be the Abbey company's first American visit since 1914, although various players who have been identified with it have acted here in the intervening years. It is planned to bring over a repertory of about a dozen plays, the authors named being Sean O'Casey, Lady Gregory, Yeats, Singe, George Shiels, and T. C. Murray.

"Mrs. Moonlight" Coming.

It is likely that Benn W. Levy's play called "Mrs. Moonlight," current in New York, will be shown in Chicago this season, with Edith Barrett, Guy Standing, Haidée Wright, and Leo Carroll in the cast. Mr. Levy is the author of "Art and Mrs. Bottle," wherein Jane Cowl will act Feb. 23 in the Harris for the Dramatic league.

Edith Barrett is the granddaughter of Lawrence Barrett, who was Edwin Booth's co-star in the long ago.

English Play Began Life in Alien Tongue

LESLIE BANKS of "The Man in Possession" says that this play was originally written in French, although there isn't a trace of French idiom to be discerned in the current performances in the Selwyn. Mr. Banks' tale is that its author, H. M. Harwood, became interested in a light comedian named Berrier, whom he saw in a farce in one of the Paris theaters; decided that he had in him the makings of another Sacha Guitry, and decided to provide a play for the youth. "The Man in Possession" was that play, conceived and written as a French comedy, with the French equivalents of a Mayfair widow, a London bailiff, a middle class London merchant, and so on.

Then Berrier fell from grace in the eyes of the small Paris clientéle he had built up: some social faux-pas became sufficiently public to upset his career; and he gave up the stage and went into business with a provincial uncle. Capt. Harwood thereupon translated his own play into his native English, adapted it to a London locale, and staged it in his own London theater, the Ambassadors, where it ran a year less eight days.

Seventeen Hits

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—[Special.]—The ticket brokers, who are up and doing along Broadway again after the collapse of the noble experiment of the League of New York Theaters, are the boys who can tell what the successes are. They agree in naming "Grand Hotel" as the most popular play of the winter season. They also give honorable mention to the following:

"Girl Crazy," "Elizabeth the Queen," "Once in a Lifetime," "The Vinegar Tree," "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," "Three's a Crowd," "The New Yorkers," "The Truth Game," "Fine and Dandy," "Tonight or Never," "Five Star Final," "The Greeks Had a Word for It," "The Green Pastures," "Mrs. Moonlight," "Sweet and Low," "You Said It."

That makes seventeen hits all raging at once. Which is not so bad for a theatrical season that hasn't had many kind words said about it by the business men of the theater.

B'way Openings

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Broadway will get only two new plays this week, both of them by debutant authors. Here are the announcements:

"Rock Me, Julie"—Opens Tuesday night at the Royale. Kenneth Raisbeck will be introduced as author by a play which will have Helen Menken and Paul Muni as its stars. Others in the cast will be Wanda Lyon, Dorothy Sands, James Spottswood, and Jean Adair.

"In the Best of Families"—Opens Tuesday night at the Bijou. This farce comedy is the work of Anita Hart and Maurice Braddell, although Russell Medcraft, a fairly familiar figure in the Broadway scene, is reported to have given them some assistance. Acting in the play will be Charles Richman, Grace Filkins, Florence Edney, Lenore Sorsby, Mary Arbenz, John Brewer, and Enid Romany.

The People's Choice.

Gregory Ratoff of "Three Little Girls," at the Great Northern, isn't boasting, but every attraction he has been associated with has had a long run in Chicago. Starting with "Castles in the Air," Ratoff's connection with a show seems to assure the attraction a run in this city. "Castles in the Air" played in Chicago forty-seven weeks. Then came "Tenth Avenue," a dramatic piece which Ratoff and his co-players found good Chicago theatergoing fare for twelve weeks.

Last summer he brought "Candle Light" to the Princess, with his wife, Eugenie Leontovich, as star, for thirteen weeks. Now he is playing the rôle of the Baron von Biebitz-Biebitz in "Three Little Girls," which may or may not be the reason for the fact that this gay Viennese operetta of the Messrs. Shubert is now in its twentieth week in the Great Northern.

Old Theater Tradition Is Found Foolish

'Play Must Go On' Results in Poor Performance.

By Burns Mantle.

Connelly, his leading support, was likewise ill. It was not possible for either of them to do justice to the Schnitzler play, to themselves, or their management. The audience was quite sure to be disappointed, and the chances of failure were thereby greatly increased. In any event, the best the audience could get for its expenditure of time and money was a second rate performance for which it had paid a first rate price.

Mr. Blau was unhappy. His opening night performance, he assured me, had been ruined because of the physical depression of his leading actors. The reviews had been none too enthusiastic and now, Mr. Schildkraut being obliged to stop the performance like that—well, show business was certainly one thing if it wasn't another.

I felt sorry for the young manager. It is a pretty tough season in the theater, especially for revivals. And he had just closed William Bolitho's "Overture," which was honest drama and deserving of something better than failure. But——

The fact remains that he would have been a wiser man if he had taken such loss as a postponement might have cost him before he opened his play rather than afterward, and that he would have been playing much more fairly with his audience.

Schildkraut has had considerable success in pictures since he left Broadway, with something of the glamor of his triumph in "The Firebrand" still trailing him. He is one of those players who has mastered the technique of his job, but is much happier in character than in straight parts.

An Over-rated Play.

Then, too, I have always thought "Anatol" an overrated entertainment. The young man's adventures with his various loves, lost or lingering, necessarily is epidemic and only occasionally stirs the romantic interest in which it is supposed to be immersed. Anatol hypnotizes Hilda, whom he suspects of unfaithfulness, and is then afraid to ask her. He quarrels with Emily, who has been receiving gifts from other men. He is put in his place by Bianca, the circus queen, who might remember his name, but has certainly forgotten his face.

He meets the lost Gabrille for a fleeting glimpse of what might have been. He receives his congé from Mimi even before he can give her hers, and he watches the irate Lona tear down the flat the morning he tells her he is going to his wedding.

Of these only the Gabrielle incident is really appealing. Gabrielle is married now and should be happy. She meets Anatol at a cab stand in the arcade. And as they wait for the cab and recall the day when Anatol was importunate and Gabrielle was timid they build a picture of a lost romance that has value and therefore plays much better than the others. Patricia Collinge is the current Gabrielle and the hit of the women. Katherine Emmet was Barrymore's Gabrielle and she, too, scored a personal success in the rôle.

Schildkraut's other flames are represented by Dennie Moore, Anne Forrest, Elena Miramova, Miriam Hopkins, and Ruthelam Stevens. None of them is very good.

College Comedy Again.

Lou Holtz, the Yiddisher dialect boy from the varieties, has had a part written for him in a musical piece called "You Said It," a college comedy on the order but hardly up to the standard of "Good News."

Mr. Holtz is a Jewish boy working his way through dear old Kenyon and he is momentarily discouraged when three of the leading seniors suddenly appear before him with "K. K. K." letters on their sweaters. After his matriculation he organizes things. The laundry business, the Greek restaurant, the baggage delivery. Soon he is not only getting along finely as a freshman but sending money home. Finally he saves the hero from arrest as a bootlegger and helps him with his suit for the hand of the soprano, who is, if you have not already guessed it, none other than Helen Holloway, the dean's daughter.

"How's business?" Mr. Holtz inquires suddenly of one of his aids. "How's the restaurant business? The store business? The baggage business?"

"Good! All good," responds the aid.

"What's the matter—has Hoover resigned?" demands the startled Holtz. Which pleases the Democrats.

He is practically against the custom of the girls wearing the boys' frat pins. Let that custom spread, insists Lou, and it won't be any time before every chambermaid in the country will be wearing an Elk's tooth.

"You Said It" is fresh and frivolous, noisy and spirited, as you might expect, but not bad fun nor too awfully coarse. The cast includes Mary Laylor and Stanley Smith, a good looking boy brought over from the talkies. Lyda Roberti, an angular Polack whose papa is famed as a clown in Europe and who was herself a bareback rider in the continental circuses, has joined as an eccentric comedienne and has a lot of fun. Audiences like her and I hear attractive offers have already been made by the ever active scouts of the cinema for her services.

Surveying the Theaters.

We are still muddling through a curious season, a season spotted with such outstanding dramatic hits as "Grand Hotel," "Elizabeth the Queen," and Barry's new "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," and yet has little more in the way of drama to offer.

Statisticians have counted up and find that but 34 of Broadway's 66 legitimate theaters are housing what might be called legitimate entertainments. A year ago there were 49 of them so occupied, two years ago 52, and three years ago 58. Well, we can very well do without 58 theaters. We can get on nicely with 34, or 24, if some little care is taken to fill them with entertainments worth seeing.

Many funny things have barged into the theater business the last several years. I'm for the continued shaking of the sieve until the rest of them fall through into the ash cans, which should be their native habitat.

Armchair Playgoer

By Fanny Butcher.
IN NEW YORK.

NOEL COWARD.

Noel Coward's "Private Lives" opened on Tuesday evening. On Friday the acting version of the play was published by Doubleday-Doran, thus bringing to armchair playgoers the truth about the tales that have percolated from England to the effect that the bills for destruction of chattels in "Private Lives" are more like the movies than the active economies of the last few years in the drama. There is a good knockdown fight between a lady and a gentleman in which assorted articles like lamps and brandy glasses and gramophone records are shattered to bits.

"Private Lives" is a play about love in its more active moments. It opens with two honeymoon couples, in one of which the husband and in the other of which the wife have been married to each other and divorced. In each couple the other previously unmarried member insists upon comparing the second with the first honeymoon.

Nerves are all edgy when, by chance, the man and woman who had loved and fought and parted forever, legally, meet on the terrace from which their respective suites lead. They make their mutual discoveries that they are both honeymooning, sarcastically wish one another happiness and hasten to persuade their spouses to leave instanter. Each set has a scene, nothing is accomplished but more nerve jangling, and the husband of one and the wife of another go down to dinner in a huff, while the husband and wife, once removed, rage in their separate corners.

The moonlight, frayed nerves and their love which has smoldered all through the five years of their separation all combine and they run away together. The famous battle scene is in the second act where they are lolling in a renewed passion during the waves of the battle charges. It is farce with a sting of reality in it; satire bending toward slaystick. Showing, in Mr. Coward's usual snappy fashion, how human beings are, after all.

The "burthen" of the play seems to be that true love flourishes on a well aimed swat. Love seems to have altered slightly in its manifestations since Mr. Tennyson chronicled his Idyls. The Lily Maid of Astolat, fading with almost sadistic joy and achieving her high moment when she floated down the river on a bier, seems remote from Amanda Prynne, smashing a gramophone record over the head of her ex-husband in her high moment of bliss. "Private Lives" ought to be a great comfort to a great many married people we know, on that delightful old theory that misery does love company.

Prof. Davis Edwards of the department of public speaking will give his fourth lecture recital on the contemporary drama on Tuesday at 6:45 p. m. at Fullerton hall, Art institute. He will read and discuss "Marco Millions" by Eugene O'Neill.

AN ARTIST OF THE DANCE

RUTH PAGE
[Goldberg Photo.]

SHE claims Chicago as a residence, but her dancing career has carried her from Ravinia to Japan and from New York to Russia, not to mention side trips to all parts of the United States and South America. She will give a dance recital at the Playhouse this afternoon, and on February 8 and 9 she is scheduled to take an important part in the performance of Strávinsky's "The Story of a Soldier" at the Goodman theater.

'Julius Caesar' Is Presented to Musical Gotham

Juilliard Students Give Handel's Opera.

By Joan King.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—In Gotham's musical bill of fare, concertgoers of the week have found much of the novel, for example there was the first performance in New York of Handel's opera, "Julius Caesar," given by the Juilliard Graduate school, under the baton of Albert Stoessel.

The hearing was probably the first here, not only on "Julius Caesar," but also of any Handel work formally classed as opera. It is reported that the Handel opera has been frequently heard in Germany during the last ten years, but in America its performance has been confined to that series of early opera which the Smith college music department has been sponsoring. The work was given in this series in May, 1927.

Composed in 1723, it was first performed in London in 1724 with Italian text. The scene is laid in Egypt about the same period as Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra." Following the operatic style of the period it comprises a succession of recitatives and arias. For the performance under Mr. Stoessel a cast of members of the school's opera classes and an orchestra of student instrumentalists served. The work was offered in accordance with the Juilliard policy of presenting unfamiliar works and as a benefit for unemployed musicians.

"Gaelic" Symphony.

As the principal number of its fourth concert of the season's subscription series, the Manhattan Symphony orchestra, under Henry Hadley's leadership, presented the "Gaelic" symphony, by America's dean of women composers, Mrs. H. H. Beach. This work was first given by the Boston Symphony orchestra under Emil Paur in May 1896 and in New York at the Brooklyn Academy of Music the following March. At the time of its initial hearings the work was favorably received and still commands respect. Indeed, it is generally considered to have few superiors among American works in the same form.

In addition to the Beach work the orchestra offered two soloists, Claudio Frigerio, Metropolitan Opera baritone, and Rosa Polnaroff, violinist. Mr. Frigerio sang "Eri Tu," from Verdi's "Un Ballo in Maschera" and Miss Polnaroff gave Paganini's D major concerto. The orchestra played the overture to Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus."

Demonstrating the place which interpretive dancing has attained here during the last several seasons, the Civic Repertory theater was sold out Sunday evening, for the first appearance this year of Benjamin Zemach, pantomimist and dancer. This was the second New York recital to be given by Mr. Zemach, late of the Moscow Habima. His reception on this occasion, which, due to the fact that he had with him his newly organized group, amounted practically to a debut, and was sufficiently enthusiastic to be called a triumph.

A Hebrew Ballet.

Mr. Zemach has undertaken to found what he calls a Hebrew ballet. He has trained a group of eleven girls and five men in the forms and rhythms of tribal compositions.

Sunday night his offerings included a small group in the third of the Palestinian folk songs, "The Night"; the whole group in a pictorial sketch entitled "Cheder," or old time village school scene; "The People and the Prophet," based on a passage from Hosea and performed to special music by Joseph Schillinger, and "Farewell to Queen Sabbath," a piece depicting chassidic rites at the close of the Lord's day. Zemach's solo, "Beggar Dance," was a brilliant example of his work, placing him in the front rank of his contemporaries.

Public Shows Great Interest in the Dance

By Edward Moore.

D. Williams, Arthur Thomas Fletcher Jr., John W. Warren, and Wilda Van Kirk-Foster will sing the solo parts.

Eva Gordon Horadesky, contralto; Paul Mallory, tenor; Ennio Bolognini, cellist, and Joseph Rosenstein, violinist, have offered their services in a musical, tea, and art exhibition to be given by the Friendly Aid society at the old Potter Palmer home on Tuesday afternoon.

Mu Phi Epsilon, a national honorary musical sorority, has taken over the music department of Gad's Hill center with the idea of developing a settlement music school of high standards. Private and class lessons will be given at nominal rates in piano, voice, violin, cello, theory, and band and orchestral instruments. Choruses and orchestras will be organized.

Lillian Braden is the director in charge. The chapters giving financial support are Iota Alpha of the Chicago Musical college, Sigma of Northwestern university school of music; Mu Iota of the Columbia school of music, Mu Xi of the American Conservatory of Music, and the Chicago Alumnae club.

A fraternity of the fine arts, Phi Mu Gamma, has recently added the names of Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini to its roll of honorary members. They thereby join a list that includes Otis Skinner, E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, Lorado Taft, Herbert Witherspoon, Carl Sandburg, Mrs. Fiske, Mme. Aurelia Arimondi, and many other celebrities.

YOUNG Chicagoans, photographed recently in beguiling poses, include Bobby Ames, the 5 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton L. Ames Jr., who are going soon to their winter place at Nassau in the Bahamas; Darrell and Denman Boyd, twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell S. Boyd of Winnetka; Nathalie Bell, daughter of the Laird Bells of Hubbard Woods, and her mother's namesake; Richard H. Mabbatt Jr., whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Mabbatt of Lake Forest, and Bronson Hart Fargo and Charles Henry Jr., sons of the Charles H. Fargos. (Their mother has been working hard for the Olivet institute benefit concert given by Gigli at the Opera house this afternoon.)

Private Parties Usurp the Stage of N. Y. Society

Deems Taylor, Noel Coward Guests of Honor.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—There is quite a potpourri of social things at present. With all the set pieces finished, the intimate affairs are having their innings. What with notables arriving from abroad, backgammon, trips in a hurry to Havana, with an over night of two days' stay at Palm Beach, and equally quick trips to Lake Placid and Montreal, life is worth living. And then, we have been having weather here that couldn't be nicer. We can truthfully say we haven't had one day during which snow really fell.

However, the intimate season is on. The William May Wrights, who go in for things as musical as they are Bohemian, are giving a huge party on Saturday in honor of Deems Taylor and Noel Coward, and every one who imagines he or she counts in society will barge into the Wrights' music room in their new place at 322 East 57th street.

Mrs. Wright is, of course, the Cobina Wright who gives recitals of her own, and Bill and she are in the foremost ranks of the social musical world. Deems Taylor's new opera is soon to startle us at the Met—and when I think of his last opus, "The King's Henchman," I wish him better luck. Even with Edna St. Vincent Millay's libretto, the opera never took. Gatti didn't present it once this season, or last, if I'm not greatly mistaken.

Another Peck's Bad Boy.

Noel Coward is the Peck's bad boy of New York, as well as of London. His new play is here in which he stars with Gertrude Lawrence, and he will be surrounded by a bevy of Anglo-American stars at Cobina and Bill's party, including Tallulah Bankhead, Gertie Lawrence, the Astaires, Sir Guy Standing, and dozens of others.

All the social world from Mrs. Auchincloss to Mrs. Zabriskie will be present, and every one will say, I know that the Wrights are giving the sort of parties nowadays that Condé Nast gave before he married again.

* *

A Notable Wedding.

New York as well as Boston is interested in the marriage of Louis Agassiz Shaw and Florence Henry Michell, which took place in the Michell home in Philadelphia, this week.

Louis Shaw is representative of one of Boston's oldest families and the Back Bay notables are much concerned over his new bride. Florence is the daughter of the Henry Michells, who first came into notice when they invaded Newport, some ten years ago. An older sister, Helen, was engaged to the late Oliver B. Harriman and subsequently married Allen Weller Morton. Now, Florence is become Mrs. Louis Agassiz Shaw, a name which carries weight not only in Boston, but in New York and Newport as well.

Helen Michell Morton was her sister's matron of honor at the wedding, which was a small affair, and Quincy Adams Shaw II. was his brother's best man. There were no other attendants and no ushers.

Milford-Havens Arrive.

There was a flurry last week when the Majestic brought in Lord and Lady Milford-Haven. After all, a marquis is only second to a duke, and this marquis is a royal one.

With the Milford-Havens arrived Lady Tichborne and Countess Otto Salm von Hoogstraeten, who is the wife of the brother of the famous Count Salm who married Millicent Rogers and simply usurped the spotlight for ages. Now we never hear of him, for I understand that he will never come back to New York and we shall not see his impressive and beautifully tailored figure again.

Easterners Visit Newport to Put Villas in Order

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Inspection of estates against the coming season is in order at present. Commodore and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James have been here this week looking over Beacon Hill house. The commodore and Mrs. James leave shortly for their winter home, Four Winds, at Miami.

Mrs. Herbert C. Pell has arrived from New York and is to be with Mr. Pell at their Pellevue avenue place for a fortnight. Col. and Mrs. Ellis P. Miller have taken an apartment at the Viking for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Snowden A. Fahnestock, who were inspecting their new villa, Ker Arvor, this week have returned to New York. Also departing for the metropolis were Mr. and Mrs. William T. Andrews, Mrs. Henry Mixter, and Mrs. George B. Wright.

Dinner Honoring Coolidges Is Event of Week at Boston

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—An event of the week here was the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Clement H. Kennedy of Swampscott in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Coolidge. Others at the dinner, held at the Belleview Country club, were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Nawn and Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Bottome.

Women Joining Ranks of Miami Polo Players

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—No less gay than other seasons, but noticeably more informal, is the trend of the beach society this year. Sports, as ever, share attention with the social amenities, and polo at the Nautilus field attracts many parties on the afternoons of the games.

An addition of interest are the two women's teams which are composed of society girls who play for their own amusement in the mornings. Sunday morning usually finds some of them mounted on their ponies and glorying in the swing of the clubs and the race down the smooth green field.

One of the most attractive feminine players is Miss Helen Hertz, daughter of John Hertz of Chicago, who is himself an enthusiastic participant in the tournaments.

Chicagoans Cruise on Yacht.

Yachting parties have preëminence in popularity, it seems, and a series of those functions is being anticipated by the winter colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Law of Chicago are on a trip on board their yacht, Robador, this week end. They left, with Mr. and Mrs. Newell Vaughan and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Norwood as their guests, for a cruise to Nassau. Dr. Norwood is rector of St. Bartholomew's church in New York.

Small cabana parties are claiming their part in the daily social calendar, with numerous members of the colony entertaining at the various clubs.

Much of the social activity at the beach revolves around the Surf club and interest attends the announcement of the change of plan for the weekly informal dances. Instead of having the dances on Tuesday evenings they will take place on Saturday evenings.

Tonight the gala Andalusian ball of the club will be held with the building decked in Spanish colors and with Spanish shawls and dress predominating among the guests. Next Saturday there will be another informal dance, and then on Feb. 14 will be the Samarkand party. One of the most elaborate of all Surf club affairs will be the gold and silver ball Feb. 28.

Party at Home of Gar Wood.

More than 200 members of the committee of 100 were present last Tuesday at the home of Gar Wood on Miami Beach. Charles F. Kettering, Cyrus H. K. Curtis, Howard C. Coffin, and Harvey S. Firestone were among the speakers and more than fifty guests were introduced.

Guest and yacht lists for the annual Cocolobo City club outing, which was held last Friday, closed more than a week before the outing, so many of the members had arrived at the beach and had entered their yachts.

Applications for tickets for the third annual ball of the committee, which will be a charity affair, and the proceeds given to local charities, are coming in rapidly. All those receiving invitations have been asked to make their applications for tickets as soon as possible, as the attendance has been limited to 200 couples.

Boating Events Enliven Days at St. Petersburg

Outboard Regatta, Week-End Cruises Carded.

By John Lodwick.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The arrival of several nationally known yachtsmen, coupled with a series of boating events, focused the attention of the visitors' colony on the water front during the last week.

Senator Truman H. Newberry and Mrs. Newberry arrived Wednesday at the central yacht basin in their new Truant, which is making its maiden trip in Florida. They cruised here from Daytona in the craft, which is a 120 foot cruising houseboat. Their guests include Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jewett and Miss Eleanor Jones.

Walter P. Murphy of Chicago and members of his party, who have been spending the last week at the Hotel Soreno, left Friday in their sailing yacht, the Intrepid, for a South American cruise via the Panama canal. The party plans to return next fall.

Thirty-five auxiliary and cabin cruisers, led by Commodore L. L. McMasters of the local yacht club, are making a week-end cruise of Tampa bay, and several Chicago visitors are among the guests sailing with the fleet. They assisted in staging the outboard regatta today at Bradenton, and will spend the night anchored at Bunch's Pass and sail to Pass-a-Grille tomorrow to assist in another outboard regatta.

Huge Attendance at Ball.

Chief among the social events of the week was the charity ball at the Hotel Vinoy Park, which was attended by approximately 2,000 members of the winter colony from almost all the metropolitan centers of the nation, including, of course, a prominent roster of Chicago guests.

Mrs. John Coolidge was guest of honor Thursday morning at a bridge breakfast given on the beach terrace of the Hotel Don Ce-Sar by Mrs. Herman Dann. Among the guests were Mrs. John Trumbull, Mrs. Clement Kennedy, Mrs. A. F. Thomasson, Mrs. F. J. Burns, Mrs. George Cummings, Mrs. R. C. Vilas, Mrs. C. C. Fleet, Mrs. Phillip Reddy, Mrs. George Walker, Mrs. Fred Ramsey, Mrs. J. F. Rutland, Mrs. A. V. Laughner, Mrs. Allen Grazier, Mrs. William De Beck, Mrs. Sterling Bottome, Mrs. Phillip Dann, Mrs. J. C. Tuilatt, Mrs. Charles Lyon, Mrs. Fred Bell, Mrs. J. E. Walker, Mrs. Warren Lassing, Mrs. Robert Lassing, Mrs. J. L. Kelley, Mrs. Paul Randolph, Miss Veronica Sauer, and Miss Martha Harris.

British Bowling Team Arrives.

The realm of sports was enlivened during the week by the long anticipated arrival of the 35 members of the British bowling team, who came from England to take part in the national bowling tourney here and to make a tour of Florida's rinks after a stay of three weeks in this city.

Among those joining the Chicago colony at the Hotel Vinoy Park during the current fortnight were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Clark, Mrs. Pauline King of the Edgewater Beach hotel, Mrs. L. V. Hippach of Evanston, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Bodine of Oak Park, Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Nafis of Evanston, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Parks of Chicago were among the arrivals of the week at the Hotel Jungle.

Chicago arrivals at the Soreno included Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Castle and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Remmer, who are here for a brief stay before continuing a motor tour of the state.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York:

Chicago, May 26, 1876.

DEAR JULIA:

While I am sitting waiting for Will to come in for 12 o'clock dinner I shall begin a letter to you. Ordinarily he comes home from the office at noon, Michael driving over for him, but today Michael hasn't returned and no sign of Will. There is a big law case on—the trial of a collector of revenue on a fraud charge—and Will is assisting Mr. Benjamin F. Ayer and Mr. Wirt Dexter on the government side. Will admires these men very much, and says that Mr. Ayer's speech this afternoon, occupying three hours, was a masterly effort.

Opposing them is the celebrated Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, poet, barrister and infidel, of Peoria, and with such an array of talent the courtroom has been crowded with interested spectators and budding lawyers.

Have you ever heard Col. Ingersoll speak on religion? Perhaps not. I imagine his fame is somewhat local, or, at least, statewide, but he draws great crowds here. It hurts me terribly to hear him inveigh against religion as he does, but one cannot help admiring his honesty. Will says there is no office in the gift of the people Col. Ingersoll could not have if he would renounce his atheistic beliefs or keep them in abeyance. Instead he flings the gauntlet down on every occasion before ministers and church people in general, flaunting his infidelity in their faces. Well, perhaps we need such an adversary to make us more faithful to our beliefs.

As a lawyer he has been most successful, and one cannot wonder, for, aside from his talent, he is handsome and distinguished in appearance. His high forehead looks as if a giant intellect lay behind it, and his smooth shaven face [contrasting with the beards worn by most men] enables the play of his feelings to be noted as he dramatizes his utterances.

In contrast to Col. Ingersoll another person is much in evidence in Chicago just now. This is Mr. D. L. Moody, who has recently returned from Europe, where he was warmly received and where he made many converts. Mr. Moody, as a young man, was not popular with church people, but this was, I think, because they did not understand him. Among people of note in Chicago the only one who supported him wholeheartedly was Mr. J. V. Farwell, who gave money and sympathy to his cause. Now the world acclaims Mr. Moody as a remarkable evangelist and he has won the respect of everyone. Will says that Mr. Moody's trip to Europe has mellowed him and that he isn't quite so hard on old Apollyon as he used to be. I suppose with him, as with us all, maturity has brought a degree of tolerance. As we get on in years we realize that there is good in those who do not believe as we do.

Mr. Moody is staying at the J. V. Farwells, awaiting the completion of his new church, at the corner of Chicago and La Salle avenues, which is to be dedicated in a day or two.

June 2.

I was interrupted at that point and laid my letter aside. My news is rather stale now, but I will not rewrite the letter. It will serve to take my love to you and to let you know a little of what we are doing here in Chicago.

I must tell you that Byron

Golf Tourney Is Feature of Week at St. Augustine

Club Champions Compete for Travis' Trophy.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Dinner dances which have proved so popular in previous seasons will be inaugurated next Saturday evening at the St. Augustine Links club house, under the management of Thomas E. Byron.

Many reservations have been made for this affair, which serves as a fitting climax to the winter golf classic, the annual national amateur championship of golf club champions, to be staged on the St. Augustine links Feb. 3 to 7.

More than one hundred club champions will compete in this event for the Walter J. Travis Memorial trophy. Prominent golfers entered include T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur champion; John B. Ryerson, former Yale star; Staley J. Harte, New York university star; Carl Dann Jr., A. C. Ulmer, and Albert R. Hakes. Entries from Illinois include J. A. Ludd Jr. of Beverly Country club, Chicago; L. Paul Lecour of Kankakee Country club, Kankakee, and G. P. Graham of Monmouth Country club, Monmouth.

Benefit for Flagler Hospital.

Plans are complete for the annual George Washington's birthday charity ball, given for the benefit of charity patients in the Flagler hospital. The ball will take place Feb. 23 in the Alcazar Casino, under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Leonard Outhwaite. Miss Amey MacMillen is treasurer and Mrs. Henry N. Rodenbaugh is secretary. An efficient committee has been appointed by the various chairwomen.

Mrs. Louise Wise Louis is chairman of music; Mrs. George W. Jackson is in charge of decorations. Assisting Mrs. Jackson are the Mesdames Cyril C. Spades of Chicago, Vivian Collins, Vernona Lockwood, Arthur Buckner Barrett, Robert H. Gamble, C. A. Lamont, Charles Leyvraz, J. W. Hoffman, and Miss Mena Oliveros.

Other chairmen in charge are Miss Amey MacMillen, tickets and badges; Mrs. George L. Estes, patronesses; Mrs. J. Duncan Puller, posters and publicity; Mrs. James K. Hyde, refreshments, and Mr. Otis Barnes, floor committee.

Miss Virginia Van Wie, noted golfer, and her mother, Mrs. C. F. Van Wie of Chicago, motored here from their winter home at Deland for luncheon at the St. Augustine Links clubhouse. Following luncheon, Miss Van Wie paired with Miss Helen Hicks against

Today Starts Gayest Month at Palm Beach

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—February always is the big month of the year in this town, but today found the populace facing so many benefits, musicales, golf tournaments, and what not, all of major caliber, that even to contemplate the oncoming weeks must make hostesses dizzy.

Now that the Lake Worth and Artists' and Writers' golf battles are over, W. B. Langford, Chicago golf architect, who is just as enthusiastic about playing the game as he is in mapping out new Florida courses, is completing plans for another sports society event, the special links match of the Old Guard society, which starts in February. Landford heads the tournament committee of this society in which veteran golfers from the United States and Canada are banded together. Barnard H. Kroger is the president.

Langford, S. L. Reinhardt Jr., A. L. Stover and C. J. Claudon of Fairbury formed the Illinois contingent in the annual Lake Worth battle. The Artists and Writers brought the usual group of celebrities here from Havana to play off an informal tournament following their Havana matches. James Montgomery Flagg, Rube Goldberg, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Beach, H. K. Webster and over a dozen others came to battle on the grounds where last year Grantland Rice carried off the Scribes' golf honors. "Big Bill" Tilden and Frank T. Hunter are expected here for the professional tennis tournament early in March.

Concert Season Starts.

The eighth concert season of the Society of Arts opens Monday with Henri Verbrugghen and the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra here for concerts. Among the season's subscribers for the program which will bring Yehudi Menuhin, Richard Crooks and Mischa Levitzki, are Mrs. Albert R. Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock, Miss Muriel McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Rasmussen, and Mrs. Henry R. Rea. Mrs. McKinlock, Mrs. Rasmussen and Miss McCormick also are patronesses for the Everglades concert, Feb. 12, of Bernardo Olshansky. Mrs. McKinlock and Miss McCormick attended a recital last week at the home of Mrs. W. Seward Webb.

The season's program of the Current Events class, the production of "Il Pagliacci," by the Romany chorus at the Everglades club, and the Kiwanis benefit all are on the books for February, not to mention the Palm Beach Yacht club regatta and more tournaments. For the Kiwanis event it is probable that Mrs. H. H. Windsor Jr., now at the Breakers, may be drafted into service again.

Spring Makes Real Effort to Pay Us a Visit

Is It, Like Prosperity, Just 'Around the Corner?

By Cousin Eve.

WHY scurry away to find spring when here it has been sitting, sunny and serene, in Chicago's lap, wild ducks flying north, and everything? White hyacinths last week were ringing exotic bells on my desk, and their heavy scent and thick green stalks meant more than mere bulbs and greenhouses; they meant that moist black earth in woods and gardens would soon put forth crocuses and daffodils.

An amusing story from the south side—none, as yet, from the south, where they are having the cold that really belongs to us. It seems there was one of those agreeable and thoroughly informal receptions at the University of Chicago where President Hutchins stands at the head of the line with other dignitaries, trustees and professors, and the world at large, invited by card, calls and pays its respects. At the back of the great Gothic room ladies of the faculty preside at the tables, and others pass 'round among the guests, chatting, introducing. All very festive and cheerful.

An Unusual Encounter.

On this occasion Mrs. Hutchins, wife of the president, observed a rather uncommon looking man standing alone, who seemed to be a member of the faculty; so she went up graciously and began a general conversation. Presently she asked her new acquaintance what he thought of the new system of education. Whereupon the stranger launched a broadside of criticism against the curriculum and quite raved and tore against it. What could you expect though, argued the stranger, when they had a mere boy as president of the University of Chicago with no experience, no knowledge, etc.

"Do you know who I am?" inquired Mrs. Hutchins.

"No," said the irascible savant; "who are you?"

"I am Mrs. Hutchins, wife of the president of the university."

"Do you know who I am?" asked the man, looking at her fixedly.

"No," said Mrs. Hutchins, "I do not."

"Thank God," said the man, turning and speeding for the door, where he soon vanished.

Friends of Ambassador Dawes.

Ambassador Dawes is sending his British friends this way with letters to his brothers, Rufus and William Dawes; hence the visit of Lady Austen Chamberlain, tall and distinguished wife of Sir Austen, who is the son of the great Joseph Chamberlain, one time Liberal leader. Their son, Joseph, an immensely tall youth with a tiny mustache, is traveling with his mother.

The Godfrey Haggards, British consul general and his wife, lunched the party at the Arts club on Saturday, including Chauncey McCormick and that popular and witty man, Count Ferry de Fontnouvelle, who represents modern France in Chicago with much charm. Lady Chamberlain had definite ideas as to what she wished to see and do in Chicago. I was amused at the cleverness of her. She preferred not to meet "society people" here, as "they are alike all over the world." A very true saying, but one that not many know enough to admit.

Henry Channon has just left with his friend and traveling companion, another tall young Britisher, Marcellus Duggan, son of the Marchioness Curzon of Kedleston. Perhaps, after all, he's American, but they are finding that Chicago has a lot of charm and much of gorgeous beauty, and so perhaps will go home and persuade others to come here for the World's Fair.

Visitors Enthralled with City.

Many of the prominent women who came here last week from all parts of the country for the meet of the prohibition reform chapter of Chicago had never been here before, and were enthralled with the town. I don't know whether or not they had bullet proof clothing, but they came and went freely, admiring our great civic show with extravagant enthusiasm. Mrs. William Mitchell [Ginevra King] and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler [Violet Patten] ran the little convention and banquet, the latter unluckily was ill at the last moment and could not be at the dinner, which took place in the grill room of the Drake hotel, guests sitting in groups of tables holding eight. I don't know when I've seen such wonderful looking women assembled, outstanding in every way, as at that dinner. Nearly all of them had the good looks of character, brains, breeding, and humor as well. Quite a few were smartly, if quietly, dressed.

The word went out earlier in the day that street dress for dinner would be the rule, but that was a great mistake, for most of the eastern women came prepared and wore dinner dress. Each table had a hostess, Mrs. Charles Sabin of New York at one, Mrs. Carroll Miller of Pittsburgh at another. Also, Miss Maude Wetmore of Newport, Miss Belle Gurnee of Washington, Mrs. Frederick Alger of Detroit, Mrs. John Casserly of San Francisco, Mrs. Charles Schweppe of Lake Forest, Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. Courtland Nicoll of New York, and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy of Chicago.

There were no speeches at dinner, Mrs. Sabin called on leaders from various states for a word, and the orchestra played "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and there were songs, everybody gayly singing.

Speeches in Ballroom.

After dinner the crowd surged into the Drake ballroom, already well filled with husbands and followers of the crusading movement, and the leaders and speakers filed on to the platform, sitting behind two long green tables. Mrs. William Mitchell, dressed in a brown figured lamé frock and looking very serious [but very young and pretty], [illegible] and introduced [illegible] Mrs. Sabin, the former Pauline Morton of Chicago, a daughter of the late Paul

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

MISS HELEN ELIZABETH STEBBINS.
[Koehne Photo.]

THE engagement of Miss Helen Elizabeth Stebbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jay Stebbins of 9644 Longwood drive, to Edward Francis Younger II., son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Benjamin Younger of 9555 South Winchester avenue, was announced yesterday at a tea at the Stebbins residence. Miss Stebbins is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and a member of Alpha Phi. Mr. Younger was graduated from the University of Illinois and is affiliated with Delta Phi fraternity.

Morton, is a brilliant woman and the head of the Woman's Prohibition Reform Movement in America. Her best line was that the organization is working for temperance and not for drink. Few, if any, of the leaders drink at all.

Mrs. Courtland Nicoll, aristocratic and elegant, gave an amusing analysis of the Wickersham report and its inconsistencies; her speech was logical and convincing, if one needed convincing. A clever friend of mine made one criticism of the movement. They seem not to have as yet a definite program. Is it for repeal, or is it modification? Whatever it is, I am for them, for it is a dignified and determined, also a very powerful body of women, going slowly forward, not standing still.

Among those at the banquet I saw Mrs. Insull, Mrs. Field, Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. Garfield King, Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, Mrs. Sprague, Mrs. George McLaughlin, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Russell Kelley, Mrs. Eugene Thayer, Mrs. Charles Schweppe, Mrs. Samuel Chase, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Oren Taft, Mrs. Shearson, and among the husbands, Albert Sprague, Harold F. McCormick, Stanley Field, Howard Linn, W. B. Wolf, Sam Chase, Kellogg Fairbank, and many more.

Good News for Opera Goers.

The Civic Grand Opera folded up its tents and left us last week, after a fine season on the artistic side, if not so good on the financial end. Necessarily, people who had been hit by the falling money conditions could not be expected to take seats and boxes this year. The best news I know is that the elevated railroad spur which interferes with traffic along the side of the Civic Opera building has been condemned by the city council and will be removed. Soon, I hope.

The next best bit is that the people of Chicago have voted yes on the bond issues which will permit construction of upper and lower levels on Wacker drive so that the approaches to the Opera can be finished. Now, if they will put some bright lights inside the Opera auditorium, so that we can see our neighbors and not get so depressed in the murky somberness between the acts, all will be well as well can be.

It was upon that delightful artist, Vanni Marcoux, who is a special favorite of mine, and indeed of everybody, that the honor fell of decorating Mr. Insull with the medallion of the Legion d'Honneur, which France bestowed upon him early in December.

An Amusing Stunt.

It was at a dinner of farewell at the Arthur Meekers before they were off for Santa Barbara last week. A feature of the party was the impersonations, at the piano after dinner, given by William Tyrole, a versatile accompanist of the Civic Opera. In this, with all the drollery in the world, he takes off a tenor at his morning practice, until his audience is in shrieks.

His final number was the reading of THE TRIBUNE by a Chicago business man, to fast and slow music. When, finally, he turned to the stock market report, his hands strayed down to the bass notes in a sort of funeral dirge. "Am. Tel. & Tel." he sang, soulfully; "Anaconda," "American Radiator"; lower and lower went the dirge, and finally his hands stopped. "Mr. Meeker," he said, "I cannot continue. Your piano has not enough low notes for the market."

In the meanwhile those present were so overcome with mirth that it seemed almost as if the stock market would recover before they did. Mr. and Mrs. Meeker will be gone two months.

Coming from Santa Barbara and here at this time are Mr. and Mrs. William S. Spaulding, formerly of Boston, staying in Kenilworth with Mrs. Spaulding's aunt, Mrs. John Benham. Mr. Benham died last week.

Mrs. Spaulding was Katrina Fairlee, and some years ago, traveling in the orient with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boynton of Highland Park, met and later married William Spaulding, who was the dean of Boston bachelors, and the most eligible.

Two Friday Parties.

Much small and early entertaining, and now that the opera is over and the new year getting cheerful and bright, teas are burgeoning. Last Friday there were several. Mrs. Herbert Perkins of 3 Banks street invited many to meet her sister, Mrs. George Breck of New York, after the concert. Mrs. Breck was once Catherine Head, daughter of the late Franklin Head. Marrying an artist, she lived many years with him in Rome, when he headed the American Academy of Arts.

Franklin Head formerly owned 3 Banks street, and maintained there a distinctly New England atmosphere. One met at his dinners all the artists, and all the literary people of whatever ages, and the walls were lined with lovely old books and signed portraits of great men and women. Kellogg Fairbank was reminding us the other night that Mr. Head was the author of two droll and interesting books, "Shakespeare's Insomnia" and "Captain Kid's Diary."

That same Friday in the Dearborn avenue studio called by the intriguing name "Secession," those two artists in modern furniture, Messrs. Warner and Switzer, entertained in honor of Lawrence Viles' newly completed furnishings. These were distributed in a very tempting way around the walls of the whitewashed rooms, which in olden times were undoubtedly the stable of some banker, and which are reached by an intricate and winding walk, adding great allure to the adventure of tea drinking.

I do not understand that "Larry" Viles has gone entirely modern in his sightly new apartment at 1530 North State parkway, but is doing only a room here and there. I hope it won't turn out like that quaint story of Frank Stockton's, "The Eastlake Screen." The lamps designed for the Viles house are specially joyous, one in bright blue having a balloonlike base and a clear parchment shade.

A Truly Modern Room.

That same Friday Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryerson were receiving in the beautiful French "hotel," which they call home at 1406 Astor street in honor of a new room they were "unveiling" which is anything but antique French. Joseph Ryerson has been keen about this room, which is his own personal and private property, and strictly modern. Indeed, David Adler, who designed and executed it, says it is the only truly modern room in all Chicago.

The walls are in light buff pine, the floors covered with black and white fur rugs, and the furniture made after Mr. Ryerson's own designs. A great window to the south is framed in oxidized nickel and the walls are hung with a rare and valuable collection of early Chicago etchings and prints. When these were all assembled it was time for the ceremony of opening. This was not even called a tea, but many were there and had a charming time, studying this and that in the odd, up to the minute accessories.

Mrs. Ryerson has been away this winter, having a rest cure in the Berkshires, and has come back looking prettier than ever and full of life.

Portrait Is Unveiled.

Another unveiling tea was arranged last Sunday in honor of Mrs. Franklin Miller's recently finished portrait by Baroness Wenner, which now hangs in the Miller apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive. This is one of the few on the famous drive which have a roof garden. Mrs. Miller, who is an intellectual and the author of various successful short plays and movie scenarios, was painted in a black lace frock against a russet ground. I understand it is about the best the baroness has done.

The artist began her artistic career here five years ago with a portrait of Harold McCormick, which I saw again only last week. In it he is standing apparently in the middle of a wheat field, looking very rosy and bland, and in the background, in full activity, a tiny harvesting machine is rushing 'round madly.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell had a large company supping on Sunday night for Dr. John Erskine, celebrated author of "The Private Life of Helen of Troy." To meet this author, also a college professor and a gifted pianist, who plays at times with symphony orchestras, were asked musicians of note and many of the literati.

MISS MILDRED KAMIN.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kamin of 1235 North Parkside avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Mildred, to Marvin V. Robinson. Mr. Robinson is a graduate of the University of Nevada and a member of the board of governors of Delta Sigma Lambda fraternity.

After supper a most beautiful program at the piano was given by Sanford Harris, who played Bach superbly, and later the guest of honor was asked to say a few words. Dr. Erskine, wearing a French decoration in his coat lapel and professing unreadiness for speechmaking, finally told in the most amusing way the lively version of "Helen of Troy" he has written for musical comedy.

Among the musical and writing people in the audience were Mr. and Mrs. Insull, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamill, Augustus Peabody, Arthur Aldis, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Linn, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barnes, Dr. and Mrs. Baum, Dr. and Mrs. James H. Mitchell, Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Hugh McBirney, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Nitze, Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, Chester Johnson, Alfred Shaw, and Frederic Clay Bartlett.

Back from the Orient.

Miss Lucille Douglas, staying in town for the last fortnight, has been a picturesque figure in the gala world of luncheons and teas. Coming as she does from Shanghai, she has that hint of the orient in her brocaded clothes, and a little red lacquer walking stick that is the envy of all beholders. She has given a magnificent illustrated lecture several times of the wonders of Cambodia and the celebrated temple of Ankor, where she has been sojourning off and on with a French archaeological group for three years.

Her etchings and prints of that fabulous part of the world, full of elephants and jungle, are now on view in Chicago, and the Metropolitan museum of New York has recently bought a series of the Ankor etchings. She came here at the time that Mrs. William Calhoun arrived from Peiping and is on her way to Paris where she will exhibit her works of art in one of the buildings of the French colonial exposition, to be opened this spring in Paris.

Today Starts Gayest Month at Palm Beach

Better known as Louise Hunter, Metropolitan opera singer, Mrs. Windsor got an ovation at last year's benefit. Here from Chicago with her and Mr. Windsor are Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Parkes.

Living Backgammon.

Living backgammon was the novelty introduced here at a pajama breakfast party given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hall in honor of Mrs. Roy L. Sharp, their guest from Chicago. This brought together a considerable number of Chicago people as did the Palm Beach Athletic Women's club bridge party in which Mrs. Charles M. Hall and Mrs. Charles Hayes assisted in the entertaining. They were patronesses of this event, as were Mrs. Sharp, Mrs. William Bode, Miss Pauline Bode, and Mrs. O. N. Tevender.

Mr. and Mrs. Bode entertained a part of eight at the Everglades club recently, and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Randle were hosts to a still larger party. Mrs. H. F. Randle was elected to membership in the Everglades during the week just past. A frequent visitor there is Alonzo A. Stagg, the University of Chicago football coach.

Among other Chicagoans and their friends noted at affairs almost too numerous to mention in the last few days were Mrs. Vincent Bendix, Mrs. Walter Giblin, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Florsheim and Mrs. H. V. Vonhost, who motored up from Boca Raton to lunch with Mrs. Lawrence Buck.

Daily Arrivals Continue.

The migration from the Lake Michigan shores shows no sign of dwindling. Only a handful of the more prominent arrivals from that area welcomed here in the last few days are: Miss Louise Burns, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Snyder, Mrs. John C. Colnon and Miss Mary Colnon, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. John Barberry, and Mr. and Mrs. Volney Foster of Lake Forest.

Mrs. Walter Aagard of Chicago also is due to arrive soon, as is Walter Giblin, both to stay at the residence of Mrs. Giblin here. Early in February Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Plammondon Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Willner will arrive to visit Mrs. Giblin, and later will come her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Skinner. George Rasmussen Jr., from Yale, and his brother, Robert, will reach here next week to visit their parents.

Notabilities Seek Europe for Their Winter Vacations

By May Birkhead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—Europeanly speaking, the denizens of the Windy City have been recently showing, if not more animation, at least increasing activity; that is to say, a growing propensity to travel with possibly additional speed in navigation a factor.

Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, that notable Chicagoan, has just arrived at Cherbourg. She is a frequent sojourner in Paris where she was formerly busy in war relief work. She also spends much time at Florence at her handsome villa which possesses great artistic and historic interest.

Among her fellow passengers was Maestro Arturo Toscanini, escaping to Europe for a much needed vacation, and also a chance to see his wife who is ill at Milan and to renew friendship with his daughter. He was so determined to rest that he refused the offer of a piano company to put one of their instruments at his disposal during the voyage. After a brief stay in Milan he plans a fortnight sojourn in Vienna.

A former Chicago songbird once identified with the Civic opera, the Opera Paris, and other great institutions of lyric art, now filling an important engagement at Monte Carlo is Mme. Eide Norena, who recently gave an opening performance there in Johann Strauss' "Une Nuit de Venise." For the last few years she has appeared with uniform success in Paris in "Rigoletto," "The Huguenots," and other leading operas, winning high praise for the range and purity of her voice, her histrionic gifts and artistic intelligence.

Miss Bartlett Plans Effective Winter Wedding

Dignity Marks 5 o'Clock Ceremony.

(Miss Bartlett will be glad to answer questions on etiquette when they are accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

By Helen Bartlett.

WINTER weddings always impress us as being more stately, more dignified, and more beautiful, in a deeper sense of the word, than summer ones. They are seldom a riot of color; the bright shades and the "la de da" pastel ones are hardly suitable to gray skies and snow flurries, and the richer shades, perforce, come into their own.

In planning a decorative scheme for a church wedding the architectural style of the church must be considered. Colonial nosegays at each pew, for instance, would hardly be in keeping in a cathedral or a church built along stately, monastic lines. By the same token tall tapers and bouquets of that dignified flower, the calla lily, would hardly be suitable in a definitely "country" church.

There are several important considerations to be reviewed before planning the decorative background for a wedding. First of all, the bride should consult with a good florist, either to get ideas or, if she has ideas of her own on the subject, to find out whether the season's floral offerings will suit her plans. Flowers out of season are expensive, as every one knows, and the bride who wants to keep down expenditures should not make elaborate plans until she finds out from her florist what flowers will be plentiful or within her means.

Decorative Scheme.

Next she should scale her decorative scheme with the size and style of the church's interior. All decorative floral work, by the way, should be done with the consent and coöperation of the sexton of the church, who is familiar with the church's rulings concerning the placement of vases, candelabra, or whatever else must be added or removed in the vicinity behind the altar rail.

We recently planned what we think and hope will be a beautiful wedding, although it is not going to be a lavish one. It will take place in a chapel that is decidedly Gothic in type—the interior of gray stone with wood trim stained a dark brown. The altar is of white marble. It is rather severe and, for such a tiny place, cathedral-like in feeling.

It is to be a five o'clock ceremony. The bride will wear a princess gown of velvet, with long close fitting sleeves and a skirt that brushes the ground in front and is a bit longer in back. The shade of the velvet is hard to describe [if we were a Paris couturier we would call it "rose breath" or something of the sort], being an eggshell or off-white with the faintest tinge of rose—just the tiniest suspicion of it. This same rose tinge is in the tulle that makes the veil.

Bride's Veil.

The bride is a tall young woman, and quite blonde. Because of her height the head arrangement of her veil is extremely simple, just a snug cap from which the veil flows in rich folds at the back of the neck. The rose tint in gown and veil are a bewitching complement to her pink and white prettiness. She will carry calla lilies which have been dipped in pale pink—six of them tied with dull gold ribbon.

The groom, the best man, and the bride's father will wear full afternoon dress.

The bride's only attendant will wear a velvet gown, also cut on princess line, in a rich blue, and she, too, will carry calla lilies dipped in rose, but the rose will be a deeper shade than that of the bride's flowers. Her hat is a velvet turban in rose with an off the face brim that droops down in the back. The slippers, scarcely seen under the hem of her long gown, are the exact rose shade of the lilies and her turban.

Smilax in some profusion, as many candelabra as could be unearthed and four big bunches of calla lilies will be employed in decorating the altar and the sanctuary. On either side of the altar will be a tall vase filled with the lilies. Ranged on either side of these are candelabra with tall white tapers which will be lighted for the ceremony. More candelabra will be down in the sanctuary at the altar rail, one either side of the place where the couple will kneel. Slightly behind them will be tall baskets of calla lilies. Strands of smilax will be used instead of ribbons.

Tall, White Candles.

Ceiling lights will not be used. Down both sides of the aisle, at every other pew, will be a tall white candle—probably an electric one for safety's sake—and the only other illumination will be a few sidelights.

Fortunately for the bride's plans this church boasts an especially attractive band of acolytes, a great many of them quite small. This band in white gowns with white surplices and scarlet capes and sashes will lead the processional up the aisle and, arrived at the alter, will range themselves on either side of it, outside the railing.

Immediately after the acolytes will be the maid of honor, walking alone. Four or perhaps eight paces in back of her will come the bride, on her father's right arm. The groom and best man will, of course, come in with the clergyman from the vestry at the start of the processional and take their places, facing the guests.

The procession of small boys will be a beautiful and dignified touch. Small boys are solemn when they're working at being acolytes and the sight of a band of them is touching and at the same time rather inspiring.

Such a twilight ceremony ought to be extremely effective.

Dinners and Teas.

A dinner was given Thursday night by Mrs. Martin D. Hardin of Chicago at her home in compliment to Gen. Vivian Collins and Mrs. Collins. Other guests are Gen. William J. Nicholson and Mrs. Nicholson, Mrs. William T. Durrett, Mr. and Mrs. Herman F. Erben, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Buckner Barrett, and George B. Lamar.

George E. Howard of St. Louis has returned to St. Augustine for his annual visit. He will renew a golf friendship on the St. Augustine links with Alfred F. Maynard of Marquette, Mich.

Mrs. Milton W. Kirk entertained last week-end at the Alcazar Miss Marian Potter. On Sunday they attended the Flagler system open handicap tournament staged on the Ponce de Leon and Alcazar tennis courts. Others in the gallery included William R. Kenan Jr., Mrs. Lester Scott Carroll of Evanston, and Miss Mary Lucas Hart of St. Louis.

When Chicago Was Young

Smith, son of our friends, the Solomon A. Smiths, recently married Miss Carrie Stone, a lovely dark-eyed Chicago girl. I hope you will tell your father about this wedding, for I know he remembers the Solomon A. Smiths from his visit to us, and he will probably want to write a letter of congratulation to them. I realize how middle aged I am getting when I reflect that young Byron Smith is old enough to be married. He is a fine fellow and is in his father's bank. It must be a comfort to a father when his son follows in his footsteps.

Aren't you interested in the project of the New York theater producers who are trying to see if they can make the trip to San Francisco in 88 hours? Even if it is an advertising scheme it is a great spectacle, the greatest railway feat ever attempted. I imagine it will be successful because of the elaborate preparations they have made—extra engines every forty miles, and so forth. Jarrett and Palmer are certainly clever to have invented this idea in connection with their spectacle, "Around the World in Eighty Days." The papers all say that the train has excited great interest as it has sped through the country with its banner along the side of the train, "Jarrett and Palmer's Transcontinental Express."

Will has been intensely interested in this race against time, calling it the most important event in railway history since the iron horse started on its career. He was down at the station when it reached Chicago, and came home full of the details of the "greased lightning caravan," as he terms it, with its combination baggage and smoking car [illuminated by gas fed from a reservoir] and a Pullman palace commissary and sleeping car. Will saw some of the notable on the train, and said he shook hands with Lawrence Barrett, the tragedian, whom he had met in Chicago last year. In addition he met Gen. Horace Porter, vice president of the Pullman company; George F. Williams, city editor of the New York Herald, and Milton Prior of the Illustrated London News. The men aboard had taken advantage of the chance to go on this flying trip on payment of $500 fare. It is said that the trip will cost Jarrett and Palmer $10,000.

It is interesting that this great feat should have been attempted in the centennial year of our country's history, isn't it?

My letter is too long. I must close.

Lovingly yours,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Foot Notes.

Wirt Dexter was the father of Mrs. Stanley McCormick.

Benjamin F. Ayer, whose masterly plea "Will" heard in 1876, was a leader among Illinois lawyers. He was the father of Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mrs. Cecil Barnes, and Walter Ayer.

Byron L. Smith, whose marriage in 1876 to lovely Miss Carrie Stone was noted by "Martha," was the father of Solomon A. Smith, Walter B. Smith, Harold C. Smith, and Bruce D. Smith.

Mrs. Agnes McDonough of Chicago sends us the following plaintive ballad, typical of the popular song of sixty years ago:

"Thou hast learned to love another,
Thou hast broken every vow,
We have parted from each other
And my heart is lonely now;
I have taught my ways to shun thee,
When coldly we have met,
For another's heart hath won thee
And thy voice I must forget.
REFRAIN.
O, is it well to sever
This heart from thine forever?
Can I forget thee? Never!
Farewell, farewell, forever."

Work of Chicago Artists on Display

Worthwhile Strength and Color Shown in Thirty-fifth Annual Exhibit Indicates Promising Future for Local Contemporary Art.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE great event of the week was the opening at the Art institute on Thursday of the thirty-fifth annual Chicago artists' exhibition in the east wing galleries and the opening of the annual Chicago Society of Etchers' exhibit in the print rooms. At the date of writing this no information has come in about the etching show, but a hurried visit to the Chicago artists' exhibit before all the paintings were hung gave us an excellent idea of what we may expect to find now that the exhibition is ready.

In the first place there seemed to be a judicious mixture of the old with the new, and none of the new was so new that it was raw. Rather we found intelligent examples of the painting of such modernists as Increase Robinson, Josephine L. Reichman, Frances Foy, and others. We found a number of new names, some attached to conservative work and some to less conservative, that, because of the catalog still not being ours, must go here without clearer mention. Yet we can point out the charming color scheme in Mrs. Reichman's still life and the excellent composition in the view from the window by Increase Robinson, and the delightful and beautifully handled textural qualities in Frances Foy's fascinating "Still Life with Dog," which, by the way, was awarded the Mr. and Mrs. Jule F. Brower prize of $300.

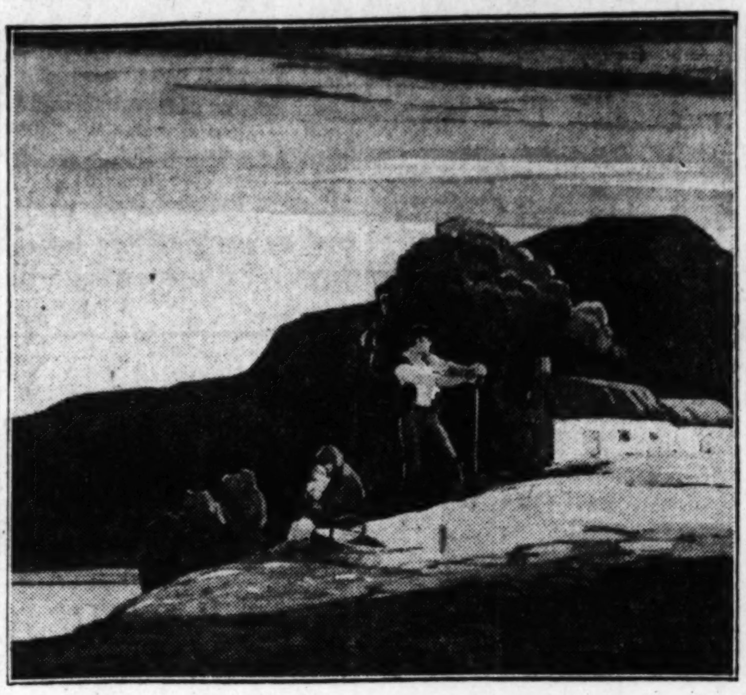
Worth and Strength.

It is, however, as we note the paintings by Frederic Grant, John Spellman, Edward T. Grigware, Gerald Frank, Pauline Palmer, Anna Lee Stacey, John F. Stacey, Charles P. Killgore, Francis Chapin, Marshall D. Smith, and there are others, but because of the missing catalog and the haste of the pre-view visit they have slipped us, that the worth and strength of contemporary Chicago art is brought home to us. We thrill at the knowledge that there are painters in Chicago who are not afraid of beauty, nor of poetry, nor of craftsmanship, nor of romance, nor of intelligence.

Marshall D. Smith, to take just one, has painted New Orleans with the warm color and soft touch of a lover for several seasons. This year he has seen one of Chicago's commonplace street scenes and transformed it into a rare page of beauty. You will find his "Old Rags and Iron" man with a wagon load of papers and junk one of the high lights of the exhibit. It is a gorgeous piece of painting.

Gerald Frank you will find to have struck a new note with an Easter theme. Against a delightful blue background is seated the figure of a young woman with an Easter lily in her hand. It is a charming composition and the color scheme is unusually intriguing. Then, if you look further, you will find two magnificent large canvases by Charles P. Killgore, in which the composition and color have been worked out and blended into ensembles that make them among the most effective, stirring, stimulating, and decorative paintings in the exhibit.



"HOMESTEAD," by Frederick M. Grant, a strikingly beautiful painting in the Thirty-Fifth Annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity, which opened last Thursday in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. Mr. Grant has not exhibited with the Chicago artists for several years. This painting is unlike his usual manner, though it possesses the suave finish of a perfected technique. It comes as a distinct and delightful surprise.

The exhibition as a whole is infinitely stronger than last year and its strength lies in the presence of work by such intelligent idealists as Frederic Grant, Gerald Frank, Pauline Palmer, Anna Lee Stacey, John F. Stacey, Marshall D. Smith and Charles Killgore.

But it may be as well to let these paragraphs serve as an introduction to a longer story next week and close this account of the exhibit with the list of prize awards.

The Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan medal and purchase prize of $750 to "Bistro Bruel" by J. Theodore Johnson (the committee which made this award should furnish an explanation of it; there are many paintings of greater import in the exhibit); the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize of $500 to "Black Panther," by Edouard Chassaing, a magnificent piece of sculpture; the Fine Arts Building Purchase prize of $500 to "Country Store," by Ruth Van Sickle Ford, a crowded canvas interesting in its composition and color, that will go to the public schools; the Mr. and Mrs. Jule F. Brower prize of $300 to "Still Life with Dog," by Frances Foy, of which we have spoken above.

The William Randolph Hearst prize of $300 went to "Still Life" by Constantine Pougialis; the Chicago Woman's club prize of $200 went to "Self-Portrait" by Solomon D. Yonan; the William and Bertha Clusmann prize of $200 was awarded to "Hockey" by June M. Knabel. The "Nude" by Edwin Boyd Johnson won the Joseph N. Eisendrath prize of $200. The Harry A. Frank prize of $150 went to "The Prayer" by Flora Schofield.

"Wabash Avenue Bridge."

The Clyde M. Carr prize of $100 for work in landscape was given to "Wabash Avenue Bridge," by Belle Goldschlager, and it would seem as though something had slipped again, or maybe Wabash avenue bridge is classed as a landscape. What is a landscape?

The prize of $100 awarded each year by the Chicago Woman's Aid to a woman artist whose work displays originality of thought and execution was given to Macena Barton, whose painting is decorative and forceful, for "Marie Armengaud." The Englewood Woman's club prize of $100 to an artist who has not previously received a prize in the Art institute went to John E. Phillips for his "Heavy Breathing Industry." The Municipal Art league prize of $100 for portraiture went to "Portrait" by Joseph Allworthy.

The Mrs. John C. Shaffer prize of $100 for an ideal conception in sculpture was given to "Head of Woman in Stone" by Margaret Gentles. The Robert Rice Jenkins Memorial prize of $50 for a work without regard to subject or medium, by a young artist who has not received a previous award, was given to Eunice Grubb for "Penguin."

Pastels and Etchings.

Attention should be drawn from the Art institute long enough to permit of a visit to the Knoedler gallery, where pastels and etchings of Angkor and the Far East by Lucille Douglass are on exhibition until Feb. 7. Miss Douglass has spent much time in China and the Far East. She has absorbed the color and the atmosphere, the feel of that crowded life which is continued today over the bones of ancient civilizations. She gives us her impressions in two distinct mediums, pastel and etching. In the pastel she gets color, soft, fluent and appreciative; in the etching she gets the feel of the stone, the granite hard quality that permitted those old temples to be buried in the jungle and yet defy the elements to ruin them.

Pastel as conceived by Lucille Douglass is not merely a matter of soft tones, of a rather easy medium in which to convey suggestions. It is with her as much an arm of painting as is oil or water color. She gets marvelous pictorial effects with it and a warmly smooth glow to the richness of her color that comes as a surprise and a delight. Look at the "China—Old and New," or "The Ganges at Benares," or "The Bride's Chair, No. 1," or "Blue Rialto—Bangkok." The blues, the reds, the yellows, the greens and grays—do they not impress you with their depth and trueness? Assuredly a pastel is a painting in her hands.

As for the etchings, many of these have the charming delicacy of a John Taylor Arms print. Some are stronger, more concise, less pictorial, just as the artist feels the drama rather than the decor of her subject. The "Elephant Terrace" is a magnificent print. "Angkor Wat at Evening" has great beauty, a far reach of city beyond the protecting arm of a shading branch. "Khmer Lion—Angkor Wat" is effective in its challenge, and the three dry points fashioned after old Chinese paintings, made for the writing paper of Alan Priest, curator of far eastern art of the Metropolitan museum in New York, are charming in their delicacy and whimsical grace.

Miss Douglass is to lecture on Angkor before the Geographic society in Orchestra hall on Feb. 10. Her lecture is illustrated with slides and motion pictures.

Successfully Portrays Trees.

Joseph Birren in his studio-residence, 48 East Elm street, has an exhibit of his work which is of great interest. In it he has tried and succeeded to portray various trees. Twenty-four kinds in all, I believe, he has worked into canvases which stand alone without that extra bit of interest to engage our attention. Birren is noted for the beauty of his painting and for its textural quality. He stresses also the third dimension as a new departure in his attack on art, but to the uninitiated eye this third dimensional quality does not seem obvious, no more obvious, that is, than a perfected technique in showing depth and distance.

We feel in closer touch with his effort for texture. Here he has secured tonal qualities that are striking. The differences in barks, in foliage, in the feel of water and sky, as contrasted with the trees—all this one can and does follow clearly. With this emphasis on texture, however, the features of his painting, which stand out now as they always have, are his very real sense of color and his talent in composition. His paintings have a decorative quality which invariably rings true.

In the current show, among the most effective and the loveliest of his canvases are "The Almond Grove," "A City Sanctified," "The Sycamore Grove," "Spring's Festival," the "Whispering Locust Tree," "Live Oak," and "Garlands of Springtime."

Notes on Art and Artists.

The Seventh Annual Hoosier Salon in the Marshall Field gallery is an excellent exhibit. It has many paintings of interest and beauty. Among the artists who give it distinction are Lucie Hartrath, Frank V. Dudley, Wayman Adams, Guy Brown Wiser, Edgar Forkner, Marie Goth, Clifton Wheeler, Paul Sargent, Edward K. Williams, Roy A. Ketcham, Mary Anderson, Sally Hall Stekete, Ruthven Byrum, Karl Brandner, and Charles Sneed Williams.

Louis Cheskin has a one man show of oils and water colors at the Allerton House gallery. "Autumn Rain" stands out as an effective piece of atmospheric painting, delightful in its pungent color notes. Among the oils, "Small Town Houses" is perhaps typical and at the same time one with which the visitor can be most closely in tune. Cheskin needs more than a paragraph for a criticism, but space presses. He conceives and paints on the grand scale with a sweep of the brush. It is effective, but frequently leaves one gasping. The oils are more clearly defined, losing thereby some of the water colors' gypsy fascination. In portraiture modernism has been allowed too large a share. The "A Little Russian Girl" is more the type one could wish him to perpetuate.

English Sell Curiosity.

LONDON.—(AP)—An English railway has managed to sell its passengers' curiosity. Since Jan. 1 it has used a trick ticket with a little red stub sticking out—with one word on it: "Pull." The passenger pulls the tab out and finds an advertisement.

A Few Fascinations for Restless Rovers

Twin Spas of Midlands Offer Hundred Cures

English Resorts Accessible to Common Folk.

By John Steele.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARROGATE, England.—[Special.]—Harrogate forms, with its neighbor, Buxton, the twin spas of the midlands. Here more than 100 treatments are given for rheumatic and organic disorders.

Harrogate was founded and named by the Saxons. Buxton, known as the "Blue Water" spa, was first used by the Romans two thousand years ago. The two are midway between York and Liverpool, Harrogate to the north of Leeds and Buxton to the south. Like Bath and Droitwich, the cures available equal, and, in the case of some diseases, are superior to, those of numerous continental spas. A common value of all mineral springs in England is their high percentage of radio-emanation.

Buxton shares with Harrogate a moderate rate of charges, which makes the baths accessible to any one. The usual length of the cure at Buxton is three weeks, and for this the rate is only $15.

Chemical Contents.

Since the curative value of a nitrogenous thermal spring depends to a great extend upon the amount of radium emanation, close analyses have been made at Buxton to determine the chemical and mineral content of the waters. Bicarbonate was found to be the most prevalent among the anions, with 25.6 parts per 100,000, and calcium in the cations group, at 5.80 parts per 100,000. The water is strong in salines, particularly calcium bicarbonate and magnesium bicarbonate.

There is 97.92 per cent of nitrogen among the free gases, a small amount of carbon dioxide, and 1.2 per cent of rare gases.

The water contains appreciable amounts of dissolved gases, among the rarer gases being helium. The free gas given off by the water at Buxton is almost pure nitrogen combined with small amounts of argon, neon, helium, and other rare elements.

Besides the inexhaustible supply of rich nitrogenous water, Buxton has the chalybeate springs, whose waters are frequently used in cases of eye weakness. The iron present is in the form of a proto-carbonate, and in this state is readily digested by patients unable to take other forms of iron. The chalybeate water is also used for certain treatments in the natural baths.

* *

St. Ann's Well.

Both thermal and chalybeate waters are dispensed at St. Ann's well. The thermal water rises naturally into a massive marble basin, through which it flows at the rate of about fifty gallons a minute.

The natural bath is so called because the water runs through it constantly in a natural flow from the springs, and is maintained at the natural temperature of 82 degrees unless for special treatments. The temperature as the water runs from the ground is constant.

The natural bath has been refitted during the last few years with special provisions to maintain an unvaried flow and to preserve the valuable emanations arising from the surface of the water. There are a number of plunge baths, besides private immersion baths, for treatment at higher temperatures. The flow of water is maintained here as in the larger baths.

Treatments at these baths cover the range of such diseases as gout, gravel, rheumatism, fibrositis, sciatica, neuritis, rheumatoid arthritis, heart disease, skin diseases of gouty origin, colitis, and anemia.

One of the Prettiest.

Harrogate lies to the north, in the west riding of Yorkshire. Philologists say the name in its Saxon meaning translates into the "Way by the Temple," and it remains today one of the prettiest of all health resort towns. It is built around 200 acres of green common, the famous Stray declared in 1770 by act of parliament forever open and unenclosed.

Like Buxton, its rates are low, and an attempt to promote a 12 month season by reducing the summer rates by 25 per cent during the winter lowers its charges to below those of almost any other spa.

A feature of Harrogate is that it has eighty-eight natural waters, which appear in springs through various parts of the town. From these it is collected to pump rooms and baths. The most famous of the cures at Harrogate is the sulphur water treatment. The usual treatments given at all thermal springs are included, however. About 100 are available.

The baths and treatments are taken on alternate days, or on two successive days with an interruption on the third. The waters are taken daily. If only the sulphur baths make up the treatment, the baths on which this spa made its reputation, the charge is only $3 weekly for three baths. For the more elaborate prescriptions the average cost is approximately twice that.

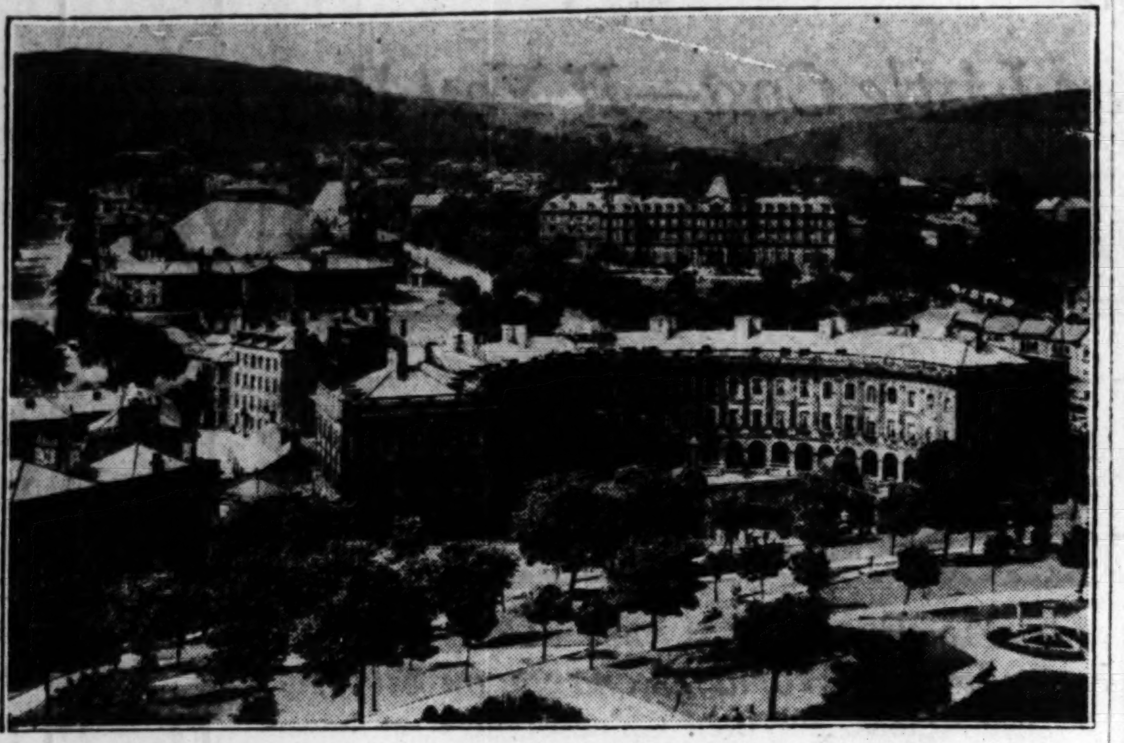
No Kurtax There.

The only additional charges at Harrogate are the usual medical fees. There is no kurtax such as is charged at several continental spas for visitors who do not take the baths. Some of these charges amount to as much as $10. The high season is from July to October. From December to March the 25 per cent reduction brings the usual hotel fees to about $60 a month, and the cure charge to less than $12.

Harrogate is built on the top of the Yorkshire moorlands, at an altitude of from 350 to 600 feet. It has a dry climate, with a mean temperature of 46 degrees. The population is about 40,000. One feature is the hunting. Some of the most famous packs of England hunt near here.

AT THE "BLUE WATER" SPA



BUXTON, England, as seen from the town hall, with the famous Crescent in the foreground. Buxton's medicinal springs were used in Roman times. The water has a beautiful blue color, and the bubbles of gas and rare elements are held to be valuable for their radio-activity.

Americans Flock to Germany More Than Ever Before

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—[Special.]—Tourist statistics for the year 1930 show that, despite the economic depression, American tourists flowed into Germany in ever increasing numbers. Almost all districts in Germany reported a large increase of American visitors compared with 1929.

Munich takes the lead with an increase of 85 per cent. A great number of tourists were drawn to the Bavarian capital by the Passion Play in Oberammergau. Heidelberg, ever beloved by Americans, reported 22,250 American visitors, or an increase of 31 per cent.

Eighteen thousand three hundred and eighty-two Americans visited Wiesbaden, the spa of spas, while Freiburg, in the Black Forest, reported an increase of 34 per cent.

Paris Taxi Drivers Are Impolite, but They Have Excuse

PARIS.—[U.P.]—The most discontented lot of people in Paris just now are the city's 20,000 taxi drivers, successors of the hoary headed cochers once the delight of comic cartoonists.

But there is nothing comic about the drivers. They claim that their standard of living has been reduced to a miserable level, more miserable than a daily laborer's, that things are growing worse owing to increasing competition and greater reluctance of Parisians to use taxis. On top of this, they say, they are harassed and handicapped by police regulations and, finally, are the frequent prey of thugs and murderers.

This long plaint explains in a way why the Parisian taxi driver is not so polite and pleasant as the old time fiacre dricer, or cocher.

Just after the war Paris was short of public conveyances and for several years afterwards the condition continued. Now, while thousands of them move about the streets, hugging the curbs, as many more thousands are in their stands in the middle of the roads.

All manner of new laws have been drawn up recently to ease the traffic problem and these laws hit the drivers particularly hard. There are rules and regulations governing when and where a taxi may pick up a client and offenses against these laws lead not only to fines but withdrawal of driving papers, reducing the driver to temporary unemployment.

They No Longer Live in Sin; Aimee Stopped All That

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRIJOLES, C. Z.—Transcontinental railroad trains pass this little town half a dozen times daily, but few passengers leave or come aboard, for since construction days, when Frijoles was an important link in canal work, it has fallen upon evil days and there are today but a few huts and laborers' cottages, with possibly the station agent as the only white man in this jungle bordered town.

But Frijoles is coming on the map again, for it is today the home of one of Aimee Semple McPherson's Four Square Gospel missions, and the correspondent paying a visit found that much work was being accomplished. The majority of the jungle dwellers for miles around have not bothered about the benefit of clergy business when they have taken a woman and started a jungle home, but now the Four Squares have been after them.

A careful study of the scriptures revealed that it is wrong to live together unless firmly tied, and these poor folks were completely ignorant of this fact until Aimee McPherson's representatives sought them out and broke the news to them.

To date no fewer than twenty-four couples have saved up the necessary money and appeared triumphantly before the nearest American magistrate, Judge J. W. Blackburn, and returned to their huts with a marriage certificate in their possession, determined to live no more in sin.

He thought:
"You're pretty—but 'B.O.' spoils your charm for me."
Yet to be polite,
He said:
"I've had a very pleasant evening."

How a second meeting ruined their romance

'B.O.' lost her many an admirer until—(Body Odor)

"I—I hope you'll come again," she said. But she knew he wouldn't. She could feel he had lost interest in her, just as other men had.

Yet last night, when they met for the first time, he had seemed instantly attracted—eager to call. Why had this evening been a failure? Why had he turned so cool and distant?

Now she knows the reason. Knows why she couldn't hold admirers—had no intimate girl friends. Let her tell you how she ended her fault—won popularity.

• • •

"It was a terrible shock to learn that I was guilty of 'B.O.'—body odor. But it's so easy to offend—and not know it! Pores are continually giving off odor-causing waste—as much as a quart daily. Our senses become deadened to an ever-present odor. We don't notice 'B.O.' in ourselves—only in others.

"Yet no one need ever offend. Just wash and bathe with Lifebuoy. You'll feel so gloriously clean—so fresh—so safe. For Lifebuoy deep-cleanses pores—ends all trace of 'B.O.'"

Want a good complexion?

Regular cleansing with Lifebuoy is the best of beauty treatments. Its gentle, yet searching lather frees tiny pores of clogged impurities—brings fresh, healthy radiance to dull, sallow skins. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you Lifebuoy purifies. Adopt Lifebuoy today.

SUNNY SAN ANTONIO

Walk in a Palace of the Dons

Would you step back through the centuries to Yesterday? Then follow the road to romance south to sunny San Antonio and join in celebrating the 200th anniversary of this city's municipal government, March 4 to 9!

You'll thrill at stepping into a palace from which proud Spanish governors once ruled this vast domain....strolling in a walled garden which saw the clash of sabers when Massachusetts was a British colony....lingering in missions which were already old when the Declaration of Independence was signed.

Against the colorful tapestry of her past, San Antonio lives happily in the tempo of Today—a cosmopolitan city offering both pleasure and profit to those who come within her gates.

Come, for spring is at high tide here in March and all outdoors is your playground!

South Seas Trip Haunts Memory After Years

Tahiti Is Setting of Many Classics of Literature.

By Charles Dailey.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PAPEETE. — [Special.] — From Suva, capital of the Fijis, the tourist has the choice of two routes if he wishes to continue his journey south of the equator. One of these goes directly to Sydney, the metropolis of New South Wales, Australia. The other proceeds 1,140 miles almost directly southward to the thriving New Zealand city of Auckland, now in its ninety-first year. Yet there is still another line from San Francisco to Wellington, New Zealand, and thence 1,240 miles northwesterly to Sydney. On this latter route one may obtain further glimpses of the south sea islands. In fact, most of the movies of the south seas that one sees in his hours of leisure at home are taken on this route, chiefly on account of the accessibility of the islands and not because they possess any greater charm than those already mentioned in this series. One may see all of them by returning over the route now to be described, in the event he came out on one of the other two lines.

Where Yarns Were Spun.

Again, on this tour one will be in the land of Stevenson, as also that of Jack London, Frederick O'Brien, and a half dozen other writers of south sea classics. If one has taken this route from San Francisco he will cross the equator and meet Father Neptune, and when ten days out from San Francisco will come to the lofty peaks of Tahiti, which is nearly 20 degrees south latitude. It is only one of the group known as the Society islands and its port is Papete, situated inside a barrier reef. If one has not come by way of Honolulu and Samoa this will be his first glimpse of Polynesia. Papeete is the capital and seat of government of France in the South Pacific. There are some 1,900 Frenchmen here and something more than 3,000 natives, and it is a scene of color.

In Papeete one gets, as in Samoa or in the Fijis, a breath of life in the tropics that for years will haunt his memory. The moment he visits the market place he will find in this busy spot, in the early morning, before the heat has become too great, a scene of fascinating activity and charm. It is then that the country folk come in, leaving their sailing craft to bob in the harbor or drawing their canoes on to the beach, clear of the tide. The green foliage is heightened by the brilliant red of the fire trees, and the roofs of most of the houses of the foreigners are red. The market usually is over before the white man's breakfast time.

On the Ocean's Floor.

One of the favorite diversions of the visitor to Papeete after he has visited the market and enjoyed his breakfast is a visit to the reef to study the marine life through the glass bottom boats, which he may have experienced already on his visit at other times to Catalina island or in Hawaii, but in Tahiti the coral formations and the brilliantly coated fish are entrancing. At night one may join the natives in spear fishing.

Should one be inclined to remain over in the Society islands instead of passing on aboard the same steamship by which he arrived, he will be able to visit other portions of the main island and perhaps some of the others of the group, and this, of course, he will have decided upon before his departure from San Francisco. The island is about 33 miles in length and the drive around it is 72 miles, and, since the ship lays over about 24 hours, the tourist will be able to see a great deal in that time. It is of volcanic origin, and one of the peaks rises to an altitude of 7,340 feet. This is the famous Orohena. There are waterfalls aplenty, one of them, on the Fautaua river, having one drop of 700 feet.

Known to the World.

It was Capt. Cook who made Tahiti known to the white man. He visited it in 1769 to observe the transit of Venus across the face of the sun. Since that time many travelers and explorers, and later writers and adventurers, have been there, and all this region of Polynesia has become known even to schoolboys. It was here the Snark put in on the undying voyage so well pictured by Jack London. It was also a contribution to folklore that Stevenson gave as a result of his residence in Tahiti. Tourists often visit the picturesque village of Tautira, where Stevenson lived when he wrote "The Master of Ballantrae" and at the same time gathered the songs and legends he since has given to the world.

Perhaps the tourist will not have time to stop over to visit some of the other islands in the Society group, but within ten miles is the island of Moorea, styled by one writer as the most idyllic spot in the south seas, and visited often by painters and poets, who usually have remained long enough to absorb the rich and verdant coloring of the folklore. If his time is limited he will go on by the same steamer and in about two and a half days' steaming will arrive at Rarotonga, the chief island of the group that bears the name of Discoverer Cook.

Scenery and Legends.

There are abundant scenery and legends in all seven of the Cook islands. As with Tahiti and other islands of the south seas, cocoanuts and copra, bananas, coffee, oranges, limes, and even tomatoes form items of export. The Cook islands were turned over to the New Zealand government in 1900, and a resident commissioner from the Wellington government is now the chief of the administration. His office is at Avarua, which is the chief commercial port of the islands.

As with most of the other seaports in the south seas, the harbor is a lagoon inside a coral reef. Trees of great variety of color and flowers of every possible tint greet the visitor who comes ashore in one of the ship launches or in a catamaran or other home made vessel of the natives. Steamer day is the one big fête of the natives and is a semi-holiday, but unless the tourist has a special mission the halt of the steamer on which he has arrived probably will satisfy his curiosity, in the event he had made a stop-over in some of the other south sea islands.

LOCAL COLOR

[Kadel & Herbert Photo.]

A Tahiti warrior in a costume made of human hair. Robert Louis Stevenson, Jack London, Frederick O'Brien, and others have, through their writings, given the world some idea of the fascination to be found in these far-away islands.

From Out of the Sea.

There is time, however, for a drive around the island by motor car, this drive being about twenty-two miles in length and affording a typical view of the scenery and the life of the natives. One passes the handsome stone palace of Queen Makea, through numerous villages and along plantations, past ancient burial grounds and along or across rivers of sylvan and poetic interest. There may not be time for a longer tour, but in the event of a layover one may be able to ascend some of the mountains that lift their heads from the sea almost at the port at which he arrives. There are three such, Le Atu Kura, Maungatea, and Ikurangi. The former rises almost abruptly to a height of 2,920 feet and from its summit one has a magnificent view of the entire island.

In the Cook islands one is out of the habitat of the Samoan type of the Polynesian and in the home of the Maori. Tradition tells us that the Maori, the native found in New Zealand, really came from the Cook islands, although he is regarded as the aborigine of New Zealand, chiefly from the fact that he was there when the white man came, and this was only about a century ago.

Further South.

If one decides to remain over, excursions may be made to other islands than Rarotonga, the chief of which is Aitutaki, which is termed as one of the best examples of a lagoon island. It and Mangaia, the latter encircled by an unbroken reef and a coral wall of gigantic size, possess interest from caves that will justify a visit. Mauke is another but more fertile island in the group.

If one has come out from San Francisco via the Cook islands, he will continue from Rarotonga for another week, passing out of the tropics and reaching Wellington, the capital of New Zealand, which city is in about 41:17 south latitude, about equal to Chicago, but one must remember that south of the equator the seasons are reversed and that when the folk of North America are wrapped in furs, those of New Zealand are enjoying the summer, although the extremes of temperature are not as great in New Zealand by many degrees.

If, on the other hand, one has traveled on from Suva, in the Fijis, he will sail up miles over open seas and land in about three days at Auckland, the northern metropolis of New Zealand, and this city is about 34:30 south latitude, or about equal to that section of the California coast midway between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Summer All the Time.

The American winter season is the best time to visit both New Zealand and Australia, although in both these countries the extremes are less than in the United States, but the summer there sees the vegetation at its best, just as it does in the homeland in our June. One therefore may start a tour of the south seas when the chill of late autumn comes on at home, get the summer in the Antipodes and the perennial summer of the tropics, meet spring in China and Japan, and get back to the United States to don the same weight of clothing with which he sailed from the Pacific coast.

Or, if pressed for time, one may be content with a tour of the south seas alone and return by one of the three routes already described in this series and be home in time to join the Easter parade. But if he has the leisure he should see something of these two British commonwealths in the southern hemisphere, of which perhaps more in another article.

New World Power Due South of Equator

Argentina Hit by Hard Times; Exports Drop

New Goevrnment Works Out Many Reforms.

(This is the eighth of a series of articles by the Tribune's Rome correspondent on the South American countries and their problems.)

By David Darrah.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture in Rotogravure Section.)

BUENOS AIRES. — [Special.] — Since it took power following the Sept. 6 coup d'état the provisional government of Argentina has made steady progress in its reform work, so that now it is anticipated that local and provincial elections may be held soon and a new president, elected by the people, installed in office at the beginning of 1932. That assumes that the provincial elections will shortly be followed by congressional elections and that a congress may be constituted by June.

There has been some anxiety about the provisional government projects on election dates and, while these dates have not been announced and will depend on the progress of reforming the political parties and eradicating corruption from the local governments, fairly definite promises have been made recently by government ministers that the country may expect to see the entire situation cleared up within the next four months. Some days ago Dr. Matias Sanchez, minister of the interior, speaking at La Plata and with Gen. Uriburu present, announced that the government's program was complete. "We shall constitute the provisional governments. Immediately afterwards we shall convene the congressional elections and when congress is opened it is our intention to submit to its considerations the constitutional and legal reforms about which we have already consulted with the political parties."

On the Right Road.

This statement was received with satisfaction in business circles in Buenos Aires as indicating that the provisional authorities were keeping their pledges and were on the right road.

Meanwhile members of the cabinet have been holding meetings with leaders of the various political parties, consulting them in matters of constitutional reform. And at the same time the federal representatives, known as interventors, who have been appointed to supersede local authorities in the provinces until reforms can be effected, have been making progress with their work, although the press is full of heated discussions about delicate problems relating to the reforms in such interior cities as Rosario and Santa Fé.

It is now thought likely that the constitutional reforms which were announced as part of the program of the provisional government will be held over and submitted to the new parliament when elected.

Coming World Power.

While there have been rumors of dissensions in the provisional cabinet of Gen. Uriburu, these are for the most part discredited, and the cabinet still holds the confidence of business men and the people. In any case, in view of the slowness and the step by step measures that must accompany the holding of the new elections, it seems certain now that Gen. Uriburu will remain in office for at least another year. Neither he nor his ministers will be candidates for president.

It is probable that, from the trend events are taking in the reform of the political parties, the old radical or Liberal party, purged of the Iragoyenists and the corrupt elements, will be successful in the new elections. Among those being mentioned as a possible president is Dr. Honorio Peuyrredon.

One future contingency appears to be that from now on Argentina proposes to take a more active part in world affairs and maintain closest relations with other countries. The first step in this direction was the appointment of a new ambassador to the United States in the person of Dr. Malbran.

At the same time this provisional government is taking energetic measures to put down Red activities here. Such activities are regarded as one of the worst menaces to the stable organization of the country's economic and political future, and to Red activities are laid many of the unpleasantries of past years. Scores of these agitators have been expelled from the country or, when the subversive activities were more endangering, they have been summarily disposed of.

Exports Fall Off.

The economic disturbance of the country is the cause of most concern here and, although there is no sign of anything approaching alarm, various warnings of stern measures of curtailment have been issued from all interests. This was brought to a head when it was announced that Argentina's exports in the first ten months of the year, amounting to pesos 528,315,000 gold, were pesos 311,371,000 gold lower than in the corresponding period of 1929. This fact was revealed in an official report submitted to the minister of finance by the national bureau of statistics.

The report added that the value of the country's exports subject to the export tariff was pesos 190,720,000 gold and of that passing out of the country duty free pesos 334,595,000 gold. The proportion of the latter to the former was 63.3 per cent, as compared with 46.7 per cent in the first ten months of 1929.

The decrease in volume of exports was noticed chiefly, the report said, in shipments of grain and linseed, which amounted to 12,675,000 tons in 1929 and went down to 7,083,000 tons in 1930—a drop of 44.1 per cent.

* *

Remedies Demanded.

Everybody started offering the government an economic reform program, it seemed, just after these figures were published. One turbulent group of stock exchange men drafted a memorial demanding drastic measures.

These brokers charged that the farmers of Argentina were riding to ruin in imported automobiles; that the money they formerly put by for the rainy day was being frittered away on fine feathers; that their sons instead of guiding the plow were speeding round the countryside in powerful roadsters. They said the farmers' thriftless conduct was dragging the country to the brink of an economic abyss.

Among the drastic measures proposed was a prohibitive tax on imported automobiles, moving pictures, and similar luxuries. It was also suggested that workers be persuaded to accept lower wages, the railways lower tariffs, and landowners smaller rents with a view to enabling farmers to compete in the world market.

The farmers and estancia workers said that high rents were one of the leading factors in their difficulties. Rents had dropped from 30 pesos to 20 pesos per hectare, and even at that a definite movement had been started, it was said, for farmers to decline to pay even the rent on the regularly developed estancia land. They were moving north to the Chaco or south to Patagonia and taking up new lands of which they had the further advantage of becoming proprietors.

U. S. Experts There.

The United States government's interest in and desire to coöperate in the agricultural problem of the world inasmuch as it affects Argentina was evidenced in the arrival in Buenos Aires of two specialists of the department of agriculture, E. S. Ray and Charles L. Ludekte, who established offices here. Mr. Ray told THE TRIBUNE they had come to Buenos Aires to obtain information on crops and live stock production in Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, and Chile and to obtain other economic data bearing on the competition of South American products with United States agricultural commodities in world markets. The mission was made by the United States department of agriculture in connection with the development of its foreign agricultural service in the bureau of agricultural economics.

Mr. Ludekte said all information gathered by their departments was reported on and published in the United States for world wide distribution and the effect of their work was for the wider understanding and knowledge of local market conditions as concerns crops and meat production.

American business men encountered in the Argentine take an optimistic view of the country's future and are looking forward to increased trade as soon as the political and economic impasse is cleared up.

But our automobile exports to Argentina dropped 50 per cent last year, while there was a drop of from 25 to 50 per cent in the exports of Argentina to the United States, consisting mainly of corn, linseed, wheat products, canned meats, Quebracho, extract, and hides.

Items of encouragement in the local situation appear in the fact that building operations are going steadily on, and on the surface there appears no letup in the retail purchases in the department stores and shops.

At the same time plans are going ahead for the construction of roads in which the country stands in great need.

* *

Behind the Times.

This problem was discussed by the "Prensa," one of the leading morning papers here:

"Rightly considering that one of the country's fundamental problems is the construction and upkeep of roads, both the Argentine Touring club and the Federation de Educación Vial have suggested to the various political parties now in process of formation the advisability of making roads and highways one of the planks in their program. Institutional needs may be important enough, but not so important as totally to distract the attention of the men in power away from one of the biggest needs of our immense territory. That we are behind the times in our roadway systems may be seen by the backward state of production in many parts; by the stagnation of certain industries that started in flourishing condition; by the absence of communications between towns and villages, leaving them to vegetate rather than live, all of which proves that the moment has arrived when we simply must face this problem with the seriousness it demands without continuous action, without serious legislation on the subject, without a bigger comprehension of what is wanted, we shall keep on building roads on a system of improvisation, doing no good to the national economy through lack of a general scheme.

"In the communication sent by the touring clubs mentioned to the political parties they state that it is not enough to merely ask the provincial governors to build roads. Quite a number of provinces have shown noteworthy examples in this respect, such as Córdoba, Entre Rios and Santa Fé, as well as Mendoza, San Juan, and Buenos Aires, but their work is sporadic and in many cases, it must be admitted, was carried out more for the political effect than the desire of benefitting the province. In all these constructions there is no attempt at permanency in cohesion or interlinking between the provinces, and so the provinces remain as isolated as before."

The letter was from J. W. Haigh, a British soldier stationed at Helmieh camp, near Cairo. The recipient writes:

"We correspond with each other and I usually send him a couple of shillings for cigarets and he thinks I'm a hell of a nice fellow, which may need explaining, as he writes: 'I thought it was only gunmen what lived in Chicago if it is one-tenth as bad as they make it out to be it must be a hell upon Earth how do the working class go on what wants to settle down and live a quiet life.' That's verbatim—no punctuation and only an occasional capital. Nevertheless, he is an interesting and chatty lad.

"The beer is punk there and they don't drink much of it, as warm beer only helps to bring on malaria. They went through army maneuvers and attacked the pyramids. This lasted a week, during which time they lived on corned willie and bread, cocoa, and rum; and they slept in fox holes dug in the sand and large enough for three men, for the sake of bodily warmth, as the nights were extremely cold.

"He writes: 'A Mohammedan is not supposed to touch anything belonging to a pig but there are three natives works in our cook house—they like both their ham and bacon and they can swill tea by the gallon and rice they will fight over it.'

"He sent along a picture of the courtyard of the mosque of Mohammed Ali, which the late lamented Lord Kitchener presented with 2,000 lamp globes and a lighting apparatus, which big chandelier looks, what with all the colored glass in it, like a Buckingham fountain hanging from the ceiling. There's a wishing arch in the mosque—but what's the use? It only gives me the wanderlust again."

Overland Pathway from India Stages Comeback.

(This is the first of a series of articles by Mr. Shirer on the places encountered in an overland trip from India to England.)

By William Shirer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON THE OVERLAND ROUTE FROM INDIA.—[Special.]—Overland from India to Europe . . . back over the desert trails which first brought the fabulous wealth of India to the attention of all western traders . . . trails which Marco Polo knew and used.

They have been well nigh out of use for a half a millenium . . . . since Vasco da Gama sailed around the Horn and discovered that boats could do it better than camels. . . . And now after five hundred years they are coming back again, displacing the [illegible] and boats, mostly British boats.

Only now the camel is gone . . . or going swiftly. Displaced by the automobile. Good old animal, the camel, steady and sure and never thirsty, but slow. Too slow, even for the Arab, who never was a whirlwind.

* *

Everything Uprooted.

Today the proud Arab steps on the gas and whizzes past the camel like a streak. This new speed is revolutionizing life throughout the awakening east.

There is the locomotive, too. It labors up and down the Euphrates and old father Abraham, and Isaac, and Nebuchadnezzar of the Babylonians, and Cyrus and Darius of the Persians, and Alexander of the Macedonians, who is buried at Babylon, must turn over in their graves and groan at the strange noise.

Steam and gasoline and machinery have hit the orient like a cyclone, as they hit Europe and America only yesterday. Everything—customs, morals, religion, ways of life, thinking—is being uprooted. It is hard to imagine what will take root again. Only it will be new and perhaps very strong. Too strong, maybe, for the western giants, Great Britain and France, who are responsible for the change, but could not foresee its aftermath.

Sea Route Suffers.

The locomotive and the automobile have brought back the old land route to India. The airplane, which must depend upon land bases, has made its success certain. By land or air to India is the cry now. The great sea route, protected by bristling forts, strategically located, and British warships conveniently placed, appears to be losing its importance.

The British fought a dozen wars to maintain that sea lane. Perhaps in a few years it will not even be worth fighting for.

The trek back to Europe from India starts at Bombay and the first stage of the journey is by sea and in British boats, for the Persian gulf is still pretty much an English lake and if the ships of other nations ply up there you never see them, they come so rarely.

Good-by to India.

Bombay. . . . Good-by to all of that for a while. Good-by to lathi charges on nonresisting little brown bodies . . . to the "holy man" squatting in his prison cell at Poona, toiling at his spinning wheel all day while his followers make revolution in India . . . to the hefty British sergeants who whack the brown bodies and can't understand why a man won't hit back . . . to the censor who slashes your press telegrams, and the C. I. D. secret service men who dog you all over India.

Good-by to the viceroy, a kindly man in a helpless position, who must live in his isolated palaces amid an oriental splendor which the Britannic king-emperor doesn't even know, while around him three hundred million Asiatic souls try to exist in a disease ridden climate on $15 a year.

Good-by to the northwest frontier, as romantic in reality as in story . . . to the Khyber pass and its entrancing desolateness, and bristling block-houses, and marching troops, and machine guns, and armored cars, and airplanes, and its wild Afridi tribesmen against whom all these instruments of modern war are used—ineffectively. Good-by to Afghanistan, on the other side of the Khyber, Afghanistan with its rugged mountain peaks, its hardy tribes, its atrocious cruelties, its fantastic revolutions and its four kings within a year or two.

Returning from Leave.

Bombay, third city of the British empire, rival of Manchester in cotton manufactures, world port, and center of revolution, empties its ships all day long. Brown skinned coolies, the best beasts of burden in the world, load and unload. Modern cranes, electrically driven, help them.

Like wartime. Military officer and police and detectives at the dock, looking over every one getting aboard. No rabid Nationalists allowed to depart.

Finally the ship, a modern oil burner of 4,000 tons, gets under way, gliding down the magnificent Bay of Bombay, a worthy rival of Naples or Rio.

The boat is filled with English officers returning from "leave" en route to Karachi, our first stop. From Karachi they will join their regiments along the six hundred miles of northwest frontier, the greatest peace-time "front" in the world.

Hot and Sticky.

They are not especially keen about being back. It is hot and sticky . . . Bombay always is . . . and some are down already with a return attack of fever. They are real soldiers—professional soldiers, and fighting—fighting anybody—is their job. On the mainland revolution is going on. They do not talk much about it. They call it "the civil disobedience show" and are a bit peeved because it has shortened the "leave" of some of them.

In a few days they will be directing operations against the Afridis and some of them will be killed. But now they talk about England, of how they have spent their "holidays" there, how good it seemed to be there, the golf they played at St. Andrews, the hikes through the lovely English countryside, the fishing trips, the nights in London—and what they are going to do the next time they "go on leave" two or three years hence.

Plainly India is not "home" for them. It is a job to be endured for one, two, three years—then "home leave"—then, after twenty years, sweet retirement, perhaps on the Riviera, with a comfortable pension paid by Indian taxpayers. They start young in the Indian service and retire before they are 50.

In Evening Attire.

Thirty-six hours up the glassy Arabian sea to Karachi, fast growing port serving the whole northwest of India. We arrive at 10 in the evening and scores of officers in immaculate evening dress are down to meet the boat. Everybody, men and women, in evening clothes. That is, every European. But there are hardly any Indians about, except the dock workers. It might be any port in the British isles. You hear only English spoken.

We have come from one great Indian port to another, and yet there was not a single Indian among the first and second class passengers. There are hundreds of them down on the lower decks, though. "That's their place," a British officer remarks. I go down and talk with some of them. Many are reading the latest books from London. Some talk with a thick Oxford accent.

At Karachi, the next morning, many Arabs and Persians get on with their innumerable women and more innumerable children. They spread their mattreses on the deck, cook their own meals in a specially provided oven, and seem to get a great kick from shooting through the sea at such speed.

Still Ancient.

Three days from Karachi along the rocky coasts of Baluchistan and Persia to Bushire. Bushire is an ancient Persian port. It is still ancient. Our steamer can not come closer than two miles from the mainland. Sailboats come out to meet us. There are no steam driven barges or tenders. The Persians have not got that far yet. They are good sailors, though. They take off a thousand tons of Indian tea and spices in six hours in their little boats. Tenders couldn't have done it much quicker.

Twenty-four hours more and we are steaming up the Shatt el Arab, which is the delta of the Euphrates and Tigris leading into the Persian gulf. Five thousand years ago, ages before Abraham, sailing vessels plied up and down here. The British captain tells me that the sailing craft we pass now are the same design as then. Not much improvement in construction over five millenjums.

* *

Built by British.

Half way up to Basra, our destination, we pass Abadan, a modern port on the Persian side, constructed by British engineering genius, to handle the export of Persian oil. A 400 mile pipe line brings the oil down from the interior to the Anglo-Persian Oil company's refineries, and tankers belonging to the company convey it to the markets of the world.

The government of Great Britain owns 68 per cent of the stock of the Anglo-Persian, and Sir Henry Dobbs, high commissioner for Iraq from 1923 to 1929, says it was to protect these oil works that the British began their expensive [in lives and money] Mesopotamian campaign during the war.

Finaly we reach our destination, Basra. It, too, is a modern port on the left side of the river and was built up by the British after they drove the Turks out on Nov. 22, 1914.

* *

Abraham's Birthplace.

A British warship is anchored in midstream. On shore is a R. A. F. naval air station and overhead huge naval flying boats drone, doing their daily maneuvers. Under the new treaty with the "independent" state of Iraq, Great Britain retains its naval air base here. It is an important and strategic base, guarding the air route to India and commanding the Persian gulf.

The railroad comes right down to the dock and you get directly into your sleeping car, to be whisked over 400 miles of desert to Bagdad. The line, a narrow gauge affair, was built by the British expeditionary force during the war. Oil burning locomotives pull old coaches, borrowed from the Indian railways, and the trip up to Bagdad is made in a night and a day.

Along about 6 in the morning you come to Ur-Junction, a modern little railroad town. It is the same Ur where Abraham was born, only there was no junction then. The remains of Father Abraham's village still stand, about a mile from the station.

Lost in History.

If you go over there you will find Prof. Woolley, director of the joint expedition of the British museum and the University of Pennsylvania, and his helpers puttering about in the sand. Abraham and his time no longer interest the good professor. He takes off his glasses and takes me around and shows me where he has discovered evidences of the Flood and a civilization pretty far advanced in ante-diluvian days.

"The story of Ur is the story of human civilization," says the professor, and resumes his digging. I get lost in history, so I amble back to the railway station on the back of a donkey and sit around in the telegraph room and talk with the "boys." The telegraph operator, the ticket seller, the station master.

They never mention Abraham or the Flood, or even the professor, and pretty soon the train roars in and I get on for Babylon, eight hours away, as they say now.

* *

Nothing but Ruins.

I really don't get off at Babylon, because Nebuchadnezzar's once dazzling capital is nothing but ruins and this twentieth century train of mine doesn't stop at ruins.

It stops at Hillah, a modern Arab go-getting town, where I can and do get an American auto over to Babylon. It would be sacrilege for a car to buzz down old Babylonian streets, so I get out and walk through the ruins and think what can happen to a great city and center of culture, and wonder if Chicago and New York and London and Paris will end this way—in utter, indescribable desolation. And so soon. After just a couple of thousand years, say.

I hop the night train to Bagdad. It is cold and the Arabs huddle on their seats, enveloped in blankets. They cough and spit on the floor. The no-spitting sign is in English, it being an English road, after all, and these Arabs do not read much English. But they are good spitters.

* *

The Wondrous City.

At last, Bagdad!

Wondrous city of the Arabian Nights! Look out the car window. The Bagdad railroad yards. Box cars, oil cars, passenger cars, switch engines, signal lights, just like in Kansas City, and as depressing.

A station, like one at Joliet, Ill., or Cedar Rapids, Ia. A taxi whisks you over Maude bridge, named after the British conqueror of Bagdad, just like all the names of things in India are British. The natives may have great men, but they never get their names on bridges.

Taxi down the main street of Bagdad with its liquor shops, its gramophone shops, radio shops, kodak shops, movie fronts, and even cabarets (O shades of the prophet!) where nice French and Russian girls dance a bit and greatly please these modern Arabs gone mad on American jazz and things.

Veils Coming Off.

Bagdad has definitely gone European. It seems like Paris to me after a sojourn in Afghanistan. For one thing, you see women's faces. The veils are coming off. For another thing, men begin to sit, not squat. There are chairs and benches. How civilized they look to one coming from central Asia, where the ground or the floor is your only chair. There are tables, too, in some of the cafés. Tables and cafés are quite unknown further east. They look good.

Even the camel has been chased from Bagdad. Big autobuses thunder down the main drag. Big limousines, carrying the Arab king or the British high commissioner or other Big Men. Small American cars, carrying just ordinary people like myself. And a few donkeys still. They just can't be driven off the boulevard altogether. But they are getting scarce.

One Gap Unbridged.

The night train to Kirkuk. There is animation at the East station, Bagdad, when the train gets ready to start. As in India, you furnish your own bedding, but the porter makes your bed in a comfortable sleeping car compartment. You have your own toilet and shower. It's almost as good as a hotel room. A dining car serves you English roast beef for dinner and English porridge for breakfast. And why not? There are only English aboard, except a French engineer, his pretty wife, and myself. We speed over Arabia, but there are no Arabs except the waiter in the car. And he speaks English.

From Kirkuk, the end of the line up from Bagdad, to Nisibin, the railhead of that once great dream which almost came true, the Berlin-Bagdad railroad, it is only 230 miles. A railway could be put down connecting the two in six months, and not only Berlin but London and Paris and the rest of Europe would be linked by rail with the east.

But for reasons political—the line from Nisibin to Istanbul belongs to Turkey—this tiny gap has never been bridged and probably never will be. The British want to build their own railroad from Bagdad to Haifa, across the barren desert, making an all-British route from the Mediterranean to the Persian gulf.

* *

In American Cars.

So we get off the train at Kirkuk—there are fifteen passengers Europe-bound—and take to autos for a couple of days.

Outside of Kirkuk, on the way to Mosul, oil wells are sprouting up everywhere. The Iraq Petroleum company (46 per cent British, 23 per cent French, 23 per cent American) is getting ready to pounce on one of the richest oil fields in existence.

Our five brand new cars rattle along over rough roads all day long and at sunset we arrive at Mosul, second largest city in Iraq, a typical Turkish town settled by Turks, Arabs, and fierce Kurds.

There is an English rest house where we get pleasant rooms, pleasant fireplaces, and not bad food. Next day on 110 miles to Nisibin across the tip of French Syria. Most of the passengers have to be "shot" for plague. It is just one of the Turkish conditions of entrance. There are passport formalities galore. More than in central Europe, even. Passports inspected when you leave Mosul, again when you leave Iraq, again when you enter French Syria, ditto leaving French Syria, and finally when you enter Turkey in the evening.

Taking No Chances.

This tip of Syria which we traverse is a "military zone." It is surprising how many French officers and troops you see there. The British usually detail native officers and men in these distant outposts. Apparently the French are not taking any such chances. Along the road out of Mosul you see rusty old gun wheels from Turkish cannon left in the hurried retreat before the British Mesopotamian army.

The little Syrian town across from the Turkish frontier at Nisibin has been transformed into a typical provincial French village. There is a little bistrot—a little bar—at each corner and French officers and men are in them drinking their evening aperitif, as every good Frenchman does at home. Even the little ladies of joy are there.

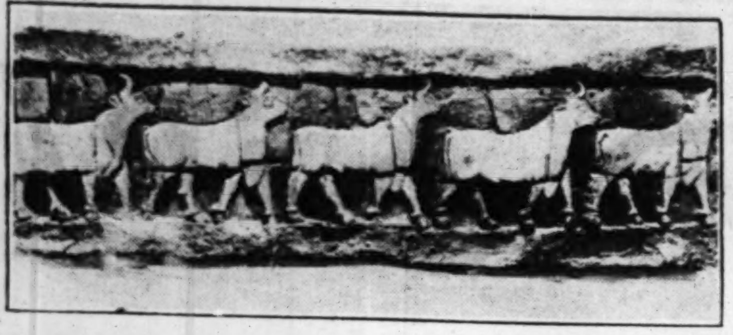
Crawling Along.

At Nisibin, the extreme point of the Berlin-Bagdad railway, our Pullman car is waiting on the siding. It looks out of place in this desolate outpost. The little station is all agog, like the provincial Russian stations which Tolstoi painted in "Anna Karenina" and "Resurrection." This twice weekly train is just too much for the five or six Turkish rail officers stationed here. They are so excited they cannot talk—or work. Finally, after five or six hours, everybody gets a ticket and a compartment and the train gets off. It is Saturday night and you crawl along slowly across the whole of Anatolia. It is Tuesday noon before you arrive in Istanbul and Europe.

A quick ferry across the Bosporus takes you to the station of the Simplon-Orient express and in two and a half more days you are in Paris or London. The trip is not so slow as it seems to one making it. London is but eight days from Bagdad and sixteen from Bombay. Only the airplane beats that, and then not by much.

FROM WORLD'S OLDEST BUILDING



A FRIEZE taken from the temple at Tel Obeid, in Babylonia, by a British expedition. The temple is declared to be 6,000 years old. Mr. Shirer relates on this page that Nebuchadnezzar's once dazzling capital is today nothing but ruins—a scene of utter, indescribable desolation.

Brest Makes Bid for Yank Tourists

BREST.—[U.P.]—A campaign to make the port of Brest the gateway to France for American tourists has been started by the chamber of commerce. This may further reduce the sea voyage from America to Europe by 12 hours.

Brest was the principal maritime base of the A. E. F. because it was the port nearest to the United States, and that is why, the local boosters assert, it should also become the port of entry for American peace time visitors.

Advantages claimed for Brest are that its harbor is eight kilometers long and five kilometers wide, capable of receiving the largest liners; also, that the ocean voyage can be reduced 20 hours by debarking at Brest instead of le Havre, thus avoiding the English channel, often covered by fog, or rough; further, that the port equipment is the most modern and efficient in Europe today.

Formerly it was argued that Brest was too far from Paris, but the new expresses of the state railways cover the distance in 8 hours, instead of 10 hours 30 minutes, as formerly.
